COTTON AND CACTUS
By El Kaye

Grandmother thinks the present generation is perverse, since granddaughter never gives the boy friend the supposedly necessary jabs with a hat pin.

I sincerely hope drinking will never be legalized. At least now men hesitate somewhat before they undertake to become thoroughly intoxicated.

It must be annoying when a young man works himself up to be an exceptional religious teacher, only to have envious ones say it is because he gains the interest of the children through the discussion of wordly things. Are we to suppose that Christ, in his life here on earth, had not the interests of the world in mind?

Now these gentle folk, who.. so feared chicken thieves that they avoided the dark chicken houses and left the coops conveniently open, may safely venture out to close the doors.

A certain man's suicide note pleads in the words of the song "Please don't talk about me when I'm gone". When I leave Klemme (I'm not promising to leave) I shall use the same phrase as a postscript to my final column.

The way the alumnae have to nurse their pennies, one would think the banquet price would have been less than a dollar. People seem pretty confident that we each have a dollar.

A crying baby in the house seems o irritate a future musician taking her lesson. I wonder if these talented musicians do not irritate the baby.

Even by sinking deep in tho't I can see no reason why habitual smokers should not nail their coffins shut (with the smokers inside).

I think new residents should live here at least ten years before they attempt to learn the names of the best bootleggers. After they have lived here ten years they should have sufficient sense not to indulge.

If I were a dentist, I'd have a Listerine advertisement posted so each patron on arriving, might see it. I'd not allow the matter to rest there, however. I would also provide a bottle for their use before clambering into the chair.

Perhaps I am unfair, but I was so pleased that it was the father, not the son, who got stuck in his own driveway. His fatherly intuition tells him that it was accidental—not due to carelessness.

Five minutes of Henry Field or Brinkley is all I need each week. That is why I listen to the "Lucky Strike Dance Hour."

DEPUTY SHERIFF IS CANDIDATE FOR COUNTY CLERK

Elmer Raw, deputy sheriff, called ta the Times office Monday and placed his announcement for the office of Clerk of the District Court

Mr. Raw was born and reared at Britt. His father, Will Raw, is known to many people as he was formerly in the hardware business at Britt. Of local interest is the fact that Elmer's mother is a sister of our townsman, Dr. W. F. Miseman.

Elmer Raw is a graduate of the Britt High School and later he attended the University of Iowa. He was married in 1926 and has two children. He had the misfortune of losing his wife who died two years ago.

Mr. Raw was appointed deputy sheriff early in the fall when Mr. Art Nison resigned. His duties in that office as deputy sheriff have been faithfully carried out. Mr. Raw is well qualified for the office he seeks, he is a pleasant young man to meet and will no doubt make a good impression in his campaign.

FIVE KLEMME BOYS SERVING SENTENCE

MUST ALSO PAY COSTS AND PAY FOR POULTRY TAKEN

Verdie Wilson Fined $100 For Being Implicated In Deal

After signing confessions to state agents Guy B. Smith and G. M. Abernathy last Wednesday, and appearing before Judge Clark at Mason City last Thursday to receive sentence, five Klemme boys are now serving jail sentences of three to six months for stealing chickens in the Klemme territory.

The confessions were secured by state agents after information and clews had been traced down from chickens stolen at the Ben Mullen farm about two weeks ago. Mr. Mullen instigated an investigation, found valuable clews and through the Farm Bureau and Wallace's Farmer received the help of state agents who completed the task of rounding up and bringing the culprits to justice.

The boys who confessed and are now serving time in the Cerro Gordo county jail are: Otto E. Smid, 22 serving six months; Walter Merkel 21, also six months; Wayne Hurd, 18, (known here as Wayne Kirkwood) three months; Lester Merkel 18, three months; Leonard Swanson, three months. Verdie Wilson who was implicated in the Mullen affair was fined $100. The boys are required to pay costs of court and must also pay for the poultry taken. In their confessions they stated that chickens had been taken at various places and times, including about November 5 they took chickens at the Emil Kraus farm; these were sold at Goodell. November 28 chickens were taken at the H. Baack farm and disposed of at Garner. On December5 the Carl Swanson farm was visited and the haul was sold in Klemme. On December 11 or 12 the affair at the Mullen farm led to their undoing when the boys hid the chickens at the old Schroeder house west of Klemme and which were traced and found and clews to the the identity of the thieves was established. It was in this deal at the Mullen farm where Wilson was implicated as one of the party.

The Times was informed that information of others implicated in thievery is now in the hands of the state agents who promise to return to this community very soon.

Thus justice takes its toll and these young men should take this lesson seriously.

GIMER OPERATING CREAMERY AT RENWICK

A. D. Gimer and son, Harl, are at Renwick where a new creamery has been constructed by Mr. Gimer and is now being operated by him and his son. Mr. Gimer has set January 9th as the opening day for the creamery, when the people of Renwick will be invited to visit the new plant. However cream is being received and butter has been manufactured. MRS ISABELLE GIBBS PASSED AWAY MONDAY AFTERNOON

Isabelle Gibbs was born February 2nd. 1849 in Cincinatti, Ohio. She was the youngest of nine children born to her parents, James Collins and Jane Doyle. Her parents and all of her brothers and sisters were born in Ireland.

Her father, James Collins was a Furniture Dealer in Cincinatti. It was there that she attended the public schools and grew to womanhood.

The departed was married February 26th, 1872 to Asa Gibbs of Cincinatti. From this union there came four sons and three daughters. Mr. and Mrs. Asa Gibbs were a Great pair, they worked together well. For eight years they lived near Cincinatti where Mr. Gibbs operated as a Contractor and builder of Railroad bridges, then in 1880 they moved to Hancock County and during the next thirty-four years built up a beautiful farm home south east of Klemme.

Mr. Gibbs was a big man and he farmed in a big way. Mrs. Gibbs was big too. in the Home. She was cheerful and pleasant with her job of raising a family and her influence in the neighborhood too was kindly and the hospitality of her home was known far and wide.

In 1914 Mr. and Mrs. Gibbs built a home in Klemme and retired from the farm.

Mrs. Gibs was naturally strong and enjoyed good health until some three years ago when she suffered a slight paralytic stroke from which she had nearly recovered when other complication together with an irregular heart action set in, and her earthly career ended Monday afternoon January 4th 1932. She had reached the age of 82 years, 11 months and 2 days.

She leaves of her immediate relatives, four children. Mrs. Clarence Arnold, of Klemme; Charles Gibbs. of Big Lake, Minn.; Anna Gibbs, of Klemme; and Harry Gibbs, of Klemme; also ten grandchildren and one great grandchild.

Mrs. Gibbs was one of the early members of the English Methodist Church in Klemme, having united with this churc.. in 1895.

MORE CANDIDATES IN PRIMARY RACE

MANY COUNTY OFFICERS SEEK RE-ELECTION

Best To Keep Experienced Officials In Office During These Times

Several more candidates are this week announcing through the press of the county their intention to seek a county office.

John Suurballe, one of the best known men in the county and our present County Treasurer is announcing his candidacy for the office. This is one of the most important offices in the county and requires a man of real ability to conduct it satisfactorily Mr Suurballe's experience fits him better for that office than any man in the county. The Times is of the opinion that in these trying times we should keep efficient men in these important offices. We believe the majority of tax payers will agree with us on this point. Let's keep John in the Treasurer's office.

Another important office is the County Auditor. Mr. Chris Jacobs, present County Auditor is a candidate for re-election. What we have said about the Treasurer's office holds true with the Auditor's office The two are closely related and both must be conducted very efficiently Without a doubt, and with due regard to former officials, Chris Jacobs has been our best and most popular county auditor. Even with the added burden of much extra work during the past year or two Mr. Jacobs has conducted the affairs of his office without extra help other than his regular assistants. The tax payers of the county cannot at his time afford to experiment by making a change in the county auditor's office.

Mrs. Fern Peck Katter, present official in the Recorder's office is a candidate for re-election. Mrs. Katter has served efficiently and should be given due consideration by the voters. Her announcement appears in this issue of the Times.

Chris Johansen. Clerk of the District Court, is a candidate for reelection to that office. Chris has a record that we doubt has ever been equalled in this county. He has served three terms without any opposition. That fact alone shows that the taxpayers of the county are well satisfied with his efficiency. Chris can always be found on the job and his experience in conducting the affairs of court matters. wills probates and other legal matter pertaining to his office is just another reason why the voters should give him due consideration and support.

George Klipping, our present supervisor, is forced into the campaign since the drawing last Thursday, when he drew the short term, and Mr. Oxley drew the long term of office. Mr. Klipping is serving his first term as supervisor and during that time he has done all we would expect of any man. Mr. Klipping is fair, uses good judgment and is not influenced by outside sources. In other words, he stands on his own feet and does what he thinks best and right. When a man has given good satisfaction it has always been customary in this county to give him a second term at least. Mr. Klipping should be given that courtesy.

A number of years ago, in some counties, it was considered best to give an official two terms, then pass it along to some one else. However that custom is gradually falling to pieces and in very few counties is the old custom observed. Hancock county is one of the many counties in the state that believes in having public offices conducted efficiently and as a result we find most of our county offices are held by men and women who have served more than the two terms. This is as it should be. Valuable experience is gained only through years of service. This is no time to experiment with unexperienced help in handling tax payers's money.

FRED OXLEY DREW LONG TERM

FOR SUPERVISOR

Last Thursday afternoon at the Court House at Garner. Chris Jacobs. County Auditor invited the public to be present at the drawing to decide whether Klipping or Oxley would receive the long term for supervisor so that their length of office would not expire the same year. About fifty or sixty people were on hand at the time and a coin was flipped to make the decision. F. J. Oxley was the lucky man to receive the long term, which will expire Jan. 1. 1935. Mr. Klipping's term thus expires Jan. 1, 1934, so he is in the campaign again this year for the term beginning Jan. 1, 1934.

WHY WORRY ABOUT IT?

Either you are sucessful or you are not successful. If you are succesful there is nothing to worry about. If you are not sucessful there are only two things to worry about. Your health is either good or you are sick. If your health is good you have nothing to worry about.. If you are sick, there are two things to worry about. You are either going to get well or you are going to die. If you are going to get well, there is nothing to worry about. If you are going to die there are only 2 things to worry about. You are either going to heaven or you are not going to heaven. If yu are going to heaven. there is nothing to worry about. If you are going to the other place. you will be so busy shaking hands with old friends and acquaintances that you won't have anything to worry about.

So why worry?

"Why doesn't the price of electricity come down too?"

Among the more important items of household expense are house furnishings, coal and rent.

While there has been a decline in the costs of these items during the last two years, they are still far above the price level of 1913.

On the other hand the price of electricity is almost one-third lower than it was in 1913.

The above chart based upon figures compiled by the Bureau of Labor of the United States shows the trend of the costs of housefurnishings, coal and rent and the average cost of a kilowatt hour of electricity during the period from 1913 to June 30, 1931.

The reduction in the average cost of electricity in your locality has been greater than the average shown above for the United States.

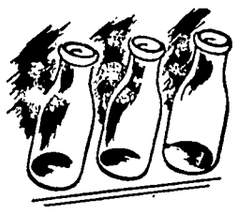
Take a trip with me into a SPOTLESS DAIRY



HIGH-GRADE milk can be produced only where the most rigid rules of cleanliness are enforced. Often one of these rules is that every utensil, separator, or milking machine be washed with Dairymen's Wyandotte Cleanser! This rule would come in handy on your own place. For Wyandotte Cleanser removes that unseen dirt which often sours milk or gives it a bad flavor and lowers its quality.

Wyandotte Cleanser is also a great help to housewives in the home. It cleans dishes and pans and everything around the kitchen until it shines, and with less work. And on wash-day it safely washes your clothes so clean and white and sweet-smelling you'll be delighted. And you save half the soap and half the work.

Wyandotte Cleanser will not taint milk or harm metal, rubber fittings, or any other surface it cleans and it will not hurt the hands. It costs less to do your cleaning with Wyandotte. The J. B. Ford Company, Wyandotte, Michigan.

RESTFUL SLEEP for FRETFUL, FEVERISH CHILD

— With Castoria's regulation

When your child tosses and cries out in his sleep, it means he is not comfortable. Very often the trouble is that poisonous waste matter is not being carried off as it should be. Bowels need help—mild, gentle help—but effective. Just the kind Castoria gives. Castoria is a pure vegetable preparation made specially for children's ailments. It contains no harsh, harmful drugs, no narcotics. Don't let your child's rest—and your own—be interrupted. A prompt dose of Castoria will urge stubborn little bowels to act. Then relaxed comfort and restful sleep! Genuine Castoria always has the name:

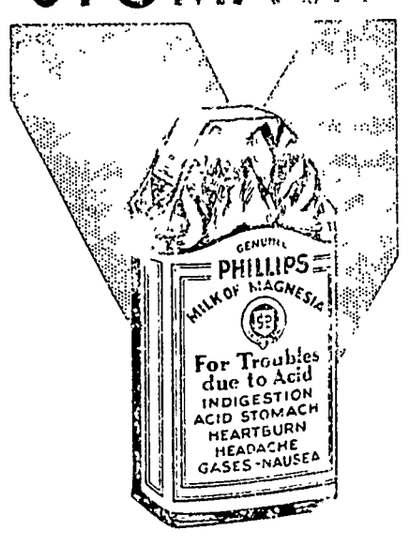
ACID STOMACH



EXCESS acid is the common cause of indigestion It results in pain and sourness about two hours after eating. The quick corrective is an alkali which neutralizes acid. The best corrective is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. It has remained standard with physicians in the 50 years since its invention.

One spoonful of Phillips' Milk of Magnesia neutralizes instantly many times its volume in acid. Harmless, and tasteless, and yet its action is quick. You will never rely on crude methods, once you learn how quickly this method [illegible] Be sure to get the genuine.

The ideal [illegible] for clean teeth and healthy gums is Phillips' Dental Magnesia, a superior tooth-paste that safeguards against acid-mouth.

ELMER JOHNSON GETS 3 MONTHS

KLEMME CHECK FORGER NOW IN JAIL AT MASON CITY

Hobby Was Passing Out Phony $5 Checks At Garner

Elmer Johnson, 39 year old farm hand, who was arrested Sunday evening at Garner on a forged check charge, was tried before H. V. Reed justice at Garner Monday for a preliminary hearing and later taken to Mason City before Judge J. J. Clark who sentenced Johnson to three months in the Cerro Gordo county jail and imposed a fine of $200 and costs and reimbursement of the bad checks issued. In case the fine is not paid, he will serve six months.

Elmer Johnson, who has been working for Albert Swanson and who for several years was employed on the E. C. Buntenbanh farm until a year or so ago, specialized in issuing $5.00 checks payable to George Johnson. Elmer Johnson forged the name of Ed Buntenback to the checks. The first of these bogus checks was cashed at the D. A. Smith restaurant at Garner in the early part of December. The second $5.00 check with the same signatures was cashed at the Gildner clothing store a couple of days before Christmas. The third check which he attempted to pass at the Smith restaurant Sunday evening proved his downfall. Smith, former marshall, and who had a star under his coat placed Johnson under arrest when he tried the trick gain. Johnson was lodged in the Garner jail.

Johnson's Chevrolet coach was held as security for the $200 fine.

DURANT FOR 2ND TERM AS STATE REPRESENTATIVE

S. B. Bennie Durant is out for the second term as State Representative for Hancock county. The Times does not hesitate whatever in recommending him highly for the second term.

Mr. Durant has a clean record and his policy of the past has been to secure the sentiment of the people on matters of importance coming before the legislature. He makes a thorough investigation before casting his vote for or against any proposition.

Of special interest to the farmers we will say that Bennie is going to tackle the phasant proposition again when he goes back. His bill on this particular propositon again when he goes back. His bill on ehis particular proposition was carried in the house but defeated in the senate. Mr. Durant is always ready to listen to the people he is representing. His name is not among those who participated in the "salary grab" and that IS something!

S. B. Durant did a good job of representing us the past two yeass and there is no reason why he should not have a second term.

MERTEN GIVES ROAD WORK SUMMARY

COST OF GRADING 54 MILES OF COUNTY ROAD WAS $43.384.67

December Was Hardest Month On Roads in Many Years

The County Engineer's report to the Highway Commission giving the costs of Hancock County road work for the year of 1931 has been completed and I shall give you a brief summary of its contents.

The cost of grading 54 miles of county road is as follows.

Earth Excavation	$ 34,562.47
Rock Excavation	1008.00
Placing culverts	1346.70
Clearing & grubbing	6467.50
Total grading cost	$43,384.67
Average cost per mile	$800.

The cost per mile varies greatly with the character of the work. Seven miles of end haul grading for which G. C. Brooks had a contract averaged $2100.00 per mile. Thirty-three miles of casting grading built by H. Brummund and Buns Bros. average $700 per mile. Fourteen miles of casting grading built with the county owned outfit averaged $420 per mile. We should not infer from the above figures that day labor work is necessarily cheaper than contract work. The year of 1931 was extremely dry and grading costs were much less than in the average year. A wet season would probably show day labor higher than contract costs. However the costs of our day labor outfit are very good even for a dry year and we should give full credit to our grading crew for their industry and efficiency. The grading crew consisted of George Gerdes and Silas Nelson.

The cost of graveling 81 miles of trunk and local roads was $31,635.-35. The cost per mile varies with the distance from the road to the pit at which gravel is secured. The lowest cost of graveling any road was $180 per mile and the highest was $700 per mile with an average of $400 per mile for the county. The graveling was all done by contract with most of the small jobs that could be handled without expensive equipment going to local contractors.

Maintaining our roads requires the time of many men and the use of a large amount of equipment. There was spent for maintenance during 1931 the sum of $86538.09. This includes the payment of labor the purchase of bridge lhmber, machinery, gravel pits, right of way, payments to contractors for hauling maintenance gravel and administration expense. The amount spent seems large but when reduced to costs per mile per year it does not seem so impressive. The average cost of maintenance on trunk roads was $197 per mile and the average ocst on local roads was $70 per mile. During the sumer months nearly all of the blading and dragging is done by patrolmen but during the spring and fall the assistance of a large number of farmer draggers is required. December 1931 was one of the worst months on roads that we have experienced in recent years and dragging bills were exceptionally high.

TOO MUCH

Here is one that is going the rounds of newspapers which sums up the cause of every kind of trouble, it seems. The writer gives his ideas in a terse and tranchant manner:

"Too much oats ad too much wheat,
Too much corn and too much heat,
Too much cotton, too much oil,
Too many hours that we don't toil,
Too many highways, too many cars,
Too many people behind the bars,
Too much poverty, too much wealth,
Too many people have poor health,
Too much politics, too much booze,
Too many wearing high heeled shoes
Too many loafing, too many bets,
Too many failing to pay their debts,
Too many spending dough for gas,
Too many talking of Europe's sass,
Too many buying beyond the means,
Too many buying canned corn and beans,
Too many candidates after your vote
Too many wearing an old overcoat,
Too many hiring their washing done
Too many playing bridge for fun,
Too many looking to Uncle Sam,
Too many people don't give a ——,
Too many poets, too much prose,
Too many girls without underclothes
Too much buying of goods on time,
Too many people don't save a dime,
Too much ball, too much play,
Too many officers on big pay,
Too many taxes, too much spent,
Too many folks spend every cent,
Too much fun, too much ease,
Too many rips in my B. V. D.'s,
Too much reform, too much law,
The darndest mess you ever saw."

COTTON AND CACTUS
By El Kaye

Ray Chapman Andrews, explorer, ridicules women who put on breeches and plunge into the jungles. What a queer attitude to take! Most farmers praise women who put on overalls and plunge into the harvest fields or the cow barns.

Much is said about the immoral hours teachers spend on the dance floor but it strikes me as being more immoral for them to spend their evenings cussing and discussing the pupils, their faults and relatives.

IT PAYS TO PICK THE RIGHT FEEDS

In selecting feeds for economical pork production it pays to pick them with both results and cost in mind. According to figures compiled by E. L. Quaife of the Animal Husbandry Extension Service, the total feed cost per hundred weight of pork. including the feeding of the sows while pregnant, for three of the high herds in the 1931 Pig Crop Contest was $5.03, $4.06 and $3.53 respectively. The average weights of the hogs in the different lots at 180 days of age was 240 pounds, 219 pounds and 204 pounds respectively

If these three men had all sold their hogs at the same price, that is $6.10 per hundred weight at home the price current the forepart of September when these hogs were weighed, the gross profit above feed costs per sow would have been for the first lot $25.48. for the second lot, $32.32 and for the third lot, $42.51

The factors determining, more than anything else, the difference in cost of production of these hogs were the different feeds used, the amounts of these feeds and the variations in price paid for the different feeds. In figuring these costs. however, the corn and whole oats are charged at the price actually paid by the different men.

In the first two lots a wide variety of feeds were used. Both used large quantities of hulled oats along with corn. The first lot was fed a rather low protein carrying commercial mixed feed, while the second used high protein carrying feeds. With the third lot. corn and whole oats supplemented with a high protein carrying commercial feed made up the ration.

A study of the amounts and kinds of feed used and the results obtained by these three men indicate that with the first lot the comparaive high feed cos was caused mainly by two factors. A large amount of hulled oats and oatmeal was fed. This replaced a considerable amount of corn at a cost of around $2.00 a hundred weight for the hulled oats or oatmeal as compared with corn at approximately 90c per hundredweight. Obviously the hulled oats at so high a price could not replace so much corn economically and this helps to account for higher cost of gain where much of the hulled oats or oatmeal was fed.

The second factor in increased cost in No. 1 lot was the use of a comparatively low protein carrying supplemental feed, costing as much of more per hundred weight than the higher protein carrying feed used on the other lots. This low protein feed not only made a higher cost of protein but also replaced to a considerable extent corn costing 90c per hundredweight with the feed costing around $2.50 per hundred, a considrable par of which was worth no more per pound than the corn itself. Such a simple matter as careful feed selection accounted for a saving of $1 50 per cwt. of pork produced between the high and low cost farms on these three that all stood well on the basis of results or amount of pork produced per litter at six months of age.

HANCOCK CO. 4-H CLUB BOYS ENJOY STATE CONVENTION

Twelve 4-H club boys from Hancock County who attended the State Club convention at Ames the past week are home again after an educational and enjoyable session.

The boys from Hancock County competed in both livestock and grain judging contests. Out of the 53 counties competing in the livestock judging contest, the Hancock County boys ranked twelfth. In the grain judging conest with 51 counties competing, the Hancock County boys ranked sixth. Elmer Lundberg from Madison township proved to be the best judge from his county as he won two blue achievement ribbons, one in livestock and one in grain. Blue ribbons were awarded to the boys scoring 90% or better in livestock org rain. Loren Abele of Garfield township received a blue ribbon in grain ju ging.

Elmer Lundberg was also second high scoring individual in both livestock and grain. When we realize that 359 boys competed in grain and livestock judging we are better enabled to realize the good judging work done by Elmer.

SUPPLY PLENTY OF WATER FOR COWS

This is the time of the year when many feeders are likely to overlook the importance of supplying a plentiful quantity of drinkable water for their dairy cows. Many cows. during the winter months, obtain but one good drink a day, and often this is so cold that they do not consume sufficient water to maintain efficient milk production.

In the first place. water forms almost 87% of the contents of milk Practically a third of the water which the cow consumes is used in milk production. Water is also important from the standpoint of maintaining the body temperature assisting in elimination of waste from the body. and helping in assimilation of the nutrients in the feed.

Extremely cold water has a tendency to temporarily interfere with the bacterial action which goes on in the rumen or paunch of the dairy cow. Roughages and coarse feeds are broken up by the bacterial action in this portion of the digestive tract. When extremely cold water is poured upon the contents of the rumen, this bacterial action stops temporarily and the energy of the cow must be utilized in building up the body temperature to such a state that digestion may again go on. It is cheaper for the feeder to see that water is properly heated or that the chill is removed. In order that the animal may maintain maximum water consumption and thereby help in the efficient digestion and assimilation of the feed.

Although water is probably the cheapest ingredient that most feeders have in heir ration, during the winter months it is probably as much abused as any one other ingredient in the ration of the farm animal. More precaution in watering will maintain more efficient production and will require fewer veterinary bills.

HEART INTEREST IN A WEDDING

Most newspaper men shrink from the task of writing up a wedding and prefer to pass that responsibility to the female society editor. Yet there are excepions. Occasionally an editor is found who can paint a word picture of nuptial events that and lady reporter might envy.

We have just discovered one who appears to be hiding his great talent in an obscure Colorado town while he ought to be holding down a great city job. Here is a sample of his litereary ability which proves our point

"It was a wonderful wedding. The girl was as sweet as any girl who ever lived, but modern. As she walked up the aisle on her father's arm, her lips lightly tilted at the corners with a happy smile. she was a picture of modest beauty. Her filmy wedding gown and gossamer veil floated around her like a halo. She was as near an angel as girls get to be in this world. At the altar she passed from her father the man she always loved, to the other man to whom she would devote the rest of her life. Her dainty foot touched a potted lily resting on the floor and it turned over. Smiling again, she turned to the dear old pastor waiting at he chancel and said. "That was a hell of a place to put a lily'."

ABOUT two hours after eating many people suffer from sour stomachs. They call it indigestion. It means that the stomach nerves have been over-stimulated. There is excess acid. The way to correct it is with an alkali, which neutralizes many times its volume in acid

The right way is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia—just a tasteless dose in water. It is pleasant, efficient and harmless. Results come almost instantly. It is the approved method. You will never use another when you know.

Be sure to get the genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia prescribed by physicians for correcting excess acids. 25c and 50c a bottle—any drug store.

MAKE THE AVERY YOUR FAVORITE PLAY HOUSE

I IMAGINE THAT—
By Phil Osifer

A slight outline of policy would be in order. But it should cause no particular worry. I reserve the pecular right to say what I please, so far as Ye Editor permits; alsowe reserve the right to skip an issue of the 'Times' when the going gets to heavy or there is absolutely nothing doing in the Old Town—which isn't often. I hope that all of my well-meant persiflage (page Webster) will be just a bit helpful if not always entertaining. Be assured that the intention is the best.

—PO—

—Ray Chapman Andrews is right. Plunging into the harvest fields and cow barns is not exploring.

—PO—

—In passing, it might be well to mention a word about that honored institution, the Old Joke Tree. It is somewhat obscure, to be true, and for a number of years it has been non-existant. It died of old age, finally.

—PO—

—But beneath those spreading branches the Spit and Argue club were wont to gather on sultry afternoons and settle burning questions of local and nation-wide interest.

—PO—

—The tree is now gone. A gasoline pump stands within a short distance of the place where the tree tance of the place where the tree once stood. But. saddest of all, many of the old time denizens of that particular spot remain. They have no longer a suitable place to congregate. Meetings of old time fervor no longer take place.

—PO—

—Would it not be well to dedicate another tree (we have so many of them along main streee) to the exclusive use of such members of the Spit and Argue club as still remain. I would suggest that the nail kegs, cracker boxes, park benches ,etc. be placed far enough from the street so that the side-walk would not become slippery.

—PO—

—Our High School Basket Ball Team really should win more games. Irecently heard one of our star players declare to all and sundry that he Did Not smoke any cigarettes on the day of a game. With such excellent personal training we really should do better. What do you think?

Cost of Living Going Down?

THE COST OF ELECTRICITY HAS STAYED DOWN

Meats, cereals and dairy products are among the more important items of household expense.

While the costs of these items have been declining, especially during the last 6 months, they are still above the price level of 1913.

On the other hand the price of electricity is almost one-third lower than it was in 1913.

The above chart based upon figures compiled by the Bureau of Labor of the United States shows the trend of the costs of meats, cereals and dairy products and the average cost of a kilowatt hour of electricity during the period from 1913 to June 30, 1931.

The price of electricity does not come down—because it has stayed down—as these government figures prove.

COTTON AND CACTUS
By El Kaye

I congratulate Mr. Roosevelt on his attempt to politically stradle the entire nation. In his private assurances, he tells to each supporter just what that individual desires to hear. If a few of us could learn to carry water on both shoulders, we would (I'm sure ladies will especially benefit by this advice) have a multitude of friends.*

Gossipy tales of drivers feats of daring have an attraction all their own that will continue long after you and I will have been on earth (both the gossip and the reckless driving).

Judging from the amount of mail I carry to the post office, one would think I were a Man of Letters.

I cannot determine whether he wished to look up to her or not, but a certain Garner business man entered a cafe and after some laborons thinking, accosted a young lady and insisted upon standing her on one of the high stools before the counter.

Many a damsel will be dismayed when her boy friend purchases an easy starting Rockne Six. She no longer can use the alibi "we could not start the car" while explaining her tardy homeward journey from the dance.

Thumb tacks must have been invented for paining a localized spot of ones anatomy.

Since Dr. Steinblock discovered a process for irradiating foods to install vitamin content. I suppose the bossies which supply Klemme with milk will soon be so aristocratic as to have sunlamps (resembling footlights) decorating the manger.

Do you remember when you first drove your friend's model T after driving your own shift car, and you stepped on the clutch only to find yourself in low and moving the rear wall of the garage over six inches.

AVERY THEATRE REDUCES PRICES

Turn to the Avery Theatre advertisement and note the reduction in price that Manager Marks has established. The Avery is showing a good classs of pictures that other theatres are charging a great deal more to see. Mr. Marks is lowering his prices to conform with the general reduction of commodities in other lines. The new prices should prove a real attraction to those who like a good talkie program.

A. C. TEAM SCHEDULES GAME WITH FAST MASON CITY FIVE

Iowa State Brand Creameries Team Will Play On Local Floor Saturday

The Klemme A. C. Independents have scheduled a game with the fast Iowa State Brand Creameries team from Mason City for this Saturday night to be played on the local floor. This promises to be an interesting game and one that fans will want to see. They have also scheduled a game with Prof. Elliot's fast Hanlontown five for sometime during next week. Judging from the splendid game the boys put up against the fast. Hayfield five Tuesday night they should stand a good chance of winning from both these teams.

INDEPENDENTS LOSE CLOSE GAME TO HAYFIELD 44-38

The Klemme Independents lost a hard fought game to Hayfield on the latter's floor Tuesday night, 44 to 38. The game was closely contested all the way thru and was one of the best games played by the town team this season. The locals were handicapped by the loss of Stokesbary, star forward, who injured his ankle in the closing minutes of the game with Garner last Friday eve, and who will probably be unable to play again this season. Keraus and Lemke were high point men. A feature of the game was several spectacular long shots by Koerner. The locals played a great game and will undoubtedly reverse the score when the Hayfield team plays their return game on the local floor.

YOUNG GARNER ATTORNEY IS IN COUNTY ATTORNEY RACE

W. D. Daly, youg Garner attorney is this week announcing in the county press his intentions of putting up a battle for the office of county attorney.

Mr. Daly is a mighty fine young man in every way. He is a graduate of the Mason City high school, then attended Columbia for four years and then went to the University of Iowa where he graduated and received his degree in law. He came to Hancock county to practice law and is making good in that profession. Mr. Daly is one of the few young men who made his way thru college and is the type who sets a high goal and then goes after it for all he is worth Mr. Daly has set his goal for the office of county attorney and from what we know of him, he is going to make the campaign interesting, at least.

AMERICAN LEGION AUXILIARY NOTES

By Mrs. P. W. Johnson

The regular meeting of the local unit was held in the Legion rooms Thursday afternoon, Jan. 14. Mesdames Coobs and Thomas were hostesses.

It has been called to our attention that the Red Cross service has been taken away from Knoxville. This means that small articles which are used for rewards and prizes will have to be furnished by the units over the state. Such articles as gum, candy bars, cigarettes. etc. are accepted. All local members bring one or more of these to the next meeting and a box will be sent to Knoxville.

Bright colored crepe paper to wrap around flower pots is also asked for. A full roll or pieces will be accepted.

The local unit placed their annual order for 500 veteran made poppies in December.

The poppies are made under sanitary conditions by disabled veterans not by tuberculosis patients as has been erroneously stated and will endanger no ones health.

The Secretary reported a large box of clean used clothing had been sent for the supply shelf at Des Moines.

BRITT MAN IS CANDIDATE FOR COUNTY SUPERVISOR

The announcement of N. P. Nelson, of Britt, for county supervisor appears in this issue of the Times Mr. Nelson is asking for the term beginning January 1, 1933, which puts him in the running against Frank Schoun present supervisor

The Times is not personally acquainted with Mr. Nelson, but the reports we here are very favorable Mr. Nelson, who was a former ditching machine builder and contractor and garage proprietor, has for many years been closely connected with public affairs. He has been on the Britt school board for many years and has given his time liberally to civic matters.

As for his qualifications his friends state that he will be able to handle the affairs of the office he seeks.

Card Of Thanks

We wish to thank our neighbors and friends for their kind help and sympathy extended to us in our recent sorrow, and thanking those who contributed flowers and who offered words of encouragement.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Wille

A TRIBUTE

He's standing by us all the while;
He'd have us look to Him and smile,
To look away from sorrow and grief
And know that He is standing near.
He's standing by us all the time;
It matters not the hour and clime.
We'll not complain, our lot bemoan,
We'll never again think we are alone
For Jesus stands at hand to cheer,
Sometimes think we hear Him say:
"Just lean on Me and have no fear,
Lift your thoughts to Me and know"
We always feel that we can try,
When we know Jesus is near by.

DOINGS AT SCHOOL THE PAST WEEK

HIGH SCHOOL FIVE WINS FROM GOODELL CAGERS 22 TO 15

Will Play Fast Ventura Team Here Friday Night

The Klemme High School basket ball team won a hard played game from Goodell 22 to 15. The green and white cagers led all the way and Goodell never saw the top side of the score.

Though Goodell was outclassed the locals were playing under several handicaps that made a good brand of basket bal almost impossible.

The five men who staged that comeback in the Crystal Lake game and who played the local athletic club to a close score are showing up strong on both offense and defense and are promising some real competition for the remainder of the games.

Keeper and Missman again led the local boys on to victory. Keeper being high point man for the locals with four field goals and one free throw The Boller brothers starred for Goodell.

The Domestic Science girls under the able direction of their teacher Miss Hazel Dallenbaugh, served a delightful dinner to the Klemme school board members, their wives and all the teaching staff and Mrs. Hunter and Mrs. Grove The dinner was served on the stage of the gymnsaium at one long table seating the twenty-four guests. The menu was planned prepared and served by the girls. Between the courses a violin quartet composed of Gracka Quandt, Marie Stille, Ruth Wellemeyer and Miss Ford, accompanied by Eva Stokesbary, entertained. The dinner was also given to Mr. Gimer as a farewell as member of the board. Mr. D. L. Hunter gave a very impressive talk flolowed by Mr. J. N. Day as president of the school board, and Mr. Gimer responded with a few fare well remarks. Afterwards the men adjourned and held a regular board meeting, while the ladies retired to Miss Goll's room and spent the evening visiting.

Miss Barz, teacher, and the pupils of grades five and six, had a farewell surprise party for Thelma Gimer Friday afternoon. A fine time was enjoyed playing games, after which lunch was served. Thelma was presented with a gift as a remembrnce from her room and teacher .

"No. dear."

"Why, do they only feel sad on the outside?"

PECK HANSON IS CANDIDATE FOR RE-ELECTION

Peck Hanson, sheriff was in Klemme today and made arrangements with the Times to run his announcement as a candidate for re-election to the office of sheriff. Peck needs no introduction to our readers. Peck has been an efficient sheirff and with the added clerical duties which have piled into the sheriff's office the past few years it takes a man of experience to handle the affairs of that office. Peck seems to have clear sailing as we have heard of no opposition from any part of the county. Peck has been a popular candidate with the voters, who are well satisfied with his work and should he be opposed his friends are going to stick by him.

A. L. RULE ENTERS STATE SENATE RACE

CANDIDACY ENDS OLD CUSTOM IN THREE COUNTIES

On Old System Hancock Co. Should Supply Candidate This Year

A. L. Rule, Mason City attorney and former senator who served the three county district of Cerro Gordo Franklin and Hancock counites eleven years ago, last Thursday officially announced that he would be a cadidate as senator of the forty-third district.

The entrance of Mr. Rule into the campaign puts an end to an old agreement entered into back in 1908, when John Hammill entered the senate from Hancock county. The next senator was T. J. B. Robinson of Franklin county. When Cerro Gordo turn came in 1916 Mr. Rule was elected to the office. Then in 1920 when Hancock county again had its turn J. E. Wichman was sent to the senate. The term following was served by C. F. Johnston of Franklin county. And the last term was served by E. W. Clark of Mason City.

On the old plan it is again Hancock county's turn to put up a candidate acceptable to the other counties. The recent Farm Bureau squabble seems to have split the county so that politicians cannot center on a good man—the result being that Cerro Gordo is stepping in with an able candidate and the old custom is ended.

Whether or not Hancock county can muster out a man who can overcome all the obstacles remains to be seen. Since the three-county agreement in 1908 each county has had two men as senators. Those who are opposed to the old system base their dissatisfaction on the fact that the old system does not permit of the re-election of a senator for the next term, thus losing the effectiveness of his experience and influence.

Here in Hancock county I. C. Hastings was suggested as being of senatorial timber but he has faded out of the picture. S. B. Durant has been approached on the subject but he preferred to again try for representative. Possibly Hancock County may still reach an agreement and try to put the "old system" back on its feet. Meantime A. L. Rule seems to have clear sledding, unless Clarence Knudsen, of Clear Lake, decides to enter the race. He was a candidate against Clark in 1928.

Business Up-building and "Bank Balances"

---Go Hand in Hand

WE INVITE THE HEAD OF EVERY- BUSINESS, BIG AND LITTLE, TO USE THIS SERVICE—

The officers and directors of this bank count it a privilege to have been able, during the year just passed, to have been helpful to so many local business concerns.

Business and Community Progress ever has been so closely interwoven with the vision and co-operation of their banking institutions— the human character of such an alliance is too often overlooked.

Experience of many years has proved this bank to be strong, resourceful and conservatively managed— but of equal importance— it is a Friendly bank. Its officers invite your account with every expectation of being helpful to you—

from HEADACHES

COLDS AND SORE THROAT

NEURITIS, NEURALGIA

Don't be a chronic sufferer from headaches, or any other pain. There is hardly an ache or pain Bayer Aspirin tablets can't relieve; they are a great comfort to women who suffer periodically. They are always to be relied on for breaking up colds.

It may be only a simple headache, or it may be neuralgia or neuritis; rheumatism. Bayer Aspirin is still the sensible thing to take. Just be certain it's Bayer you're taking; it does not hurt the heart. Get the genuine tablets, in this familiar package for the pocket.

BEWARE OF IMITATIONS

More Good Coal Here

We are again able to supply you with good coal. We have received a car load each of BLUE DIAMOND and BONNIE BLUE COAL. This is the old reliable and YOU know that it is good. Better get another load today—another cold snap is coming and you want to be prepared. We nearly ran out of coal during the last cold spell.

USE COKE and SAVE MONEY!

Here's a good tip that will save you a lot of trouble when your furnace or stove gets to bucking, won't draw good and gets all clogged up with soot— just heave in a few pieces of COKE now and then. We sell the right kind of Coke that will keep your heating plant clean— and incidently a properly working plant means cutting down on the coal fuel bill.

I IMAGINE THAT—
By Phil Osifer

—It's pretty tough on some folks, when they just get through shoveling snow, to have to turn right around and do it over again about two days later.

—PO—

—The change of referees in the basketball game the other night didn't seem to affect the final score much. One Sheffield booster to the contrary not-with-standing.

—PO—

—Our local drug store cowboys would add rather than detract to the scenery if they would frequent the old hangout in pleasanter appearing garb—at least on Sunday night. Less whiskers and more shoe polish!

—PO—

—Another one of our High School basket-ballers must have started serious training. We won the last game by a slightly wider margin.

—PO—

—The Town Band would sound less putrid next Memorial Day if something were done about it now rather than waiting until three days before May 30.

—PO—

—Randi should feel rather well satisfied. It isn't everybody that can start out in a rowboat and end up in a barge. But if she really wants to accomplish something she can get another row boat and a pair of oars and row back.

—Now days if a man gets newspaper publicity through his philandering, he is of European royalty or the pick on the wrong women.

When PAIN Comes

WHAT many people call indigestion very often means excess acid in the stomach. The stomach nerves have been over-stimulated, and food sours. The corrective is an alkali, which neutralizes the acids instantly. And the best alkali known to medical science is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia.

One spoonful of this harmless, tasteless alkali in water neutralizes instantly many times that much acid, and the symptoms disappear at once. You will never use crude methods when once you learn the efficiency of this. Go, get a small bottle to try.

Be sure to get the genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia prescribed by physicians for 50 years in correcting excess acids. 25c and 50c a bottle—any drug store.

Cost of Living Going Down?
THE COST OF ELECTRICITY HAS STAYED DOWN and is now lower than ever before

Clothing is an important item of expense in every home.

While the cost of clothing has been declining during the last two years, it is still above the price level of 1913.

On the other hand the price of electricity is almost one-third lower than it was in 1913.

The above chart based upon figures compiled by the Bureau of Labor of the United States shows the trend of the cost of clothing and the average cost of a kilowatt hour of electricity during the period from 1913 to June 30, 1931.

The price of electricity does not come down—because it has stayed down—as these government figures prove.

A COMMON OFFENSE

Perhaps it's not generally understood by the hunting public that to hunt along the railroad right-of-way is contrary to state law, at any rate a large number of hunters are arrested for this offense each year. In many instances hunters are given a warning by the deputy game warden. but nevertheless the practice must be discontinued, or hunters will find themselves before a justice paying a fine for this violation of the law. Hunters must remember that all railroad right of ways are natural sanctuaries.

COTTON AND CACTUS

Harlan Miller says that woman's surest way to keep her hold on a man is to grab both his ears and hang on stubbornly—which should be comparatively simple—since woman is so inflexibly resolute in purpose and man's organ of hearing is so large.

When one views a misfortune from a new angle, it is amazing how all its contours and edges change shape. If you get married immediately the cook book and dust mop quiver with a halo. If your husband leaves you, the lack of disagreement is a relief, the freedom thrills you. If, however, you only quarrel remember that variety is the spice of life, so be sure that a good spirit and a few happy years come to pass before another quarrel occurs. After all, being surrounded by continued happiness is a mental strain, you know.

Yes it is tho same egg.

If all Klemme debutantes are similar to my sister, I'm certain they will be greatly benefited by this quotation from Mary Garden: "Every woman, at some period. has gone through this experience. You find yourself violently in love with an individual: then the exigencies of circumstances take you away from his nearness for months, maybe a year, and when he comes into your vision again the whole facet of the astonishment has been utterly changed. Why? How? It is terrifying — the completeness with which the bond can be dissolved that once lay strong between you."

About 1780 when Robert Raikes originated the Sunday school, this deserving man had only the best trained teachers and the best text books. Over half of our present Sunday school teachers lack even high school training. I'm surprised that the worthy man who gave birth to the plan doesn't turn over in his grave. But, after all, I'm glad Klemme has well lighted, well ventilated church basements in which to hold these classes.

COUNTY ENGINEER ANSWERS QUESTIONS

REPLYS TO J. W. NEISZ THRU COUNTY PRESS

County Spent $28,885.72 During 1931 For Equipment and Repairs

In the January 13 issue of the Britt News-Tribune asks several questions of the County Engineer with the request that the answers be given through the press. I shall attempt to answer these questions as fully as possible in the newspaper space available. I shall try, however, to confine myself to the facts and figures in regard to the details of the work and not enter into questions of policy which are a function of the Board of Supervisors and not of the County Engineer.

The first question reads as follows: "I want to ask him if drainage is not the first and most essential in road construction". No one disputes the importance of drainage in road construction. If we are to have a satisfactory road bed the water must be removed either by under drainage, open ditch drainage or by raising the grade of the road above the water table. As stated in a former article better ditch drainage is secured by the end haul method of grading than by casting but at great increased cost. The question is whether we wish to build finished boulevards for a small part of the population and leave the others in the mud or give every farmer an all weather road to his market. This is a question which the trustees and Supervisors must decide and the County Engineer will follow out their instructions.

Mr. Neisz devotes two paragraphs to a meeting which he proposes to hold on the new grading north and west of Eagle Lake State Park. If such a meeting is held I shall be pleased to attend it.

The next question reads, "Please state why the Bergman secondary road law should not be repealed". The Bergman secondary road law was the result of two years' work by a legislative committee which held hearings in all sections of the state followed by several weeks' work by the legislature in session at Des Moines. The main purpose in passing this law was to improve the condition of farm to market roads Working under its provisions the State of Iowa has secured more miles of improved roads during the past two years than she has ever secured before in a similar period of time. If Mr. Neisz wishes the law repealed he should go to our representative and senator in the State Legislature.

Here is the last question "Tell us through the press the true amount of money that Hancock County has invested in road machinery". The purchase of all equipment has been published in the Board Proceedings but for your convenience I shall list the larger items of equipment purchased in 1931 with the cost of each

2 Chevrolet 1½ ton trucks	$850.00
1 Ford 1½ ton truck	$425.00
2 Monarch 35 tractors	4653.00
1 Caterpillar 30 tractor	2425.00
1 Monarch 35 tractor	1200.00
2 Austin Motor Graders	6590.00
1 Adams Motor Grader	3007.32
1 Wisconsin snow plow	1200.00
3 Adams no. 61 maintainers	2476.90
1 Forl Tudor	515.00
2 Euclid scrapers	411.56
Total	$23,753.78

In addition to the above purchases $5131.94 was spent for smaller items making a total of $28885.72 spent for equipment and repairs during the season. This is not excessive when compared with other counties for the Highway commission reports show that the average county in Iowa spent $32548.45 for equipment in 1930. The total present value of all of our road equipment as shown by my inventory is $43959.00.

The members of the Board of Supervisors have promised that they will purchase in 1932 only such equipment as is absolutely necessary to properly maintain the roads. It will of course be necessary to keep in repair the equipment that we are now using.

THE EDITOR GETS EVEN

When the Farnhamville Index received publication, the publisher wrote this little sermon: "As long as the half of the business places in this town carry no ads; as long as our city officials see fit to buy their books away from home, from firms who are not expected to print in this free for each paid line; as long as 99 per cent of the checks written in this community are written on blanks printed by foreign houses; as long as your school is allowed to buy commencement invitations and programs, etc., away from home; as long as the local merchants refuse to make national advertising available by paying half the cost; as long as nearly everyone does without letterheads, statements and all forms of printed matter; as long as you and you and YOU buy Christmas cards from the ten cent store or the ladies aid or some peddler; as long as the reporters have to fight for every single bit of news they pry out of most of you—just that long will the publication of a paper here be impossible."

The United States government is now actively engaged in at least 100 distinct lines of business, and in most of them is in competition with its own citizens, according to recent reports.

America's Trust in God Perpetuated on Coins

The religious motto "In God We Trust" first appeared on the coins of the country in 1864. It was the result of the increased religious fervor brought on by the Civil war. The then secretary of the treasury, S. P. Chase, received many appeals from people all over the country urging that the Deity be recognized on the American coins in a like manner as those of foreign nations.

Secretary Chase wrote to the director of the mint at Philadelphia, November 30, 1861, stating that "no nation can be strong except in the strength of God, or safe except in his defense. The trust of our people in God should be declared on our national coins. You will cause a device to be prepared without unnecessary delay with a motto expressing in the fewest words possible this national recognition."

Several forms were suggested. Some of the coins prepared in 1862 bore the motto "God Our Trust" and some coined in 1863 were marked "God and Our Country." The familiar form of the motto was decided upon and the two-cent pieces which appeared in 1864 were the first to carry it. The motto is not used on all coins.

Normal Human Instinct for Beauty in Clothes

One reason why clothes, or at least the clothes of men, excite so little interest is that they have become drab, and this drabness is excused on the ground that clothes are meant to be useful and comfortable; and usefulness and comfort have ceased to be associated with beauty in modern life. Neither reason, of course, is true. Clothes are worn to enhance human dignity, and, at bottom, only such comfort is wanted as shall not interfere with the prevailing mode. The women who starved and sliced themselves in order to keep slim, who will cripple their limbs with hobbled skirts when these are the wear, and crucify their feet when pointed toes and high heels are the fashion, display a normal human instinct. Men have suffered much and gladly to wear patent leather shoes at garden parties in the height of summer, and have choked themselves rapturously with tall, stiff collars; and comfort means little to them so long as they remain convinced of the rightness and fitness of both.—Osbert Burdett in the London Saturday Review.

Anatomical Names

In the body, one might find a bunch of grapes, a cuckoo bill, a small pan and a millstone, according to Lloyd Edwin Smith, writing in Hygeia Magazine. Many parts of the body were at first named by the old Romans and the Greeks for the commonplace objects that they seemed to resemble.

The bunch of grapes (or its name means that in Latin) is the red lobe of the palate, the uvula. It hangs down from the soft palate as a bunch of grapes would hang between two leaves. The coccyx (cuckoo bill in Latin) was named because the curvature of these four bones at the end of the vertebral column were thought to look like the bill of a cuckoo.

The patella is the movable bone in the knee. Patella in Latin means a small pan.

Opium in Commerce

Opium is the dried milky juice of the unripe capsules of a poppy which for this product has been cultivated through many centuries. Every species of poppy is capable of yielding it to a greater or less extent. Opium is procured by making incisions in the poppy head or capsule, taking care not to penetrate its cavity. The juice then exudes in drops, and after being allowed to remain for a day upon the edges of the incision it is scraped off—a brownish, jellylike material. As the soft opium accumulates it is molded into roundish lumps or irregular flattened cakes of various sizes and put aside to dry. When of proper consistency it is generally wrapped in leaves and sent to market.

Ancient Roman "Racket"

Crassus, reputed to have been the richest man of his time, amassed a great fortune by his ingenious operation of a private fire department in old Rome. When a fire would break out, he or one of his agents would rush to the owner and offer to buy the burning structure at a very low figure. The owner usually would sell for almost nothing to get some salvage. Thereupon, Crassus would call up his fire brigade and, in many cases, put out the blaze. In this way he became owner of a great many buildings. It is hinted by early writers that when business was dull his agents may have had a hand in starting an occasional conflagration.

Woman Suffrage in 1797

Why has it never been imagined that the right of election should be extended to women? Why! but because by the law of nations and perhaps also by the law of nature, that sex is dependent on ours; and because, therefore, their voice would be governed by the relation in which they stand in society. Therefore it is, sir, that with the exception of companies in which right of voting merely affects property, it has never been in the contemplation of the most absurd theorists to extend the elective franchise to the other sex.—Charles James Fox in Speech on Parliamentary Reform, 1797.

Memorial Recognized as Enduring Work of Art

To a member of the wonderful family of Adams it fell to leave the world one of the most beautiful memorials to a woman in existence anywhere, the masterpiece of Saint-Gaudens in Rock Creek cemetery in Washington. It was in 1872 that Henry Adams married Marian Hooper, the daughter of Robert William Hooper of Boston. For years they lived in Washington. John Hay has left the opinion that there never had been such a salon there as that over which she presided. Those were the years of the close intimacy of Adams, Hay and Clarence King. Henry Adams and his wife used to read together and ride together and that alternation constituted a large part of their lives. It was in 1885, when Richardson was building the well-known adjacent houses of Hay and Adams, that Mrs. Adams, who had been in ill health, "died suddenly under peculiarly tragic circumstances," as the event is described by Allen Johnson, the historian.

Adams, heavily stricken, went off to Japan with John LaFarge and in the East came into contact with the oriental habit of contemplation of the enigma of life and death. That idea Saint-Gaudens represented in bronze, and mankind is indebted to him and to Adams for an enduring masterpiece. Soames Forsyte said only what all must say, that it "is great art."—Exchange.

Famous French Castle Built by English King

The Chateau Gaillard, built by Richard Coeur de Lion, is one of the most picturesque ruins in France today. It is between Rouen and Paris and was built by the English king, who is said to have been his own architect. It was erected in one year, with walls 14 feet thick. Richard called it his "Saucy Castle," as it was built in defiance of Philip Augustus, king of France.

When the French king saw it he vowed, "I will take it, were it made of iron," to which Richard replied, "And I will hold it, were it made of butter."

Richard died in 1199 and Philip took the castle by siege, but the garrison surrendered only at the point of starvation. Henry V of England retook the castle after a siege of 16 months, when the ropes were worn out with which the besieged drew water from the well. The castle was considered the best specimen of military architecture in Europe.

"Saucy Castle" remained intact until 1604, when King Henry IV of France dismantled it, lest a stronger than he turn it into a stronghold.

City of Immortals

The city of the Medicis, Dante, Boccaccio, Savonarola, Raphael and scores of others mighty in the Renaissance must never be passed by. No matter what your interest in life, Florence has something for you. When Bayard Taylor was there he said it was the cheapest and most charming city in Europe. He breakfasted for five cents, dined for twelve cents and saw the opera every night for ten cents in a good seat. It is yet a good city to live in, if you want to live well and at small cost. Here you can wander over the Ponte Vecchio, track some of the work of Michaelangelo, meet George Eliot's Romola, walk in the very homes of Duse, Galileo, Mrs. Browning, Amerigo Vespucci and, near the Arno, see where Shelley wrote his most famous ode.—Exchange.

Laws to Curb Indians

Laws against nudity on the public streets during daylight hours once adorned ordinance books of Phoenix, Ariz., it was disclosed in a survey intended to eliminate regulations of horse-and-buggy days. The laws applied to Indians who came to town virtually naked in the good old days. It also was necessary, old records show, to curb the Indians in other ways. Grass was grass to the Indian, so he thought nothing of feeding his ponies on the carefully tended lawn of a prominent citizen. So a law was passed against feeding Indian ponies on private lawns and another one was enacted saying that horses and vehicles should not be parked on sidewalks.

Use for Water Clock

Used by the Babylonians several centuries before Christ, the water clock has become essential in the manufacture of paint. It is declared the simplest means of testing ever invented. The old water clock was a cone with a tiny hole in the bottom, which, when inserted in a jar of water, was known to fill to a certain level within an hour. In its new field, the cone is inserted in varying grades of paints, the viscosities of which are measured by the length of time it takes each sample to fill the cone to a certain level.—Popular Mechanics Magazine.

Caterpillar's Ears

Caterpillars have shown the ability to hear. Certain sounds result in sudden movements of the body. But where are their ears? Doctor Allard's experiments showed that the caterpillar's sense of hearing is aided by hairs that absorb sound.

To prove this, experimenters coated the hairs with shellac or weighted them with water or flour or even singed them off. Then, when noises were made, the caterpillar did not respond. The fact that its hairs had been deadened made it deaf.

of our dear husband and father, Frank J. Urich, who passed away one year ago Jan. 30, 1931. He bade no one a last farewell. He said good bye to none. Reduce the Acid SICK stomachs, sour stomachs and indigestion usually mean excess acid. The stomach nerves are over-stimulated.

Too much acid makes the stomach and intestines sour. Alkali kills acid instantly. The best form is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia, because one harmless dose neutralizes many times its volume in acid. For 50 years the standard with physicians everywhere.

Take a spoonful in water and your unhappy condition will probably end in five minutes. Then you will always know what to do. Crude and harmful methods will never appeal to you. Go, prove this for your own sake. It may save a great many disagreeable hours.

Be sure to get the genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia prescribed by physicians in correcting excess acids.

ELECTRICITY AND TAXES

Taxes are items of expense in every household—either by direct payment to the government, or indirectly as part of the cost of other household expenses.

Federal taxes in 1929 (the latest available figures) were 300% higher than they were in 1913.

In Iowa, general taxes (state, county, school and city taxes) were 130% higher in 1931 than they were in 1913. Taxes for local improvements and primary roads are not included in general taxes.

On the other hand the price of electricity is almost one-third lower than it was in 1913.

The above chart shows the trend of taxes and the average cost of a kilowatt hour of electricity during the period from 1913 to 1932. Federal taxes are based upon figures taken from government records and Iowa taxes on figures taken from the reports of the State Board of Assessment and Review.

THE ROAD TO ACCIDENT PREVENTION

At the end of 1931 we look backward on an automobile accident record of 35,000 fatalities and resolve to do better in 1932.

No problem is more within the control of the individual than that of traffic fatalities and injuries. It is within the power of each of us to become a competent, responsible driver. Nine out of ten drivers merit that classification now. It is the one out of ten who causes the accidents and he is the one who refuses to heed accident prevention measures.

It is a tragic thing that carelessly driven automobiles can cause more deaths than a great war. Tremendous advances have been made in automobile construction, from the standpoint of speed, of power and of mechanical safety. But advances in the standard of driving have lagged behind. We have built better cars—but we have not developed better drivers to operate them.

Highway safety is made up of many little factors—none of which cost anything. If we resolve to abide by the laws, to lose a minute rather than gain one at the risk of our lives and/others', to remember the unwritten rules of courtesy and carefulness, there will not be 35,000 automobile deaths annually—and perhaps there will not be even 3500. Such progress may be too much to hope for in a single year—but every operator of an automobile should remember that it is possible and act accordingly.

COTTON AND CACTUS
By El Kaye

The Porto Ricans must have been doubly thankful for their new governor. In fact, they were so pleased that the Des Moines Register found it necessary to print two identical items, each a half column in length, in the same issue of the paper.

Roads may be powerful social and economic factors in our present civilization, but the fact that they are unreasonably rough seems of more consequence to me these days.

Pola Negri states that she will devote five years solely to her career with not a moments time to be spent in love. Wouldn't that be an economical plan for some earnest young man to undertake? Perhaps, Pola (like a number of others) thinks love is a lot of 'hooey' after all.

In the attempts of an explanation a lot more heat than light is usually generated.

Mr. Van Horn states that railroads are on the verge of ruin. I surely hope they do not collapse on the crossings so as to blockade oncoming speedsters.

I overheard a mother say that spanking makes inferiority complexes in children—hence her child has never been spanked. If such is the case, when our youngster is subject to temper tantrums I can proudly explain that he has a strong individuality.

This weather may be thrilling as well as beautiful, but I wonder if that sensation creeping along the spine isn't a shiver instead of a thrill. But permit me to inquire of three adventurous young people whether or not fixing a tire at four A. M. affords any thrills. If it does perhaps a few of these 'bored' citizens would like to attempt a similar act to secure a different experience.

I sincerely hope that those of us who during July 1931 were weary of hot noons and heavy scented nights are in a receptive mood for these cold January nights.

After all, why not use main street for amorous actions? Perhaps the young lady in connection requested her escort's presence and chose main street to tactfully disclose the news that she had a 'date'. You are aware of the fact that this is leap year. Who wants to be an 'old maid' or have a reputation suggesting the possibility?

Perhaps it may have been a continuation of the "Free Saturday Night Show" idea.

Who knows? It may have been a deflated tire. Tires do you know.

But after all's said and done, I'm inclined to believe that the people concerned felt that Klemme was inefficiently sentimental and wanted to remind us that love and friendship is what makes the world roll onward.

REASONS WHY TOWNS COMMIT SUICIDE

"Towns do not die, they commit suicide." said a Kansas newspaper recently. And how true that is. Take a town like our town. If grocers would only handle local baker products. the bakery would hire another baker and another clerk, a vacant house would fill up and at least two thousand dollars would be added to the local payroll to be spent in the local stores.

If no one went to neighboring cities to trade, more clerks would be needed and a larger payroll would result. The stores would become better and the stocks larger.

If everyone who makes money in this community would spend his money in this town it would increase in population and prosperity.

Many towns are adding new filling stations from year to year. The reason: Every man and woman buys gasoline and oil at home.

NEW SCALE AT CREAMERY IS ADJUSTED FOR OUNCES

The Creamery has installed a new Fairbanks scale on which to weigh butter in tubs. This new type scale has a fine adjustment and weighs accurately to a split ounce.

Formerly the creamery would allow about eight ounces extra butter per tub for shrink. in order that the tubs would weigh out. With this new scale it is no longer necessary to give extra weight to play safe. Four ounces only are now allowed. so the saving of butter should soon pay for the new scale.

Paul Mueller, manager of the creamery, has made a number of minor changes around the creamery which adds to both convenience and in speeding up work.

A newspaper is an asset to any town and every man is interested in keeping up a home paper. No paper can be published with out home patronage, both in a financial way, through advertising and subscriptions, and by liberal contributions of news. If a railroad or factory is wanted the newspaper is expected to work for it. If a public meeting is held for any purpose, the newspaper is called upon for a free notice. If any of the societies have a reception or any kind of a social affair, the newspaper is expected to give the necessary notice. The newspaper must puff the schools and everything to advance the interests of the business men and then give them a handsome notice when they pass away. What are you doing to keep up a home paper?

FARMERS SHOULD TEST SEED NOW FOR PURITY

Otherwise May Get 43,000 Weeds In One Acre of Oats

Four hundred and fifty weed seed seeds in each pound of seed oats, not an uncommon amount may mean 43,200 weeds per acre or nearly a weed per square foot, R. H. Porter extension plant pathologist at Iowa State College, told farmers attending the annual Farm and Home short course this week.

Five viable weed seeds per gram of alfalfa or 2,250 per pound. may result in 33,750 weed seeds per acre if the alfalfa is sown at the rate of 15 pounds pre acre.

For this reason farmers can well aford to have all kinds of seed tested to determine their purity. The primary cause of the weed problem in Iowa is the use of impure seed and one way to remedy the situation is to use pure seed in the future.

In addition to obtaining pure seed, testing will determine whether the seed will produce strong, vigorous plants. The use of viable seed means a uniform stand, which is an important factor in securing high yeiels of grain per acre and, consequently, low costs per bushel of grain. It costs approximately as much to plant, cultivate and harvest a low yielding field as one which makes a high yield.

Seed testing also shows whether the seed is disease free. Dry rot diseases of seed corn cause an annual loss of 5 bushels per acre in Iowa. and diseases are responsible for an average annual reduction in potato yields of 25 percent. Smut and other diseases of small grain also take a large toll each year as well as diseases of watermelons, cucumbers, cabbage and other vegetables. Many seed born diseases can be determined by examination of the seed.

Farmers and seed dealers may send samples of representative lots of seed to the Iowa State College seed labratories for testing. Clovers. alfalfa, grass seed and small grains corn and vegetable seed tested before planting time will insure better and more profitable crops.

Before sending seed to the college farmers and seed dealers should consult thee ounty agent, if possible concerning the county plan for seed testing service. If this is not convenient they may write direct to the college.

YEAST IS USELESS IN HOG RATION

Substituting Soybeal Oilmeal Decreases Cost

Including yeast in the hog ration does not increase the rate of gain nor decrease the cost of producing pork, the first year's experiments on this problem indicate, according to results of swine feeding tests announced Tuesday during the annual Whoo-o-ey Day program at Iowa State College during Farm and Home week.

The tests also show that soybean oilmeal can be substituted to advantage for cottonseed meal in the Big Ten protein supplement, and that it can be substituted to smaller advantage for linseed oilmeal. Substituting soybean oilmeal for the alfalfa meal in the Big Ten protein supplement did not prove desirable, however.

Various mixtures of yeast culture feeds with grain were tested in fattening spring pigs. No such mixture increas the rate or economy of gain and some actually resulted in a lower rate of gain and caused more feed to be consumed per 100 pounds of pork than did the check lot. A 10 percent protein supplemental mixture containing no added yeast nor lactic acid fed in conection with corn, oats and mierals on pasture had all the virtues of the commercially prepared yeast cultures at a much lower cost.

When soybean oilmeal was used to replace cottonseed meal in the Big Ten the pigs gained 1 46 pounds a day and had a margin above feed cost of $3.25 per pig.

The pigs which were fed a supplement in which soybean oilmeal replaced alfalfa meal gained only 1.43 pounds a day required more feed and had a margin above feed cost of only $2.94.

Real Purpose Served by Cultivating Hobby

If more people had real hobbies there would be fewer cases of nervous breakdown, according to Dr. H. F. Kilander, writing in Hygeia, the Health Magazine. Hobbies keep children out of mischief and they relieve the monotony of routine life for adults. It is well to be able to lose oneself for an hour, an evening, or even for a day in something that is not related to the daily tasks, this author believes.

A desirable hobby should furnish enjoyment, pleasure and gratification; it should require a minimum of equipment and expense, in Doctor Kilander's opinion. Many hobbies may be distinctly educational. Literature, music and astronomy are examples of that type. Physical as well as mental health may be improved by a hobby; sports are of distinct value.

Many hobbies are started accidentally without forethought. It is well, however, suggests Doctor Kilander, that parents and educators should plan indirectly to guide children in certain desirable interests in order that their leisure time may be wisely spent.

Recreation has become a necessity, writes Doctor Kilander. The trends of the times indicate that the schools must include more training in the use of leisure time not only for the years that the student is in school but also for the time when he is an adult.

Old Hand-Woven Linen of Marvelous Fineness

Twelve dozen of everything—that was the quantity which the proper continental bride of a century ago received in her trousseau. It sounds lavish, but it was actually common sense, because our great-grandparents had a grand laundering only once every three months!

A relic of those brave days appears on special occasions now, in a smart New York home. The linen damask cloth was woven by hand in the days when George Washington was more than a memory, and hand woven so finely that linen experts of today marvel at it. Narrow looms compelled the weavers to make their cloth in two strips, which are sewn together down the middle of the table.

An interesting feature of this setting is that the ancient damask creates a background of harmony for the latest silver, whose design identically matches the china.

Coffee in 1634

As to the precise date when coffee was introduced into England, authorities differ, and very little of real value on the subject can be found, wrote Edward R. Emerson in "Beverages, Past and Present." Sir Henry Blount visited Turkey in 1634 and in one of his letters says: "The Turks have a drink called 'cauphe,' made of a berry as big as a small bean, dried in a furnace and beat to a powder of a sooty colour, in taste a little bitterish, that they seethe and drink, hot as may be indured. It is good at all hours of the day, but especially at morning and evening, when to that purpose they entertain themselves two or three hours in 'cauphe-houses,' which, in Turkey, abound more than inns and alehouses with us."

Corn's Many Products

Not much more than half of the great corn crop of the country finds its way to the dining table. The remainder goes to the refineries to be made up into a large variety of materials. These include the "sparklers" which do Fourth of July duty, explosives, face cream, soap, artificial rubber and silk, varnish, tanning extracts, radio batteries, textiles, paper carpet, mucilage, salad dressing, sirup, cooking oil, vinegar and milk acids. Some considerable success has attended the manufacture of paper from the stalks, and it is probable that at no distant day a profitable use will be found for the piles of corn stalks which accumulate each year on the farms of this country.

Famous Dinosaur Skeleton

The dinosaur on exhibition at Peabody museum of Yale university is nearly 70 feet long, 16 feet high, and the skeleton weighs six and a half tons. Its estimated weight when alive was between 37 and 40 tons. The specimen was discovered by William Reed in Wyoming in 1881, and the bones were brought to Yale under the direction of Prof. Othniel C. March, whose research resulted in this type's being known as Brontosaurus excelus. At Yale's bicentennial in 1901 a portion of the skeleton was mounted and exhibited. Lack of space prevented the erection of the rest, which remained in storage. A few years ago the mounting was begun anew, the hall of Peabody being especially constructed to house this one animal.

Cake for Indigestion

Claudius Galenus, commonly known as Galen, was born at Pergamum, Greece, in 130 A. D., and is supposed to have died in Sicily. He was a celebrated philosopher, pharmacist and physician, and was for many centuries the supreme authority in medicine and pharmacy, wrote Charles H. LaWall in "Four Thousand Years of Pharmacy."

A bride's cake used at weddings during Galen's time and described by Cato was called "mustacea." It contained aromatics and carminative and was served at weddings to reduce the chances of indigestion caused by the usual over-indulgence on such occasions.

Americans' Interest in Sleepy Little Sulgrave

There is great charm in the little town of Sulgrave of not more than 400 inhabitants so far from the ways of railroads and modern traffic. It is of old houses, of the Tudor times, although there are of course a few modern dwellings. Sulgrave was mentioned in the Domesday book, that earliest record of our Saxon ancestors which William the Conqueror had compiled to show how rich was the land of his conquest. But the town, although greatly interesting to the historian, does not especially concern us until it was purchased by Lawrence Washington when he was twice mayor of Northampton. It has been conclusively proved by recent investigation that this Lawrence Washington was the direct ancestor of George Washington and that Sulgrave manor by right of descent belonged to him. As a gift to cement the hundred years' peace between the two great English speaking nations it was purchased by the British peace centenary committee in 1914, along with ten acres of land and handed over to the Sulgrave institution to be an active center of work for the furtherance of Anglo-American friendship.—Boston Herald

Eskimo Women Put Up as Poker Game Stake

Eskimos of the Canadian Arctic along the Thelon river while away the long winter days gambling and it is a more or less common event for a man to gamble his wife or daughters, apart from foxes, rifles and equipment.

Corp. H. G. Nichols, reporting to Royal Canadian Mounted Police headquarters at Ottawa, Canada, has this to say: "A native Soodyyailuk, an ex-Utkuhik-Halingmiu, had lost by card playing to another native, Ishnootmata of the Krainemuit, his tent, rifle, ammunition, one dog, deer skins, snow knife—all his worldly possessions. Upon making inquiries Ishnootmata produced a pack of cards and I discovered that the game played was draw poker. I had these articles returned to the former owner and informed all natives that gambling was wrong and must therefore cease.

"It was at this inquiry that I heard of the more serious gambling inland. I am unaware whether polygamy or polyandry exists among any other of the tribes. The exchanging of wives is a more or less common occurrence. The women apparently have no voice in the matter whatever, but merely obey the husband."

Bornholm

For fantastic rock formations, on a wild coast, for the most beautiful castle ruins of Denmark, it is needful to journey by water to the rocky isle of Bornholm, south of Sweden, but belonging to Denmark. For centuries the island belonged to the archbishopric of Lund, and was the cause of many a battle with Danish kings, but since 1658 it has been part of Denmark. Whether you go to the little fishing villages along the coast, or visit its larger towns, such as Ronne, Ro or Nexo, this last being the birthplace of the novelist Nexo, you will find it a delightful place for a holiday. It has fine ethnological and archeological remains, beautiful forests and heather clad moors which stretch for miles. During the summer the gardens are ablaze with color.—Exchange.

Rome's Downfall

The Roman empire originated after the battle of Actium, B. C. 31, and the decline began with the death of Marcus Aurelius, 180 A. D. Contributing causes through the centuries were the aggressive influx of large numbers of German peoples; hostile advance of the Persians; internal dissension; revolt of the provinces; ingrafting under Heliogabalus of oriental rites and practices, repugnant to the Roman people; a pestilence which lasted 15 years and carried off one-half of the inhabitants of the empire; the invasion of the Goths and Huns, and the final aggression of vandals from Africa. The end of the Roman empire of the West was practically complete by A. D. 476.

Erosion Worse Than Drought

In a year of drought it is hard to remember that in normal seasons there are usually many million-dollar rains, that is, torrential downpours which carry tons of top soil off the farms into the streams and rivers. In some especially rainy years the annual loss is reckoned in millions of tons of good farming land which eventually is carried out to sea. This unhampered erosion is largely due to the denuding of forests at the head waters of streams, and, too, the farmers generally have done little to prevent heavy washouts in their own fields. The money loss is said to reach $200,000,000 a year.—Exchange

Picturesque Governor

When George Mitchell Troup appeared before the Georgia legislature in 1823, to take the oath of governor, though it was a raw, cold day in November, he wore a round jacket of cotton cloth, a black cassimere vest, yellow nankeen trousers, silk hose, dancing pumps and a large white hat, writes Jane Roberta Smith in the Atlanta Journal. This white hat he held in his hand and gestured with while he made his speech to the legislators. Truly, this erect, virile, red headed, blue-eyed man with his sideburns and his peculiar attirb must have made an unforgettable picture that day.

AMERICA'S WORLD RESPONSIBILITIES

By H. J. HAAS

President American Bankers Association

WE are in a changing world, with many new financial problems for which we have no precedents, and many old problems which have so changed as to be unrecognizable. American bankers have been called into world affairs to blaze new trails of unknown finance. We may expect these calls to be more numerous in the future than they have in the past. We are the world's financial leader and we must accept the responsibility which goes with it.

H. J. HAAS

Let us look to the future with confidence. Every one has experienced a great sorrow some time, perhaps so great we felt we could never overcome it, but time is the great healer and eventually we have come out of it. As it is with individuals, so it is with nations. Our nation has had much sorrow in the 155 years of its existence. In that time we have passed through the major depressions of 1837-1857-1873 to 1879-1884-1893-1896-1907-1914-1921 and the present.

I venture to state that in each of these periods there were those who had doubts of the future just as we have them today, but what happened after each depression? Our country recovered, to be better and stronger than ever. Its people were introduced to modes of living they never dreamed of, until today, notwithstanding our depression, we live on the highest plane of any nation in the world. Should we not judge the future by past experience?

Surely our people are better prepared, financially and intellectually, to cope with even greater problems than they have been in the past, so why not look to the future confident that fundamental social and economic problems will be adjusted satisfactorily?

Confidence is not established by any one thing but by an accumulation of things. If we can get confidence started on its way, gathering a little here and there, it will accelerate its speed as it goes along. This is not the work of any one man to perform but is the cumulative effort of each and every one of us. What we are in the future is not the result of what we have done on any one day but the result of all that we have done for all time. The American Bankers Association is endeavoring to do its part. Individually our efforts may not count for much, but they are part of the whole plan and taken in the aggregate they amount to the sum total of all our efforts.

PUBLIC INJURED BY BANK GOSSIP

National Association Declares Community Interests Demand Protection Against Idle Rumors

BOTH in their advertising and in their direct contacts with customers and others, bankers should "consciously and persistently devote more time and thought to keeping people mindful of the fact that while the bank has many obligations toward its customers, equally is it true that the depositor also has certain obligations to the bank to enable it to properly maintain its position in the community," a recent statement of the American Bankers Assciation declares.

"A bank admittedly is a semi-public institution and there is a mutuality of obligation resting upon both the banker and his customers to maintain the effective functioning of that institution that is superior to the personal interests of either," it says.

Bankers might well consciously devote greater effort to building up the public viewpoint in their communities that due to their public obligations and burden of public interest, the banks are entitled to protection against ill-informed or malicious gossip and rumors, the statement says.

"As to banks in some states, bank slander laws afford this protection," it points out. "We recommend that this protection be availed of by definite action wherever practical both as a matter of immediate expediency an also to awaken public opinion as to the dangers of idle gossip about a community's banking institutions."

What Can Be Done

Farmers should rid themselves of any false hope of outside aid, from legislation. The only recourse left for the producer on a reduced price level is to produce his goods at reduced costs, and nearly every farmer can likely put into force a few economies in production. Farmers must produce as largely as possible the materials they use, and get away from cash purchases until prices come down proportionately on the things they buy. The cheapest way in the farming business is to raise your own feed and not let the other man get your dollars.

Mankind Really Knows Little About the Seas

An outward spinning whirlpool is an oddity added to the long list of unexplained mysteries of the sea, says a bulletin of the National Geographic society. It is half in jest and half in awe that old tars refer to the bounding main as "that old devil sea." In olden days the sea was believed to be peopled with strange monsters which devoured both ships and men. Even today, with all the safeguards and comforts of modern travel, a ship voyage is not without its hazards. Mother Ocean constantly plays new and unexpected tricks because man's knowledge of the sea, for all his centuries of study and experience, is extremely meager.

Explorers and geographers who have been sighing for new lands to conquer may find their best field, paradoxically, in the sea. When it is realized that nearly three-quarters of the surface of the globe consists of water, it is rather remarkable how little we know of the vast surface of the solid sphere which lies under this screen of liquid.

The most impressive thing about the sea is its shallowness as compared with the size of the earth, and its depth as compared with the height of the land. If one were to take a globe six feet in diameter and excavate the deepest trench of the ocean thereon, it would be a bare pinscratch deep—about one-twentieth of an inch.

Royal Soup Calls for Variety of Ingredients

The recipe for the famous "olio" soup made for the Austrian court "since the time of the Empress Maria Theresa's father" has been printed in Budapest. It is said to have originated in Spain, and the secret was revealed by a pensioned court chef. The stock consisted of veal or ham, mutton, venison and other game roasted in butter and then boiled. Calves' feet and ox feet, turned into jelly, were added, together with white cabbages stewed with smoked and fresh pork, maize seed, chestnuts, lentils, pearl barley and carrots roasted with sugar.

The combination was laid on ice for four hours, so as to remove every trace of grease. Next a bouillon was prepared of beef and veal bones, mushrooms and other vegetables, making a liquid to be cleared by the addition of hashed beef, ox liver and white of egg. The boiling bouillon was strengthened by cooked fowls, ducks, turkey, pigeons, pheasants, goose and wild duck. It took two days and two nights to complete the process.

The last thing done was to drain the concoction through muslin bags. When porcelain jugs were filled, the guests were served in small china cups.—New York Times.

Almost Colorless Ink

There is no colorless ink. There is, however, a certain form of camouflage in which figures and letters are painted on a background of the same color. This is done by coloring the paints with pigments, or mixtures of pigments, which match one another in color but which are of different chemical composition. They match one another because the impression made on the retina of the eye is the combined effect of all of the light rays that are transmitted to it from the painted surface. A piece of colored glass partially analyzes the light by absorbing some of the light rays and letting others through. What gets through to the eye is not the same in both cases, hence the background and the design do not appear the same color.

True Story

An excited foreign gentleman was awaiting the arrival of his first-born in one of our hospitals.

He was so certain it was going to be a boy that he had invited all his friends to an elaborate banquet that evening and had broadcast the joyous news all over town. Thus, when the nurse came to tell him that the arrival was a girl, his rage knew no bounds. Hurriedly, he made several telephone calls, canceling the feast.

Then, summoning the nurse, he announced: "I'm going to get into my automobile and go home. You tell the wife when she's ready to come home to take a street car."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Speed on Railroad Lines

Under special conditions railroad speeds of 90 miles an hour and over were attained more than 23 years ago, for short distances. A train on the Plant system in 1901 made 120 miles an hour on a test run between Fleming and Jacksonville. Among regular scheduled American passenger trains today there are several that average over 50 miles per hour. The World Almanac states that first-class German and French trains now average 50 to 60 miles an hour over long runs. A regular train on the Great Western in England makes 66.3 miles an hour.

Day of Hearty Eating

During the administration of John Quincy Adams, evening assemblies were popular at the homes of congressmen and cabinet members. The parties began at eight o'clock. Promptly at ten o'clock everybody went out on the back porch for "light refreshments." At one end of the table would be a roast ham; at the other a saddle of venison. In between came the wild ducks, and the pastries. And scattered about were cakes and puddings. A large side table held the punch and the madeira.

THE NEWSPAPER AN INDEX

To me the first index of a city with which I am getting acquainted is the newspaper. I can get more of the real city information from the looks of the newspaper it supports than in any other way. Show me your newspaper and I will tell you what kind of a town you have. If the paper is live and prosperous and progressive, that is exactly the kind of a city it will be published in. I am quite sure that the newspapers of Santa Clara county are among the most attractive business features of the county. In investment and in giving employment to men ad women the newspaper always ranks with other manufacturing establishments in the same city.— William Southern, Jr. in the Independence, (Mo.) INDEPENDENT BASKETBALL SCHEDULE

Feb. 11 — M. C. M. Tigers—Here
Feb. 15 — Hanlontown — There
Feb. 16 — Williams — There

Thursday evening of this week the local Independents will play one of the strongest foreign teams in Mason City, the Mexican Tigers, sponsored by the M. C. M. E. Foreign Relations Society. This team has a good reputation and play a fast brand of basketball giving any team plenty of competition. However the A. C. Vagabonds recently took a week's layoff in preparation for several other hard games and are now in the best of condition. They should give the Tigers a real battle that every basketball fan will want to see. Don't miss it. The boys recently purchased new outfits and this will be the first home game that they will be worn.

The dates for the Garner and Hanlontown games were changed and the boys played at Garner this Monday night. Unless different arrangements are made the locals will go to Hanlontown on the 15th of February. On Feb. 16 they journey to Williams for their game with the fast Williams Bearcats.

Monday night of this week the Vagabonds were defeated by the fast Garner five 26 to 21. Although the Garner team had the lead 14 to 4 at the half the Klemme Independents staged a good comeback and gave the Garner boys plenty of competition.

For the past six years our schools have taken an active part in both the county and state contests. The results have been highly satisfactory. More than a thousand boys and girls in the graded and rural schools of the county have each year had a part in these contests. Last year Richard Schubert of Britt township, Dist. No. 5 represented our county in the state bee. After about three hours of continuous spelling he was one of the last four to remain on the floor when more than eighty other contenders had gone down This was a splendid tribute for Richard to bring home to the schools of Hancock county. Who will represent us this year in the State Bee?

The Des Moines Register and Tribune have conducted six state-wide spelling bees. Each year an Iowa pupil has gone to Washington as a guest of these Iowa newspapers and has taken part in the national bee.

The Iowa Champion with this or her teacher again will be sent to Washington with all expenses peid by the Register and Tribune. In Washington the speller will compete in the national bee for the title of best speller in tne nation and a purse of $1000.00 The second state prize will be $50; third, $25; fourth $15 fifth, $10; sixth to fifteenth, inclusive, each, $5. Prizes for school and county winners will be neatly printed certificates.

The spelling bee is open to any pupil below the high school grades in Iowa.

The state spelling contest will be held in Des Moines on Saturday, 7th of May at 1:30 p. m.

The county contest will be held on Saturday, March 26th.

THIS IS A CLEVER ONE IF IT IS THE TRUTH

It was reported about Estherville recently. says the News, that two strangers worked a clever game at a filling station The first stranger drove up. purchased oil and gas and tendered a $20 bill in payment for the same. After receiving his change he drove away. Then came stranger number two to the same station and inquired if a man of such and such description had changed a $20 bill at that place. Upon being informed that such was the case he asked if he might see the bill. After looking at the bill he remarked, "Just as I suspected. That's a counterfeit bill. I'll catch him". Whereupon stranger number two drove away with the $20 bill and the oil station attendant is out the gas, the oil the change and the $20 bill.

AROUND THE COUNTY WITH AGENT WEISS

BETTER TEST SEED CORN NOW

May Eliminate Need of Replanting, Increase Resulting Yield

Testing seed corn now may eliminate the necessity of much replanting in the spring and will insurebetter yields, R. H. Porter, extension plant pathologist at Iowa State College, told farmers attending the Farm and Home course at Iowa State College.

Seed corn which was not gathered early last fall had ample opportunity to become infected with dry rot diseases during the warm, wet weather of October and November. Farmers who gathered corn early and cared for it properly during the winter probably have good seed because the growing season of 1931 was favorable for early maturity.

All corn should be tested however in order to insure that it is good seed. Organisms of the dry rot diseases of corn develop on ears after they have matured in the field or in storage when warmth and dampness the conditions which favor their growth, exist.

Corn which was not kept dry during the winter or corn in which the moisture percentage was not 15 per cent or less when stored may have been injured from freezing or from the development of dry rot organisms.

Field studies during the past three years have shown that if a farmer has handled all of his seed in the same manner, a test of 100 to 200 ears will give a good index of the quality of the seed. both as to quality and presence of diseases. At least four kernels, preferably six should be secured from each of 100 ears, representing the seed that the farmer expects to use.

If the owner wishes, these may be sent to the seed laboratories at Iowa State College for testing. This may be done either through the county agent under the county plan of seed testing developed during the past year or may be sent direct to the college. If farmers wish information on the best method of testing their own seed, it may be secured either through the local county farm bureau or direct from the college.

I IMAGINE THAT—
By Phil Osifer

—A war with Japan possibly would do the following things: Boost the price of farm products, reduce our unemployment problem to zero, bring back prosperity to business, kill off most of the best men in the country today and prepare us for a period of depression that will make the present depression look like great prosperity.

—Some explanation is probably due those few who are not so quick to understand the situation.

—If a straw vote were taken there would probably be some voting in favor of "amorous actions" on main street. I doubt very much if a majority in this town would favor it. In some town and states there are laws passed by people who represent a majority, expressly prohibiting such goings-on in public places. From this I infer that most good folks are "old maids" or have a reputation suggesting the possibility.

—The young people had no thought concerning the sentimentality of the good people of Klemme, nor the poor entertainment value of the show they were putting on. They were all wrapped up in themselves. Take it anyway you like.

—There should be some good reason for a person being up at 4 a. m. to watch three young people fix a tire out in the cold. Possibly it was to give them a cup of hot coffee. But speaking of tires,.....On the occasions that I have been explaining about, I did not notice any deflated (flat) tires on the wheels of the car in question. I don't know who was inside.

BRITAIN'S NEW RIFLE

Great Britain has a new war toy that can shoot faster than anything on record. While it is called a machine rifle, perhaps because it is not much heavier than the ordinary service rifle, it is really a ine gun firing 1,100 rou munition a minute Wha it is said to be easy to op to jam and. as equally im these times, inexpensive new rapid firing piece new bullets which have velocity of those now and which penetrate halfmenickel armor as well eighths inch armor plate will be even worse than said is was.

COMPARE
Farm Prices and Electricity

There was a marked decline in the prices received by farmers for farm products during the last two years. During October, 1931, the average price for farm products dropped to a point almost one-third lower than the average price for 1913. At that time the decline in the average price of farm products just equalled the decline in the price of electricity since 1913.

The average price of farm products for the first eleven months of 1931, however, was only 20% lower than the average price for 1913, while the average price of electricity for the same period was 32% lower than the average price in 1913.

The above chart shows the trend of the average price of farm products and the average price of a kilowatt hour of electricity from 1913 to December, 1931. Farm prices are based upon figures taken from "The Agricultural Situation" of December, 1931, published by the United States Department of Agriculture, and the price of electricity is based upon figures compiled by the United States Bureau of Labor.

"THAT FIFTY MILLION LOAN"

Our Uncle Sam's a whooper
For he's putting out some loans
And he's going to lend us farmers
About fifty million bones.

Since there are a million of us
That are broke or badly bent,
That's fifty bucks apiece we get
Probably at eight per cent.

Now fifty dollars look as big
As fifty wagon wheels;
It will put the average family
In new shoes with rubber heels.

But when the time comes around
To pay Uncle Sammie back
It will take a lot of scratchin'
To raise him that much jack.

We'll have to sell three fat cows
Or seven nice big shoats,
Five hundred dozen eggs,
Or four wagon loads of oats.

But let's hope that Uncle Samuel,
When our little debt comes due,
Will treat us as he did the Allies
Or at least let us renew.

NEED TO UNIFY EGG GRADING

Dealers and Producers Are Agreed on This Point in Meeting

That a more unified system of buying eggs on grade and more standard systems of graded buying are needed was indicated by statements of dealers and producers who attended the Annual Poultry Marketing Conference held in connection with Farm and Home Week at Iowa State College.

In a survey conducted in 12 counties by W. D. Termohlen, pountry and egg marketing specialist in the Extension Service, 13 different groupings of grade names were found.

M. L. Johnson, poultry man from Swea City, told how Kossuth county people have improved the quality of their poultry and increased their profits by selling eggs on a graded basis. Some farmers there are receiving 50 cents to $1.25 more a case for eggs than if they sold on a "straight" basis. He emphasized the fact that farmers can sell dealers the idea of graded buying if they wish.

Mrs. Ralph Swain, farm wife of Ogden, told of her four years of experience in selling eggs on a graded basis and the advantages. She said that it was the one secret that will enable flock owners to make a profit under present conditions. Selling on a graded basis has enabled her to increase the quality of her flock, to make more money from selling eggs, and to sell her cockerels and surplus pullets as breeding stock because she has built up a reputation for successfully selling a fancy product at a premium prce.

INFLUENZA

"Reports from all parts of the state indicate that there is at present a wide spread outbreak of influenza, la grippe and severe colds in Iowa," according to the Iowa State Department. "Many schools are closed owing to the lack of attendance and many adults are forced to remain at home. The unseasonal weather and sudden changes in temperature are the main reasons for the increase in cases. Mild weather in the morning and cold in the afternoon catch many people improperly clothed to meet the change. Rain and slush and no rubers are conducive to wet feet, with consequent lowering of the body temperature. It is well nigh impossible for the engineers of office buildings, schools and stores to regulate the supply of heat to meet the outside temperature. The sudden changes from overheated buildings to the cold outside causes a shock to the body when it attempts to adjust itself to the wide difference in temperature.

"If attacked by influenza or even a bad cold, remain at home and in bed, as a duty both to yourself and to others You will recover more quickly and others will be spared a like infection."

State Treasurer Will Seek Re-Election

Ray Johnson of Muscatine has announced that he will be a candidate for another term as state treasurer. Johnson said his platform is based on the "continuation of honest, prompt and courteous service to all at the least possible cost to the taxpayers of the state, comensurate with efficient service."

In his announcement he calls attention to the fact that receipts from the gasoline tax law have increased until in 1931 they brought the state more than 12 million dollars. Since 1925 the Brookhart-Lovrien, or sinking fund for public deposits has paid in excess of 20 million dollars. he added. He also reported that the receipts from the cigaret tax have increased 100 per cent since he first assumed office as treasurer.

MORE MOTORS

For 12 years Frank B. Stearns of Stearns-Knight motor fame, worked on his new type Diesel motor. When he showed his unique sleeveless, valveless oil burning power plant to automotive engineers recently the inventor claimed that it would produce more than double the power obtainable from a four-cycle engine of similar piston displacement. From Germany comes reports of the perfection by one Rudolf Pawlikowski's "coal dust engine". His machine is much like the Diesel motor but instead of oil or gasoline coal dust is exploded in its cylinders. He claims to have driven engines thousands of hours by coal dust explosions at a cost much lower than oil or even steam.

Gussie Brown is a blonde. She works in a San Francisco candy shop and she refuses to be robbed. When a banidt pointed a gun at her and demanded the sweets of the cash register she registered in icy tones: "How dare you. sir! We've never never been introduced." The bandit dropped his gun and fled.

The sting of a bumble bee is said to have restored speech to Mrs. Alice Collins, 61 years old, of Scranton, Pa. Twenty years ago she lost her voice through paralysis of the throat. The other day while being wheeled about on the lawn of a hospital she suddenly screamed. A bee had stung her.

The war debt situation "in a couple of nutshells" is this: The foreign powers want us to cancel the debts they haven't been paying us anyhow.

Mrs. Joesph Robinson of Chicago asked the San Francisco police to locate a sea gull that she thinks stole a diamond ring from her. She laid the ring on the dresser near the window and noticed a gull perched on the window sill. She turned away and the next minute gull and ring were gone.

The Place of Coffee as a Beverage

By Donald A. Laird, Ph.D., Sci.D.

Director of Colgate University Psychological Laboratory, Hamilton, New York.

THE control which the homemaker has over the health and happiness of her family through the selection and preparation of foods is almost appalling in its responsibility. This is especially true now that emphasis is being given to the enjoyment of the taste and flavor of foods as well as to their chemical contributions to the life of the body.

Dr. D. A. Laird

Coffee is preeminently used for the enjoyment of its flavor. Yet if the housewife wanted to learn all about the place of coffee in the diet she would have to study more than six hundred scientific reports—and coffee has probably been studied less than most foods!

In spite of our leading position as a coffee-consuming nation—the average American drinks two cups a day—there is yet much finesse to be acquired in the preparation of the beverage, as those six hundred-odd reports show clearly. The richest flavor, most delightful aroma, and most palatable drink is made by infusing finely-ground coffee for about two minutes just below boiling temperature in a non-metallic pot. The beverage should be separated from the grounds promptly.

The Drip Method

When this procedure, known as the drip method, is followed, the black infusion is delicious. If this practice is not followed, sugar and cream may be needed to "level out" the metallic taste from the pot, or the bitterness from boiling. This procedure is very similar to that used in the preparation of tea, except a small flame should be kept under the infusion of coffee, but without actually bringing it to a boil. The only significance in the method of infusing is in the result in the taste, although how this result occurs is not understood, as will be seen shortly.

What the coffee bean contains that yields the aroma and flavor is not known, the six hundred reports to the contrary notwithstanding. The aromatic oils are simply called caffeol, although their composition and action in yielding the flavor are not known. This ignorance should be a challenge to scientists rather than to homemakers, and should be the greater challenge because similar ignorance exists for almost all of our common foodstuffs.

The nutritive value of coffee is indirect. It does not supply calories or vitamins. It is recognized as an aid to digestion by making a meal more enjoyable, especially when properly prepared. In this respect it is in the same class with vanilla and other flavoring extracts—and with pleasant conversation and attractive linens.

Coffee and sugar both differ from almost all other foodstuffs in that moderate immediate results can be discerned from their ingestion, while vitamins, for instance, have to be in the body for some time before their effects become apparent.

On the other hand, it is doubtful whether coffee can accurately be blamed for many of the things that are held at its door. Work by Dr. M. L. Hollingworth at Columbia University, by Dr. Fred A. Moss at George Washington University, as well as at Colgate University, does not confirm the belief that coffee destroys sleep.

Not Habit Forming

Nor is there satisfactory evidence that the very mild stimulation from coffee is followed by a depressing effect. Neither coffee nor tea can be justly called habit-forming, although they may be overdone, like a delicious new dessert or fresh vegetables when they first come in season; neither develops a slavish tendency nor moral depravity.

There are always individual idiosyncrasies to be reckoned with however. Some persons, for instance, break out in a rash after eating tomatoes, others have asthma caused by salmon. These are not imaginary ailments but the result of individual peculiarities in what is called protein sensitization In similar fashion a very few individuals are genuinely sensitive to coffee; a large number, but still a small percentage, are victims of imaginary effects from the beverage, some of the effects being beneficial, others otherwise. For such persons, it is probably wise to forget that there is such a thing as coffee in the world.

For most of us, it is probably wise to continue consuming properly prepared coffee, not only because it may help us but also because it is so enjoyable.

This morning the chapter "Proper Parenthood" in a Psychology text revealed to me that the difficult problems, petty quarrels and disagreements among children are soon forgotten unless interfered with by the parents. Antagonism can be aroused so easily in no other manner. A child must be reared to fight his own battles and urged to see his way through numbers of difficulties for at some future date that same child will find it necessary to rely on his own resources.

RELIEF CAR GRAIN SENT TO DAKOTA

REFORMED CHURCHES ANSWER CALL FOR HELP IN S. DAKOTA

Garner, Elltown and Klemme Ship Two Car Loads Today

A carload of oats, approximately 1,800 bushels, was shipped out of Klemme today, bound for Delmont, South Dakota. Another car load of grain is being shipped out of Garner for Miller, South Dakota, both being sent in answer to a call for grain for starving livestock in those communities. The grain will be distributed among Reformed farmers in those communities. The Reformed church has received a third appeal from Menno, South Dakota for grain. An effort will be made to ship a carload to that place. If this is done it is planned to make it a community affair and the car will then be distributed in the community of Menno.

Rev. C. A. Schmid, pastor of the Elltown church is acting as chairman of the joint committee of the three churches in sending grain. Julius Priebe is chairman for the relief committee of the Klemme church.

Klemme can always be relied on to answer a call whenever relief is needtd Last year a carload of food stuffs was sent to Arkansas. As the Reormed church solicited only among their own members in sending out the car load of grain, it should not be a very large task to get enough grain in the balance of the community for another carload. All that is necessary is to get a committee at work and the car will soon be filled.

The Klemme Vagabonds drove to Williams Tuesday night and played the Williams Bearcats. They gave the Williams team a good game but were defeated 42 to 27. The first quarter the count was 7-7 and the half ended 12-14 in Williams' favor. The locals were leading at the close of the third period 21-20. During the last quarter the Bearcats made a number of substitutions and started the rough tactics that won them the game. The last quarter was the locals downfall as the were unable to stop the rough attack of the Williams five. The Vagabonds will play a return game with Williams on the local floor within the next few weeks and are confident they can defeat the Bearcats.

GEORGE WASHINGTON

Looking backward along the road that America has trod since the first white man landed on its shores, we see a vista lined by events, and men who have aided in making that road easy. Many of the figures of early history have become misty with the clouds of time, but one figure is clear and distinct. There it stands. about halfway down the road, looking straight ahead and seeming to see not only the things that have been since his time but the things of today as well. In those eyes is the vision of the prophet, and as we watch, the arm raises, a finger points and a voice booms down the centuries to us "Avoid foreign entanglements."

February 22nd is the anniversary of the birth of George Washington, and it is well that we renew our acquaintance with the man who, almost singlehanded, made it possible for us to enjoy "life, liberty and the pusuit of happiness." Washington the man, we revere and honor his memory. Whether or not the "Cherry Tree" story is true. is of no consequence. Stories have appeared that slander his character, but they crash upon the rocks of our reverence as the breaking waves dashed on the rockbound coast of New England—and receded in impotent foam. We remember the man. If he had weaknesses we rejoice that he was human, even as you and I. If his standards were on e par with those of his time, we are glad, for we, too live in a glass house.

Thae things that stand out and will continue to stand out as long as civilization lasts, are the things that count in the making of a man. George Washington had courage. He had inetlligence. He had determination. He didn't know when he was licked. And he had VISION.

He saw the pitfalls that were set in the path that a young nation must trod He warned us of them. His voice echoes down thru the years and we will not hear. We are told that conditions have changed. Granted, but human nature has not changed. nations are still the pawn in the game played by diplomats. Our country has become powerful and wealthy. The cats lick their chops at our huge bowl of cream. We are still "babes in the woods" in the game of international politics.

We are told the world is smaller and that our in terests have so expanded tnat we can no longer "mind our own business." All the more reason why we should be more careful. The millennium is not here. The lion cannot yet be down with the lamb without hurt.

Let us open our ears and hear. More than that, let usopen our minds and absorb the common sense that still "aboid foreign entanglements."
echoes down the vista of the years
The Voice of George Washington.

AROUND THE COUNTY WITH AGENT WEISS

PLANS SET FOR ARGICULTURAL OUTLOOK CONFERENCE

Plans for the Hancock County Agricultural Outlook meeting to be held in Garner on February 25th have been completed, according to county agent, Walt Weiss.

The latest information on probable production and demand for various farm products during 1932 will be outlined to farmers attending the meeting so that they may better plan their farming program for the coming year. A long time farm production program will also be considered. E. L. Cady and S. H. Thompson, extension specialists in farm management from Iowa State College, will head the team of agricultural economists from Iowa State College, that will conduct the meeting here.

The findings of the National Agricultural Outlook Conference, that was held in Washington, Jan. 25 to 29 have been adapted to Iowa condition and will be presented at the local meeting.

The meeting is one of a series which is being held thruout Iowa from Feb. 8 to March 4. The meeting place is the Opera House at Garner. The meetings are scheduled to start at 10:00 A. M. and close at 3:30 P. M.

R. C. LUDEKE WILL HOLD SOW SALE NEXT WEDNESDAY

R. C. Ludeke will hold his 14th pure bred hog sale next Wednesday at which time he is offering for sale 40 head of fine Hampshire gilts and 10 head of selected sows. Mr. Ludeke's offering at this sale compares very favorably with the best breeds of any pure bred sale in the state this year. Local hog raisers will do well to take advantage of this sale right at home to improve their own herds. A large ad will be found in this issue which describes the blood lines represented. Now is the time to stick to the hog raising buisness and this sale looks like a real opportunity for the farmer to get the best stock at a fair price.

THE MACHINE AGE SPOILS A PROPHECY

By H. L. RUSSELL

Advisory Council, Agricultural Commission, American Bankers Association.

A NOTED British scientist forecast thirty years ago that by 1931 all available wheat land in the world would be under cultivation, and if the yields per acre could not be increased beyond that which then prevailed there would be a world shortage. The average yield then was 12.7 bushels per acre. During the past seven years, the world over, it has been 14.1. On the 320,000,000 acres in cultivation this increase would amount to almost a half billion bushels more production than the world standards of thirty years ago. In place of dire distress due to shortage, we have had dire distress due to surplus.

H. L. RUSSELL

Wheat farmers have shown no great inclination to curtail materially their output; perhaps a 10% decline compared with 70% reduction in steel. This unwillingness, or perhaps inability, to adjust production to current needs makes the problem all the harder to solve.

Not only are we now growing more wheat per unit of land, but acreage has been very greatly extended. In twenty years Canada has increased acreage 250%, Australia almost as much. Another significant fact is the materially lessened use of wheat. A much more diversified diet has developed. More vegetables and fruits are used than formerly. The reduction of 1.2 bushels consumed per person per annum since the last generation necessitates nearly 150,000,000 bushels less wheat than was formerly required.

Machines Increase Supply

The factor that has exerted the most potent influence in this rising world flood of grain has been the rapid development of the machine. The old days of the cradle required from thirty to forty hours of hand labor to harvest an acre of grain. Then came the binder, which reduced the process to four or five hours per acre. Now the combine does the work in forty-five minutes per acre.

Where it used to cost ten cents a bushel merely to thresh the grain, the modern combine cuts and threshes at a cost ranging from 3 to 5 cents a bushel. With this reduced cost of production, the possibility of acreage expansion is tremendous. Lands heretofore regarded as worthless except for grazing have recently come into competition with the older wheat belts.

The Russian Effort

Within the past two or three years another disturbing element has come into the picture. Soviet Russia is attempting a comeback fraught with possibility that cannot yet be fully evaluated. Russia is eagerly utilizing the very latest of scientific knowledge to enlarge her agricultural possibilities. With feverish anxiety she is literally pouring millions into the expansion of her university research institutes, experimental stations and breeding farms. Her scientists are combing the earth for new crops and new methods. No country in Europe is manifesting more interest and activity in laying hold of the best science, wherever it may be found.

It is of more than passing interest that the wheat yields reported on the huge trust farm known as the "Giant" ran last year as much as 18 bushels to the acre. On this single farm the crop harvested is reported to have been 3,865,000 bushels. A single farm of 427,000 acres under government control and mechanized as fast as human energy can be applied is a new factor in the world's picture.

There can be but little doubt that the Russian situation may yet assume quite a different attitude from what obtained even in pre-war days.

Bankers Hold Farm Conference

A "feeders' conference" was held in a state bank at Presho, South Dakota, attended by fifty farmers. The conference stressed the feeding of low price wheat and barley, and marketing it through livestock. Later, booklets on the feeding of wheat were distributed among the farmers, and a feeders column was carried in the local paper each week.

"We have had more success with the conference and with the feeders column in the local paper, than with any other undertaking we have tried," the bankers said. "As a result there is about three times as much livestock being fed out in our territory than ever before. We plan to hold other similar conferences the coming year."

The benefits of civilization exist because of the capital accumulated by those who have gone before. Through accumulation of capital our great railroads have been constructed, our public utilities have been built and our mills, office buildings and homes have arisen.

—A great many folks may have listened to Hank Field's K. F. N. F. station last Saturday noon. I expect that the letter he read over the radio brought the people for miles around to spend the money they had been keeping in the good old sock before it would depreciate in value. Possibly Hank's banker friend could be induced to write other similiar letters to other merchants for the same purpose.....All joking aside, if anything of the above nature helps the situation in the least it deserves serious consideration.

— The newspaper Iowa depends upon always feels quite good about Drake's accomplishments. A short time ago I glanced over the stuff the spread about that particular college's "Queen of Hearts". A very neat little write-up and enumeration of awards, but why and for what? These are hard times when utility is the thing. Come to think about it appearances are sometimes deceiving and people should never believe all they read in the papers (columns like this one excepted). I can call to mind a number of very pretty girls who are good cooks.

FORMER RESIDENT WRITES

Klemme Times
Klemme, Ia.
Dear Friend Ray:

I told our friends at Klemme I would write a note and tell them our thoughts better than I could by getting up and speaking to them in public.

We were at Klemme so long and had so many friends that were dear to us, that the thought of leaving after 18 years of sharing your joys and sorrows we assure you was not an easy one.

Don't think, folks but what we will always keep you all in our memory and we shall have the kindest thoughts of our friends there. We just could not say goodbye because we want to come back often and renew our acquaintance. We are getting to know the folks over here and they are back of us and the creamery. We already have about 200 patrons and it looks as if we are going to make a success of the undertaking here.

We welcome all our friends to come and see us at Renwick. We live just three blocks south of the school house and we will be very glad to welcome any of our Klemme friends at any time.

Best Wishes to All,
The A. D. Gimer Family

GIVES NATIONAL ECONOMIC PLAN

By ROME C. STEPHENSON
Former President American Bankers Association

WE hear much of future economic planning to save the nation from a repetition of depression and promote more stable business activity. I know no better plan to suggest to insure future better times than that every wage earner, every family and every business throughout the country lay down as soon as they are able a program of proper savings as the foundation of their financial policy.

R. C. STEPHENSON

I know of no better plan than this to build for the nation as a whole a stronger economic situation,—that is, through a common structure of individual working, earning and saving. And I know of no better plan to revive activity in a depression than to spend a proper volume of past savings to keep the momentum of business going. But unless there are savings in prosperity there cannot be spending during depression.

Those who practiced this plan during the past period of prosperity have a security and a protection against present adversity that could be provided in no other way. Those who did not are the ones who are now most dependent upon others. If there had been more preaching of this doctrine when it was more feasible to put it into effect than it is now, there would be less depression and less financial insecurity today.

However, while there should have been more emphasis on savings during prosperity, a measure of the emphasis today might properly be the other way,—at least to the extent that those who can safely do so may well increase their spending instead of overdoing their saving. While many have seen their earnings fail, there are millions who have not suffered so seriously in respect to the real purchasing power of their incomes. If we listened to all the scare stories of the day, one might get the impression that everybody was out of a job and nobody's business was earning anything. Many of our people who are able to continue a normal program of prudent buying are curtailing their expenditures beyond reason.

A Business Stimulus

The sum total of this unreasonable curtailment of spending is an economic influence contributing to the stagnation of trade. By the opposite token, I believe the resumption of normal spending on the part of those who are able to do so would be an important tonic toward the stimulation of trade. I do not mean by this that we should have indiscriminate spending merely for the sake of spending, but the very motive power of our economic life is the interchange of goods, and unless we have that we cannot have prosperity.

I strongly believe that we are at that point in the depression stage of the business cycle that any sound stimulating influence will start a real movement in the direction of a return toward prosperity. So much of the weakness of the old state of affairs has been liquidated, so many maladjustments corrected and such large volumes of our consumers' goods have been used up or worn out that the pressure of necessitous purchases must sooner or later be felt. When that time definitely comes we may consider it the first impulse of a new era of normal business.

When Government Aids Agriculture

Demand for relief, agricultural or otherwise, comes naturally from those who feel most keenly the impact of economic pressure. Those most affected fly quickly to government for aid. But too frequently agencies set in operation by governments simply postpone inevitable readjustments. The basic laws of supply and demand have never been permanently and successfully set aside. So in general governmental intervention that artificially stimulates prices or even maintains them when the prevailing economic situation obviously shows that readjustments are inevitable are expedients that yield only temporary relief rather than permanent cure. Porous plasters may relieve pain for the moment but they rarely get at the seat of the real trouble.—H. L. Russell.

When army worms threatened the crops of Marshall County, Tennessee, information concerning the pests was made available by the College of Agriculture, and bankers immediately took steps to organize a war against the common enemy, calling mass meetings in their communities where complete facts and helpful recommendations for eradication could be put before the greatest number of people possible. This timely action saved the destruction of many fields of crops.

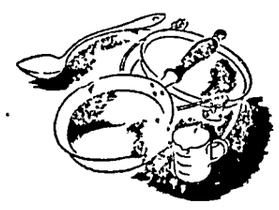
A WHOLE KITCHEN



full of smiles

BRING the box of Dairymen's Wyandotte Cleanser in from the dairy and try it in the kitchen —on greasy skillets and pans. Don't stop there, but wash your glassware and dishes with it also. It will seem like a miracle. For Wyandotte loosens the dirt that other cleansers skip over. Wyandotte leaves everything clean and sweet-smelling and with half the work.

In the dairy, Wyandotte Cleanser cleans and sweetens utensils, separators, and milking machines until they're free from that unseen dirt which often sours milk.

Wyandotte will not harm the hands or any surface it cleans. And it costs less to do your cleaning with it! The J. B. Ford Company, Wyandotte, Mich.

SHOWER HELD FOR MARIE CARSON NEIMEYER

Last Monday evening a group of fronds gave to Shower Party in the American Legion Rooms in honor of the new bride, Marie Carson Neimeyer, who was married to Wilbur Neimeyer of Garner a few weeks ago. The usual mock wedding was held under an Xmas Bell. The ceremony began with the strains of the wedding march played by Gracka Quandt at the organ

The two flower girls who led the couple were Norma Stromer and Geraldine Smid. Straw was used in place of flowers. They were followed by the ring bearers, Bertha Johnson and Elsina Albers who carried a pink barrel hoop Then came the bride, Clarice Wellemeyer, with a flowing veil held by Lenora Larsen and Esther Greiman. The bride's bouquet was carrots, turnips and lettuce on a feather duster. The groom, Dora Swanson, was attired in what best grooms should wear, short knicker suit with a black windsor tie..

Valeria Koerner spoke the solemn words with a Montgomery & Ward to help her. Just before the vows were spoken Lucile Kraus favored them with a beautiful solo entitled "The Prisoner's song"

After the ceremony Mrs. Wilbur Neimoyer opened her many gifts, which were both beautiful and useful and all wished her the best of something in the future and happiness.

All of the guests were dressed in gowns or suits of nationally advertize dproducts. This added to the fun and spirit of the party as some of the costumes were beautiful and exactly like the pictures they represented.

GIMER MAKING FINE BUTTER

We were given a liberal sample of Renwick Creamery butter last week and we render the opinion that A. D. Gimer has not lost any of his art as a skillful buttermaker. Renwick folks can consider themselves fortunate in having a fine creamery and one of the best butter makers in the state in their com munity.

Income tax "blanks" are certainly appropriate this year.

AROUND THE COUNTY WITH AGENT WEISS

TIME TO TEST SEED CORN FOR COMING SEASON

Planting Of Poor Seed Encourages Weed Infestation

Farmers, if you have not already done so, right now is the time to test your seed corn for the coming season.

Due to the abundance of wet weather last fall most of the seed corn that was not picked early will be badly infested with the mold disease One farmer who has ragdoll tested some of his seed corn reports that it germinates fairly well but that 18 ears out of every 20 are diseased

In the near future, we will publish a report on 15 or 20 samples of seed corn from the county that is being tested by R. H. Porter of the Extension Service, which will give you a fair idea as to what the seed corn problem is for this season.

By all means run a test on your corn to satisfy yourself that you are not going to plant diseased corn.

By planting poor seed, you are encouraging weed production and you all know that we have too much weed infestation now. The principles of weed control are: Using clean seed. Prevent seed production; burn weeds with mature seeds; destroy germinating seeds; destroy rootstocks of perennials; prevent storage of food reserves; build soil fertility; watch for new seeds.

KANAWHA SENDS SHIPMENT OF OATS TO WEST VIRGINIA

Oats grown on the Northern Iowa Experimental Association farm here will be shipped to West Virginia where it will be used for seed this spring. F. N Knudsen, secretary of the association, received an order for 20 bushels of the variety known as Iowa No. 444 from S. H. Murphy of Montrose, W. Va., the price to be paid being 40 cents a bushel.

This oats yielded 72 acres per bushel last year and is of first quality. The experimental farm produced over 600 bushels of this variety. It is rustless and has been one of the highest yielding oat varieties grown at the Iowa State College experimental plots in recent years It has about the same ripening date as the Iowar but is very resistant to black stem rust

The 600 bushels produced by the experimental farm here is available as seed to the farmers of this community, the members of the experimental farm association to be given preference in distribution.

F. G. Bell of Ames, who will have charge of the experiment farm this year will be in Kanawha next week to clean the oats and arrange for the shipment to West Virginia. — Kanawha Reporter.

SUPPER AND PROGRAM GIVEN BY M. E. LADIES AID

The ladies of the M. E. Church served a Washington supper Monday evening which was well attended. Of course cherry pie was on the menu and for those who do not believe the cherry tree story had the choice of eating apple pie.

After the supper a miscellaneous Washington program was put on which was greatly enjoyed. Mrs. A. R. White read an interesting paper on the history of Geo. Washington. A musical dramatization of the Mother Goose rhyme "The Old Woman In The Shoe" was sung by Marion Waterman, accompanied by her mother on the piano. Various characters in the story were carried out by the children. Several old time songs were sung by Gracka Quandt and Thelma Kluckhohn, accompanied by Miss Ford at the piano Jacqueline Kudje played two violin solos and several vocal solos by Harry Buss were enjoyed.

A mock wedding in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Wellemeyer's 26th wedding anniversary was carried out as a surprise number. In this riot of laughter Mrs. A. R. White took the part of the minister; Mrs. W. F. Pavey, the groom; Mrs. Fred Kluckhohn, the bride; Marion Waterman, flower girl; Jackie Kudje, ring bearer; James Thomas and Pattie Kudje, veil carriers. Mrs. R. A. Mr. Wellemeyer responded to the mock wedding by telling about conditions and weather of twenty-six years ago on their wedding day.

The ladies cleared $23.75 from their supper and program.

PLAN FARM MACHINERY REPAIR NOW

Putting Equipment in Shape Now Eaves Time, Money and Labor Later

Money, time and labor during the rush season can be saved by repairing machinery now, said V. S. Peterson, agricultural engineer in the Extension service at Iowa State College in announcing Farm Machinery Repair Week which will be observed March 7 to 12

Farm Machinery Repair Week is being inauguarated to draw the attention of farmers who have not repaired their machinery to the value of getting their equipment in shape for the planting, cultivation and harvesting seasons.

Delays caused by the breakdown of a machine while in operation are costly. The breakdown of a binder or tractor may cause small grain to lodge from overripness or to become damaged by weather if the repair cannot be effected immediately Regardless of what the repair is, if it has to be made when the machine should be in operation it is costly in time and inronvenience if not in actual cash.

Investigations into the service life of farm machinery show that few machines are actually worn out. Most machines are discarded because of lack of care and repair or because they become obsolete.

The best time to repair machinery is during the winter and early spring months before rush season comes.

Careful checking of machinery, repair and adjustment of farm equipment now will save many dollars later. A special circular, "Farm Machinery Management," dealing with care and repairs may be obtained by writing to the Extension Service at Iowa State College.

DOINGS AT SCHOOL THE PAST WEEK

All departments of the school seem to have recovered after two weeks of colds and flu. The school building has been fumigated several times during the past two weeks. Window ventilators are being placed in each class room. Physical training has been changed to a period during the middle of the afternoon instead of the last period.

A large picture of Washington has been framed and put in each grade room. Grade exercise honored the two great heroes of our country on their respective birthdays.

The Seniors had their pictures taken at the Russel Studio at Mason City last Monday afternoon. The class attended a show in the evening.

A large number of students and town basketball fans attended the County tournament.

A shipment of forty books has been loaned to the Klemme High School library by the Iowa Traveling Library Commission. These books will be of special benefit to English students in getting their required amount of outside reading.

Supt. Hunter gave a very interesting assembly talk last week about Lincoln. He touched on the points which are less familiar to us and brought in a number of anecdotes to illustrate them. This week the Junior class will have charge of an assembly devoted to talks and readings on Washington.

It would encourage our contestants in the declamatory contest at Hayfield Thursday evening if a number of Klemme people could be in the audience. Nova Koerner. Nellie Stromer and Dorance Day are representing our school in this preliminary round of the state contests

Grades 5 and 6

The following people were absent from grades five and six because of illness: Paul Schuldt, Wayne Shoafstall, Marvin Lemke, Doris Johnson, Irene Johnson, LaRayne Stille, Chester Ward and Velma Kaduce. On Monday morning only two were absent. We hope that in a few days we will have a perfect attendance.

The fifth grade have a story in their reader about Betsy Ross and the making of the American Flag. They have made an original three act play.

The sixth grade in language have made notebooks on the life of Geo. Washington.

Grades 3 and 4

The following people have made an average of 90 or above the first semester. Third grade—Jacqueline Kudje, Shirley Johnson and Evelyn Lewis. Fourth grade— Elsie Ward, Dorance Grange, Elnor Schuldt, Milred Jean Sitzer.

Elsie Ward, Pearl Wade, Elnor Schuldt, Wayne Buseman, Stanley Ludeke, Dwaine Johnson, Marjorie Lemke, Lorraine Buntenbach, Della Kaduce and Keith Stille have been absent on account of the flu.

Della Kaduce is the first pupil in the third and fourth grade room who has reported seeing a robin this year.

Mr. C. G. Waterman was a visitor in the third and fourth grade room February 14.

Coffee — Four Ways to Make

By Barbara Waring

A GOOD many years ago Elizabeth Roberts Pennell wrote in "A Guide to the Greedy": "It matters not how many courses between oysters and coffee Fashion may decree, if you devise a few things it will be a privilege for your guests to eat, a joy for them to remember. Much depends upon coffee . . . it must be strong, it must be rich, it must be hot."

How true that is! Fragrant coffee has saved many a meal from the doldrums, even though the preceding dishes have been fit for a palace feast. Science knows now that coffee has real dietary value as an aid to digestion, but even the most unscientific of us realize that the gentle stimulation of the well-brewed cup sharpens the wit and loosens the tongue. But it must be well-brewed, for bitter, weak and warmish coffee is worse than none at all.

Coffee can be made well by any method if certain rules are fully observed. Be sure you have the proper grind and that your coffee is fresh. Never guess at proportions — a heaping tablespoon to each cup of water. Coffee-making utensils should be kept scrupulously clean; a solution of boiling water, washing soda and ammonia, followed by a thorough rinsing, will keep the pot sweet and the coffee clear. Here are four ways to make coffee:

Percolated Coffee

1. Use medium-ground ("steel-cut") coffee.
2. Pour only cold water into percolator pot, place coffee in basket, cover and percolate gently 10 to 15 minutes. Slow percolation may be described as percolation in which the coffee bubbles up through the tube with such gentleness that the spray rarely strikes the glass. Rapid percolation is apt to bring out a bitter taste.
3. Best results are obtained by making the full amount for which the percolator is designed. The water should not be brought over the base of the spout.

Drip Coffee

1. Use only finely-ground coffee (consistency of corn meal).
2. Preheat the pot and basket with boiling water and allow to stand a few minutes. Pour the water just before making coffee.
3. Put the coffee in the basket compartment and pour boiling fresh water over it.
4. Allow the liquid to drip through only once. (If stronger coffee is desired, use more coffee but do not drip it through again.)
5. Remove the filter basket compartment at once, as the grounds absorb the aroma and flavor of the coffee.

Steeped Coffee

1. Use medium-ground ("steel-cut") coffee.
2. Boil fresh water and pour over the coffee in the pot.
3. Cover the pot tightly and let stand in a warm place for 3 to 5 minutes.
4. To prevent a strong, unpleasant flavor, drain coffee from grounds as soon as steeped. Strain through a fine wire strainer, muslin or cheesecloth.

Boiled Coffee

1. Use medium-ground ("steel-cut") coffee and ¼ cup of unbeaten egg to each cup.
2. Mix coffee and egg thoroughly in pot. Pour in cold, fresh water and bring slowly to a boil, stirring occasionally.
3. Remove pot from the fire immediately it boils, and let stand in a warm place 3 to 5 minutes. Pour ¼ cup cold water in to settle it.
4. Strain through a fine wire strainer, muslin or cheesecloth, as desired, the grounds may be tied in a muslin or cheesecloth bag large enough to hold twice the amount of grounds used, to allow for swelling.

CLEAN SPRAYING OUTFITS NOW

Better Order Spraying Materials, Too, to Save Time In Spring

Now is a good time to clean up spraying materials, repair all equipment and prepare in general for the coming orchard season.

This is the advice of T. J. Maney head of pomology research work at Iowa State College. He states that a little time spent on these tasks now will do much to eliminate the last minute rush next spring.

Suggestions and estimates which are based on an average of 20 to 30 year old apple trees are as follows:

1. Get the exact number of trees to be sprayed.
2. One half as many pounds of dry lead arsenate will be required as there are trees to be sprayed
3. One-half as many gallons of liquid lime sulprur will be required as there are trees to be sprayed unless dormant strength is used and then it would require or one and one-half as many lbs. of dry lime sulphur as there are trees to be sprayed five times.
4. Where aphis or green plant lice are present at the cluster bud spray, about 1 pint of nicotine sulphate should be used to each 20 trees in the orchard.
5. When bordeaux is used in two sprays about 1 pound of copper sulphate and 1 pound of quick lime or about 3 pounds of commercial Bordeaux will be required for each tree.
6. There should be about as many gallons of spray solution used on each tree during the season as the tree is years old. On each bearing tree use 5 to 10 gallons of mixture for each spray.

POULTRY INCOMES PROVE TO BE SATISFACTORY

Return Above Feed Cost 3 Months Nearly Equal to Same Period 20-30

Although a look at egg prices may give poultry producers the "blues," a study of the comparative income above feed cost from calendar record flocks during November December and January for the past four winters "will drive the blues away."

For the past three months. the income above current expenses was 21.4 cents per hen as compared with 17 cents last year and 22 cents in 29-30, according to the report of Iowa calendar record flocks for January just released by the poultry Extension Service at Iowa State College.

The present income above current expenses, however, fails to equal the 34 cents of 1928-29, one of the best poultry years in the past ten.

"Poultry farmers were not blue in 1929-30 when they had 22 cents per hen above current expenses for the three months so why should they feel discouraged now when they have 21.4 cents?" asks. W. M. Vernon, poultry extension specialist

These figures should not lead to general expansion of the poultry business, however. Such activity probably would be disastrous. Poultry producers should hold their production program steady, make the best possible use of equipment they now have, cut production costs as dow as possible and use good feeding and management methods.

The total receipts per hen for the three months period in 1929-30 was 69 cents in 1930-31 it was 50 cents and during the past three months 43.4 cents. However, expenditures per hen decreased from 47 cents two years ago to 33 cents last year and 22 cents during the past three months.

Alleges That Insects Are Menace to World

Insects are conquering in a mass attack on humanity. This is the view of A. Moore Hogarth, chairman of the College of Pestology, London, England, who has made a life study of insects.

"Insects are establishing such a stronghold that one day man will wake up to find that he has met his master," Mr. Hogarth said. "The trouble is that men in their ignorance take no well organized steps to fight the insect menace, and they don't realize that insects have brains. Before the war mosquitos were unknown in England. Today every fourth or fifth person has been bitten by one.

"I am not a scaremonger. That eminent scientist, Sir Oliver Lodge, for example, has said that the end of the world will not be caused by such a calamity as an earthquake or flood, but by the ascendancy of the insect world over man.

"Some simple-minded local authorities imagine that they are destroying mosquitos when they solemnly spray ponds with paraffin. In their ignorance they leave alone large tracts of ground where mosquitos breed in shoals. As for cockroaches there are cases where you could not get them out of a building without pulling it down.

"Why are insects defeating man? Because all of their brains are devoted to the main things of life, to satisfying hunger and the welfare of the species, while man's brain is dissipated in various other interests."

Million "Plunks" Makes One's Serenity Secure

A million dollars spread over seventy years of a man's life accomplishes one great good at least. It spares him from an immense amount of anxiety. It is ammunition in his arsenal against care. Serenity, some philosophers think, is the greatest good. They have secured it, but at the sacrifice of everything else. They have usually been lonely and impecunious hermits.

One cannot imagine much serenity or even personal comfort without money. Now, take a million dollars, and if you don't court trouble by trying to increase it, it drives away most mental distress and brightens every hour of the day. We do not adore wealth, but we understand its importance. It is worth while not to be bothered by the vicissitudes of life, and most of them can be eluded with a million dollars.

There are more "Hallelujahs" and fewer "Oh, hades!" with it. One may be freer and less circumlocutory in the expression of opinion; and certainly there isn't any excuse for a repentant attitude toward the mighty. With a million, you are somewhat mighty yourself.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

"Mourner's Bench"

In the United States (only), at revival meetings in churches, tents, and elsewhere, a bench, or row of camp chairs, is placed directly beneath the platform or pulpit and reserved for those who wish to come forward, at the close of the preacher's exhortations, to declare their sins and seek forgiveness of the Lord. The bench, or row of chairs, as the case may be, is called the mourners' bench. The mourners' bench was very much in evidence a few years ago at the revival gatherings addressed by the late Dwight L. Moody, American evangelist, who said: "The devil howls in rage when he sees repentant sinners crowding the mourners' bench."—Literary Digest.

Captain Kidd "Framed"?

Recent biographers of Captain Kidd state that he was not a pirate and that the ships he took were lawful prizes captured in his legal capacity as a privateer. The charge of seizing two ships of the great mogul could have been met at his trial by the production of two documents which Kidd had taken from these ships and which he claimed proved that they were sailing under commissions issued by the French East India company, which made them lawful prizes. These documents Kidd had handed to his patron Lord Bellomont and they were not discovered until some 200 years later in the public records office.

"Seven Ages" in Glass

The window depicting the "Seven Ages of Man" was placed in the Holy Trinity church in Shakespeare's birthplace, Stratford-on-Avon, by Americans. There are eight panels in the window, but as the two top center panels refer to only one age, the seven ages are thus represented. The Biblical characters representing the Seven Ages are as follows: The Infant, Moses; the Schoolboy, Samuel; the Lover, Jacob; the Soldier, Joshua; the Justice, Solomon; the Slippered Pantaloon, Abraham; Sans Eyes, Sans Teeth, Sans Everything, Isaac.

Subjection of Static

Technicians are examining many steps that make up the sound process with the object of overcoming that disturbing scratch and static which often accompany voice reproduction. Without laying claim to supernatural powers, the engineers are sure that such noises will soon cease to be troublesome factors. Nothing radical may be expected in sound films five years hence; but a small invention here, an innovation there, will so improve recording and reproduction that the ultimate goal of perfection will be approached.

BE SURE TO USE TESTED SEED

It's One of the First Essentials In Reducing Farming Costs

One of the first steps in reducing farm costs is the planting of good seed and the only certain method of having good seed is having it thoroughly tested.

So says R. H. Porter, plant pathologist with the Extension Service at Iowa State College. There are 3 principal reasons for testing seed before it is sown. They are to determine the viability of the seed, to determine what weed seeds are present and to determine disease.

One of the primary causes of the weed problem in Iowa has been the planting of impure seed. Practically all of the noxious weeds were originally introduced in grass, clover and grain seed.

The cost of planting, cultivating and harvesting a poor stand of any crop is equal to that of a crop with a strong, uniform stand. Thus the importance of testing for viability is apparent n the production of all crops whether planted broadcast or in rows to be cultivated.

The seed laboratory at Iowa State is doing more work in the detection of diseases than any other laboratory in the United States. It is well equiped, expertly managed and should give Iowa farmers the best of service in seed testing.

Custom has ordained that the pedestrian on the rural highway, like the vehicles shall "Keep to the Right". That is proper for the vehicle, but for the pedestrian the right side is the wrong side.

Two thousand persons are killed annually in the United States and many thousands injured because they cling to the ancient custom. They are struck at curves, over the crest of hills and in narrow passes by automobiles coming from behind. Dusk, before the headlight ed on is very dangerous, in the night, when the silho the pedestrian blends into t ground even under the stro headlights, is the most d time of all.

Until the states provid walks for the country roads destrian should always keep left side.

COTTON AND CACTUS
By El Kaye

I notice that improved road conditions have favorably affected the shoe industry. I thought the modern maiden took her roller skates with her on joy rides.

I have just seen my own image perfectly reproduced in a photograph and the shock was deflating. Now if anyone ever says "You write as well as you look," I know I am being insulted.

Bootleggers are neither bootleggers nor hipleggers. They are bosom leggers. After all one does clasp his dearest possesion to his breast.

If our heap big headed people think they can enforce prohibition through hurting two youngsters' chance in the world, I'll let them fight the battle unassisted. Feel their muscle!

After such influence as she has upon him she will soon have him so elevated in mind and spirit that he will soon be sitting on top of the curbstone.

A person who invests his tongue interests in others affairs is courting trouble as ardently as Americans who are partial to either side in the China-Japan war zone.

No one asked me my choice of the swellest card player in the county but I'd be inclined to vote for some player who doesn't remark to his partner at the close of the game, "You had a good hand. Why didn't you play it rightly?"

I overheard a wedding guest announce that love goes on in spite of the economic depression. Perhaps the conditions are just a test. Amd blessed are they that can endure such a test.

Looking back, the fervent era seems mighty foolish—just a symptom of youth's adventure. But since youth will ever be the same, may others' acts remind us of our own pasts and may we constantly see the deed in the light of the participants' intentions.

I suggest that columnists organize a syndicate to reduce destructive criticism. (Anything so I might meet Philosopher Phil and Harlan Miller.)

They are two of my three favorite columnists.

Some may think my sportsmanship and sympathy for the illiterate was manifesting itself (wisely or unwisely) when I chose to argue pro the "amorous actions". You're wrong again First—I have no sportsmanship. Second— My sympathy goes where it is most needed —which will be for those (when I have finished with them) that insist, my writings scream "feminine personality". Third— I don't believe those optomistic youngsters could be illiterate since they found some joy in life. That is more than many in the old town do.

Occasionally it is possible to understand why critical people are supposed to notice "amorous intentions". Most couples I've chanced to observe (unintentionally, I assure you) were inclined to be petulant.

Which has no reference to "petting."

I hereby reproduce Miss Duke's definition of a true pal: "A real pal is one who wants you to succed in all your undertakings even if it is against his own interests". Mr. Dunlap says. "He is tolerant of all your faults and appreciative of all your virtues". Attorney Edelman says, "He doesn't expect any thanks in return for favors." How many of us fulfill these requirements?

Thanks, Phil, old pal, for your but since I can (without aid) of sufficient ideas to fill a column, I'll ask no assistance.

The seventh and eight grades enjoyed a visit to the Klemme Times office last Friday in connection with our study of the development of printing. We wish to extend our thanks to Mr. and Mrs. Jorgenson for their courtesy and co-operation.

The following theme was written by Richard Hughes following our visit.

The Linotype Machine

Years ago type had to be set by hand. The linotype has taken the place of that and the type can now be set much quicker.

The linotype is operated by a person who has a keyboard in front of him much like that of a typewriter. When he presses a key a mold of the letter is made. The molds slide into place and make a line of type.

The linotype has a small compartment in which the metal that is forty per cent lead, is heated to a temperature of more than five hundred degrees.

After the molds have been made they are put into a boz and made tight so that they will not fall out The papers are now ready to be printed.

The printing press is a large machine which is run by an electric motor. The papers are put through rollers and rolled across the box in in which are the molds of letters.

There are many different sizes of types Of the lead type the smallest is the six point and the largest is the seventy two point. Those larger than the seventy two point are made of wood.

There are different kinds of type the Roman, the boldface, the Gothic and lightface. The Roman and bold face are alike as are the Gothic and the lightface.

After the papers have been printed they must be folded. They are put on a machine and folded in halves and quarters. They are folded into eighths when they reach you.

All people who get papers from the editor have slugs with their name on them. They are printed on the paper by putting the paper over the name. A lever is pulled down upon the paper and the slug leaves the name printed on the paper.

They are now ready to be distributed.

Grades 5 and 6

Velma Kaduce and Ronald Gibbs were absent from Grade 5 Monday because of illness.

Edith Bachman was absent from Grade 5 Tuesday because of illness.

The fifth grade has completed a study of Europe. Monday they made a large product map and now have it displayed in the front of their room.

CARLOADS OF GRAIN RECEIVED IN SOUTH DAKOTA

Word was received from the Rev. Schild of Demont, South Dakota that the car load of grain which was sent by the members of the Reformed congregations in Garner, Ell town and Klemme, arrived at its destination. The second car loaded at Garner has also been received at Miller, South Dakota. The Klemme car left Thursday, Feb. 18th and arrived at Delmont Saturday the 20th

Rev. Schild wishes to thank all who contributed and wishes to assure them that these gifts were heartily appreciated. Some of the members who still were able to provide for their cattle gave their share to poorer neighbors. A laboring man, living in town and being without work was given his share in cash.

He closes his letter by saying that he rejoices that men still have a heart for one another and that gratitude still lives in the hearts of both those who receive and those who give.

Rev. Funk also writes that his people were overjoyed to receive this help. The car was unloaded and the grain stored at an Elders place. From here it will be distributed amongst those who are in need.

TO PRESENT MUSICAL COMEDY

Dear Jergy:

Maybe the folks back home would beinterested in knowing that we are steping out and doing a musical comedy of real clas this year. We are doing the "Mikado", which as you know is one of the most famous Gilbert and Sullivan light operas. on March 14 and 15. It wil be presented as a combined junior college and high school production. with a cast of ninety I have charge of the junior college music and the high school instrumental music as well as boy's glee club. So it makes it rather handy in this instance to combine forces. The production will be enhanced by the orchestra. which has been working for months on thenarts

The "Mikado" is probably the best known of all Gilbert and Sullivan light operas. It is loved for its beautiful music and rollicking comedy. Some of the most famous choruses and solos have been presented repeatedly the past fall and winter over the radio. It is presented only by professionals and by the larger schools. however. because of its technical difficulties.

A number of folks have expressed their intention of driving over from Klemme for the production.

Sincerely yours,
EARL E. JOSTEN.

I IMAGINE THAT— By Phil Osifer

—We all know that this bum column is not 'newspaper writing,' but it is being read anyway. I can't help it if you like my stuff.

—PO—

—I don't stay squelched because I am "uneducated".

—PO—

—Advice is easy to listen to. Most of us were brought up on do and don't and so should know what to do in the present case.

—PO—

—I should be grateful for the kindly solicitude brought out by the words, "Do not condemn."

—PO—

—It would be better to shovel the crossings. Some comely maids are hefty.

—PO—

—If you should read a few back numbers of the Times as I have been doing, you would find in a very well written column in the Dec. 16, 1931 issue, the following: "If We Males" (the capitals are mine) "suspect the members of the opposite sex.....". In the same column Dec. 30, 1931: "I couldn't resist reminding The Wife....." And again, Jan. 13,1932: With the approval of the B. W....." (I understand that b. w. is here used in the same sense that H. S M. uses it). Then, Jan 20, 1932 "Judging from the amount of mail I carry to the Post Office one would think that I were a Man of letters". And finally Jan. 27, 1932: "The morning pipe may be rite of necessity for some but not for ambitious young columnists. This is my 27th tobacco-less day in 1932. (I have even refrained from smoking my Christmas cigars".

—PO—

—From the foregoing excerpts gleaned from the aforesaid well conducted column, a reader would naturally be lead to believe that the column was conceived and brought into being by a member of the sterner sex. That is perfectly obvious.

—This may be considerable of a shock to some, but it is incumbent upon me to say that I have, after diligent search, research and much listening in the right and wrong places, uncovered the fact that we can hold no member of the so-called sterner sex responsible for the column.

—PO—

—Now since we have destroyed the individual's gender (by verbal hydrolysis, shall we say), we cannot humanely leave it so. So we must proceed further, by verbal synthesis; to make the correct thing to replace that which we destroyed because it was incorrect.

—PO—

—If you study your Zoology book (Zoology is offered in a liberal arts course) you will find that there are some organisms having in them all the essentials to sustain and reproduce life, but the peculiar thing about these "critters" is that they are bi-sexual. We also find that all naturally bi-sexual organisms, with possibly a few exceptions, are invertebrates. Consequently they are physically incapable of pushing a lead pencil and so cannot become columnists even though they may possess sufficient wit. (By comparison, of course).

—PO—

—One of the other possibilities is that of subnormal development. But I find it unnecessary to discuss that phase of the question.

—PO—

—We are glad to know that SHE does not smoke cigars. No doubt SHE has now passed HER 61st tobacco-less day in 1932. Let us all hope so.

—PO—

—This may or may not, be a bad day for "uneducated specialists".

Nurse—Sir, the stork has just brought you a new son.

Absent-minded—Great! But don't tell my wife. I want to surprise her.

If we had been a little quicker Sunday morning in spying Ralph Elder delivering his milk we would surely have taken a picture of his latest outfit. Once upon a time Rev. Whyte had a trailer which R. W. had gotten hold of and made into a sort of buggy driven by horses to assist in delivering his milk route. We understand it does not comprise the most comfortable springs and we really believe if he had removed another spring he could have made butter on the way.

The cantata "From the Manger to the Cross was presented by the Elltown Reformed choir at our local Reformed church Sunday eevning. The program was opened by a prelude offered by Miss Norma Barz. Rev. Schmidt, pastor of the Elltown congregation gave a brief summary of the story to be illus- music. He traced the life of Christ from His birth to His death resurrection and ascension into Heaven. The entire program was splendidly given with much credit due to Miss Goll, Miss Habercamp, Mr. Hueneman, Mr. Schlawin and Mr. Greiman, soloists.

I'm sorry if my writing reeks of feminine philosophy—but I surely think that there is no act less manly than loitering behind lamp posts.

Backbiting has come into its own within the last few days. Nearly every day one hears some new and interesting scandal. I'm glad I can be of some relief of monotony. That is one blessing of bearing the brunt of slander.

I knew that March is the month of wind but I had no idea people were endeavoring to be especially so during that month.

In this age of economy, nothing should be wasted. Try using that wind advantageously. Let it pump water—not people. Allow it to grind corn—not enmity

As I glance over the last issue of the Times, it strikes me that a portion of it is slightly out of date. Gender is no longer (except in gramar and reproduction) of any importance.

Perhaps these weddings may prove to be a stimulus for more weddings—thus providing a few vacancies open for bachelor girls.

Since I ardently advocate "free thinking" and am firmly convinced that each person is entitled to his own opinion, I don't care what you think of this column.

I think some men are too experienced in saying "I love you, dear", for they say it so convincingly to such a number—and, too, it happens that this type is very careful about putting such a statement on black and white.

PRAIRIE CHICKENS NUMEROUS

Reports coming to the fish and game department from Hawarden, Sioux county, are to the effect that hundreds of prairie chickens, some flocks with as many as 200 in them make their home in the vicinity of Hawarden. These are evidently migratory birds, coming down into Iowa from the Dakotas in search of food.. They should be given every possible protection by local residents.

Live stock shipmets the past week ran a bit lighter than usual. However J. J. Stille shipped a car load of cattle through the shipping association. Joe E. Johnson and C. A. Larsen each shipped out a double deck of hogs; so this past week's shipment was equal to five carloads.

LARGE CROWD ENTERTAINED BY MARSHALL & SWIFT

Marshall & Swift, cleaners and furriers of Mason City, supplied the program for the P. T. A. meeting here Tuesday night. A large crowd was present to hear the Clover Leaf quartet, which provided entertainment of a high class nature for over an hour. Mr. Erdix Swift brought over $2,000 worth of furs with him and gave a very interesting talk on fur bearing animals, methods of tanning, selecting fur for wear, color, etc. Mr. Swift is a lover of the out-of doors and has gained a lot of his knowledge first hand. Klemme was the 76th town that the company has played this winter. Those who didn't come to the entertainment certainly missed a treat. We have seen lyceum and chautauqua programs which have cast the town a hundred dollars that did not come up to this program which Marchall & Swift gave the P. T. A. without a cent of cost.

Following the program a fine lunch was served by the committee in charge.

VAGABONDS TO PLAY HAYFIELD HERE THURSDAY EVE

The Vagabonds will play their last scheduled game of the season with Hayfield on the local floor this Thursday evening. This will be perhaps the best game of the year as the locals gave this strong team a close battle on the Hayfield floor. The locals have won 10 out of a total of 18 games so far this season and with the exception of Sheffield have beaten at least once every team they have played. Hayfield is the team they must defeat to preserve this record.

COUNTY ENGINEER GIVES ROAD PROGAM

LARGEST PROGRAM BUILT IN ONE YEAR BY HANCOCK CO.

Made Possible By Low Construction Cost Of Present Time

On February 17, the board of approval, composed of one trustee from each township, and the board of supervisors adopted a program of road improvement. On March 4, addditions to this program were made by the board of supervisors, and the complete program for the county was adopted. This program must be approved by the Highway Comission before contracts for construction work can be let. This program as finally adopted, includes the following items:

Township	Miles Of Grading	Miles Of Graveling
Bingham	3½	4½
Crystal	7½	4
Madison	5	2½
Ellington	5½	2
Orthel	8	4
Britt	3½	6½
Garfield	5½	2½
Concord	4	5½
Boone	6	6½
Erin	3	7
Liberty	11½	1½
Ell	8½	5
Magor	3½	7
Amsterdam	2	7
Twin Lake	6	6
Avery	9	4½

Also one 80' span bridge in Twin Lake township and one 100' span bridge in Avery township.

In comparing the work in different townships, consideration must be given to the balance which some townships had left over from last years work and also to the variation in the cost due to different conditions.

This is a larger program than we have ever built in this county in one year and it could not be carried out if it were not for the low construction cost of the present time. The road tax levies are approximately 20% less in 1931 than they were in 1930 and additional reductions can be made as soon as the more important local roads are improved.

The present demand for additional work is shown by the petitions for road improvement, which are signed by hundreds of residents of this county and these petitions were presented to the Board of Approval at their meeting Feb. 17. Some of the signers of these petitions were present at the meeting and made speeches in behalf of the roads that they wished to have placed on the program. Since we cannot build all of the roads at once. the trustees and supervisors must construct first the roads which in their judgment will give the best service to the people It would not be fair to stop all construction work and leave a large part of our population on unimproved roads. A few more years will bring a surfaced highway to every farm and then a large reduction in the construction expense can be made.

Miss Adella Schroeder who is attending college at Ames, has been invited to become a member of the Omicron Nu fraternity, it being an honorary Home Economics fraternity, to which girls are elected on basis of their scholarship (grades). We are sincerely delighted to give such a report as Miss Adella is one of our own Klemme girls. She is a daughter of Mrs. Lena Schroeder of this city.

Next week Thursday evening, Mar 17 there will be a training school for scout leaders, held at Mason City each Thursday evening for ten consecutive weeks. The two courses offered are "Elements of Scoutmastership" and "Principles of Scoutmastership". This training school will be open to any person over 18 years of age and will be valuable to anyone working with boys such as teachers, Sunday school teachers, club leaders, scout leaders, etc.

STUDY FACTS ON FARM OUTLOOK

Planning farm production, after carful consideration of probable prices at time of sale and economizing in use of labor were measures suggested by E. L. Cady and Sam H. Thompson, extension specialists of Iowa State College at the Hancock Co. Agricultural Outlook conference whic was held in Garner February 25th. The meeting was one of fifty-two similar meetings which the Extension Service of the Iowa State College is conducting during February in cooperation with Co. agricultural agents and other local agencies. Walter Weiss, county agent called the meeting to order and the round table discussion followed.

Outlook Aids Planning

The purpose of the outlook according to the economists attending is to distribute to farmers the best available information from all sources on farm products and to adapt such information to Iowa conditions. Economic information will make it possible for farmers to adjust their business programs toward most favorable returns. Because farms differ and also because the skill and interest of farm operators also vary greatly, only the operator himself can be expected to work out the application to his own situation.

Legumes Vital

A larger proportion of farms in legumes is vital to profitable farming in Hancock county, in most of which the type of farming quite closely resembles the cash grain area of northwest Iowa. Legumes furnish roughage of great value and increase soil nitrogen available for other crops. On many farms development of legume acreages must be preceeded by liming. The northeastern portion of the county is in the dairy area.

Larger Returns From Labor

Domestic and foreign demand has grown progressively weaker for two years. No convincing evidence of early improvement can yet be seen. The sharp decline of the general price level of all commodities in the past two years and the unfavorable trading ratio now existing between farm prices and prices paid by farmers for commidities and services require that farm production expenses be cut as sharply as possible. In January of the present year farm products in Iowa were selling at the farm for 63% of the five year average 1910 to 1914. Prices paid for articles purchased by farmers were 121% of prewar. Farm Labor was 98% of prewar. The most recent figures available indicated that in June 1931 farm machinery and building material at retail were respectively 153 and 143% of pre-war

Larger Acre Yields Save Men Labor

Economizing on labor is very important for the Iowa farmer at this time because readjustments in wages always lag behind changes in prices of farm products. Legumes save labor by furnishing large yield of valuable roughage and because they enrich the soil and provide a basis for increasing per acre yields of other crops. Farmers not forced to grow cash crops now can prepare their soil for more favorable markets. Saving labor in crop production will also result from concentrating on the best land, using tested, disease-free seed of heavy yielding varieties, and practicing thorough tillage.

Efficient Animal Production

Increasing the returns per animal are likewise important in saving labor. In Hancock county this will mean culling low producing cows from dairy herds and keeping animals of good type where meat animals are used. Economy of labor also will be promoted by careful attention to the care of breeding animals, balancing of rations and rigorous sanitation to maintain health Cow testing associations are helpful in eliminating boarder cows.

Conserve Food

Besides economizing on labor in production the farm family can go far toward maintaining its standard of living by canning and conserving vegetables and farm cured meats.

Cooperative Marketing

Some readjustments to present conditions are possible only through group action. Cooperative marketing of major farm products when carried on by well formed and well managed associations, adds to farm income by more effective selection of time and place of sale than farmers can make individually. Other undertakings that rest on group action are land utilization reforms, including discontinuing reclamation projects, reorganization of taxation, tariffs and disposal of other complicated international questions.

Long-Time Outlook

Agricultural prices are likely to improve in relation to non-agricultural products as demand conditions get better. Neither domestic nor foreign demand conditions seem likely to be as favorable to farmers in the ten years ahead as they have in the last decade.

Immigration is almost at the vanishing point and the birth rate is slowing down appreciably. Hence, home demand will be expanding less rapidly. A circular giving further details on the Iowa outlook may be secured from Iowa State College, Ames, Iowa.

Dairy

For the fourth successive year dairy cow numbers have increased. Reduction in young stock indicates a slowing up of this increase. Total dairy production in 1931 ran slightly ahead of the previous year, milk showing the increase and other products remaining stable. Butter storage at the beginning of the year is only half of the five year average.

Fewer eggs are anticipated in 1932 and market supplies of poultry will probably be less during the first half than a year ago.

Livestock Relatively Profitable

The aggregate volume of farm production in 1931 was only slightly above the average of recent years. Due to drought, feed grain crop production in 1931 was 7% less than the five year average, 1924 to 1929 and hay production was 18% below the average for the same five years. Total livestock numbers on January 1st were just equal to the average 1925 to 1929. Feed crop prices for the United States from harvest to January 1, 1932, were 65% of prewar, 1910 to 1914 while livestock and livestock product prices were 83% of pre-war.

Crops

A moderate increase in corn acreage is to be expected in 1932 and normal weather during the coming season would doubtless result in larger acre yields and a larger corn crop than was harvested in 1931. Demand for oats as horse feed continues to decline. A few farmers may very profitably substitute flax as a cash crop for oats. For feeding purposes during the present shortage of hay, soybeans or other hay crops may be useful.

Hogs

The hog situation is far from encouraging. Domestic demand is weak and foreign demand shows little sign of early improvemnet. Pigs saved in 1931 were 9% greater than the previous year in the United States and in the corn belt also. Pigs saved last fall increased 20% in the United States over the previous year and 26% per cent in Iowa. Hogs on farms on January 1st were 9.4% greater than a year ago.

For the year ending September 30 1931, the total live weight of hogs slaughtered decreased 3% but the average cost to packers was 25% less than in the previous year. A 1932 spring farrow 2% greater than pigs saved a year earlier seems quite possible. Favorable factors are reduced supplies in the corn belt and 15% less sows in farrow in Germany for 1932 production. Improved business conditions developing this year might place hogs in a fairly favorable condtion by 1933.

—This is too good to keep. A friend of mine, who lives at some distance, feels that something really should be done about some things. The following is part of his letter: "And of the sorry appearing specimens who go about with gloomy faces drawn as if in grief, like professional mourners, I can but say that they must certainly draw some measure of joy from driving the world to tears. We have them always with us We shall ever see them in the barber shop, or about the cracker barrel, moaning until the heavens glup and weep, telling the assembled throng how hard times have smote them especially, how the President and the Congress are rotten to the core, how the town is being misgoverned and its funds diverted from proper sources, all because our Aunt Gussie don't raise ducks.

"Wherein comes the joy, Oh, El Kaye? In this, that they reap huge satisfaction from the rapt attention (aaparently) of their audience—good people who pause to hear their secret woes expressed by an expert, and feel comforted because they know of companions in misery—and the assenting nod, the word of sympathy, the ample commiseration of the other professional moaners—these, and the joy and comfort they feel in self-pity!

"Believe me every man and every woman knoweth some joy. My father found it best on Easter morn, when mother allowed him to gorge himself with soft boiled eggs and buckwheat cakes and again on Crhistmas morn when we half dozen youngsters whooped with delight at the treasures left by Santa Claus. A minister I knew fairly revelled in his delight over an eulogy at Uncle Ezra's funeral, which made Aunt Gussie very angry, since she never felt that her sister had married the right man when she got spliced with Uncle Ezra. Our neighbor across the forty fairly bloats with joy when he turns around on the plow and sees how straight is the furrow he has just turned, for all that he carries a halo of soulful agony. And I don't like to name the man who seemed particularly happy while drowning a cricket in tobacco juice."

—PO—

—In some instances.. it is too.. bad that our present degree of civilization might not allow us to do some things. The people in the good (?) old days had a rather intriguing way of punishing lawbreakers. They would fasten the miscreant's arms and legs seperately to the trace chains of four horses. At a given command the horses were started in four different direction at once. I shall make no charge for my services should anyone want me to direct operations of the above nature when the kidnappers of the Lindbergh youngster are found.

"How many children have you, Rastus?"

"Six. My wife had twins three times and we named them Kate and Duplicate, Max and Climax, Pete and Repeat."

"Perfect Road," So Far, Beyond Reach of Man

When you happen to be driving over a stretch of modern road and you find it is a little "bumpy," do not blame the contractor for doing a poor piece of work, because it may not be his fault. In fact, the really perfect road has not been invented and the highway engineers are looking for just this article at the present moment. You are more likely to strike the right lead if you place the responsibility upon nature, for she is beating us, despite all we have learned about building highways.

Not one of the many types of roads we have built is an absolute success. All have their drawbacks. The asphalt road has a bad habit of walking—and walking backward. Our heavy traffic—greater than any previous civilization has had to cope with—acting upon a sun-baked road, causes, first of all, waves in the road. Friction of wheels then causes these ripples to move backward, so that a road may "walk" several inches in a year.

Wood block roads are susceptible to weather conditions. The rain works between the blocks and undermines them. Perhaps the best type of road is the concrete, reinforced with steel mesh. Yet there is a drawback here. Heavy rain may cause flooding and washouts.

Credits Lower Animals With Power of Thought

Of all the questions asked of the animal-man, the one which is oftenest repeated is this: "Do animals really think?" The answer, according to Sherman Horne, famous son of a father famous in the animal business, is an emphatic "yes."

Wild animals do not merely imitate or act by instinct, he insists. "They have brains, and they use them," he writes in the American Magazine. "The chimpanzee is the greatest thinker of all, closely seconded by the other man-apes—the orang-utan and the gibbon. In third place I would put the elephant.

"But keep in mind that I am speaking only of wild animals. A good dog is pretty hard to beat.

"Apes possess a surprising ability to learn the meaning of words. The elephant's mind is also very keen; he can be trained to do almost any kind of work within reason, and he will think for himself, too."

Older Than Rome

Este, in Italy, a city older than Rome and claimed by historians to have been founded after the taking of Troy, is a victim of an odd proclivity. Tourists seem to pass it by without any pangs of regret, not realizing what a wealth of noble memories it treasures within its walls. Yet few ruins are more reminiscent of ancient times than the fragmentary structures of the old castle, built in the Fourteenth century by Ubertino of Carrara and the basilica of Santa Tecla, whose origin is lost in the mists of antiquity, which stands close by. It was here that Byron took a villa in 1817 and the following year loaned it to his friend Shelley, where the latter wrote, with vast flights of imagination, some of his best known masterpieces.

Myth About Horns of Deer

Deer and elk shed their horns once a year. This occurs soon after the breeding season. The horns begin as single points on the young deer during the second season and generally increase in size and number of points with each renewal. But the increase in size and number of points is not strictly progressive. So it is not possible, as popularly supposed, to tell the age of a deer or elk by the number of points on its antlers. The growth of the antlers is dependent upon a number of circumstances, such as physical condition of the animal and its virility. There is a tendency for the horns to become smaller with fewer points as the deer grows old.

Ancient Coinage Excelled

Some Corinthian coins, 2,300 years old, have recently been put through a test alongside of some modern mint productions and in the opinion of the investigators the old pieces were far superior to these of the present day. The analytical study was made in the department of chemistry of Princeton university. Corinthian bronze was, for the use for which it was intended, much better, since it was extraordinarily hard and, in this respect, distinctly superior to the present United States bronze coinage, although the latter is made with special reference to this quality and in accordance with the most modern metallurgical knowledge. The report reveals that coins of the city of Sicyon were made by mass production methods. As in modern mints, the metal was hammered out into sheets and the design later stamped with a die.

Only One Bank

Modern check signers who sometimes revamp checks of one bank to make them payable at another can envy the American colonists, who had no need to worry about drawing the right check on the right bank. There was but one bank in the land at that time, the Bank of North America, located in Philadelphia. Checks of the Revolutionary war era accordingly did not mention any bank, merely starting out, "Cashier of the bank; please pay to the order of," etc., as there was no other place to go for payment.

How Schliemann Found His Perfect Helpmeet

Schliemann (the excavator of Troy) went to Greece, a middle-aged man, believing in the simplicity of his heart that he would find the manners of Acadia. He was to begin married life over again after an unfortunate experience in Russia. What more fitting than a Greek wife? It is hardly credible, but he asked his old Greek tutor to find him one. It is not incredible that the tutor found one for the wealthy foreigner among his own relations!

Before they were betrothed he gave her a viva-voce examination, including the reciting of passages from Homer by heart. She passed! The marriage was nearly broken off when the millionaire asked her why she was ready to be his wife. She replied: "Because my relations have told me that you are a rich man." And he had come to Greece sure of finding simplicity of heart.

Yet the marriage took place. And it succeeded. Mme. Schliemann survived to see her husband's reputation established beyond the reach of ridicule. She made a perfect helpmeet to the grown-up boy. His instinct had been right in matrimony against all the probabilities, as it was in archeology against all the antiquarians.—London Saturday Review.

Few Corpulent Bad Men in Life or Literature

Doctors say that the man of middle age and beyond who is underweight has a better chance to live out the year than the man who has too much poundage. Doctors look askance at the individual of large girth and excess weight. His days are likely to be fewer in number than are those of the skinny man with a natural site for a belt.

A medical officer at a Japanese prison has been studying the physical aspects of his charges and he gives his approval to fat men. They are not lawbreakers or if they are they avoid the expected results of a lawless life. They do not go to prison.

Wilkie Collins apparently did not know that fat men are not criminals for he made the villain of his "Woman in White" a fat scoundrel. He is the only fat villain in literature so far as the records go. On the theory that there are exceptions to all rules this fat villain can be accepted in spite of the Japanese medico who asserts that the pinguidinous lawbreaker is rare.—Miami (Fla.) Herald.

Metallurgic Changes

Since the discovery of radium by Professor and Mme. Curie in 1898, the enormous importance of this and other metals which behave in a similar way has been more and more strongly realized. Radium, thorium, uranium, and one or two other metals, have extraordinary properties. They are never at rest, but are always flinging off parts of themselves and changing as they do so into something else. In the course of millions of years radium, by far the rarest and the most valuable of metals, turns into lead, one of the commonest and cheapest.

Osmium Heaviest Element

The element osmium is the heaviest substance known. Its specific gravity, compared with water, is 22.5. Irridium, with a specific gravity of 22.42, comes second; platinum, 21.37, third, and gold, 19.33, fourth. Specific gravity is relative density, that is, the ratio of the weight of any volume of a substance used as a unit or standard. Air is generally used as the standard for gases, and water for solids and liquids. When we say that the specific gravity of osmium is 22.5 we mean that osmium bulk for bulk is 22.5 times heavier than water.—Pathfinder Magazine.

Religious Unbelief

Infidel is a term given to disbelievers in religion by those who do believe, rather than by themselves. An infidel is one who does not believe in religion, or, often, in the particular religion of those about him. An atheist is one who denies the existence of a God; while an agnostic is one who professes ignorance as to whether or not there may be a God, a future existence, etc., and who often holds that man cannot possibly prove the matter either way. The inventor of the term agnostic was Thomas Huxley.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Divisional Line

The Continental divide of North America consists of a continuous line extending north and south from the Arctic seas to the boundary between Panama and Colombia. In the United States it follows, as a rule, but not always, the most elevated portions of the Rocky mountains. Water falling east of this line flows into the Pacific. The term "Great Divide" is a popular one, but rather indefinite in meaning, and applies to a vast region in Montana, Idaho, Wyoming and Colorado traversed by the Continental divide.

Moncton Tidal Bore

The famous tidal bore, near Moncton, N. B., is the inward rush of waters up the Petitcodiac river of New Brunswick from the bay of Fundy, which has one of the highest tides in the world. The waters enter the estuary of the Petitcodiac in the form of a bore, or tidal wave, from four to six feet high. The difference between extreme high and extreme low tide at Moncton is 30 feet.

Car Drivers Make Plea for Saint's Protection

The holy Saint Francisca is the patroness of motorists. She was, in the Middle ages, a charitable woman who mitigated many misfortunes. On the Roman forum stands her little church, appearing almost fragile, yet most beautiful, amid the mighty arches and ruins of ancient Rome. Upon her feast day, in March, there come every year hundreds and still more hundreds of automobiles to the square before this little church.

All sorts of cars are there, belonging not only to the wealthy, but to the poor as well. Ambassadors and other government officials are represented. Instead of chauffeurs sitting at the wheel in solemn state, these functionaries and many lovely young ladies, too, drive their own cars to the consecrated spot, where at the altar of Saint Francisca their vehicles may be protected against disaster and misfortune for another year.

Successive services are held in which the guardianship of the saint is invoked, and all the cars driven to the precincts of her altar are blessed and dedicated to her, that she may intercede for their owners and drivers, and guard them from peril and accident during the year to come, and very appropriately at the season of the year when motor traveling is most prevalent. Certainly these ceremonies have a deep and solemn significance, occurring as they do in the very center of what was anciently a pagan Rome!—Berliner Tageblatt.

Life's Prime, the Years Between Youth and Age

At what age is the average man or woman in his or her prime of life? is often asked, and what is the average length of life?

The prime of life, says the Cleveland Plain Dealer, is the period of full vigor and power, that which succeeds youth and precedes age.

The average length of life in the United States, according to estimates made by the United States public health service, is fifty-six years. Statistics indicating the expectation of life place Australia at the head of the list with an average length of sixty-one years. New Zealand comes second, with an average expectation of sixty years. The average expectation of life at birth in various countries, according to the United States bureau of the census, is as follows: Denmark, Norway and Sweden, fifty-seven years; England, fifty-three years; Holland, fifty-two; Switzerland, fifty-one; France, fifty; Germany, forty-six; Japan, forty-four and India, twenty-three. Statistics also show that females have a greater expectation of life at birth than males.

England's Earthquake Year

About one hundred and seventy years ago England experienced the first of a series of severe earthquakes, which created great alarm. The first shock was very distinct, the second still more severe, and a crazy soldier scared many folk almost out of their wits by predicting that the third, which he timed for April 6, would totally destroy London. On April 5, tens of thousands of all ranks quitted the metropolis, and many who remained were afraid to go to bed, but spent the night in the streets. The prophecy proved false, of course, but further shocks were felt in various parts of the country in the spring and summer of that year, and some held the prophet justified—with some error of date and locality—by the awful earthquake which shortly after destroyed Lisbon.

Should Appeal to Tourists

The Baltic republics of Lithuania, Latvia, Esthonia and Finland, formed from territories of the old Russian empire as a result of the World war, offer the tourist a region of great interest and beauty for exploration. Scenes of natural splendor abound along the winding coastlines and amid the dense northern forests of all these countries and about the vast and innumerable lakes of Finland. What is not generally known is that each of these peoples boasts of long centuries of independent civilizations and that in many of the cities relics of unspoiled and charming medieval beauty remain.

Coffee Production

The regions best adapted to the production of coffee are those between the parallels 15 degrees north and 15 degrees south latitude and from 1,000 to 4,000 feet above sea level. It is cultivated from latitude 25 degrees north to 30 degrees south in places where the temperature does not fall below 55 degrees Fahrenheit. Moist and somewhat shady slopes are found most desirable. Little streams of water are conducted to the roots of trees which are kept very wet until the fruit is nearly ripe, then the water is turned off to keep the fruit from becoming too succulent.

Area Taken From Mexico

The treaty of Guadalupe Hidalgo, February 2, 1848, conveyed to the United States the territory which has since become the states of California, Nevada and Utah, part of Colorado, and the largest parts of New Mexico and Arizona. Previous to that time, this territory belonged to Mexico. Five years later, the United States purchased from Mexico about 45,000 square miles of southern Arizona for $10,000,000. Since this treaty, Mexico has remained approximately the same size as it is at present.

AMERICAN WATERFOWL
(The Mallard)

Of all the river ducks the mallard is the most important This species is abundant over most of the Northern Hemisphere and from time immemorial has furnished mankind with appetizing food. It is the chief waterfowl of most game preserves, in some of which 10,000 birds or more are reared annually. During the winter and spring, the drake wears a head-dress of glossy green with purple lights; his back is grayish brown, while his wings of the same color, are banded with greenish-purple and white. The under feathers are a lighter brown-gray. During the summer his dress is a dusky brown, much the same as that of his mate.

They feed chiefly on mollusks, and tender grasses. They usually get in shallow water by 'tipping up', that is reaching the bottom without going entirely under water. They also visit meadows and edges of grain and corn fields for food. They lay from six to ten eggs.

MUST HOLD HATCHING EGGS
But Don't Hold Them More Than 10 Days; Keep Temperature Right

Although holding of eggs prior to incubation is a necessary evil to insure numbers large enough to set at one time, it is recommended that the eggs not be held more than ten days.

Eggs held for incubation should be kept between 50 and 60 degrees F. If the temperature exceeds this point the eggs will start development which will greatly reduce their hatchability later when they are incubated.

In commenting in incubator temperatures, Mr. N. F. Waters, member of Iowa State College poultry husbandry faculty stated that various manufacturers of incubators recommend different temperatures for their machines. For best results he recommends scrupulous following of rules sent out with each machine

$8 HOGS DESERVE NO CREAM
But Many Are Getting It Due to Faulty Separators

Pigs appreciate cream, but feeding $3 hogs this tasteful beverage is poor economy. This is happening, however, on many Iowa farms on which the cream separator has been neglected for some time, declares E. F. Goss, dairy industry professor at Iowa State College.

Cream separators should not leave more than .02 of 1 percent butterfat in the skimmilk. All creameries are willing to cooperate in checking up on the old seperator by testing a sample of the skimmilk.

As losses of mlk fat by cream going into the skimmilk happen more often in the winter season, it is especially important to check up on the separator at this season of the year.

COTTON AND CACTUS
By El Kaye

It is noteworthy, but not astonishing to learn that some people think it a mental attitude that causes us to think it is cool these days. Will some experimenter please remove a few leaves from the calendar and concentrate? If you discover that such an act eases the strain on the coal bin, please tell us. Such information would be too good to keep.

—El Kaye—

Harlan Miller is noted for his face-tweaking; Phil Osifer for omitting (?) uninteresting items while I expostulate out of turn. It is painful to have such a tender conscience.

—El Kaye—

It is easier to criticize a good column than it is to write one.

—El Kaye—

Judging from the name, we (if we visit the new dance hall at the Lake) are expected to wear grass skirts and rings in our noses.

—El Kaye—

By the way, I am convinced that the Lindbergh kidnappers are enemies of birth control. What a clever way of arousing Americans into realizing it is really youngsters like that famous child that they want.

—El Kaye—

Evidently there is dirt in the wind. Shall we wait to see where it settles?

—El Kaye—

There is a royal road to the knowledge of properly interpreting people's ideas. Don't be detoured—for I assure you that I am not attempting to give the old world a black eye. I have always thought he was a pretty good guy.

—El Kaye—

Incidently I don't give good fellows black eyes unless they are benefited thereby.

—El Kaye—

I wonder who will be the first one to have his yard raked this spring.

—El Kaye—

Some folks are so conscientious about attempting to appear prosperous that they buy liquor not because they like nor because the gang consists of super sports but merely because they hate to see the poor bootlegger (bosomlegger) go broke.

—El Kaye—

I think a reward should be given to the man making a good job of his "own" business.

—El Kaye—

How incongruous! One would think if the said friend meant this advice for me, he would not have sent it to a competitor Then, too, if Phil should see my countenance just now, he'd be thoroughly convinced that I am not gloomy. Whence comest the conviction?

THREE ARRESTED IN RAIDS AT GARNER

Sheriff Hanson, State and Federal Agents Seize Liquor

Three men were arrested at Garner Saturday afternoon in raids staged simultaneously by three federal agents and two state agents headed by Sheriff E. P. Hanson. They were arraigned before Justice R. B. Reed and will appear before the grand jury. Those arrested were W. C. Zeismer, proprietor of Bill's place, a barber shop, where two pints of alcohol were found; Herman Daniels, former city marshall who lives above the Garner Meat Market on whom 3½ pints of liquor were found, and Clarence J. Renig in whose place one gallon and one pint of alcohol were found. Because other matters are to be considered at the opening of the grand jury, these cases will not be heard until Thursday or Friday.

EARLY GRASSHOPPERS ARE HARMLESS

Those Reported From Iowa Towns Not Kinds Causing Crop Damage

Reports from Burlington, Eldora, Iowa Falls and other places in the state to the effect that "millions of young grasshoppers are hatching," have come to the office of Dr. C. J. Drake, state entomologist at Iowa State College.

These grasshoppers, without exception, are not the kinds causing crop damage. Instead, they are harm less little fellows that feed only on lichens, algae and decayed organic matter close to streams and swamps Their common name is "grouse locust."

These 'hoppers hatch in the fall, spend the winter in the adult stage and the summer season sees them in the egg stage, says Dr. G. C. Decker, assistant state entomologist.

Only the injurious species spend the winter in the egg stage. His observations assure him that none of the injurious 'hoppers have hatched as yet

Although most persons do not realize it. there are at least 100 different species of grosshoppers in Iowa. For this reason the finding of the harmless grouse locust at these various points in the state has caused considerable concern."

LOVE PIRATES STOLE LARGE CROWD FOR FIRST SHOW

The high school operetta, "Love Pirates of Hawaii" under the direction of Miss Dallenbaugh, was given before a packed house Tuesday eve. The operetta was well played thruout and several parts were outstanding.

The lead parts were carried by Eva Stokesbary, Irene Harms, Byrnes Missman and Paul Hughes, and the story was built arount the characters represented by these four students. Thelma Kluckhohn, Marie Stille. Emma Goil. Gracka Quandt and Clarence Kluckhohn came in for special parts. A generous chorus of both boys and girls supported the main characters. The several solos, duets and group numbers were well carried out and the whole show was above the average high school attraction.

Miss Dallenbaugh, who directed the cast, and Miss Wilson, who played the accompaniments both deserve special credit for the sucess of the play.

GOLD FALLS INTO SEA

Six barrels containing $320,000 in gold fell into the sea at Cherbourg when a hoisting chain of the steam crane broke while dock workers were transferring a $24,000,000 shipment of gold from a tender that had taken it from the Berengaria. Divers recovered all but five bars, worth about $24,000 and it was expected that these would be located by dredging the harbor floor.

HORSES!

The following was given us by a farmer friend and eulogizes the ever good and reliable horse:

"O horse ,you are a wonderful thing, no buttons to push, no horns to honk, you start yourself, no clutch to slip, no spark to miss, no gears to strip. no license buying every year, with plates to screw on front and rear, no gas bills climbing up each day, stealing joy of life away, no speed cops chugging at your rear, yelling summons in your ear. Your inner tubes are all O. K. and thank the Lord they stay that way, your spark plugs never miss and fuss, your motor never makes us cuss. Your frame is good for many a mile, your body never changes style, your wants are few and easy met, you've something on the auto yet.

REMOVE LARD IN EVEN LAYERS

Digging It From Center of Jar May Cause It to Become Rancid

Housewives who expect to the con tent of the lard jar to retain its original sweetness and not become rancid are doomed to disappointment if they have acquired the habit of digging the lard out of the center of the jar.

Remove the lard in a uniform layer from the top of the jar, thus preventing rancidity from setting in along the sides of the jar.

If the lard is already rancid it may be renovated by melting it and adding slices of raw potatoes. This treatment seems to absorb some of the rancid odor and makes the product more palatable. If the lard is too rancid, however, it will probably be useless for food purposes and should be used for making soap.

AN APPEAL TO THE PEOPLE OF HANCOCK COUNTY

Dear Friends and Fellow Citizens:

A nation wide group of patriotic citizens has recently been created with the primary objective of enticing idle money from its hoarding and restoring it to circulation. It is estimated by President Hoover that there is one billion, three hundred million dollars not in circulation in the United States. More recent estimates are that this was too conservative. It is estimated by those who have made a careful study that every dollar taken out of circulation is equivalent to the withdrawal of three and one half to four times that amount in every community, when we stop to consider the many hands a dollar may pass thru in one a single day and the many debts that dollar may pay in one day when kept in circulation.

To encourage that circulation should be the earnest, patriotic desire of all good citizens. It is the duty of every citizen to render Service in peace times as in war. The war with depression is on and Can be solved by the people of this country. You, Mr. Citizen, are not doing your full duty if you are withholding your money from circulation.

The United States government is issuing "Reconstruction Bonds" which are obligations of the government, the same as its' bullion and currency, which bond draws interest at two per cent, the principal of said bonds being payable on sixty days notice. If the bonds are not good then neither is your money for the bonds are equivalent to interest bearing money and are better than money because they bear interest. These bonds can be purchased at any bank in the county or from Frank W. Senneff county chair man.

NO ONE is urged to purchase the bonds with money that is now in circulation or on deposit in any bank. EVERYONE who has money that is not in circulation or on deposit in some bank is URGED to make their dollars work, whether it be in the purchase of these bonds or some other method.

Every loyal citizen should now resolve to get that dollar working in some form or other and put it in circulation. It will increase buying power, trade, employment, confidence in the country and an abundance of self-respect.

Don't forget these bonds or other forms of safe and suitable investment can be procured thru your local bank or the undersigned chairman.

If your money is already in a bank or some other form of investment tell your neighbor and encourage him to do likewise. If it is not. then see to it that it is put to work Immediately and ask him to do likewise.

Your investment in your community, state or government will not only bring material returns but that satisfied feeling of a loyal and patriotic citizen that you have "done your bit" in the war on depression. With concerted action and heroic efforts upon the part of the citizenry, beneficial results will be obtained. Responsibility cannot be placed upon the government entirely. The Government is only the people. The people can help the government by dispelling fear and courageously meeting the attack. With this responsibility facing us let no one stand back. The world will share in the victory.

FRANK W. SENNEFF. Co. Chairman for Hancock County of Citizens Reconstruction Organization.

MORE ON SHORT GRAIN SALES

So long as the unrestricted selling on the Chicago Board of Trade, or any other grain exchange, is permitted there cannot be any stability in the price of grain and other farm products. This fact might as well be understood and fought out.

The handling of the 1929 corn crop will illustrate this point. In 1929 we produced in the United States 2,600,000,000 of corn. Of this vast crop only 250,000,000 bushels left the farm. Of this amount 10,000,000 bushels were exported.

Therefore, only 240,000,000 bu. of corn reached the organized grain trade or the mills, factories, distillers and other users of corn for manufacturing purposes. In order to understand what follows these figures must be kept in mind—only 240,000,000 bushels went into trade.

But what happened on the Chicago Board of Trade. Their own statistics show that they traded on that exchange in 4,537,000,000 bushels of corn out of the 1929 crop. In other words the speculators on the Chicago Board of Trade alone actually gambled with that 240.000,000 bu. of corn until it was bought and sold eighteen different times.

What chance has the farmer under such a marketing system. It is the unwritten law of speculators to sell corn short in the fall. The speculator knows that the new crop will be partly ready for the market by December and he prepares for that crop by selling short an unlimited amount of corn which he does not own and never expects to own.

Here is how it works out . Supposing that in September, corn in Chicago is a dollar a bushel for the September option The speculator knows a new crop is coming in December. He starts selling short "paper corn" with the result that the price is depressed usually away below the cost of production. After the short seller has forced the price down where he has a profit satisfactory to himself he begins queitly to buy in his short interests, making a profit for himself on a commodity he has never seen nor ever expects to see.

The same frightful system is used in wheat and all other grains.

So long as short selling is permitted, we repeat, there can be no stability in the price of farm products. Bear raids on corn or wheat affect pork, beef, poultry, butter, hay and everything else the farmers produce. —Agricultural Advisory Council.

Liberty

The birthday church night social at the Liberty church last Friday evening was well attended in spite of bad roads and every one had a delightful time. There were several munbers on the program which called forth loud applause. One that deserves special attention is a song which was composed for the occasion by Mrs. Will Ax and sung by the author and Mrs. H. Spitler. The song is printed below.

Depression

Depression. depression is all that we hear,
We'll not get discouraged, we're full of good cheer.
We'll wear our old bonnets, we'll wear our old shoes,
We'll keep right on smiling and not get the blues.

When spring comes around, we'll sing a new song.
We'll just do our best as we go along.
We'll eat scrambled eggs and sausage so brown,
And, Mr. Depression, you can't keep us down.

We'll be fair, we'll be honest in all of our deals.
We'll always manage to have three square meals,
We'll recount our blessing every day
So, Mr. Depression, we're here to stay.

We'll plant water melons, we'll have a big patch.
We'll raise leghorn chickens, we'll have a big hatch.
We'll be so busy that time will just fly,
And, Mr. Depression. we'll bid you goodbye.

We'd go on a diet so we would get thin,
But we don't take a liking to folks who are slim.
Now we'll bid you goodbye, until next year,
When we have our next birthday we'll try to be here.

What's Afoot Now?

Gandhi sandals for women are decreed for next summer. Let's hope the fad goes no further or we might have to sleep with out sheets.

THE PROOF OF THE PUDDING IS IN THE EATING

Here is something for famers to remember. The farm tariff act, better known as the Hawley-Smoot bill became effective June 1930, Totals of beef cattle imported into this country for the year June 30, 1930 was 410,000. The Hawley-Smoot bill raised the tariff from 1* to 2*c a pound with the result that imports of beef catle in the following twelve months dropped to only 78,000 head. For the same period in 1930, we imported 550.000 pounds of pork products, mostly from Canada and during 1931 on 59,000 pounds. We increased the tariff on pork from ½c per pound to 2c per pound In 1930 we imported 2,851,000 lbs. of butter and in 1931, 1,329,000 lbs the rate being increased from 12c per pound to 14c per pound. In 1930 we imported 294,832,000 pounds of cattle hides; in 1931 91,107,000 lbs Cattle hides were formerly on the free list we put on a 10% ad valorem tariff in 1930. And so on for about 75 other products of the farm including cream. milk, eggs, cotton and so forth.

This is the first real break agriculture has ever had on the tariff. It proves convincingly and forcibly that the Hawley-Smoot bill is now effective and will be even more helpful in protecting agriculture as conditions become normal.

And, Boy, That's Hot!

A colored preaches i nSouth Georgia recently, in trying to describe the infernal place to his congregation, clinched his argument with, "Brudders, it am so hot down dere dat hot melted lead tastes just like ice cream!"

"See here," said the theater attendant, "just what do you want? The show's over."

"More than you realize. I told my wife I was coming here tonight."

Those Marked Downs

Two store keepers were chatting about prices in general. "I've marked down all my goods," said the first "to a third or even a quarter of the original prices." "That's nothing." retorted the second, "my prices are so low that when burglars broke into my store last night they went away with out taking anything. It was cheaper to come back and buy the stuff!"

"I judge by your brogue that your people came from Germany."

"That's where you're wrong."

"Then how do you explain it?"

"When I came over from Germany I left my people there."

Dancing Advocated as Remedy for Human Ills

Not infrequently the alleged "quack" of one generation finds justification in the next, and the recommendation of dancing as a cure for mental and physical ills by so cautious a scientist as Sir Arthur Keith may rehabilitate the memory of Donald McAlpin, who a century ago set up as a healer by dancing a strathspey, writes a columnist in the Manchester (Eng.) Guardian. A shepherd and a famous dancer, Donald was reputed to have cured his mistress of a mysterious malady by dancing a reel with her, and this story being noised abroad his cottage was besieged by crowds of sick folk who hoped to rid their ailments by persuading him to dance with them.

Donald, whether he believed in his own power or not, was shrewd enough to take advantage of such a stroke of luck. He engaged an ancient piper as assistant, and between them the pair evolved a course of dancing treatment for almost every ill to which the flesh is heir, establishing an extensive practice from which, for a time, they derived a considerable income. The doctors, of course, denounced him as a charlatan, but it seems just possible that he hit on a real remedy for certain troubles.

Ruins of "Great Wall" in the Peruvian Andes

Like China, Peru once had a great wall—the "great wall of Peru." This wall was revealed in photographs of remote sections of the Peruvian Andes taken by the Shippee-Johnson aerial expedition. They reported the great wall as being near Huancayo along the ridge of the Andes east of Lima, Peru. As usual there is a good deal of skepticism regarding the authenticity of the find. But Philip A. Means, archeologist and author of "Ancient Civilization of the Andes," says these ruins are probably those of a long boundary wall built by the ancient Chancas in their fruitless effort against the powerful Incas. He thinks it possibly dates back to the Eleventh century. Mr. Means points out that similar walls have been found in other sections of the Peruvian Andes although they have not been so large as that reported by the Shippee-Johnson bunch.—Pathfinder Magazine.

Beautiful Brioni Isles

Little as we may know in America of Yukoslavia, we should always associate with that little known land, the lovely Brioni isles. They have broken into the newspapers recently because of the death there of Karl Kuppelwieser, whose family made these islands the paradise of the Adriatic, which was sought out by royalty and by the modern notables from George Bernard Shaw to Eugene Tunney. They were malaria-infested islands when Kuppelwieser bought them 25 years ago, but today they are noted for their freedom from mosquitoes. The late Archduke Ferdinand wanted to buy them, but they were not for sale. Ask any tourist who loves the Adriatic and he will say, go to the isles of Brioni.

Ancient Egyptian Headdress

The Horus headdress for Egyptian women came into use in the Ptolemaic times. Originally, in the earlier history of Egypt, it was customary for a king to have his statue modeled with a hawk back of him showing the protection of the god Horus. Later, Isis, the wife of the god Osiris, was sometimes shown with wings of a hawk, a sacred bird of Egypt. A large figure of the goddess would have the wings like long arms protecting a small mortal standing in front of her. As time passed this was abbreviated into a headdress worn by women of the royal family.

Cuban "Santa Claus"

The Day of the Three Kings, January 6, is the great boys' and girls' day in Cuba. That is when the presents come. It is the Three Kings bearing gifts they picture in their minds for days ahead.

The toys may not be fine. They may be only little carts made from pieces of packing box board, or doll chairs, cradles, etc. These are oddly painted.

Children come first in the Cuban family. Cuban parents will even make personal sacrifices in order that the children may have gifts and playthings.

His Comment

They were spending a holiday in Morocco.

"Think, Ernest," she said. "Supposing brigands should come now and take me from you?"

"Impossible, my dear," her husband assured her.

"But if they did come and carry me away, what would you say?" she insisted.

"I should say the brigands were new to the game—that's all," he replied.

Columbus

Though there has been much recent questioning as to his ancestry and birthplace, most biographers agree that he was born at Genoa, Italy, about 1451 and was the son of a woolcomber and weaver, Domenico Colombo, whose family had lived in Italy for generations. He kept a journal or diary of his voyage, the original of which has disappeared, but an abridgment of it is to be found in his biographies.

Wobbly Pitcher Saved by Astute Band Leader

A band once won a world series baseball game, according to James J. Coughlin, of Boston, and Mr. Coughlin should know, for he was the band leader.

It was in the world series of 1915, between the Boston Red Sox and the Phillies. The home team took the first game in Philadelphia and the Boston band became worried because if the series ended in four games, the musicians would get no return trip to the Quaker city.

Foster of the Sox and Mayer of the Phillies had been pitching air-tight ball, with the score 2 to 1 in the sixth inning of the second contest. Mayer was working smoothly, but Foster was tired. He started to wobble and Philadelphia got two men on bases with none out. The pitcher needed a rest and he needed it badly.

He was taking his time and was just about to put the ball over when the umpire called time. The gates in the first-base bleachers opened and President Wilson and his party made a dramatic entrance. Coughlin signaled for "The Star-Spangled Banner." But what a rendition he directed.

The band took nine minutes to go through music that should not take more than two. It was a funeral dirge. When the piece had been played once the band started it a second time. Every one was at attention except Foster. He had his hat off but he was industriously relaxing. When the performance was over he went in and struck out two batters and made the other a pop fly. The funeral dirge was a life-saver for him.—Detroit News.

Hard to Get Farmer to See Beauty in Thistle

We scorn the thistle, but Scotland has made it its national flower, its honored emblem. The story goes, however, that the selection of this flower as Scotland's emblem was not due to admiration. Scottish soil was once, at least, pretty thoroughly covered with thistles. The Danes invaded the country. Danes are now one of the most civilized of nations, but then they went barefooted. They stole up on the Scottish camp by night, unperceived, but one of them stepped on genuine Scotch thistle, and let out a yell of pain. The Scots heard it, awoke, arose, drove away the Danes, and saved the country. So the Scots, out of gratitude, made the thistle their emblem. The thistle is a fine and decorative plant, and nearly every spear of it has a pretty flower and a fragrant one. Certainly the bumblebees love it. It has a long and prolific flowering season.

Speaking of emblems, the Nova Scotians have appropriated our mayflower, the trailing arbutus, for their emblem. Why, being New Scotland and also Canada, did they not choose the Canada thistle for the purpose? They would have been good and welcome to it.—Boston Transcript.

Lord Mayor's Banquets

Mr. T. Lewis Sayer's book, "Gog, Magog and I," on the city of London, touches on the famous eating and drinking of the city; quotes Mr. Bottomley Firth's gibe—"It could be written on the back of many a common councilman, 'Widened at the expense of the city corporation'"; and gives a long list of the banquets in the preparation of which he had a share. One story shows their perils other than that of over-eating. At a luncheon to a prince from Asia the company were actually taking their seats when a trophy of lobster and ice, set right before the royal guest, was hurriedly removed, as the result of a last minute discovery that to him the lobster, being the scavenger of the sea, was an unclean, forbidden food. — London Times.

Old May-Day Custom

In the Gentleman's Magazine for 1754 a custom is alluded to that only of late became obsolete, says "Brand's Observations on Popular Antiquities."

"They took places in the waggon, and quitted London early one May morning, and it being the custom in this month for the passengers to give the waggoner at every inn a ribbon to adorn his team, she soon discovered the origin of the proverb, 'as fine as a horse;' for, before they got to the end of their journey, the poor beasts were almost blinded by the tawdry party-coloured flowing honours of their heads."

World's Waterfalls

Some of the highest waterfalls in the world, and their respective heights are: Yosemite (three plunges), 2,000 feet; Oroco falls, of Monte Rosa, 2,400; Roraima falls, Guiana (two plunges), 2,000; Grand falls, of Labrador, 2,000; Sutherland falls, New Zealand (three plunges), 1,904; Kukenam fall, 1,500; Gavornle fall, Pyrenees, 1,400; Krimmler falls, Austria, 1,300; Staubbach, Switzerland, 1,000; Bridal Veil, California, 900; Nevada fall, California, 600; Niagara, 165.

Formed to Promote Trade

The international chamber of commerce was established in 1920 at a meeting of chief business interests of Belgium, France, Great Britain, Italy and the United States, and subsequently forty other nations joined. Its purpose was to promote the development of international trade, to remove or mitigate the effect of trade restrictions and to foster harmonious commercial relations among the nations.

Old English "Sport" of Fox Hunting Endangered

Would England still be England, without its hunting rallies? Is this sport of centuries, the merry chase of elusive foxes, fated to die out?

It is unlikely that there is any feature of English country life so typical of the customs and traditions of the nation, as fox hunting. This being so, a recent statement of the earl of Rosebery, on accepting the mastership of the Whadden chase, that this sport is in a very critical condition, came rather as a surprise. He declared that five neighboring packs are having difficulty in finding masters, and that sportsmen must rally around now, or see fox hunting go the way of hawking. His lordship ascribed the decline to hard times and high taxation.

This might be considered bad news, even for the foxes, for from accounts of this sport that I have read, it would seem that the prey gets as much fun out of eluding the huntsmen, as the latter do in the galloping pursuit. After some of these old wily masters of the craft have learned the business, their chances of becoming a mere brush are comfortably few. Why, there are even some of these old fellows who pay visits to the kennels, if the hunt is not up regularly, to see what is keeping their little playmates! At least that's the story told.—Border Cities Star.

How English Merchant of 1480 Sought Custom

One of the earliest posters ever printed in England is to be seen in the Bodleian library, and concerns a Sarum service book, printed in 1480 by Caxton. It reads as follows: "If it pleases any man spirituel or temporel to bye our pyes of two or three commemoracious of Salisburi Use, emprynted after the form of this prese't letre, whiche ben wel and truly correct, late hym come to Westmonester into the almonestrye at the reed pole, and he shall have them good and chepe." The manner of presentation is somewhat unenterprising. The goods advertised belonged to the Middle ages, which were fast dying. But a new force had been let loose, which in the course of the next century was to revolutionize not only the art of advertising, but the whole of European culture.

Famous English Potter

Josiah Wedgewood was born on July 12, 1730. He was the youngest son of a potter and came of a family of which members had been notable potters in Staffordshire, England. Soon after the death of his father in 1739 he became skilled in the art of shaping pottery on the wheel. In 1753 he became manager of a small pottery. In 1759 he began work on his own account in the Ivy house pottery at Burslem. Salt glaze and green and yellow glaze seem to have been his first staples. However, the fine white English earthenware was just reaching perfection and Wedgewood became one of its best known makers. He presented a service of his ware to Queen Charlotte in 1762 and was appointed potter to the queen and later to the king. He next turned his attention to artistic pottery and reproduced designs based on the later phases of Greek art.

Dog's Warning of Death

While there is a very common superstition that dogs by their wailing can prognosticate death, this cannot be given as a fact, any more than other superstitions. A writer in Chambers' Book of Days, mentioning that the howling of a dog at night under the windows of a sick room is looked upon as a warning of death's being near, adds: "Perhaps there may be some truth in this notion. Everybody knows the peculiar odor which frequently precedes death and it is possible that the acute nose of the dog may perceive this and that it may render him uneasy."

Old Dishes Still Popular

Peacock tongues and humming bird wings may have lost their place on the festive English menu, but medieval dishes still play their part in the true English observance of Lent. In hamlets throughout the shires eating fried peas is a time-honored tradition on Carling Sunday, the fifth in Lent.

Semnel cakes are eaten in Shropshire and Herefordshire on Midlent or Mothering Sunday, the fourth Sunday in Lent, and in Westmoreland ayvers or havers are the rule of that day. Pancakes are in order on Shrove Tuesday and on every successive Tuesday during the Lenten season.

What Is Success?

He has achieved success who has lived well, laughed often, and loved much; who has gained the respect of intelligent men and the love of little children; who has filled his niche and accomplished his task, whether by an improved poppy, a perfect poem, or a rescued soul; who has never lacked appreciation of earth's beauty or failed to express it; who has always looked for the best in others and given the best he had; whose life was an inspiration and whose memory a benediction.—Exchange.

Golf and Geography

The scholars of a Pacific coast school have built an ingenious miniature golf course which is at the same time an instructor of geography. The various links represent different parts of the country and their products, which is impressed upon the minds of the players as they make the rounds.

COTTON AND CACTUS
By El Kaye

Every column in any newspaper has some period of stress and strain. A good columnist regards such a period as just another set of circumstances, so I shall not let myse'f be licked.

—El Kaye—

Let me call attention to the fact that dust in the atmosphere causes one to sneeze. At this time one is closer to death than at any other time.

—El Kaye—

This white Easter will no doubt show up many of our yellow-livered acquaintances. A white background would make a brilliant yellow quite conspicuous.

—El Kaye—

I suggest someone originate a new style mustache that would give a broad appearance to narrow minded men.

—El Kaye—

It's high time we civilized people faced our problems with equanimity. So if you find my feathers still unruffled after being brushed the wrong direction, it will be because I have succeeded in doing what I have always striven for.*

—El Kaye—

I took one reproachful look at the petition to lower the teachers' wages. (just enough of one to notice who of our taxpayers were foolish enough to add their signatures to such trash). I surely hope no person signed his marriage certificate with as little forethought.

—El Kaye—

I had quite the sensation of being intoxicated when I attempted to drive on the pavement and visually follow individual snow flakes as they passed through the air. I recommend such an experience since there are no after effects and no expense (provided you stay on the pavement).

—El Kaye—

What will fill the hill? I can see where neither sophistication nor sincerity suffice. A sophisticated person is so unfeeling while a sincere person is just somebody's fool. Where is the midline?

—El Kaye—

*'Tis true I'm no Methuselah but he isn't old enough (no reference to years) to realize what it is all about. I can tell just by the angle he wears his white cap.

—El Kaye—

Once more I'm in deep meditation trying to penetrate the riddle of life. Why is it that when a fellow is prevented from having what he desires, he insists upon preventing the possessor from keeping it....Myself, I think a childish whim deserves childish punishment. An old fashioned spanking should do the trick. You do the spanking.

—El Kaye—

What Klemme needs is a high school course in column appreciation and understanding. Seemingly, the problem is becoming very complex. Shall we first read Phil Osifer or El Kaye? Can an affectionate person tolerate being advised that love is not practical? Can a stoical person permit anyone to say that suicide by kissing is not exactly tomfoolery? After the course is offered, perhaps Phil and I might attend, in order to see the point from his adversary's point of view.

DEMOCRATS ELECT DELEGATES TO STATE CONVENTION

The Democratic County Convention was held at Garner, Saturday, March 19th, being called promptly at 11:00 a. m. by County chairman W. A. Lee, who read the call and asked for nominations of chairmen. C. O. Roe being chosen and upon taking the chair made a fine talk. M. S. Burgitt was chosen secretary.

The chairman selected J. J. Bonstetter, Wilbur Carr, A. W. Lee, Wm McDermott and J. W. Neisz as commitete on resolutions, who reported as follows.

WE denounce the administration that promised prosperity, farm and employment relief. We have as the fulfillment of these promises thousands of closed banks and millions of people out of work.

WE denounce President Hoover's lack of leadership and in leading us into the worst panic the country has ever known.

WE denounce the Hawley-Smoot tariff and the Farm Board as being the outstanding factors in bringing this nation to the verge of bankruptcy. The budget deficit is the largest of any nation in history, and they propose to raise same by a tax on the bread line.

WE denounce the State administration as being the most costly in the history of the State and all after the promise of curtailment of expenses.

WE denounce the salary grabbing and demand that this money be returned to the state, and that the state officers collect it or resign.

WE demand a 20% cut in the salary of all federal, state and county office holders.

WE demand a cutailment in all county affairs and more efficiency in road work.

WE demand that there be no more money spent for county road machinery.

The state and government belongs to the people, and just how long these same people will allow a bunch of office holders to live off their earnings which they have made by the sweat of their brow, only time can tell. There will be no change under the Republican administration. The only hope for the state and nation, regardless of your political affiliation, is to Clean Them Out, and Your vote will help do it!

The delegates chosen to the state convention at Davenport March 29 were A. W. Lee, Britt; Wilbur Carr, Garner; John Sheets, Hutchins; G. B. Owen, Garner; J. J. Bonstetter, Corwith.

Alternates were: M. S. Burgitt, Britt; Wm. McDermott, Britt; C. O. Roe, Garner; T. H. Thompson, Kanawha; Ben F. Greiman, Garner.

MILVERN BARZ TO REPRESENT LOCAL SCHOOL IN CO. CONTEST

County Spelling Contest To Be At Garner Saturday, Mar. 26

Milvern Barz, an eighth grade student has been selected to represent Klemme at the county spelling contest in Garner on March 26. Richard Hughes, seventh grade student was second in both contests.

Grades 5 and 6

The fifth grade have made some "old fashion" trains. Monday during part of their class period they judged them. For the boys Milton Paul was given first and La Rayne Stille second and for the girls Irene Suckow first and Ruth Heginger was second.

Ruth Blickenderfer and Glenn Lewis were absent from grade six Monday.

Thelma Gimer was a welcome caller in grades five and six Wednesday. It seemed quite fine to have her back with us again.

Winners in the spelling contest Monday and Tuesday were Doris Johnson, first; Velma Kaduce, second and Irene Suckow third for the fifth grade and Paul Schuldt, first Glenn Lewis, second and Ruth Blickenderfer, third in grade six.

Mrs. W. L. Thada, Mrs. R. A. Jorgenson, Mrs. Frank Ward, Mrs. J. E. Stille, Mrs. W Stille and Mrs. Paul Grange attended the spelling contest in grades five and six.

I IMAGINE THAT—
By Phil Osifer

—Some of our anti-Hoover depressionists might have less to say if they were held to answer whether or not they voted in the last presidential election.

—PO—

—There will be another election some time this fall. That will be your chance, boys. Watch for it!

—PO—

—Low prices don't mean a thing to the man who is flat broke.

—PO—

—We might be able to economize in other ways than by a curtailment of our school funds. I have often wondered at the absolute necessity of having a snow plow, operated at public cost, pass absolutely every farmer's driveway immediately after every snow storm.

—PO—

—It really is much easier to criticize a good column than to write one. All, right, go ahead and write one.

—PO—

—There is nothing I like better than to gaze upon the face of a person in a happy mood. That the countenance of my fair contemporary has not always been wreathed in smiles I have gathered from some of the things she has written. So have others. Incongruous is only an eight dollar word, anyhow.

—PO—

—"Bootlegger" is a word that has withstood the test of time. It is a word that every person understands and it brings to the minds eye of each a picture, clear and definite. What the vision may be I care not. But "bosomlegger" .....? I don't know. That word suggests scrambled anatomy.

—PO—

—After this big learn-fest at Ft. Dodge, school-ma'ams might possibly be known as "educated specialists."

An Essay on Frogs

A young school boy was instructed to write a paper describing a frog. Here is what the teacher read: "What a wonderful bird the frog are! When he stand, he sit, almost. When he hops he fly, almost. He ain't got no tail hardly either. When he set he set on what he ain't got, almost!"

ROAD NOTES BY COUNTY ENGINEER

COUNTY BUYS SUPPLIES FOR ENTIRE SEASON

Purchased Culvert Pipe, Gasoline, Motor Oil and Grease March 17

At a public letting held on March 17, 1932 bids were received on the County's estimated requirements of Culvret pipe, gasoline. motor oil and grease. There were received at this letting six bids on culvert pipe, 11 bids on gasoline, fourteen bids on oil, and seventeen bids on grease.

Contracts were awarded as follow:

Wilson Concrete Co. of Red Oak Iowa, 250 feet of 15" concrete pipe for $97.50.

Iowa Culvert and Pipe Co. of Mason City, 9600 feet of corrugated pipe in sizes from 15" to 48" for $5680.

Britt Oil Co. 3250 gallons of motor oil for $1135.63.

Pritchard Auto Co. of Britt, 5400 lbs of grease for $558.

The seasons supply of gasoline was awarded as follows: The Bock Oil Co. of Garner is to furnish gasolene for the east half of the county at 3 5-8 cents below service station price.

The Farmers Oil Co. o Britt is to furnish gasoline for the west half of the county at 3.6 cents below service station price.

The contracts were awarded in eaoh case to the lowest bidders on the grade of material we required. Lower bids were received on oil and grease but these bids were for furnishing a poorer grade of goods that would probably prove more expensive in the end.

By buying supplies for the entire season at one time the county saves considerable money. The price of oil in carload lots is approximately one half of the price in small quantities. Dealers will make a better price for delivery of gasoline in tank wagon loads than they could make in 50 gallon lots. Our dynamite is purchased by the ton and our bridge lumber in car loads at wholesale prices. In all these purchases we try to get the best goods available with the least expenditure of the tax payers money.

HANCOCK COUNTY TAXES SLASHED OVER $57,000

The most drastic township tax reduction in the state was reported by our own co. $4,137.57. Net reductions for Hancock Co. was given as $57,165.08

A young woman who had recently taken charge of a kindergarten entered a trolley car the other day and as she took her seat, smiled pleasantly at a gentleman sitting opposite. He raised his hat but it was evident that he did not know her.

Realizing her error she said in tones audible thruout the car:

"Oh please excuse me! I mistook you for the father of two of my children!"

She left the car at the next corner.

My Clodhopper Husband

By ALICE C. MEYER-WING

ANNIE MAY BROWN was our village beauty, and as if that were not enough, she married the best "catch" of the county, Frank Fenton, the junior partner of the law firm of Fenton & Fenton.

Not only did she marry this handsome young attorney, but she went away on a long honeymoon trip. Surely the gods were kind to this first bride of our crowd, and as we watched the train out of sight, and saw the last flutter of Annie May's handkerchief.

To me, this was especially an anxious thought. I was half in love with a young farm hand, Simon Akers. This was the day of the term "clodhopper," used in ridicule of the now honored calling of agriculture, and a hired "hand" was especially despised.

The jeering of my friends was often trying. "If you had a beau like that, Amelia," one of them said as the train disappeared— "but wouldn't your clodhopper loom up in patent leathers?"

It was a cruel comparison. I was shamed. Life was cheating me. But I married Simon. We went west to grow up with the country and, incidentally grew prosperous. The aunt, who had given me a home when I was an orphan babe, had died, and with her went the last link connecting me with the home people, but the newspapers had begun to tell the world about the political rise of Frank Fenton. And, again, there came over me the old feeling of having been cheated.

Later there were stories of Fenton's connection with bribery charges and political scandals so pabbid that it was front page news all over the country

In the midst of it, my husband suggested that we take the trip we had so often planned. "We can afford it, honey," he said, "and we've waited long enough. We'll go to Washington and New York—all the places we've dreamed about. On our way back we'll stop at the little home town. Some of our old friends are still there, and I love the little place, honey. It gave me my wife. Remember how I used to walk three miles to see you, after I had plowed all day? We would sit, without a word; then when it was so dark you couldn't see my cowhide shoes, I would reach over and take your hand and remark that it was a fine evening. Remember?"

I remembered.

One of the places we had always wished to visit, was the one large city of our home state. We had a delightful week of shopping and sightseeing there, and boarded the train for our continued trip in a happy mood.

Other passengers were coming in. One was a pale, well-dressed little woman whom the porter conducted to a section a little in front of us, on the opposite side of the car. I found myself studying her. Her profile reminded me of some one I had known.

The unguarded tones of two young girls back of us, reached me: "They think she's on her way to the capital to see her scamp of a husband. A reporter in the depot told me she came in on the midnight train. She isn't well, and people say she is grieving herself ill."

Somehow I knew they were talking about the woman with the puzzling profile.

"He hasn't been home for months," continued the indignant young speaker, "and it is rumored that there is another woman."

We had traveled an hour, probably, when I heard her gasp. The girls sprang up. "It's Mrs. Fenton!" one of them said.

"Mrs. Fenton!" I exclaimed rising. Could it be—yes, it was—Annie May, the first bride of my old home crowd.

She knew me instantly and smiled through her pain. "My heart," she said faintly. "I must go back to the city and telegraph my husband."

I looked at Simon. He understood. "We needn't hurry, honey," he said. "We'll go back with her if you wish."

At midnight, her husband, the "Honorable" and very elegant, Frank Fenton arrived. I was sitting beside my stricken friend. The doctor was there. Simon was near.

"Frank," she cried, as her husband appeared. "Come home, dearest. We need you, the children and I." She struggled up and put out her hands.

I felt we should leave the room, but the doctor motioned us to stay.

Her husband stood at the foot of the bed, aloof and cold, stripped of his glamour, his real self revealed.

Again I made a comparison of the two men—Frank Fenton and Simon Akers—and it was my last. The scales had fallen from my eyes and I knew at that moment that the cheated woman lay suffering before me.

"So you thought to follow me," Fenton sneered. "Well, the sooner you know that I shall never return to you, the better. Divorce proceedings are in the hands of my lawyers and the woman I shall marry next time—"

There was a slight shudder, a moan, from the figure on the bed. The physician looked up, calmly "You will not need a divorce," he said.

Simon led me gently to our own room. I put my arms around his neck and touched, reverently, his plain, weather-stained face with my lips. "Thank God," I said brokenly and fervently. "Thank God for my clodhopper husband."

ELECTRIC IRONS

NEED NO DEMONSTRATION

WHEN electric irons were first introduced it was necesasry to spend much time and effort demonstrating that they were practical and economical. Today, electric irons need no demonstration—nearly 95% of the homes enjoying electric service use them. As various other electric appliances were introduced, electric companies again gave their services in acquainting the public with the advantages of their use. The present widespread use of electricity in the home is largely due to educational work carried on in the past. We are today pioneering the equipment that will be in common use tomorrow. The proven appliances which your electric company originally introduced—and still sells—are also available at all electric dealers.

COTTON AND CACTUS
By El Kaye

Spring is the breath of modern life. I hope that what I thought to be merely hot air is really steam with a push back of it—At least during our present economic conditions.

—El Kaye—

I'm glad to be informed that my column is not perfect. Were it, I, as a columnist would be in a class all by myself.

—El Kaye—

If you desire excitement or wish to do something quite novel, try jailbreaking—either in or out.

After due consideration, I'm inclined to believe that perhaps it would benefit the home town if a few would break in and stay there.

—El Kaye—

The street is the true path of the spirit. Whatever one does there (for instance, haunting the other side of a lamp post) illustrates his true character.

—El Kaye—

One of the first things that strikes an outsider when he visits Klemme is the neatness and trimness of the residences. Such a compliment should inspire us further.

The reason that some people are such super-salesmen is that they can't see the buyer's point of view.

—El Kaye—

Wandering through a horde of ideas, one especially loomed up over me—the idea that words in the hands of the verbally weak may side in with the weak—as usual. But a column in the hands of the verbally strong is almost a menace to we fledgeling columnists.

—El Kaye—

I attempted to pass the idea by inferring naturally that it was only a theory.

—El Kaye—

Of course it was a stupendous shock to me but an inevitable one. The good people are never successful.

—El Kaye—

They say failure is a use to further success. Christ's success was based on failure and success. His apparent success in healing. His apparent failure on the Cross. And his complete victory in the Resurrection.

Evidently my competitor is a mind reader as he seems to know exactly what attitude others take toward this column.

MILWAUKEE PAYS LARGE SUM IN TAXES

This year Hancock County will receive $17,204.13 in taxes from the Milwaukee railroad. Figures from other railroads have not been received by the Times as we go to press. The M. & St. L., and the Rock Island railroads are both large tax payers in this county.

The Times just wonders how much the freight and express trucks are paying into the coffers of the

THE TAX DOLLAR IN THE TOWN OF KLEMME

Due to the recent agitation in regard to the tax question in the town of Klemme, the Editor of the Klemme Times has asked for a statement for comparison of taxes this year and in former years. I will endeavor to do this by taking the figures from my books for the past nine years and the amounts as shown will be an average for that period.

In the General Fund the annual expense is about $1800.00, $900 of which is raised by taxation, the balance being derived from poll tax, business license, fines, etc. All general claims are paid out of this fund salaries of town officials, upkeep of streets, printing, supplies and items that have no special fund. Some of the larger items charged to this fund are: addition to the town hall and reshingling it with approved fire resisting materials. fire siren, tractor, fire truck, grader and items of smaller size but perhaps of equal importance. The this fund will perhaps remain the same as it is the important, town fund and all the other funds are dependent upon it should there be a deficit in any of them.

In the Water Fund the average yearly expense has been $900 for operation, but the total expense has been considerably higher as new equipment had been added which cost over $4500. Taxes were called upon to pay $450 of the expense each year, the emergency fund of $1,000 was placed to this fund to finance the new well, as well as the revenues from water rents. The equipment as now installed and in operation can be operated on less than $400 per annum, baring unforeseen difficulties, which should leave a balance of perhaps $350 as profits per year. This balance will probably be used as a sinking fund for future improvements in the water system, or for emergencies should they arise. This needed equipment should have been installed years ago, but due to the fact that councils since 1922, receiving a heritage from 1920 & '21, that they choose a cheaper one in repairing the old, but which did not prove to be the most economical one. No levy is contemplated in this fund this year, and no indebtedness is charged against it for the next generation to pay.

The Light Fund expense has been approximately $500 per annum with a levy of a like amount to meet it. This is only a matter of light, if you want it you pay for it, if not you have to do without. The council feels that they pay too much for the current but have been unable to reduce the price, and as the business places and residences are entitled to this consideration, a levy must again be made to meet the requirements.

The real source of high taxes has been the Bond Account Funds but as they are inanimate objects, more pleasure was derived by placing the blame on each body of men that have served on the council since the issuance of these bonds. These bonds were issued legally, voters who voted for them knew that they would have to be paid, and those of us who came here and bought properties knew that taxes existed so who is to blame? I don't don't think that anyone is, but as each existing Council has been the goat. let me explain this matter and then you can draw your own conclusions. In 1920 water bonds of the town of Klemme for $6,000 reached their maturity and no provision was made to meet them. Hence new bonds, called funding bonds for $6,000 were issued in ther stead wth maturity dates beginning with 1926 and ending with 1932. These have been taken care of at their maturity and the balance of them will be paid with the taxes now in the process of collection. In 1921 Sewer bonds totaling $49,000, together with several warrants of sufficients size, which were unpaid for lack of funds, were issued for our sewer system. $32,500 of these were a direct tax on the properties and $16,500 was left for general taxation. All of these bonds have been taken care of on their maturity dates together with over $15,000 as interest charges. $5,000 of these bonds still remains to be paid as some do not mature until 1940 and this amount represents the sole bonded indebtedness of the town.

In summarizing my statements, I find that the town has paid in the last ten years over $65,000 for bonds and interest and took in from all taxation about $85,000 in the same period of time.. This leaves only about $2,000 a year for all expenses within the town for all funds exclusive of bonds, for salaries streets. light, park, waterworks, supplies, etc. Last year it was requested by the state that the town reduce its budget by 5% on levies exclusive of bonds. A reduction of over 11% percent was made. This year our total levies should not exceed $2500.00, $800 of this to be used for bonds and interest, over $2,000 lower than last year and of about the same amount that in 1923 was expended in bonds alone. I leave it to your own better judgment to decide whether or not taxes in the Town of Klemme in 1933 will be low enough, and during the mean time should you feel a petition coming on, get it out of your system on paper and mail it to the bond account. There it will receive the proper treatment it deserves.

CHARLES E. HYDE MET WITH FATAL ACCIDENT SATURDAY

Charles Edward Hyde met with a fatal accident Saturday. He had gone toward the field with his shot gun looking for a rabbit or game for his Easter Sunday dinner. After walking thru the mud of the field for several rods, he attempted to cross a wire fence. He stepped over the fence with one foot and as he was raising the other foot, he slipped and fell and in some manner the gun was discharged. Death came almost instantly, the charge having gone into his head.

His wife, who was looking thru the window at the time, saw him fall and hurried to his assistance, but he was beyond help.

The deceased was born in Cerro Gordo county and spent nearly all of his life in this community. He had attained the age of 39 years and 8 months.

He leaves to mourn his passing, his wife, formerly Lena Anderson of Forest City; two sons, ages 13 and 3 and one daughter, age 9; his parent, Mr. and Mrs. Amos Hyde of Ventura, also two brothers and 3 sisters.

During the last few years the deceased and his family lived on a farm 7 miles northeast of Klemme. He was a good farmer, methodical in his work, his fields are free from weeds, his fences kept up, his machinery and equipment well housed and cared for, everything both in the house and farm yards carries an air of thrift. His neighbors said of him that he was honest, hard working and sober.

Funeral services were held Monday at the U. B. Church of Ventura. The house was filled with his neighbors and friends and the floral offerings were profuse. Rev. J. Wesley Peterson was in charge and spoke on the text, "There is but a step between me and death".

Music was urnished by a quartette E S. D. Kahrs, Mrs. L. A. Muth, Miss Schmidt and Laurence Bliss accompanied by Mrs. Peterson at the piano. The sang "Going Down The Valley" "In The Garden" and "I Am Resting".

Interment was made in the Ventura cemetery. The following Woodmen acted as pall bearers, Walter Skene, Albert Goodling, Irve Henry Joe Brouwer, Wm. Lau and Walter Skene.

The funeral was conducted by Arthur Wellemeyer.

COST TEACHER $16 TO SIGN HER NAME

Smooth-talking salesmen and solicitors who visit schoolhouses, trying to sell their merchandise to the teachers are prohibited by law but it is a difficult law to enforce and they frequently get away with some crafty swindles. As witness an incident in Clarke county, related by J. M. Grimes of Osceola. A magazine salesman entered a school room and persuaded the teacher to subsribe for several magazines and presented an order for her to sign which she did evidently with out reading it very carefully. A little later the fellow presented a slip of paper at a grocery story in Afton, Union county, where it was accepted as a bonafide check. The teacher did not carry an account in the bank on which it was written and an Afton constable appeared at the school to collect from her. He presented the paper which was undeniably a legal check and she was forced to dig up not only the $8.00 called for on the check but about an equal amount in expenses, making in all $16 that the visit of the crooked salesman cost her. In other words, beware of agents.

Fred White, chief engineer of the state highway commission at Ames takes a cut of $1,000 from a $10.000 annual salary and will be "content to get along on $9,000." Since last August the highway commission has laid off 6668 employees, until the spring work opens. Other salaries above $1,000 have felt the axe.

LATEST POLICE CARS TOUR STATE

A fleet of six radio-equipped police touring cars has been visiting various towns all over the state recently, demonstrating the equipment to local police officers and testing the radios. A central broadcasting station has been installed in Des Moines for police use only and it is planned that county and city officers in every part of the state be equipped with the "cruisers" so that police bulletins and information may be received even while the car is going full speed. The six cars making the test had six different kinds of radios, the object being to decide which showed the best results and also to discover "dead spots" where the signals from Des Moines did not come in. The cruisers were the very last word in police cars, with bullet proof glass, special steel hoods over all parts which might be injured by bullets and special gun and amunition racks.

The cantata, under the direction of Mrs. Whyte, displayed real talent in group, quartet, duet and other numbers.

Many would like to hear the singers in another concert and it is possible the cantata will be given again

LAST SNOW OF THE SEASON?

Several inches of snow fell last Wednesday night. It was one of the heaviest snow falls of the winter and raised hob with dirt and gravel roads which were just beginning to again dry out. Some of the first spring birds arrived with the snow and were a sorry looking lot.

At this writing the snow has about disappeared and the air looks real springlike.

MAY MAKE OWN SEED TESTER

Wooden Tray, Sand, Muslin Cloth Are All That Are Needed

A simple method of obtaining an accurate germination test on seed corn requires only a wooden tray about 2 feet square and 2 inches deep and some clean sifted sand.

Before putting in the sand a galvanized iron bottom should be fitted into the tray. Saturate the sand with water and cover it with a muslin cloth. Lay kernels on the cloth with the germs up. Cover the tray with a pane of glass and keep it at a temperature of 70 or 80 degrees F.

If the sand is kept saturated the test can be read within 6 or 8 days after it is started. If the corn shows not more than 1 or 2 percent dead kernels, it may be treated with mercury dust and planted with expectations of a good stand.

MR. ROBIN REDBREAST

In the morning, bright and early, the fairies went to the lawn that the robins had chosen for the breakfast party they were going to give.

They had invited the fairies to be their guests.

"T-r-i-l-l," shouted the robins with glee as they saw the fairies arriving for the party.

"Good morning," sang out the silvery voices of the fairies.

"Well," said Mr. Robin Redbreast, "breakfast is ready."

"What!" exclaimed the fairies in surprise. "How very quick you are."

The robins were delighted to receive such praise from the fairies, and they made little bows and sang some more.

"Now," said Mr. Robin Redbreast, "our dining-room table is to be this lawn.

"Quite big enough, eh?"

"Indeed it is," laughed the fairies. The lawn was very big and long and wide.

"We always believe in having fruit for our breakfast parties," said Mr. Robin Redbreast.

"Here are some delicious berries," he continued, "that we got yesterday in the woods.

"They looked so very delicious that we decided when we saw them that we would have a party.

"It was then that we sent you our invitations."

All the robins hopped about on the lawn, and the fairies stepped in between, and all picked up the delicious wood berries scattered all over the lawn.

"There are some people," continued Mr. Robin Redbreast, "who like to have cream for breakfast.

"For my part I don't see much sense in cream. Pretty stupid stuff to drink or eat, I think!

"But we have something better than cream. And we drink it all by itself.

"We don't pour it over anything."

"Oh, what?" asked the fairies. "Is it a surprise?"

"Well," continued Mr. Robin Redbreast, "not exactly a surprise, for you've had it before at our breakfast parties, but we think it's particularly fine."

"Oh, dew-drop water!" shouted the fairies.

"You're right," said Mr. Robin Redbreast.

"Look about you on the grass, and on the flowers, everywhere you will find it," the other robins chirped.

"We're sorry," said Mr. Robin Redbreast, "that you don't care for worms.

"We'll have a few but we won't offer you any."

The fairies laughed. So they ate the fruit and had delicious drinks of dew-drop water and then they all had a concert.

What a lovely, lovely, party it was!

GENUINE PLANK STEAK IS HERE AT LAST

From Berlin comes the startling and somewhat uncomfortable news that a Dr. Fredirich Berguis, a noted chemist, has announced the discovery of a way to make meat out of wood. Science and chemistry are are wonderful things and scientists and chemists have made marvelous strides in their studies, but some way or other this news has a disturbing effect on us. We're not sure that we're going to like wooden weiners!

Still, the idea has posibilities; it might work into something. We have the wood for it. Take the well known ham tree for instance; that McIntyre and Heath featured for so many years. All they would need would be a chop off that and a couple eggs. Weiners naturally would be dog wood. Round steak would merely be a slice off a log. We think however that the greatest possibilities lie in planked steak. Something big to some out of that. It used to be that you had to cook a steak and a plank both to get plank steak, then throw the plank away and eat the steak. If Dr. Berguis' idea works out we'll soon be eating both the steak and the plank!

Logging and lumbering will come into its own again and there will be work for everybody. Cattle will disappear and ranchers will take to raising trees. Cowboys will change their chaps for calked boots, ropes for axes and all head for the woods The American Forestry association will devote its pamphlets to receipes showing how to extract a nice juicy rump roast from an oak log or a leg of mutton from a pine limb. Carpenters will become butchers and meat packers will become eligible to "Hoo Hoo".

If they really get so that they can make meat out of trees, there is no limit to what else they can do. Synthetic meals will be but a step further. No longer need the worried housewife go into hysterics when her husband drags old friends home for supper unexpectedly. All she will have to do is hack another hunk from a log or break up an old packing crate and toss it into the pot. What a life saver it would be in times or depression like the present. A hungry man would walk down the street chewing contentedly on pieces of wood fences and it would be no trick at all to build up a tasty sandwich out of an old cigar box.

One of the most important features of the new discovery, to our way of thinking is the logger, the hungriest human on earth can work and eat right along! He can cut his own plank steak for the heavy meals and lunch right along on chips during the day. His wife may have a vegetable dinner cooked for him that night but if he suddenly decides he wants meat for supper, all he has to do is call his son:

"Willy, run out to the woodpile an' bring in another log. I feel like a T-bone steak tonight."—From Deschutes Pine Echoes.

NEW CAVE EXPLORED AT THE OTTO MIELKE FARM

East of Monona about three miles on the Otto H. Mielke farm is a cave that is interesting to a number of folk in that community, notes the Monona Leader.

Last week two of the men employed by the Balmer Construction Co., at work on the Monona and Marquette road, with Gerald Mielke, 14 year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Mielke, went on an exploring expedition into the cave. The entrance was made through a sink hole. A lantern was lighted and lowered into the cave to see if it was safe to go down. The light burned steadily so they used a heavy roap from a hayfork to let the boys down Three men were operating the rope that let Gerald and Homer Alfred and Alfred Thompson down 150 feet when they struck a solid rock floor. The cave was about 10x8 feet square by 10 feet high.

From this room were crevices going in different directions and a small stream of clear water was running through the cave. The most surprising thing they found was icicles of a hard substance hanging from the roof of the cave. Some of them were at least two feet long. These stone icicles are known as stalacite and are found in caves in northeastern Iowa. They are formed by water percolating through the ground with calcium carbonate and lime. As it drips it forms an icicle. They are yellow, white and brown resembling marble and not so heavy.

SEED OATS' QUALITY VARIES

Tests Show Range of 1 to 43% Of Kernels Dead

Laboratory tests on seed oats at Iowa State College this year indicate that there is considerable variation in the quality of oats being sown.

Variations in dead kernels range from 1 to 43 per cent. Considerable smut and foot rot are also present indicating that farmers will be wise to treat their seed with either Ceresan dust of Corona oat dust. Although formaldhyde will do the work. it is not recommended as it often hinders germination.

Ceresan, applied at the rate of 3 ounces per bushel, will control smut and insure a better stand.

WHY IS MONDAY AMERICA'S WEEKLY WASHING DAY?

It's the fault of our Pilgrim forefathers that Monday, the most unsuitable day of all the week, is the traditional "wash day" in the American home.

The Pilgrims landed on Sunday and the next day they washed. Since that time Monday has remained the habitual wash day. European house wives have no such tradition to uphold and wash whenever household circumstances warrant it.

Disorder of the house, interference with personal activities and poorly planned meals are some of the things which make the family and the housewife dislike the thot of Monday.

After the Sunday interlude when general work is suspended, family members often have work which requires their immediate attention. If Sunday has been a day of rest, recreation and sociability, the house will be in more or less disorder and the food supply depleted.

Washing on some other day permits advance planning and preparation of appetizing food which will make the family welcome the washday dinner. It will also give time for mending work-clothes discarded on Saturday night.

FEED BABY CHICKS AT ONCE

Have "Meal" Ready In Brooder When Chicks Are Put In It

To assure a baby chick of a successful career, start feeding him the minute he is taken from the incubator and continue the treatment [illegible] well to have feed ready for the chicks when they are placed in the brooder from the incubator. Otherwise the hungry chicks will start picking at the litter in the brooder.

[illegible] all-mash starting ration recommended by Dr. Henderson as a result of experiments at the poultry [illegible] Iowa State College is: 50 lbs. yellow corn; 15 lbs. bran; 15lbs middlings; 15 lbs. dried skimmilk [illegible] buttermilk; 3 lbs. bone mean; 1 lb. [illegible] salt and 1 lb. cod-liver oil. [illegible] the chicks are 8 weeks old Dr. Henderson suggests the addition of cracked grains to the ration At this time both the grain and mash may be hopper fed. He warns that liquid skimmilk should not be fed in this ration unless a proportionate amount of dry milk is omitted from the mash.

$1500.00 CUT IN SCHOOL EXPENSES

NEARLY $5000 IN TUITION FROM OUTSIDE SCHOOL DISTRICTS

School Activities Prove To Be Self-Supporting

Last week we published a statement showing where the money goes that is levied for town taxes. This week we will show you in the following article where the school taxes go and give you some facts about our public school.

First we find that school activities such as Athletics, Declamatory contests, Operettas, etc., are more than self-supporting and pay for many things that would otherwise fall on the taxpayers. Some of the items paid out of these funds, besides their regular equipmeut, are as follows: Physical training equipment, which is a required subject, transportation, judges, printing of programs, entry fees for glee club, magazines for reference work, music and all awards to pupils. These funds are in the hands of the superintendent and not the teachers and he makes a itemized statement to the school board.

Next we find that the electricity used during the school year 1930-31 amounted to $192.52 which included cooking for the Domestic Science Class. This is less than a number of business places pay in Klemme According to the tax list there are approximately 240 property taxpayers in the Klemme Independent School District; on this basis the electricity cost each taxpayer only 80c On the basis of property valuation it would be a little more or less accord ing to how much property you owned.

The tuition received from outside school districts for pupils attending our school has been increasing each year as follows:

1928-29	$3264.00
1929-30	$4032.00
1930-31	$4306.00

It is estimated that the tuition for 1931-32 will amount to approximately $4860.00, which is more than half of total salaries paid to our teachers. The standard of our school must be kept up in order to hold our tuition pupils.

The school district has also been paying interest and bonds each year for which levies had to be made. The last bond will come due next year which is for $3000.00 and if no unforeseen expenses occur about $1500 will be transferred from the General fund to the School House fund which leaves only $1500 to be levied to retire this $3000.00 bond The reason for this is that the boards cut the teachers salaries $917.50, the janitors salary $96 last year and saved nearly $100 by not hiring a declamatory coach this year and by cutting other expenses they have saved about $1500 for the taxpayers which can be applied on this bond. Besides a 5% reduction had to be made on the total levies last year according to a state law, which amounted to about $500 in our district and the same reduction will have to be made this year. One nearby school is boasting of a reduction of $1700 with a payroll almost three times larger than Klemme's.

As far as teachers salaries are concerned several are paid the bare minimum where most of the schools are just reducing the salaries to the minimum this year. Here are the facts regarding teacher's salaries in Klemme as compared with the average in the state.

FIT HORSE COLLARS PROPERLY

Many Collars Are Either Too Short Or Too Wide, Caine Says

The farmer who gets the most work out of his horses usually watches the collars and shoulders carefully and keeps them in good condition, says A. B. Caine, a member of the Animal Husbandry Department at Iowa State College.

Collars should be cleaned every day. The dirt and hair scraped off with a knife.

Many persons have an incorrect idea of what constitutes a good fit for a collar. When the horses are standing, the collar should be 2½ to 3 inches longer than the depth of the horse's neck. For light work a collar that will allow the hand to pass between the collar and neck may be long enough, but if horses are required to pull heavy loads collars of this length are too short.

The width of the collar is just as important as the length. A wide collar is often responsible for galling shoulders because it slips from side to side. Just enough room is needed to push the fingers between the neck and collar. A few minutes spent adjusting collar and hames may save considerable trouble later on.

One of the best preventatives of sort shoulders is to wash the shoulders and neck once or twice daily with a salt water solution. The brine cleans the shoulders and makes the skin tough.

Air slaked lime dusted on the shoulders at night also aids in preventing soreness. Care should be used to see that all the lime is brushed out before the collar is put on in the morning.

Once the shoulders become toughened horses usually go through the summer with no more trouble. Neglect the first week or two often means that the horses will have to be worked lightly or left idle until their shoulders heal.

BABY BEEF CLUB MEMBERS TO MEET WITH CARL OLDSON

Number Of Hitching Dmonstrations Were Held Past Few Weeks

Carl Oldson of the Iowa Beef Producers Association will be in the county on Tuesday, April 12th to visit and meet with the Baby Beef Club members of Hancock County.

Due to the fact that many of the club members will be in school, Carl will visit as many of the calves as possible during the day and on Tuesday evening, there will be a meeting of the Baby Beef Club members and their parents, if they so choose, at the Farm Bureau office in Garner at 7:30 o'clock. At this meeting Carl Oldson will discuss Feeding, Management and Care of Baby Beef Calves with the boys.

There is more interest than ever in the multiple hitch for driving horses. Two demonstrations have already been put on one in Concord and the other in Madison. At the Concord meeting, 20 farmers were present to see and drive the five horse team driven three in the lead and two in the rear. Only two lines are used while the rear pair is handled by the use of two lead chains and two buckropes or snaps.

At the Madison township meeting 55 farmers attended and showed a great interest in getting the equipment necessary so that they could use the hitch. The cost of lining up a five or six horse hitch will run from $3.00 to $6.00. At the Madison meeting a colt was driven as one of the rear pair, which is the ideal place to put green horses.

If you are interested in getting started with the multi-hitch, ask for a demonstration and I shall be very glad to help you make up buckropes which will only cost 50c to $1 a piece For each horse in the rear one buckstrap or rope and one lead chain or rope is all that is needed.

If you have not already treated your seed oats and barley, do so before seeding. Formaldehyde is cheapest for oats but do not use it if there is a lot of hulled oats which the case due to the dry thrashing season of last year.

Stripe or covered smut of barley cause an annual loss in yield of 6% It is not uncommon to find 25 to 30% of barley plant sin a field destroyed by stripe and loss as high as 15% due to covered smut have been observed. Loose smut of barley is generally prevalent on Velvet barley and to a lesser degree on the other varieties.

Before treating small grain for diseases it should be thoroughly fanned to remove weed seeds, smut balls and other diseased kernels. On oats and barley, Ceresan dust at the rate of 3 ounces per bushel will control smuts of oats and covered barley, barley stripe, seedling blight caused by the spot blotch organism and by the scab organism. Corano oats dust at the rate of 3 ounces per bushel will control the smuts of oats Use copper carbonate at the rate of 2 to 3 ounces per bushel on hulless oats and hulless barley. It will increase your yield to treat your seed.

P. T. A. PROGRAM NEXT WEEK TUESDAY

MOVING PICTURES OF 2 TOURS WILL BE SHOWN BY A. L. RULE

Orchestra And Glee Club Will Be On Program Also

The April Parent-Teacher meeting will without a doubt be the best and most interesting program of the year, according to the committee who are arranging the program.

Mr. A. L. Rule, of Mason City, who is a candidate for Senator of our district, the 43rd, will be there to show moving pictures of two of his recent tours—one of the Yellowstone and the other of his recent Alaska trip. We understand that the High School glee club may appear on the program also and give the numbers which won them fame also at the recent contest when they were awarded first place. Miss Dallenbaugh is the director of this winning organization.

The above program should draw a large crowd. A short business program will be carried out at which time an election of officers for next year wil be held. Ballots will be printed and the election will take but a few minutes time. After the meeting the following committee will be in charge of the rtfreshments Mrs. Fred Kluckhohn, chairman, assisted by Mrs. Grove, Mrs. C Wille, Mrs. E. J. Arnold, and Mrs. Shoafstall. Everyone is cordially invited to attend this meeting.

USE RANCID LARD FOR SOAP

Water Lye, Borax All Other Ingredients Needed

Lard which has become rancid still can be of some use to the household if it is made into soap, says Paul Goeser, instructor in meat cutting at Iowa State College.

He recommends the use of 7 pints of cold water to each 3 pounds of menlted lard. This will cause the fat to solidify on the surface leaving the impurities below. Then for every 7 pounds of fat add 1 pound of lye dissolved in 3 pints of water. The lye solution should be cooled to 80-85 degrees F., the fat to 110-115 degrees F. Then ½ pound of borax is added to soften the water.

The lye solution is then slowly added to the fat and the resulting mixture is stirred to a honey-like consistency. It then is poured into a wooden or porcelain dish and when almost hard is marked into squares. The soap should be allowed to ripen for one month before it is used.

The Times is in receipt of a letter from Mrs. Emma (Nels) Palmer of San Joaquin, California, in payment of her Times for another year. She enjoys the Times and says it is the best way to keep in touch with all her old Klemme friends. Recently she had been at Glendale to visit a neice, and incidently enjoyed visiting with Mrs. Mabel Smith Mathews She says they have windy days in California, just like they have in good old Iowa.

Mr. and Mrs. Marion Reed of Clinton have a fine baby girl at their home since March 15th. She has been named Patricia Elaine and weighed 7 lbs. and 11 oz. Mrs. Reed will be remembered as one of our high school teachers of previous years when her name was Miss Pauline Stoner.

Editorial Comment

REACTION TO ACTIVITIES OF SCHOOL IN ONE COMMUNITY

There had been so much tax reduction talk over at Schaller that the parent Teachers Association of the community decided to send out questionaires as to the extra-curricular activities of the school. The question was asked "Do you want to do away with dramatics, play work, bands, glee clubs, typewriting contests, football, basketball and so forth?" Only one parent in the district wanted to do away with anything and that one was football. People want these activities in the school. The injustice comes in trying to support our schools wholly by the taxation of property.— The Arrow, Rolfe, Iowa.

HENRY YELPS FOR HELP

Henry Field of seed house fame has been stung by the political bee and now yelps for help and seeks free publicity from the newspapers of the state. We wonder what's wrong with his broadcasting station? Henry certainly has plenty of gall asking the newspapers to help him promote his campaign. Yelp, Henry, yelp, but thanks for the compliment; you have at least admitted that newspaper publicity is superior to broadcasting.

THOSE COLUMNISTS

Phil and El Kaye are getting to the point where it will soon be necessary for the Times to conduct a "referee column" to chalk up the points made in their weekly battle. So far the battle seems to be a draw, with no knock-outs scored.

APRIL SHOWERS

April is running along on the traditional schedule of "April showers bring May flowers." Cloudy weather with light spring rains has made a rtal spring-like atmosphere with grass turning green, birds singing and trees budding. The change is a welcome one as March was wild and woolly and gave us some real samples of a late winter.

Coconuts From Sea

The white man's first knowledge of the coconuts came from the sea. Early explorers, long before the discovery of America, reported finding coconuts in the ocean hundreds of miles from the nearest land. Later, on South Sea islands, they found the stately palms that dropped the coconuts into the water.

In many tropical countries the coconut palm is the "family cow" of the natives, furnishing healthful meat and drink.

Although spelled similarly, coconut and cocoa are entirely different. The coconut is the fruit of the coconut palm; cocoa beans come from the pods of the cacao, or chocolate tree.

Pint Was Once a "Paint"

It is only of comparatively recent times that a foot or a yard or a quart or some other measure has become standard. People of today think of them only in constant terms, yet it was not always thus. The "foot" of today was once that of the king's or some officer appointed by him. The "yard" comes from an old word meaning a rod or a stick. The "pound" meant originally a pendant. These may first have been carried around the king's girdle or that of his officer. The "gallon" was a large bowl. The "quart" means a fourth part of something, and the "pint" is really "paint" and is probably a reference to a painted mark made on the larger bowl or tankard.

Love Maxims

"All love that does not uplift, debases; It is a mistake to look for tenderness in love, seek tenderness in friendship; All women without love are the same age; A woman is eighteen when she is in love; A hundred when she loves no longer; When a man says: 'You are the companion of my life, my best friend'—look out for your rival; Love is a spring garden where the sun shines between two showers; The joys of love last no longer than roses." These maxims are from the pen of Lucie Paul Marguerite, daughted of the late Paul Marguerite, novelist.

Daddy's Evening Fairy Tale

By MARY GRAHAM BONNER
WESTERN NEWSPAPER UNION

THE DINNER PARTY

"What would the doctors do without me?" asked the Sun of the fairies.

A Chat With Mr. Sun.

"I'm sure we've no idea," said the Fairy Queen. The faries always so enjoyed a chat with Mr. Sun.

"You are certainly much better than all the nasty medicines. Yes, it's true, you make ever so many little sick boys and girls all well again."

"Indeed I do," said Mr. Sun, brightly. "I can't help being proud and thinking pretty well of myself when I hear the doctors say to the mothers and daddies:

"'See that the children play in the warm sun. It will do them good.'"

"Well," said one of the fairies, "that is true. But you were not around today.

"Where were you, Mr. Sun? People kept wondering. Why, just at noon this very day, when so many people were starting out with picnic boxes to the woods and with shopping bags to the city—for the longest while you disappeared and no one saw a sign of you.

"Everyone was afraid that you had had a fight with the King of Clouds and that he had won and that soon he and his army of raindrops would fall to the earth, and that it would pour.

"That is what they feared."

"Well, now, if that isn't funny," grinned Mr. Sun. "The idea of grumbling!

"Couldn't they have understood that I had a dinner party engagement for today?

"Yes, of course I had one—back of the clouds, too.

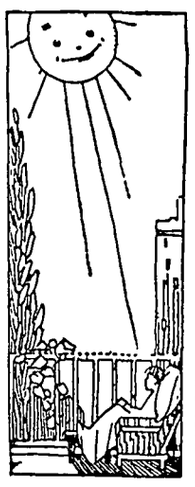
"You see, every time you hear the grownup people say:

"'The sun has gone behind a cloud,' then you may know that I am having a little dinner party—I always call it a dinner party, no matter what time it is.

"It saves time and trouble to call it by the one name. Very smart of me, eh?"

And Mr. Sun beamed.

"You know how I love it back of the clouds," he continued. "If I didn't have a party once in awhile, I wouldn't have any fun, for when I'm out shining over the people, I have to use all my strength to see that flowers grow and the boys and girls keep warm.



In the Warm Sun.

"Ah, but it's fun behind the clouds. We had such a good time today.

"I never tried to shine at all. I just sank back and dozed and rested.

"The King of the Clouds did the same. That's the best kind of a dinner party we can have.

"But when I disappear like that for a little while, you'll know where I am in the future, eh?"

All the fairies nodded.

"Well, I'll make up for it now," the Sun said, "and give them a good lot of myself."

And the sun shone ever and ever so hard for the rest of the day.

Correct, Willie

A school teacher instructing her class in composition said: "Now, children, don't try to imitate the things you have heard, but just be yourselves and write what is really in you."

As a result of this advice, one youngster turned in the following composition:

"I ain't goin' to attempt no flite of fancy; I'm just goin' to write what's in me, and I got a heart, a liver, two lungs, and some other things like that; then I got a stummick, an' it's got in it a pickle, a piece of pie, two sticks of peppermint candy and my dinner."

Dating a Letter

Mary Jane was very busy Easter morning writing letters to thank persons for their cards and gifts.

Mother was busy getting dinner when Mary Jane called, "Mother, should I put two Indianapolises on this letter?"

"No, why?" asked mother.

"Well, I found a letter yesterday that said, 'New York, New York,'" she argued.

Two Kinds of Sundays

Emma took her tiny cousin into an ice cream parlor for a dish of ice cream. Little Billy had never before visited one of these places. "Two strawberry Sundaes?" asked the waitress.

"If you please, ma'm," said Billy, "I'd like mine today."—Mrs. Herbert Vanderhoof.

Anatomical Names

In the body, one might find a bunch of grapes, a cuckoo bill, a small pan and a millstone, according to Lloyd Edwin Smith, writing in Hygeia Magazine. Many parts of the body were at first named by the old Romans and the Greeks for the commonplace objects that they seemed to resemble.

The bunch of grapes (or its name means that in Latin) is the red lobe of the palate, the uvula. It hangs down from the soft palate as a bunch of grapes would hang between two leaves. The coccyx (cuckoo bill in Latin) was named because the curvature of these four bones at the end of the vertebral column were thought to look like the bill of a cuckoo.

The patella is the movable bone in the knee. Patella in Latin means a small pan.

Opium in Commerce

Opium is the dried milky juice of the unripe capsules of a poppy which for this product has been cultivated through many centuries. Every species of poppy is capable of yielding it to a greater or less extent. Opium is procured by making incisions in the poppy head or capsule, taking care not to penetrate its cavity. The juice then exudes in drops, and after being allowed to remain for a day upon the edges of the incision it is scraped off—a brownish, jellylike material. As the soft opium accumulates it is molded into roundish lumps or irregular flattened cakes of various sizes and put aside to dry. When of proper consistency it is generally wrapped in leaves and sent to market.

Ancient Roman "Racket"

Crassus, reputed to have been the richest man of his time, amassed a great fortune by his ingenious operation of a private fire department in old Rome. When a fire would break out, he or one of his agents would rush to the owner and offer to buy the burning structure at a very low figure. The owner usually would sell for almost nothing to get some salvage. Thereupon, Crassus would call up his fire brigade and, in many cases, put out the blaze. In this way he became owner of a great many buildings. It is hinted by early writers that when business was dull his agents may have had a hand in starting an occasional conflagration.

Woman Suffrage in 1797

Why has it never been imagined that the right of election should be extended to women? Why! but because by the law of nations and perhaps also by the law of nature, that sex is dependent on ours; and because, therefore, their voice would be governed by the relation in which they stand in society. Therefore it is, sir, that with the exception of companies in which right of voting merely affects property, it has never been in the contemplation of the most absurd theorists to extend the elective franchise to the other sex.—Charles James Fox in Speech on Parliamentary Reform, 1797.

THE RUNAWAYS

By H. IRVING KING

(© by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)
(WNU Service)

EDITH JAFFREYS had two admirers who counted—William Lester and George Calton. As a rule, Lester was away ahead of Calton in the race, but just now a quarrel with William had brought George within measurable distance of the winning post.

The quarrel was about—well, several things; one thing leading to another, as they will when two positive characters get to arguing—smoking by women, bobbed hair, ships and shoes and sealing wax and cabbages and kings."

The first time Edith had refused George Calton, George felt that life had turned to dust and ashes. Each subsequent refusal left him less and less afflicted. Edith had become merely a habit with him, but she had so long been the object of his dreams that he thought she was so still and made love to her automatically.

The evening after Edith's great flare-up with William, George made his semi-annual proposal. This time it went, "Edith, when are you going to throw over Bill Lester and marry me?"

"Mr. Lester and I, with my consent, will never meet again," she answered "And, George, I will marry you at any time."

George was amazed at his own sensations. He knew that he ought to be deliriously joyful; but subconsciously he had a feeling of dismay.

The answer flashed across him suddenly Helen Marlowe! Yes, hang it! he was in love with Helen Marlowe and engaged to Edith Jaffreys, George groaned as deeply on this, the first night that Edith had accepted him, as he had on the first night she had rejected him.

Edith, after George had gone, at first fairly gloated over the hopeless agony that William Lester would suffer when he learned of her new engagement. Then she began to be sorry for him, and by the time she turned off the light and got into bed she was crying. Next morning she thought: "If William will only apologize for his outrageous conduct perhaps I might—but I'm engaged to George!" She was moody and irritable all day, revolving impossible schemes to extricate herself.

George had proposed and been accepted on Wednesday. Thursday he did not show up. Friday afternoon Edith packed her bag. She had a great aunt living out on Long Island. Meantime George had been going through the same mental processes as Edith. "I shall go crazy if I think of this much longer," thought he. "I can't face this girl! I'll disappear for awhile; that's what I'll do. Something may turn up in the meantime."

He packed his bag and bought a ticket for Champville, Long Island. It was a small town. He had never been there; but he had heard it had a good hotel which was open the year round. At this season the hotel would not be likely to have many guests and there was no chance of encountering anyone he knew.

Five people got off the train at Champville. Three of them hurried through the little station to waiting automobiles. Two stood on the platform and stared at each other in consternation. The two were George and Edith.

"Why George!"

"Why Edith!"

Silence for a minute and then: "Were you going somewhere?" from George.

"Oh, no," said Edith, "were you?"

"Of course not," replied George, trying to assume a look of childlike innocence.

Just then an automobile came rushing up to the station on the further side and two familiar voices were heard in the waiting room.

"I knew we should not get here by the time the train did," said the voice of Helen Marlowe.

"What's the difference?" replied the voice of William Lester; and then he and Helen saw George and Edith standing there staring at each other

With a joyful cry Helen rushed out, William followed more cautiously, as not entirely sure of his reception. "Then you got Jack Huntington's wire all right?" cried Helen. "You see, in making up his house party, he quite forgot to send you invitations. But as soon as William and I arrived, he wired at once. But gracious! how did you make the train? He only wired half an hour ago. Edith where are your trunks? Gone astray? Phone at once and find out about them. But first, William, you drive Edith over to Soundedge in the two-seater and send back a car for George and me. George is going to get a wigging in the meantime. He has avoided me for two days."

Edith had never been so glad to see anybody in the world as she was to see William. They made it all up on the ride to Soundedge. Before she got into the car she said: "Remember what I said to you Wednesday night? Of course, you understand I was only joking?"

"Oh, perfectly," replied William with beaming face.

Clocks Routed Herons

A resourceful zoologist has routed a colony of herons which persisted in camping in the public parks of Alameda, Calif., and eating up the park goldfish. The zoologist strung four alarm clocks in the herons' favorite tree, setting the clocks to go off every half hour, and after a sleepless week the herons vanished.

A FLOWERY PARTY

The invitations for the party had been sent out some time before, for the fairies wanted all the other little elves and brownies to be sure to come, and and the invitations read like this:

Dressed Up.

"The Queen of the Fairies invites you to a dance to be given at sunset on the first day of the spring flower storm."

Now you know when most people give dances they say "the first day of November," or "the first day of June," but to the fairies it was most important that it should be the first day that there was to be a flower storm, whether it was the first or the last day of the month.

A flower storm is a different kind of a storm from any other. It is a storm of all the early spring flowers and blossoms which come flying down over the ground just at a certain day in the spring when the soft south wind blows gently and tell the blossoms to drop to the soft earth.

All the guests seemed to have understood what the invitations meant for they were all there, dressed up in their best ball clothes.

And then came the storm. Such a storm. The lovely, sweet-smelling blossoms of spring danced and flew about.

Then they landed on the soft, cool earth, and then they would go dancing off to another spot.

In the woods nearby the little violets waved about and laughed. Have you ever heard a violet laugh?

It's so soft a sound no one can actually hear it but the fairies. It is a little spring message the violets always whisper to the fairies, though the fairies say it sounds more like a laugh than anything else.

This is what the violets whisper:

"We're so glad to be awake and to be here for your storm dance."

And just as they say they're so glad to be awake their green leaves almost cover them over and they go off napping again.

He Laughed.

But the storm continues and the dancing goes on all the time.

The south wind is a hard worker and he blows all the spring blossoms about so they simply cannot stop dancing.

Nor do they wish to stop dancing!

And how the fairies love it all. But just as the storm began, as soon as Mr. Red Sun was starting off for bed, Mr. Moon came peeping up behind the tall pine trees and said:

"Such goings on I never saw before."

He laughed heartily and merrily, while the spring blossoms danced.

After a while they were all quite weary with the dancing and they all fell asleep.

Examination in Psychology 79

By JANE OSBORN

(© by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)
(WNU Service.)

WHEN Lois woke up that bright day in May the sun was streaming into her little blue and pink bedroom, and even in the moments of half slumber before she opened her eyes she felt that something was wrong. Then she remembered.

She had gone to a dance with Robert Granger the night before. She had gone—though for some reason she had felt that she ought not to go—because then she felt that she really liked Robert very much, liked him well enough to marry him. Robert had said he wanted to ask her an important question that night. She remembered now that she felt a real loathing for the Robert who had made that stammering declaration as they drove home, narrowly missing a telegraph pole and a passing car as he tried to drive and propose at once. Somehow Robert had managed—when he wasn't dancing with her—to get himself drunk—foolishly drunk. The drunk Robert she loathed.

So that was the trouble, thought Lois, settling herself indolently against the pillows. Perhaps it wasn't a trouble at all—it was just fortunate that she had realized before it was too late the real nature of this Robert she had once liked.

But there were other disturbing thought waves passing through her mind—something else was wrong.

It had suddenly dawned on Lois—though she had forgotten the fact in her hazy moments of waking—that this was the morning set for the final examination in psychology 79. Of course, she had known it the day before—she had crammed all the afternoon—and it was because of the examination that she had hesitated about going to the dance with Robert.

Suddenly as she was hurrying into the neat little blue sport frock she had chosen for the day she realized that there wasn't the slightest advantage in hurrying now. Even if she went off to college without eating any breakfast she wouldn't arrive until after eleven—too late for the examination.

Lois completed her dressing with considerable leisure—taking more than usual pains with the arrangement of her hair and the placing of the faint bit of rouge which she considered necessary to hide the traces of fatigue.

An hour later—at a little after eleven o'clock—Lois entered the office of Professor Stratton, well known psychologist, who lectured in Psychology 79. He was a genial looking man of sixty, who at the moment sat at his desk with head turned to gaze lazily at the green campus trees through the open window in his office.

"I am sorry, Doctor Stratton," she said, "but I didn't wake up in time to get to the examination this morning. I would like to get credit, of course—though I hardly like to ask for a special examination."

Doctor Stratton regarded Lois without much show of personal interest. The fact was, he was always bored by the type of scatter-brained students of which apparently this young woman was typical. He told her that professors were not required to give special examinations save in cases of illness. Still he might regard her failure to wake in time for the examination in the nature of illness—mental if not physical. But he couldn't be bothered writing out a special examination for her. He would put it up to his assistant—Mr. Platt.

And so matters were arranged for a special examination the next morning at nine o'clock in Mr. Platt's small private office, and much relieved at this turn of events Lois went home—recalling as she went a few conversations she had had with the young instructor.

"I have Doctor Stratton's permission to give an oral examination," Mr. Platt explained the next morning. "After all if I am anything of a psychologist I ought to be able to get your rating in the course rather easily."

After this obviously premeditated introduction the young man looked a little confused and then laughed. Lois laughed, too. She said she liked the idea. There were things she could say about psychology that she couldn't write—because she wasn't always sure how to spell the words.

He asked a few questions—which he considered adequately answered after a few faltering remarks from Lois. A quarter of an hour of this and then it was over. He said he would give Doctor Stratton a good report.

Lois rose to go and Mr. Platt rose, too. "I am awfully glad you did oversleep," he said, "because I've had a chance to know you a little better. Perhaps you'll give me permission to call some time."

Lois gave the young instructor an appraising glance. "I'd be charmed," she said. "Perhaps you could come this afternoon."

Late that summer Professor Stratton opened a letter from his young assistant. He read it with an expression of half-amusement, half-boredom. "So it goes," he said to his wife. "Feather-brained young woman oversleeps on morning of important examination which she possibly couldn't have passed. Clever young instructor gives her a rating of ninety-eight in fifteen minutes test—and within two months has taken her for his life mate."

Or, soak a garden rake in a 50 per cent solution for 24 hours. If after that time all the teeth are eaten off the rake, don't use the rake. If the rake has twice as many teeth as before, be very careful who you give a drink to.

SPRAY NOW FOR SCALE PESTS

Severe Infestations Will Quickly Kill Fruit Trees

Warning against three fruit pests the oyster shell scale, the San Jose scale and the European elm scale, was issued this week by Dr. C. H. Richardson, assistant chief entomologist at Iowa State College.

Each may be controlled by use of sprays and now, during the early part of April, before the buds have burst, is the time to apply these control measures for the San Jose and other scales.

San Jose scale, recently the cause of an embargo on American apples by France, is reported spreading in southern Iowa. This scale attacks apples, pears, quince, cherry and many other deciduous trees and shrubs. Fruit trees quickly succumb to severe infestations.

Where infestations are severe or increasing, Dr. Richardson advises a spray containing miscible oil diluted 1 part in 15 parts of water. If infestation is light, a spray of concentrated lime sulphur, 1 part to 7 parts of water, is usually effective.

Oyster shell scale, found in northern Iowa apple orchards, also attacks pears, currants, quince, plums and gooseberries. For moderate infestations a spray of 1 part miscible oil to 15 parts of water or 1 part concentrated lime sulphur to 7 parts of water. Oyster shell scale eggs hatch about June 1. The spray should be applied just before the young crawlers attach themselves to the tree bark.

The European elm scale, attacking American and red elms, destroys many beautiful shade trees. One part miscible oil to 15 parts of water applied as spray early in the spring will eliminate most infestations.

BUSINESS SENTIMENT SHOWS DECIDED IMPROVEMENT

But Business Activity Has Not Changed Much Recently

Although business activity does not show any appreciable increase there seems to be a decided improvement in business sentiment, a report issued by the Agricultural Economics Department at Iowa State College, indicates.

Causes of this feeling of confidence are loans to railroads and other industries by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, the increased flexibility of the Federal Reserve system made possible by the Glass-Steagall bill and the decrease in bank suspensions.

Great Britain has made substantial payments on its loan negotiated last summer and recent declines in wholesale prices have been smaller than the rate of decline during most of 1930 and 1931.

For the first time in five months the index of the general level of the farm prices has advanced over the preceeding month. On March 15 the index of prices was 61 percent of the 1910-14 level or 1 point above the figure for the corresponding date in February.

Came Back Again

A commercial traveler away from home for long periods at a time saw very little of his child, aged four, and returning home one morning very early, he stayed in the sitting room reading a newspaper until the family got up.

Presently this little daughter came in. She looked at her father for a few moments and then shouted:

"Mama! Mama! Come here, quick That man's here again."

Whenever possible, radio stations play request numbers. But one of the biggest eastern stations received a request the other day which absolutely stumped it.

The studio's telephone rang and a man's voice inquired:

"Do you ever play anything by request?"

"Well, sometimes," the broadcaster answered warily.

"Could you oblige me then," asked the requester, "and play a game of checkers while I get some sleep?"

After moving to Ocheydan he and his son, Leonard, operated this paper for several years Mr. Wellemeyer was Mayor of Ocheyedan for two terms. It was here that he affiliated himself with Silver Cord Lodge 525 A. F. & A. M. At the time of his demise he was operating a Movie Theatre at Afton, Iowa.

The departed was married in the year 1899 to Aurilla Sage of Garner Iowa. From this union came three sons, Leonard, Lyle and Mahlon. His wife preceeded him in death in the year 1905.

In the year 1910 the departed again married; this time to Mrs. Emma Town of Spirit Lake, Iowa, To them one son, Roland, was born.

In his younger days, the work of the print shop being quite confining, Mr. Wellemeyer found recreation in hunting and fishing and in playing baseball.

The departed was an optimist, generous to a fault with those he loved, and a friend to every man. One of his favorite poems was:

Let me live in a house by the side of the road, where the race of men go by.
Some are good and some are bad—wise—foolish. So am I.
Then why should I sit on the scorners bench or hurl the cynics bomb
Let me live in a house by the side of the road and be a friend to man.

Mr. Wellemeyer was always in good health until about a year ago when he noticed some irregularity of the heart, which did not seem to get much better or much worse. Suddenly he felt an unusual pain in the region of his heart. A doctor was called but he died within the hour. This was early Friday morning April 8th. He had reached the age of 66 years, 5 months and 29 days.

He leaves of his immediate relatives his wife, Mrs. Emma Wellemeyer of Afton, Iowa; four sons Roland of Afton, Leonard, of Pipestone, Minn.; and Lyle and Mahlon of Baltimore, Maryland; five grandchildren and one brother, Charles L. Wellemeyer of Wichita, Kans. and one sister, Mrs. Mary Addicks, Warrenton, Mo.

Funeral services were conducted by Rev. Whyte in Klemme at the home of Arthur Wellemeyer, a nephew of the deceased. The Masons were in charge of the services at the Garner cemetery and Rev. Lewis read the ritual grave.

KLEMME BOY SCOUTS WILL DEMONSTRATE ARCHERY

Boy Scout Troops of the North Iowa Area Council are working on a merit Badge Exposition to be presented in the Armory in Mason City Thursday and Friday evening April 28th and 29th. This Exposition is so designed to show to the public the work of the thirty or more different Merit Badges.

The Clausen-Worden Post No. 101 of the American Legion, Mason City is sponsoring the Exposition and is helping make it possible for the public to see this Scouting event with no admission fee.

Thirty booths will be constructed on the main floor of the Armory and a different Merit Badge exhibited and demonstrated in each booth. Troops are privileged to select the badge which they desire to demonstrate and also, if possible, secure a sponsor, such as a business firm, to make the booth more attractive and carry out the worn required for that particular Merit Badge.

Doors of the Exposition will be open at 7:15 each evening and there will be a continuous performance until 10 o'clock. Besides the work going on in booths there will be contests and stunts presented on the stage of the armory.

The older Scouts of Troop 56, Klemme will have a booth on Archery. The Klemme Scouts have made several bows, several types of arrows and other Archery equipment. Their booth should be one of the most interesting in the display.

FISH HATCHERY OPENED AND SEINING BEGUN

The Clear Lake fish hatchery has been opened, machinery inspected and equipment adjusted for the season's run. J. P. Baur, manager, has been on the job several days and announced everything is in readiness for the first batch of eggs.

Seining for pike has begun and the stripping for eggs was started on Thursday eve. Just one crew is working at present, but it is thought the full force of men will be at work in a few days. O. Hoel is in charge. Otto Koch is supervising the seining for carp. About 30,000 pounds have already been taken out of the lake and will be shipped to eastern markets. The fish hatchery is a mecca for visitors and sightseers, during the season. Grown ups as well as children are interested in watching the process of hatching as every stage may be seen at one visit. From the time the eggs enter the first container until the little fish are placed in the receiving tanks, Mr. Baur is ready to answer questions about the business and no doubt answers the same one many times. Aside from his duties inside the hatchery, he keeps the grounds in spic and span condition and has added much to the attractiveness of the place.—Clear Lake Mirror.

A Find

A blear-eyed man entered a savings bank and hurried up to the tellers window.

"Lemme have two cases right away" he said pushing a $50 bill thru the grating.

"What do you mean? Two cases of what?"

"Hanged if I know what name you give it," was the reply, "but I saw a sign outside that said '4 per cent' and I'll drink whatever it is."

Out of town relatives attending were: Mrs. George Wellemeyer and son Roland of Afton, Iowa; Leonard Wellemeyer and daughter Rose of Pipestone, Minn; Mrs. C. D. Melcher and children from Charles City.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to express our sincere thanks and appreciation to the many friends and relatives who sent flowers and attended the last rites of our beloved husband and father, G. L. Wellemeyer, who passed away recently. Also, deepest appreciation to Bethel Lodge No. 319 of Garner Iowa, who so ably assisted.

Sees Time Well Spent in Study of the Stars

Napoleon consulted the stars, and he was no fool, as everybody should be willing to admit. Milton believed in astrology, and so did emperors and popes. There are millions of people who today believe in it and guide all their actions by it, despite the withering scorn of astronomers and other scientists.

Anyhow, how much are the scientists sure of, asks John Steven McGroarty, in the Los Angeles Sunday Times. Sir James Jeans and Dr Robert Millikan almost called each other liars at a convention where there was an argument about the collapse of the earth. Are they not all guessing?

If astrology does nothing else, it puts you on guard. It admonishes caution. At times it tells you to be bold and to dare. In short, it warns one to look before one leaps. And that's not bad advice.

A thing that has lasted and that is still going as strong as it is going, must have something back of it.

And, when all is said and done, it is interesting, which is more than can be said of some other things.

The stars are full of wonder and beauty. To know them and to study them is to be upon the quest of beauty.

Make It a Fairway for Two

By LEETE STONE

JERRY ENGLISH thought he was going to like it—this new freedom from a daily and yearly job that had come to him with the legacy from an almost mythical California uncle. That was a year ago. His first thought, naturally for Jerry, had been of his frail mother. So he spent a slice of the fifty thousand dollars to buy back the little old New England homestead where she had been born and brought up, for her.

He could not leave her there alone to struggle with a Berkshire winter; and, though he was able enough, he hated to hire the typical, fussy "companion," so they arrived together, and they stayed there together. Jerry, who had spent his spare time writing little stories for several years, now dreamed of writing half the time, and gardening and woodchopping the other half.

His mother basked in the gentle light of her son's affection for the next year. Another autumn had come, with its glorious coloring resplendent and vivid on the hillside back of the tiny farm. With it came to Jerry deep loneliness. He missed the job and the occasional evening at the theater or movie. His mother gave him a very dear companionship; but he longed for that different companionship with his own age. Now that he could well afford it, he mused rather bitterly, he had of his own accord, placed himself in the backwoods, where homes were two miles apart, and callers so few as to give the impression of living in a wilderness.

One morning Jerry rose from his typewriter and looked out of the window behind at the white birch grove and semi-circular driveway that lay in front of the house. This semi-circular driveway of ashes, dirt and gravel, connected on each side, two country roads which reached out in parallel form from the state highway a quarter mile above.

Jerry had the surprise of his life, that moment. Emerging from one country road and turning into his own driveway, he beheld the trim figure of a young woman riding a beautiful sorrel horse. Any equestrienne would have been a marvel; but this was a miracle—the very girl of his dreams.

"She'll go on up to the main road and I'll never see her again," he fumed.

The vision turned into his own semi-circle driveway. But doubt still assailed him. Sometimes casual passers used this as a quick cut-off to the other country road instead of going out to the main highway. She was doing the same, undoubtedly.

Then came his mother's voice from downstairs.

"A young lady to see you, Jerry!"

Jerry could have been bowled over by a feather when that call registered.

"Coming!" he replied.

Jerry hurried down to the big garage door that he kept open during the day. He had forgotten that he was wearing old clothes and with more than a day's stubble on his chin and cheeks, but he remembered these details when he was greeted by the visitor, a lithesome blond who sat cross-legged on the turf; a one-time race horse casually munching the already frost-bitten grass.

"Your name's Jerry English," she said, amazingly. "Mine's Jane Duganne. I heard at the village store of you. They say you write. I just got home the other day from a year abroad at school. I'm lonely. What I heard about you sounds as if you were an interesting person. Will you play a round of golf with me this afternoon?"

Jerry but managed a reply, of sorts. "Holy Gee!" he said boyishly, "but you're a good sport. Say, I didn't know there was a golf course within 50 miles."

"Ten miles—a nine-hole beauty—at Emsden," she replied.

That was how it all started. They played golf every afternoon for a week. Jane usually beat Jerry by several strokes because she had taken lessons from a professional. But Jerry kept creeping up with just one idea in his consciousness—to beat Jane decisively before the season ended.

It became an obsession, almost, for upon that victory depended his future, Jerry thought.

The day finally arrived.

"Don't you think you're the glamorous golf idol, now that you've beaten me?" Jane inquired.

"I'd—I'd like to play around again. And I'd like to have you think of the last fairway as a fairway for two. D'you mind?"

Jane looked straight into his eyes and then dimpled.

"Let's slip over to this clump of pines, rest a while and talk it over," she replied.

Pennsylvania's Land Deal

Pennsylvania had at first but four miles of territory on Lake Erie. This was at the western end of the county and adjoined the state of Ohio. There was much trouble concerning that portion of Erie county known as the triangle, until finally the claims of the Six Nations, Massachusetts and New York became merged in the United States. In March, 1792, Pennsylvania bought the triangle for about $150,000. This gave her nearly 50 miles of frontage on the lake and more than 200,000 acres of additional land.

You know, dear, every time I kiss you it makes me a better man.

Aesop's Famous Fables Survive Passing Years

Of course you are acquainted with many of Aesop's fables. Have you ever wondered just who this famous story teller was?

Aesop is supposed to have been a Greek slave who lived from 620 to 560 B. C. He had a brilliant mind, but an ugly, crippled body. This, however, did not prevent his becoming famous as a wise man who could teach moral lessons in short, pithy stories.

So great did his reputation become that his master freed him, and he went to live at the court of Croesus, the famous and very rich king of Lydia. Once the king sent him to the temple of Apollo, at Delphi, and there he met his death, being thrown over a precipice by the angered inhabitants of that place.

Aesop told his stories by word of mouth, and they were handed down from one generation to another. Two hundred years later they were collected and written down, only to be lost for 1,000 years. Finally they were discovered in a monastery at Mount Athos in 1844, and given again to the world.

Darwin's Frog

In nature the females usually attend to the young, but a remarkable exception is that of the strange creature known as Darwin's frog, a native of Chile. This frog lays her eggs, and the male collects them in a chamber in his throat—a strange nursery in which the young are reared, emerging as fully developed frogs. There are also foreign species of frogs which spend their whole time in trees, but it is necessary for the tiny tadpoles when they emerge from the eggs, to have liquid in which to live. This difficulty is overcome by each youngster living in its egg, which is much larger than usual, and in this nursery the frog goes through the various stages until it is able to leave as a perfect frog ready to carry on its existence in the trees.

Coveted by Witch Doctors

White baboons are rare, almost unknown, but one has been seen by an European trader in the Tsitsa valley, near Umtata, Africa. The trader has been offered two oxen for it by local witch doctors if he can manage to shoot it for them, as they are keen on the dead body for "muti." The trader states that it is a huge animal and uncanny to look at. Many years ago there was a white baboon in the Fletcher district. It used to kill newly born lambs, but was never known to do any other damage. It was known as "the white spook" and was supposed to have a charmed life. When, eventually, it was shot, five previous bullet wounds were found on its body.

"Stop, Look and Listen"

Various accounts of the origin and adoption of the sign, "Stop, Look and Listen" have been given and no two agree. However, Col. J. C. Fuller, vice president and manager in charge of construction of the old Gettysburg & Harrisburg railroad, now part of the Reading, in looking over a court decision in a suit brought for injury at a crossing, found that the judge stated that "it is the duty of every one to stop, look and listen before crossing a railroad." He at once adopted it for use at crossings on his line and it was made standard on their line in Pennsylvania on July 23, 1801, although its origin was prior to that date.

Study in Contrast

It is all a matter of contrasts. The fetish worshipers of Africa kill through ignorance, superstition and distorted reasoning. Civilized people kill for greed, for love, for hate, for political power. In the last analysis, it is easier to forgive the savage slayer than the killer of an enlightened race. Civilization must progress far before it protects human life adequately, and that progress is needed as badly in New York, Chicago, Paris and London as in the jungles of the "dark continent."—Richmond Times Democrat.

Aleck McCall's Mad Jealousy

By CHARLES SLOAN REID

(© by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.) (WNU Service.)

ALECK McCALL was swinging along the mountain trail by long strides. His rifle lay across his shoulder, and in his hand he carried a brace of pheasants. Aleck was happy. There was a new little cabin just half a mile ahead to which Aleck had carried Polly Goodiron less than a month before, a bride.

Old man Goodiron, his wife and two daughters had moved in on the Cullowhee range five years before, from somewhere over in Transylvania. Polly was the elder of the two girls; and some had hinted that she had left a sweetheart in the county from which she came, this being the reason she had put off Aleck McCall for so long, for McCall was the outstanding young mountaineer on the range. Aleck's stride was almost a dance step, as he hurried towards home.

"Polly, Polly, Polly, the purtiest gal in the world," he kept singing in his thoughts.

Around the head of a little ravine, across the nose of a ridge, then along the crest of it he hurried until he had reached a spot where a huge boulder marked the fork in the trail. Here McCall paused to contemplate in silent joy the sight of the little home.

Suddenly the young mountaineer grounded the butt of his rifle, and the brace of pheasants slipped from his hand. In the twilight now gathered about the cabin door were to be seen a man and a woman. The woman was Polly, but the man was a total stranger. He was dressed like a Westerner, Aleck thought, for he wore one of those broad-brim, heavy white hats which he had seen worn a few times by men returned from the West. But the part that filled his soul with horror was the sight of Polly in the stranger's arms.

The embrace had lasted for only an instant; but in that instant all of the joy had gone out of Aleck McCall's soul. He lowered his gaze to the rocks at his feet, and his fingers gripped his rifle barrel with a clutch that might have crushed anything but steel. He stood there thus for some moments, then slowly the gun stock came to his shoulder, as once more his eyes turned towards the cabin lot. Polly and the stranger were standing only a little way apart now. Slowly, slowly, the rifle barrel came toward a level. Presently it steadied, with the barrel pressed against the boulder, and the muzzle of it trained upon the cabin lot. The side of Aleck's face sank toward the firelock, and his finger clutched the trigger. Now his eye drew the bead of the rifle along the top of the barrel. A moment later a sharp "Crack!" rang out over the ravine below. Before the cabin door, a hundred yards away, the stranger staggered backward and went to the ground on his back, his big hat flying before him. A scream went up from Polly's throat; and Aleck McCall set his teeth down hard upon his lower lip. Turning aside from the rock he retraced his way back along the mountain trail.

"God, thar ain't nothin' more for me to stay around here for," he exclaimed, after a long silence.

Presently his shoulders began to sway from side to side, and hot tears stole from his eyes. "But I got to have one more look of her, afore I git out—I—I jes' got to!" he cried, no more than half aloud. When he arose from the log, the darkness of night had gathered. Once more he set out for the cabin.

When McCall strode down into the clearing about the cabin, with a queer smile he noted the gleam of firelight from beneath the cabin door. He crept forward to the doorstep, never once turning his gaze toward the spot where the stranger had fallen at the crack of his rifle. He heard voices inside of the house.

"Polly, what yuh reckon's a keepin' Aleck? I shore am anxious to see what yuh got when yuh got married."

It was a man's voice speaking. The red arose to Aleck McCall's temples. Seizing the latch string in the cabin door he gave it a jerk. The door swung inward. Then, as his big form stood framed in the doorway, Polly suddenly threw herself upon his breast, her arms around his neck.

"Brother Bill's come home, Aleck!" she cried, at the same time squeezing his neck so hard he hardly could breathe.

The stranger came forward and thrust out his hand. "Yeah," he said, "I had a hard time a findin' the old folks an' these kids."

Aleck's eyes stared unseeingly for a moment. "What yuh mean, Polly?" he asked.

"Why, Aleck; yuh see, I never told yuh about Bill, c'ase he had to run away six years ago. But thet scrape's been settled, so Bill's come back."

"An' some galoot took a crack at me out o' the woods jes' time I got here tonight," laughed Bill. "Must ha' took me for a houn'."

"I reckon," agreed Aleck.

"Clipped a hole slap through muh hat."

It was an hour later that Polly got a chance to whisper to Aleck: "I shore am glad yuh's so jealous o' me, Aleck! I knowed hit was you as fired thet shot—ain't another man on the Cullowhee as could ha' done it like thet, an' never clipped a hair."

FLY-HIGH

Now Fly-High, you know, is the special bird of the elves. He has a great red body and enormous black wings.

"Come, Fly-High," called Effie Elf.

And from somewhere—no one could hardly tell where—Fly-High swooped down into Elfland.

"Here I am," said Fly-High. For as Fly-High is only a bird of Elfland he can talk, and very often he explains the trips the elves take.

"Hurrah!" shouted Effie Elf. "You came so quickly. We want to see our cousins, the members of the oaf family.

"Will you take us to Oafland?"

"By all means," said Fly-High.

"Shall we start right away?" asked all the elves.

"I am ready," said Fly-High. "I am just anxious for a good fly. I want to stretch my wings and feel the wind against them.

"And I want to feel all the little elves on my back."

"That's our wondrous Fly-High," said the elves, dancing happily about.

"But, Fly-High, do you suppose there would be room on your back for the members of the Bogey family and the Gnomes? A great many of them want to go with us.

"We're Off at Last."

"Do you think you could manage us all?"

"Certainly, certainly, by all means," said Fly-High. "Let's be off."

So all the elves and a great many of the gnomes and Bogeys climbed on Fly-High's back, and his broad black wings spread way out until every little creature had a fine, soft, feathery seat.

"We're off at last," said Fly-High.

"And let's go quickly," said the elves.

They flew along so very quickly, and as they flew they passed by birds who were chirping and singing.

The birds were not frightened by the enormous size of Fly-High, for they knew he was the bird of Elfland, and that he would never do them any harm.

At last they all reached the spot where the members of the Oaf family were.

All the family joined in the trip and a wonderful, wonderful trip they had.

At the end of it the members of the Oaf family asked the Elves to send around word once more that there were no dangerous, naughty little creatures among the Oaf family.

So many untrue stories had gone around about them, and the Elves promised.

In fact they wanted to see the members of the Oaf family particularly this time to ask them if they didn't want those messages to go around again.

"And tell them that not a single member of the Bogey family would hurt them," said the members of the Bogey family.

"It's cruel of creatures to say we'll catch children. We wouldn't hurt a single child for anything in the world—whether good or naughty."

And the Elves knew this was true.

Be a Problem

Mr. and Mrs. Bust were very pleased with the new twins. Many and furious had been the arguments over the naming of the little darlings. But at last they had agreed, and now they were at the church for the christening ceremony.

Mother was holding the little girl, while father had the boy.

The clergyman turned to the mother.

"Well, Mrs. Bust—what is the little girl's Christian name to be?"

"Florence May."

And how about the little boy?"

"John Will."

Chooses Life Work

One day when Bobby had disobeyed his mother, she told him that if he was naughty again, he would be given to the rag man.

The next day when an admiring aunt asked Bobby what he was going to be when he grew up, he answered:

"I'm going to be a rag man and pick up little boys."

Music Memory

Doris was playing "Rock of Ages" on the piano, while six-year-old Joan was sitting nearby rocking her doll.

Grandma said: "That's a beautiful piece, I think."

"So do I," piped up Joan.

"Why, do you know what that piece is?" Doris asked Joan.

"Sure," said Joan; "Rock my baby!"

Many of the Troops of the North Iowa Area Council, Boy Scouts of America, are working hard on their demonstrations to be made of Merit Badge work in the first annual Mer- it Badge Exposition to be held in the Armory at Mason City Thursday and Friday nights, April 28th and 29th.

There will be thiry booths and in each will be a different Merit Badge demonstrattd. with the Scouts doing the work necessary to meet the re- quirements set forth for that Merit Badge. To give an idea of the great variety of work to be done in these booths, the following are some of the Merit Badges to be demonstrat- ed: Aviation, Pottery, Woodworking First Aid, Painting, Cycling, Pio- neering, Camping, Cooking, Book- binding, Automobiling, Bird Study, Safety, Electricity, Seamanship, Min- ing, Radio, Stamp Collecting, Car- pentry, Dairying, Masonry, Printing, Woodcarving, Leathercraft, Archery and Botany.

Other Merit Badges will no doubt be taken by the time of the closing of applications for booths.

Besides the demonstrations of Merit Badges in the booth, there will be contests in fire by friction, flint and steel and knot tying. On the first evening there will be pre- limiary tryouts or heats in all three of these events and the winners on Friday night will receive suitable awards for their efforts.

It will not be necessary for a Troop to have a booth in the Merit Badge Exposition in order for its Scouts to participate in the contests The same will apply to the stunts to be presented on the Little Theatre stage every evening beginning at 8:15.

The booths of the Exposition will be judged by a competent group of men well acquainted with the Merit Badge program and will consider such items as originality of presen- tation; general attractiveness; scout made material; continuous perfor- mance; courtesy of those in the booth; etc. It will be possible for a Troop to earn one hundred points in this judging and Troops earning ninety or more points will be award- ed the Blue class A certificate; those from eighty to ninety, the Red class B certificate; those with seventy to eighty points will receive the White class C certificate; while those earn- ing from sixty to seventy points will receive the green or class D. Booths will be judged Thursday evening and the certificates will be on dis- play in the booths Friday evening and will become the permanent pro- perty of the troop.

Every booth is to have a business concern or some organization to sponsor it. D. G. Klempnauer of Damons Inc., Mason City is chair- man of the sponsor committee and will be glad to advise with Troops as to their sponsors.

There will be a musical program given each evening from 7:15 to 8:15.

No admission price is being charg- ed but a contest for attendance is being conducted among the Troops that have booths in the Exposition.

BICYCLE AND TRUCK LOCK HORNS ON MAIN STREET

Thursday afternoon a near trag- edy took place on Main Street at the bank corner when a bicycle belong- ing to Max Barz, but being ridden by Lyle Hammitt and a Standard Oil Truck driven by Harvey Barz col- lided near the crosing between the bank and drug store. As we gather the story the Hammitt boy was rid- ing in an angular direction from tht post office across the street toward the filling station and ran into the Barz truck as it was coming around the corner. Luckily the boy was thrown up on the radiator of the truck and received only slight bruises on one arm. The bicycle was wrecked as the front wheels of the truck passed over it.

KLEMME HAS LIGHTED HORSE SHOE PITCHING COURT

The standard, lighted horse shoe pitching court back of the Hancock County Oil Station has been com- pleted and is kept busy all hours of the day and in the evening. The court was built according to the blue prints of a regulation court. Flood lights are placed above each peg and another light is over the center of the alley of the court. A number of Klemme fans helped to build the court and they invite the farmers to use the court evenings when in town.

Methodist Ladies Aid will meet tomorrow, Thursday. Come early af- ter dinner and help quilt. Mrs. Fred Kluckhohn and Mrs. H. E. Whyte are hostesses.

George Klipping, supervisor from Madison township was in Klemme on business Saturday evening.

FARMERS SHOULD GROW LARGE VEGETABLE GARDEN

Reduces Living Costs And Provides Better Living

Growing of larger gardens with a greater variety of vegetables is being recommended by Iowa State Collebe as one means by which farmers can reduce their living costs and at the same time raise their standard of living.

At the direction of Pres. R. M. Hughes a committee representing both the college and the Extension Service has made plans for a wider distribution of gardening informa- tion to persons requesting it.

Raising enough vegetables for use during the summer and some for canning and storing will raise the standard of living by providing a better balanced diet and some foods which many families would not have if they had to buy them.

Persons who are just starting gardens should plan them so that they may be easily tended. Grouping the perennials such as asparagus, rhubarb and small fruits and other crops on one side of the garden where they will be out of the way of plowing and other operations is sug- gested.

On two-thirds of an acre of land properly arranged and cared for. enough vegetables of all kinds may be raised to provide these products for a family of four or five for an entire year. This will require care- ful utilization of all space and will require planting new crops in places left vacant by those which mature early. Even on one-sixth of an acre enough of the common vegetables, not including corn and potatoes, can be raised to feed a family of four or five for an entire year.

Experiment Station Circular No. 115, "The Home Vegetable Garden" may be obtained free by writing to Iowa State College Bulletin Office.

DEMOCRATS HAVE FULL TICKET OUT FOR JUNE PRIMARIES

May Have Strong Candidate For State Senator Also

For many years the Democrats of Hancock County took but little ac- tive interest in local politics. How- ever, the June 1932 primaries will have a full sized Democratic ticket. The Democrats in this county have rallied under the leadership of the Lee brothers and Ben Burgitt of Britt, J. J. Bonstetter of Corwith, Bob Rhiem of the county farm, John Sheets of Hutchins, Geo. Owens of Garner and A. C. Taylor of Hayfield They have been strengthened by Thos. H. Thompson, of Kanawha, former county treasurer who has filed his change of party papers and now is in the Democratic ranks.

The Democrats have so far the following ticket in the field: Rep- resentative, J. J. Bonstetter; Jas. Makin of Britt for Recorder; A. C. Taylor of Hayfield for Treasurer; Geo. Owens for Clerk; A. E. Katter Garner, for Auditor; J. C. Sheets of Hutchins for Sheriff; Louis Schleu- sner of Garner for Coroner; for sup- ervisor of term beginning Jan. 1, 1933 A. L. Barker, Britt; and for the term beginning Jan. 1, 1934 Ben F. Greiman of near Klemme.

The county committee, it is said will have out a strong candidate for State Senator from the Hancock, Cerro Gordo and Franklin district.

The revival of the Democratic party in Hancock county promises to put spice into the fall election, where in former years the primary practically decided matters for the county Republican candidates.

500 SAMPLES OF SOIL TESTED FORFARMERS IN TWO WEEKS

Farmers Should Plan Soybeans For Hay And Protein Supplement

More interest than ever has been shown by the farmers in Hancock County in regard to the possibility of growing legumes. During the past two weeks, more than 500 samples of soil have been tested for farmers who wish to seed alfalfa.

On checking with the elevators, I find that more alfalfa seed is be- ing sold this year than ever before. This is partly due to the shortage of hay the past year and also due to the fact that alfalfa year in and year out is one of the most valuable crops that can be grown.

For those that are seeding alfalfa or any other clover crop, may I sug- gest that, if possible, you roll or cul- tipack the seeding. Alfalfa especial- ly needs a firm seed bed and by roll- ing or using a cultipacker you are al- most assuring a stand providing the ground is sweet. If posible take the nurse crop off as hay or else pas- ture the crop but not too closely.

For those who will be short of hay this year, may I suggest that you plant a small acreage of soybeans. are a very good hay crop ranking as good or better than alfalfa when harvested at the right time. They produce abundantly and all classes of livestock like soybeans. Those farmers who had alfalfa or soybeans last year were not numered among the list who had to buy prairie or timothy at big prices.

Don't overlook soybeans as your hay crop for this coming winter. Re- member too, that if possible sow enough soybeans so that part can be left and threshed for the bean. In this way you can grow your own protein supplement.

Architecture of Today
Neglected by the Poet

Haven't Troy and Tyre and Babylon been sung too much by the poets and London, Paris and New York too much neglected? Where are the great epic compositions about the most stupendous cities of all time; or even ballads and lyrics? F. H. Collier asks, in the St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

We grant you that the ancient lives of human beings are more inspirational, because there is more room for the fancy to play. One doesn't have to be extremely accurate. There is necessitated the sticking to facts in celebrating London, Paris and New York. The last named of the cities was nothing much to stir untrammeled thought in its ferryboat days, but in its skyscraper era it is startling, to speak mildly. It has lost some of its olden charm, reverting to Washington Irving's days, but now it is making the world's mouth hang open in astonishment.

Those thousand-feet towers are exciting a vague feeling of apprehension, such as must have moved the judicious when Babel's mighty shaft grew taller day by day. It is true, they are overpowering proof that our race is not a slothful one, but where is the limit beyond which approbation cannot go?

America's Trust in God
Perpetuated on Coins

The religious motto "In God We Trust" first appeared on the coins of the country in 1864. It was the result of the increased religious fervor brought on by the Civil war. The then secretary of the treasury, S. P. Chase, received many appeals from people all over the country urging that the Deity be recognized on the American coins in a like manner as those of foreign nations.

Secretary Chase wrote to the director of the mint at Philadelphia. November 30, 1861, stating that "no nation can be strong except in the strength of God, or safe except in his defense. The trust of our people in God should be declared on our national coins. You will cause a device to be prepared without unnecessary delay with a motto expressing in the fewest words possible this national recognition."

Several forms were suggested. Some of the coins prepared in 1862 bore the motto "God Our Trust" and some coined in 1863 were marked "God and Our Country." The familiar form of the motto was decided upon and the two-cent pieces which appeared in 1864 were the first to carry it. The motto is not used on all coins.

Normal Human Instinct for Beauty in Clothes

One reason why clothes, or at least the clothes of men, excite so little interest is that they have become drab, and this drabness is excused on the ground that clothes are meant to be useful and comfortable; and usefulness and comfort have ceased to be associated with beauty in modern life. Neither reason, of course, is true. Clothes are worn to enhance human dignity, and, at bottom, only such comfort is wanted as shall not interfere with the prevailing mode. The women who starved and sliced themselves in order to keep slim, who will cripple their limbs with hobbled skirts when these are the wear, and crucify their feet when pointed toes and high heels are the fashion, display a normal human instinct. Men have suffered much and gladly to wear patent leather shoes at garden parties in the height of summer, and have choked themselves rapturously with tall, stiff collars; and comfort means little to them so long as they remain convinced of the rightness and fitness of both.—Osbert Burdett in the London Saturday Review.

Historic Mediterranean

There is only one sea that has been contemporary with all history—the Mediterranean.

The Pacific and the Atlantic have been known to us for less than 1,000 years, but the "Mare Mediterranean" has been "the Great Sea" from the unremembered past. The ancient nations who ruled the waves—Phoenicians, Carthagenians, Greeks, Romans, Venetians—were all Mediterranean peoples.

It is the sea of the ages. On its waters Odysseus journeyed home from Troy, and Aeneas made his eventful voyages. It bore Caesar's prows as he set forth to conquer, and carried the argosies of Byzantium as they brought home the wealth of earliest commerce.

Massive Ruins Recall
Negro Ruler of Haiti

A mystery equivalent to how the stone was transported to build the pyramids is duplicated at Cap Hatien in the great Sans Souci palace, the finest ruins in Haiti.

It was built by Christophe, an early negro President and later king. It is not far from where Columbus installed his first garrison—the first settlers in the New world—only to return a year later to find them all massacred by the natives.

The visitors to the Sans Souci palace will wonder how the Haitians ever hauled their huge stones and massive cannon up the rugged trail. Christophe is reputed to have shot down any man who pronounced his burden too heavy.

The walls of the palace, which stands on the side of a mountain, are 150 feet high, being sometimes doubled and tripled by the natural precipice from which they rise. There are many tiers of corridors. The lower ones—dark, wet and musty—show the cells where prisoners were forced to stand upright for days at a time. The higher corridors, which are well lighted, show long rows of old naval guns lying askew on their broken-down carriages. At many points are great piles of cannon balls, slowly being eaten away by rust.

One of Christophe's outdoor sports was to invite gentlemen who displeased him to visit the top of the ramparts and then push them over into the abyss far below.

Pint Was Once a "Paint"

It is only of comparatively recent times that a foot or a yard or a quart or some other measure has become standard. People of today think of them only in constant terms, yet it was not always thus. The "foot" of today was once that of the king's or some officer appointed by him. The "yard" comes from an old word meaning a rod or a stick. The "pound" meant originally a pendant. These may first have been carried around the king's girdle or that of his officer. The "gallon" was a large bowl. The "quart" means a fourth part of something, and the "pint" is really "paint" and is probably a reference to a painted mark made on the larger bowl or tankard.

"WILL SAVE YOU MONEY"

Purpose Served by Cultivating Hobby

more people had real hobbies would be fewer cases of nervous kdown, according to Dr. H. F. Kier, writing in Hygeia, the Health azine. Hobbies keep children out hischief and they relieve the mony of routine life for adults. It ell to be able to lose oneself for hour, an evening, or even for a in something that is not related he daily tasks, this author believes. desirable hobby should furnish enment, pleasure and gratification; it uld require a minimum of equipt and expense, in Doctor Kilander's opinion. Many hobbies may be tinctly educational. Literature, mu- and astronomy are examples of t type. Physical as well as mental lth may be improved by a hobby; rts are of distinct value.

Many hobbies are started accidental without forethought. It is well, wever, suggests Doctor Kilander, t parents and educators should plan irectly to guide children in certain irable interests in order that their sure time may be wisely spent.

Recreation has become a necessity, ites Doctor Kilander. The trends the times indicate that the schools st include more training in the use leisure time not only for the years at the student is in school but also r the time when he is an adult.

Old Hand-Woven Linen of Marvelous Fineness

Twelve dozen of everything—that was e quantity which the proper continental bride of a century ago received her trousseau. It sounds lavish, but was actually common sense, because ur great-grandparents had a grand undering only once every three onths!

A relic of those brave days appears n special occasions now, in a smart New York home. The linen damask loth was woven by hand in the days hen George Washington was more han a memory, and hand woven so nely that linen experts of today marel at it. Narrow looms compelled he weavers to make their cloth in wo strips, which are sewn together down the middle of the table.

An interesting feature of this setting is that the ancient damask creates a background of harmony for the latest silver, whose design identically matches the china.

Coffee in 1634

As to the precise date when coffee was introduced into England, authorities differ, and very little of real value on the subject can be found, wrote Edward R. Emerson in "Beverages, Past and Present." Sir Henry Blount visited Turkey in 1634 and in one of his letters says: "The Turks have a drink called 'cauphe,' made of a berry as big as a small benn, dried in a furnace and beat to a powder of a sooty colour, in taste a little bitterish, that they seethe and drink, hot as may be indured. It is good at all hours of the day, but especially at morning and evening, when to that purpose they entertain themselves two or three hours in 'cauphe-houses,' which, in Turkey, abound more than inns and alehouses with us."

Corn's Many Products

Not much more than half of the great corn crop of the country finds its way to the dining table. The remainder goes to the refineries to be made up into a large variety of materials. These include the "sparklers" which do Fourth of July duty, explosives, face cream, soap, artificial rubber and silk, varnish, tanning extracts, radio batteries, textiles, paper carpet, mucilage, salad dressing, sirup, cooking oil, vinegar and milk acids. Some considerable success has attended the manufacture of paper from the stalks, and it is probable that at no distant day a profitable use will be found for the piles of corn stalks which accumulate each year on the farms of this country.

Famous Dinosaur Skeleton

The dinosaur on exhibition at Peabody museum of Yale university is nearly 70 feet long, 16 feet high, and the skeleton weighs six and a half tons. Its estimated weight when alive was between 37 and 40 tons. The specimen was discovered by William Reed in Wyoming in 1881, and the bones were brought to Yale under the direction of Prof. Othniel C. March, whose research resulted in this type's being known as Brontosaurus excelus. At Yale's bicentennial in 1901 a portion of the skeleton was mounted and exhibited. Lack of space prevented the erection of the rest, which remained in storage. A few years ago the mounting was begun anew, the hall of Peabody being especially constructed to house this one animal.

Cake for Indigestion

Claudius Galenus, commonly known as Galen, was born at Pergamum, Greece, in 130 A. D., and is supposed to have died in Sicily. He was a celebrated philosopher, pharmacist and physician, and was for many centuries the supreme authority in medicine and pharmacy, wrote Charles H. LaWall in "Four Thousand Years of Pharmacy."

A bride's cake used at weddings during Galen's time and described by Cato was called "mustacea." It contained aromatics and carminative and was served at weddings to reduce the chances of indigestion caused by the usual over-indulgence on such occasions.

AN EXPERIMENT

By JANE OSBORN

(© by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)
(WNU Service)

"GET the right kind of woman and she can do it as well as a man—"

"Stuff and nonsense! She wouldn't have the head for it. Imagine Miss Kline or Miss Hicks here going out to sell bonds—imagine their selling any!"

"They haven't got the head for it," shouted young Tom Venner. "That's what I'm telling you. Get a woman of the right sort and she could sell bonds with the best salesman we've got—"

The middle-aged Kirk Yates shrieked his answer. "But if you get a woman like that you've got to pay as much."

"Then pay, by gummy, pay," bawled Tom Venner, with several emphatic bangs on his desk. "The point isn't that I want to get a bargain, but I want to get people that will stick. Take Bloden, or Smyth, or Klinger—any of 'em—they sold bonds for awhile and when they got real good at it, they got better jobs, went somewhere else or started out by themselves. My idea is that a woman isn't so ambitious or so daring. Get two or three trained in, and we'll have a staff you can depend on. Get me?"

Mr. Kirk Yates sniffed, indicating thereby that, while he didn't "get" Mr. Venner at all, he was through arguing. "Go ahead," was all he said. "I'm only a partner. I can't stop you from trying an experiment. But don't start out with three or four. Get one and see if it works."

So it was that the employment agent who supplied the bond house of Yates and Venner with stenographers, comptometer operators and other office workers had a rather unusual position to fill. There was only one applicant on the list at this agency that was considered suitable. This was Jane Hayden. The employment agent sent a sealed note along with her. Tom Venner read it through while Jane Hayden sat waiting at the other side of his desk for an interview.

"She does not seem to have the striking personality you may think necessary for selling bonds. But there is something about her eyes that I should think would take the trick. And she's very intelligent."

Tom Venner had not noticed her eyes as she came in the room, he had merely noticed with a trifle disappointment that she was a young woman of middle size and not commanding appearance, who made no special effect when she came in the room.

Then, as he turned to talk to her she lifted her eyes, sober, light brown eyes they were, with exquisitely moulded brows. They were eyes that, had he never seen them again, he could not have forgotten—trustful and trust compelling, eyes that made you forget everything else save the personality of the young woman who owned them.

"I think you could sell bonds, or anything else," Tom said, trying not to look at the eyes, lest he be too easily influenced. "The question is whether you are willing to learn enough about bonds to know how to do it."

Jane Hayden said she knew she could learn, as she was used to study, and after an arrangement had been agreed upon—whereby she was to be paid as much for what she did as a man salesman—she was formally taken into the employ of Yates and Venner.

Mr. Yates remarked to Tom that he had certainly picked a pair of good eyes, adding: "But can she sell bonds?"

Tom Venner said, "We'll see."

Jane Hayden soon proved her ability as a saleswoman. She sold bonds and more bonds, and she was always on hand when either Tom Venner or Mr. Yates wanted to see her. She never seemed to have to play golf or eat lunch or go motoring with the people to whom she sold the bonds. By all means she was the best bond "salesman" they had.

"Here's something that I don't suppose you've thought of," said Mr Yates. "Here we've got a first-rate bond salesman. She has learned the business and she's making money for us and for herself. And not being a man she isn't ambitious. She won't want to start out for herself. That was my idea about getting a woman—"

"Your idea!" cried Tom. "I don't remember that it was your idea."

"I didn't say much," smiled Mr Yates, "but that morning I asked you to get a girl—that was the idea I had in view. There's no reason now why this Miss Hayden shouldn't remain with us for years."

"No reason but one," said Tom Venner hastily and with color mounting in his already rather ruddy face. "She might marry some one in the business—"

"Well, as I am a married man myself," said Mr. Yates with a conceited smile, "and as Trigger can't get his divorce and as Royden is about a foot shorter than Miss Hayden, and as Ben Short is engaged, I don't see much to worry about."

"What about me?" cried Tom.

"You!" gasped Mr. Yates. "Does he care about you? Well, I'm blessed." Then he laughed.

"She's got wonderful eyes," said Mr Yates, "but it's bad business for you to take her away from the firm."

Timely Payment of an Old Debt

By CHARLES S. REID

(© by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)
(WNU Service.)

THE piebald heifer had not come up for three nights. She was the hope of the family for milk and butter, when the old cow went dry. Old man Slade was an invalid, and his wife was little better off physically. Sadie Pottle, the granddaughter, virtually was the dependence of the old people for support. Sadie Pottle was standing in the doorway, looking off towards the valley.

"Grandy, it shorely is cur'ous about thet heifer," she declared.

"It shorely is, honey," agreed old Silas.

"Like as not them dogs o' Herndon's hes run her off'n a cliff some'rs." Granny Slade was lighting her pipe.

"I'm athinkin' about the Greenbriar Cove, Granny," said Sadie reflectively, a moment later. "Some says thar's milk-sick in thet cove again."

"Lord, I hope not!" There was new and deep concern in Granny Slade's tones. "Gabe Hawkins burnt it off last year."

"Yeah—I know; but them bushes an' things hes had time to grow again; an' yuh know thet makes hit easy for milk-sick. Leastwise I reckon I better go an' see ef I can find thet heifer."

"Maybe so, Sadie. Lord, it makes me shiver to think o' milk-sick."

Sadie stepped down from the doorstep, and set off down the mountain. The girl was eighteen. Left an orphan at six, she had lived with her grandparents these twelve years.

Sadie paused when she reached the crest of the ridge whence she could overlook the Greenbriar Cove. This little basin was wilderness of undergrowth from which arose a funky odor, as from rotting wood. A little stream ran along the last declivity of the mountainside, the waters of which had a coppery appearance.

A hundred yards down the stream the little cove widened into a minute amphitheater. At the edge of this spot Sadie stopped short, with a sudden intake of breath. Almost at her feet appeared a frothy, greenish spawn, spread out upon the ground like the frond of a pond lily as large as the outspread hands.

"Lord he'p!" she exclaimed. "The milk-sick, as shore as I live!"

She sank to the ground, and stared at the poisonous substance which had been spewed from the ground. In appearance it was a tempting morsel to cattle—and as deadly as strychnine. The girl sat upon her heels for a moment, then arose. She was no longer hopeful; and a few moments later she came upon the dead body of the heifer. Here she burst into a flood of weeping.

On a ridge, a quarter of a mile away, stood a man in a khaki suit and a corduroy cap. He was gazing through a field glass. He had followed Sadie's movements for sometime—now he understood the nature of her quest. There was tragedy in the scene before him. Hurrying down from the ridge he came out just in the rear of the girl. Sadie wheeled about with a start.

"I beg your pardon," said the man, lifting his cap. "I did not mean to startle you. I saw from the ridge over there that you were in trouble."

Sadie looked back upon the heifer, and drew her sleeve across her eyes to clear her vision. "Hit's the milk-sick as got 'er," she declared, with a sob. "We was countin' on her for our milk cow."

"Have you no other?"

"No. The cow is jest about dry; an' she's gittin' so old, I reckon she'll ha' to go to beef." Sadie stooped, and stroked the heifer's neck tenderly.

"This is Sadie Pottle, isn't it?" he asked.

"Yeah." Sadie now looked up into the stranger's eyes more searchingly.

"Don't you remember me?"

The girl waited a full minute. "No," she said at last, "I don't reckon as how I do."

"You have grown wonderfully beautiful in three years, Sadie, though you were pretty as a picture at fifteen."

"Mister, I don't know what you're talkin' about, but yuh look honest."

"I hope I am, Sadie. What are you going to do about another cow?"

"Lord knows—I don't." The girl sighed.

"It would be a good time, then, to collect an old debt that has been due you and old Silas and his wife for several years?"

Sadie came closer to the man. "Lord, Mister; I know yuh now!" she declared, with a smile through lingering tears. "Yuh're the man as was sick at our house about three years ago?"

"Tom Burton, the prospector. You and the old folks saved my life, I guess; for I was busted as well as sick. But I have made a lot of money, Sadie, and have come back to pay up. It's a pretty good debt that I owe—and then, Sadie, I—"

"I knowed yuh was honest, Mister Burton," she declared; "an'—an' I ain't forgot yuh kissed me good-by that time when yuh left."

"Yes, Sadie; I've had that in memory myself. Maybe sometimes you will let me kiss you again?"

Sadie smiled back upon him, then gave his hand a sharp jerk, as she took a long stride up the trail.

AROUND THE COUNTY WITH AGENT WEISS

SPRAY DEMONSTRATIONS WERE WELL ATTENDED

Seed Corn Should Be Treated And Sacked For Planting Soon

The two orchard spray demonstrations held at the C. A. Arnold farm near Klemme and the J. J. Urich farm northwest of Garner were well attended by interested fruit men.

Both measures were for the control of Oyster Shell Scale and control measures must be applied as a dormant spray. Fifteen pounds of dry lime sulphur per 50 gallons of water was the solution used. The first thing is to have the solution strong enough and the second thing is to be sure that every brand and twig is thoroughly covered.

From all indications the time to apply the Cluster Bud Spray is near at hand. The Cluster Bud Spray should be applied on your apple trees within a week or just before any blossoms open. The spray should be put on all apple trees after the blossom buds have separated and before they break into bloom.

If your plums have not started to bloom spray them at once and later spray the apples when they are ready. It is not necessary to apply this spray to your cherries or pears.

For the cluster bud spray use 6 quarts of liquid lime sulphur (or 4 to 5 lbs of the dry form) plus 1¼ pounds lead arsenate to 50 gallons of spray mixture. This spray is main ly to control apple scab on apples and brown rot on plums. Also apply this spray to your black raspberries, gooseberries and currants.

Now is the time to get your seed corn treated and sacked to be in readiness for the planter. It only costs 2c to 3c per acre to treat your seed corn and in the county test last year the treatment increased the yield 2.2 bushels per acre.

May I again suggest that you roll or culti-pack your new seeding and your last year's seeding if it came through. Rolling after new seeding is up will help a great deal.

J. J. Erstland, manager of the North Iowa grain elevator at Hayfield for two years, has rented the Henry Willie service station one half mile southwest of Garner on highway No. 15. Mr. and Mrs. Erstland and three children will move to Garner soon. Mr. Erstland will open his place May 1st.

GRASSHOPPERS TO HATCH SOON PREDICTS C. J. DRAKE

95 Per Cent of Hopper Eggs Are Alive An Hatchable

A few more warm days and the first crop of grasshoppers will come swarming out of the eggs which have lain beneath the soil during the winter months, predicts C. J. Drake, head of the Entomology Department at Iowa State College.

Practically 95 per cent of the eggs deposited last fall are alive and hatchable, according to a survey recently completed.

From now on Dr. Drake is anticipating a series of local outbreaks of grasshopper infestations over the state. Eggs laid on the south slopes of hills wil hatch first as the rays of the sun strike them.

The entire state, through the Extension Service, is girding for battle against grasshoppers his year. Instructions will be sent out from time to time through the county agents and extension workers. In addition, entomologists will make personal inspections of conditions during the spring and summer.

KEEP PASTURE GATES CLOSED

Grass Should Be 4 or 5 Inches High Before Cows Go In

Is your pasture a good source of feed or merely a "cow gymnasium?"

That depends largely on when dairy cows are turned into the pasture, according to extension dairymen at Iowa State College.

Pasture grass should be about 4 or 5 inches high before cows are turned onto it. This height normally is reached about May 15. Pastures which obtain a good start before cattle go on them will supply the maximum amount of feed and help decrease the feed cost of producing butterfat.

Since the amount of growth above the ground depends on the amount of growth below the ground, allowing grass to develop a good root system will mean a larger feed supply during the summer. In addition, the first short growth is a washy feed and cows do not get much good from it.

Crops men and dairymen have noticed that fertilized, permanent pastures have a longer grazing season than unfertilized pastures. Fertilized pastures begin earlier in the spring and extend later into the summer. One hundred twenty pound of 20 per cent superphosphate per acre has been found beneficial. The addition of lime on acid soils also will help to increase the pasture yield.

WRIGHT PAVING WORK TO BEGIN EARLY IN JULY

$1,400,000 Bond Issue Gets Approval At Election

Work on the paving of primary roads in Wright County, for which a $1,400,000 bond issue was approved at an election Saturday, will probably start in the early part of July, according to Raymond Zack, district engineer of the highway commission. Several crews will begin work simultaneously.

Percentage Is 65.3

Official returns from the $1,400,000 paving bond election in Wright county Saturday show that Wright county is in favor of paving the 64 miles of highway by a majority of 65.3 per cent. The majority of the total vote required to carry the proposition is 60 per cent.

The roads to be paved are No. 10 and No. 15 across the county; No. 60 from Goldfield to the southern county line and No. 72 from No. 15 to Dows.

The total vote cast Saturday was 6,583. Of these votes, 4,284 were in favor of the paving and 2,299 were against. The outstanding no vote was in Boone township where there were 127 no votes cast and only 8 assenting votes The highest percentage of yes votes was cast in ward 3 of Eagle Grove. There were 246 yes and 19 no.

The rural districts seemed to be less in favor of the proposition. Of the 2,617 rural votes cast, there were 490 assenting to 1,127 dissenting votes. However, city voters were enough in favor to make up the 65.3 per cent. There were 3,794 yes votes in the towns to 1;067 no.

Eggs are cheap and now is the time to store them in water glass for use later in the season. Eggs preserved in water glass and kept at a low temperature will keep in good condition for a year or more. They are practically as good for cooking as fresh eggs.

RAILROADS TO BUY NEEDED SUPPLIES

Carriers Will Spend $1,000,000,000 in 1932.

Chicago. — Preliminary budgets of America's railroads, indicating an expenditure of $1,000,000,000 in 1932 for supplies, may set the pace of revival of buying and recovery of business in the nation.

The acceptance of a 10 per cent reduction in wages by the railroad workers, effecting savings estimated at $215,000,000 for the coming year and increased freight rates which will add more than $100,000,000 to the carriers' revenue, will place the leading roads on a sound financial basis and allow purchases of supplies which have been needed but deferred for several months.

Expense Increased.

An expenditure of one billion dollars in 1932 will be an increase of more than $300,000,000 over last year when the roads bought $695,000,000 worth of supplies. The 1931 expenditures, smallest in many years, showed a big decrease from 1930 when $1,038,000,000 was expended.

The year 1930 might be regarded as a normal buying year although previous years, when many roads were making extensive improvements, went far beyond that figure.

Railroad purchases are a widespread factor in the nation's prosperity as steel mills and industries in all sections of the country will share the benefits of any increase in business.

Equipment Neglected.

Equipment of the railroads in the past year has been neglected, rights of way have become run down, maintenance shops have not been manned to full capacity and in general the railroads need a building up all along the line.

Railroads do not contemplate extensive buying of new rolling stock but with traffic estimated on the present basis, supplies to maintain equipment and fortification of road beds will call for heavy expenditures, officials say.

The increased expenditures will mean workers and maintenance of way employees on the railroads and, likewise added employment in the industries benefiting which will strengthen buying power by hundreds of millions of dollars—a good contribution to revival of business in the country.

Double-Wear Leather for Soles in Britain

London.—Double wear for leather boot soles is claimed as the result of the discovery by British tanners of a new way of treating leather. By the new process the internal fibers of leather soles can now be toughened so that they form a core of great strength.

It is claimed that leather so prepared rivals the wearing power and durability of soles made of rubber and composition material. Like rubber soles, it is waterproof but, unlike them, it is not slippery when wet. As a result of the discovery one of the biggest tanning firms in northern England, which for many months had been working on short time, now has sufficient orders to operate day and night.

At Last! A Good Word for English Sparrow

New York.—The much-maligned English sparrow has at last had its day in court, with a friendly judge and jury. Says the magazine, Bird-Lore, official publication of the National Association of Audubon Societies:

"According to Dr. Thomas E. Wincoff, in charge of research for the Pennsylvania game commission, this generally unpopular bird has been found to be one of the few which are destroyers of the obnoxious Japanese beetle. Investigations of field men in the southeastern part of the state have shown that, in addition to the English sparrow, the ring-necked pheasant, the purple grackle, the starling, and robin all eat this greatly destructive beetle."

French May Use Skis in Sahara Sand Hills

Algiers.—It is no longer necessary to risk pneumonia to enjoy the sport of skiing, for General Deschamps has announced here that there is perfect skiing in the heart of the Sahara, where the sun always shines and there is no danger of wet feet. Sand replaces snow for the sport.

Encouraged by Algerian sports federations, Charles Lee, famed ski runner, experimented on the sun baked sands near El Golea. Without danger he succeeded in skiing down the great dunes often in places where camels were unable to walk.

The results were particularly interesting to the French colonial forces.

Bandits Take Savings Drawn From Closed Bank

Chicago.—The day before the institution closed George Grakos drew $6,000 from his account in a Chicago bank. And he was fond of bragging about his cleverness. So he explained to neighbors he had put the $6,000 in bills right in his trouser pocket, where it would stay.

Then two men carrying revolvers came into his room.

"Give us those $6,000 bills you've got in your pocket," they said. Grakos obeyed.

SCIENCE TO TRAP FISH WITH LIGHT

Electric Bulb Expected to Lure Rare Specimens.

San Francisco, Calif.—An electric light 3,000 feet below the surface of the Pacific ocean is rare enough, San Francisco scientists believe, to capitalize piscatorial curiosity and yield some equally rare marine specimens.

A recently developed device is going to be used by scientists aboard the Templeton Crocker yacht, Zaca, in a six months expedition to the Galapagos, Tres Marias and other island groups off the west coast of Mexico It is a lighted bulb that can be lowered to a maximum depth of more than half a mile in the water.

The light globe is in the center of a lattice-like box. Curious fish and crustaceans can get through the openings to investigate the light, but they can't get out.

Fish that live too far under water to take an interest in a brilliantly-hued fly are considered an inquisitive lot by Dr. Barton W. Everman of the California Academy of Sciences.

The light, Doctor Everman believes, will attract rather than repel all free swimming things, including microscopic sea life. He expects the Zaca to return next fall with thousands of new species of underwater life in preservatives, as well as many alive in specially constructed tanks.

The expedition will also devote some time to gathering of insects, birds and mammals native to the seldom visited islands in tropical waters.

Tut-Ankh-Amen Shrines Placed in Cairo Museum

Cairo.—The four magnificent gilt shrines which inclose the sarcophagus of Tut-Ankh-Amen's tomb have been placed in the Antiquities museum here.

The innermost shrine has already been re-erected and is on view. It is constructed of solid wood covered with gesso overlaid with gold leaf, with sacred figures in gold. The outside has been restored to its original brilliance, but it appears that Tut's artificer cheated his royal master by using an inferior quality of gold inside which has now oxidized and lost color. The shrine is 9 feet 6 inches long and 5 feet high.

Another recent addition to the Antiquities museum is a unique caricature of the heretical King Akhenaten. The caricature, showing the king with beard and whiskers, was found at Tellel-Amara, suggesting that the king possibly became mentally deficient and was allowed to end his days obscurely when the center of religion and government reverted to Thebes.

Turkey and Persia Make English Legal Tongue

London.—The governments of Turkey and Persia have decided to adopt English as the language for their official communication. French, which has been the language of diplomacy in the east for centuries, is to be replaced.

The Turkish government is now canvassing England for celebrated English orientalists who are needed as teachers. Altogether, from 3,000 to 3,500 professors and instructors are wanted from Great Britain and the United States.

The two countries entered into discussions on the plan following the breakdown of Riza Khan's efforts to introduce the Roman alphabet in Persia two years ago. English will henceforth be taught in the schools of both countries. It is even said that the Koran will be translated and read only in English in Turkish schools.

Big Subterranean Water Supply Under Nebraska

Lincoln, Neb.—Nebraska has enough underground water in the south central part of the state to form a lake twice as large and twice as deep as the Great Salt Lake of Utah.

This is the estimate of Dr. A. G. Lugn, geologist of the University of Nebraska, who has made a survey.

The water is held in formation of sand and gravel made during the glacial periods, according to the geologist.

Nebraska is traversed by the Platte river from one end to the other. The waters from the Platte seep away underground, he said, to the rivers along the southern border of the state. This accounts for the dryness of the Platte during the summer months.

Jiu Jitsu for Girls

Kalamazoo, Mich.—The first course in jiu jitsu ever believed offered to women is now available here. Women and girls, twelve or over, are eligible at the Y. W. C. A. Only the defense holds will be taught.

Bow, Wow! Meaning 'Here I Am, Dentist!'

Louisburg, N. C.—Jack, Dr. A. H. Fleming's pet bulldog, knows when he needs a dentist. Doctor Fleming put a gold crown on one of Jack's teeth. One day the dog trotted restlessly into the office. When a patient left, Jack jumped into the dentist's chair and opened his mouth. The dog had lost the gold crown.

LURE OF THE NORTH BECKONS TO YOUTH

Explorers Tell of Riches in Great Bear Country.

Vancouver, B. C.—Almost due west of Stewart which nestles among the mountains at the end of the appendix-like Portland canal that separates Alaska from British Columbia lies the valley of the Ingenika. Immediately south is the country drained by the Omineca. All this area is some 580 miles from Vancouver as the crow flies. And from this district to 500 miles further north where the Great Bear country sprawls about Great Bear lake is the most highly mineralized section in the whole world. It is upon this immensely rich northern district that the eyes of young Vancouver are just now turned.

For like Nordic St. Johns, crying out in a wilderness of degenerate softness, certain explorers have been wintering in Vancouver, preaching the gospel of pioneering and unfolding marvelous tales of the unrivaled wealth of the North. The result has been a wave of "north consciousness" throughout all British Columbia.

An Abused Territory.

This North country, says these explorers, has been libeled and abused, just as all northerly areas have been since the beginning of time.

It is true that the North has long, cold winters, but its summers, three months of almost continuous sunshine, makes practically hothouse conditions for productive effort. Moreover the cold of the North is dry. Twenty below zero in dry cold is more tolerable then twenty above zero in the damp atmosphere of the Atlantic and Pacific coasts. But these are little things that can be overcome by the aid of science and the application of the pioneer spirit.

The point is that the Canadian North, northern British Columbia to the Northwest Territories, holds more mineral wealth than North America has yet produced. There is gold in the Ominecas that will materially enrich the world's supply. There is silver in the Ingenikas occurring in solid, almost pure blocks. In the Peace river country there is anthracite and wheat production enough for ten Americas.

$8,600 a Ton Ore.

In the Great Bear country there has been blocked out by hand $25,000,000 worth of pitchblende containing radium. Twenty tons of this ore was brought down in 1931 and it assayed as high as $8,600 a ton. The extent of the total deposit cannot even be guessed.

These are the tales, borne out by authentic facts and indisputable proofs, that these explorers are pouring into the ears of langorous Canadian youths whose romance has hitherto been derived from a synthetic tickling of the nerves with blase adventures in stocks and bonds. So now, everywhere in the West, young men are throwing off bond consciousness to assume North consciousness.

Bandits Who Dynamite Fish to Be Cleaned Out

Hammerfest, Norway. — Following the example of the French government in cleaning up Corsican bandits, the Norwegian government intends to clean out the fishing bandits, who are raiding the banks off northern Norway with dynamite and destroying thousands of tons of valuable food every season.

War has been declared, and the coast guard and police forces are planning a campaign for protection of the industry, on which more than 90 per cent of the northern folk are dependent.

Since 1911 it has been illegal to kill fish by dynamite, but it always has been carried on.

U. S. Army Air Man Holds Four Flying Ratings

San Antonio, Texas.—Maj. William E. Kepner, World war balloonist and holder of the Distinguished Service cross, has been assigned to duty at Wright field, Dayton, following his graduation from the Air Corps Advanced Flying school at Kelly field here.

Major Kepner will become one of the few air corps officers to hold four flying ratings. Besides being rated an airship pilot, balloon observer, and airplane observer, he has qualified to pilot three types of airships—rigid, semi-rigid, and nonrigid.

Major Kepner has won both the national and international balloon races.

Lloyd George Tries His Hand at Psalm Writing

London. — Solicitor, world-famous politician and statesman, journalist, and now psalm writer.

Such is the versatile record of Lloyd George, British war-time premier. During his recent stay in Criccieth, Wales, the veteran Liberal leader translated six verses of the psalm "Thy Kingdom Come, O God" into Welsh.

The psalm is a beautiful metrical version and will be sung at the Psalmody festivals of the Welsh churches and the Eisteddfodau.

COSSACK ALFALFA MAKES BEST SHOWING IN TESTS

Cosack alfalfa is making a strong bid to replace Grimm as the variety best adapted to Iowa. according to Walt Weiss county agent.

According to word received from E. S. Dyas, Extension Crops Specialist at Iowa State College, Cossack has outyielded Grimm and other varieties tested during the past 3 years at Experiment Station.

Ontario Variegated and Grimm are better than common strains and almost as good as Cossack.

The winters in Iowa are severe for such plants as clover and alfalfa which must live over one or more winters in order to be valuable crops Only the most hardy strains and varities of alfalfa will survive our Iowa winters.

The Iowa Experiment Station has, for about 15 years. been testing hundreds of strains, varieties and sources of alfalfa seed to find the strains that will live over severe winters and give good yields of hay. During the last 8 years the problem has been complicated by the discovery of a destructive disease known as bacterial wilt in the plots at the Station. This same disease has been found in nearly all parts of Iowa, most commonly along the west edge of the state.

During the last five years some of the hardiest strains of alfalfa have been found to be no more resistant to bacterial wilt than common strains.

In one of the most recent trials conducted at the Iowa station in 1928-1930 the more commonly used strains gave the following yields in tons per acre of dry hay: Cossack 3.62 tons; Ontario Variegated 3.42; Grimm 3.22; Montana, South Dakota and Nebraska 3.16; and Utah, Idaho, and Kansas 2.98 tons.

During this time of course there was not a winter severe enough to reduce stands of the common alfalfa so the difference is not as striking as in normal years.

While more trials are necessary for determining the best strains of alfalfa on soils infested with bacterial wilt, the following conclusions seem to be the best guides to follow at present.

1. The variegated varieties such as Cossack, Grimm, Ontario Variegated, etc. are more winter hardy than common alfalfa and may be expected to give larger yields of hay than common strains.

2. Of the variegated strains Cossack may be expected to give the largest yields of hay.

3. Of the common alfalfas those from Montana, North and South Dakota, and Nebraska will average more winter hardy than those from other sources.

4. None of the imported alfalfas, except those coming from Canada are adapted to seeding in Iowa.

IN MEMORY OF DORIS GRANGE

Who Died Ten Years Ago This Week

The golden gates were opened,
And heavenly Angels smiled,
And with their tuneful harpstrings,
Welcomed the little child.

They shouted high and holy,
A child hath entered in,
And safe from all temptation,
A soul is sealed from sin.

They led her through the golden streets,
On to the King of Kings.
And a glory fell upon her
From the rustlings of their wings.

The Saviour smiled upon her,
As none on earth could smile,
And heaven's great glory shone around,
The little earth-born child.

On earth we miss the little one,
We sigh and weep and sigh again,
And wonder if another such
As ours has ever died.

Oh! Had we seen through those high gates,
The welcome to her given,
We never could wish our little child
Back from her home in Heaven.

DS RECEIVED FOR 35 MILES OF COUNTY GRADING

rk Is Straight Casting With Very Little End Haul Contemplated

On April 27 bids were received for ading on thirty-five miles of local unty roads in Hancock County. is does not include all of the grad to be done this year and an addinal letting will be held for the lance of the work at a later date. e contracts let at this time were r straight casting with the provisn that the necessary end work uld be paid for as an extra. How-er very little end haul is contemated on these thirty miles. The ork was divided into threes secons and contracts were awarded follows: 10 miles of grading in ingham, Crystal, Madison and Ellgton townships were awarded to uns Bros. of Woden at 3 cents per ubic yard or approximately $270 er mile for the earth excavation; 0 miles of grading in Ell and Avery ownships were let to Herman Brum und of Kanawha at the same price nd 10 miles of grading in Boone, rin and Liberty townships will be one by the county owned outfit.

In 1931 we paid 4.7 cents per cubic yard for casting excavation so that he price this year is less than two hirds of last year's price which is in line with the price of farm products. The cost of earth excavation s not the total cost of grading as we ave the additional items of clearand grubbing, purchasing right of way, placing culverts, engineering and other incidentals. We have three crews at work clearing and grubbing the roads on the program for this year's construction and hope to have this work completed by the middle of May. The county is purchasing the explosives and doing the work with local men on a day labor basis. We hope in this way to make a considerable saving over last year's contract costs.

On May 12 bids will be received for graveling thirty-five miles of local roads in Hancock County. This in cludes less than one half of the graveling on the 1932 program but we must purchase additional gravel pits before we can enter into contracts for surfacing the balance of the roads. A crew of men is prospecting for the gravel needed. The work to be let on May 12 is being advertised in 9 sections some of which can be handled by our small local contractors.

AROUND THE COUNTY WITH AGENT WEISS

4-H DAIRY CLUB MEMBERS MET WITH ERNEST WRIGHT

Indications Show County Hay Crop Will Be Short This Year

Ernest Wright of the Iowa State Dairy Ass'n., Waterloo, Iowa, spent one day in the county the past week visiting the 4-H Dairy Club calves and meeting with the dairy club owners and their parents.

Wednesday night, April 27th, the 4-H Dairy Club members and their parents met at the Farm Bureau office with Mr. Wright where a two hour program consisting of group singing, stunts and illustrated talks were enjoyed by the 43 persons present.

From all indications the dairy club enrollment will be double that of last year with more quality and uniformity found in the calves. More interest than ever is being shown in this club with more boys and girls new class is being added this year starting with purebred heifers. One which will consist of a class of Brown Swiss heifers.

From all indications to date the hay crop in Hancock county will be short which means that many farmers will be forced to buy hay this fall and winter providing steps are not taken to overcome this shortage. You can be one who does not have to buy hay if you will plant from 5 to 10 acres of soybeans. Soybean hay is unexcelled if handled correctly and it produces abundantly. They do not need to be planted until the latter part of May which gives the farmers time to thoroughly work the bean ground. Thorough cleaning of ground is essential and the more work done before plating the cleaner your bean hay. Many who raise soy beans for hay do not cultivate them but instead drag or harrow often until the beans are 8 to 12 inches high. However, cultivating is probably the better method and assures clean hay.

May I suggest that if you put in soy beans, that you inoculate the seed. By inoculating you give the plant the ability of extracting the nitrogen use din its growth from the air and when you don't inoculate the nitrogen used in plant growth comes from the ground. You also get a more vigorous growth when inoculated seed is used. If possible put in a few extra acres of soybeans and cut part of them for the bean, thereby growing instead o buying your protein supplement.

Funeral Service Held For "Scoop" Larsen At Ames

FORMER KLEMME BOY BURIED AT WEBSTER CITY FRIDAY

Was Accidently Killed In Auto Accident At Des Moines

Last week the Times carried an item telling of the serious accident of "Scoop" Larsen, at Des Moines last Tuesday night. Later the sad news reached Klemme that Mr. Larsen had passed away at a Des Moines hospital shortly after the accident.

"Scoop", as we all knew him in Klemme, Garner and Belmond, was a proprietor of a meat market at Ames. He began his career in Klemme where he learned the business. Later "Scoop" had charge of the J. P. Larsen & Sons markets at Garner and Belmond. Later he went into business for himself at Ames and was doing a fine business. He was always popular and well liked by all who knew him. His many friends here and at other places where he was known deeply feel his departure.

Obituary

Oscar William Larsen, youngest son of Mr and Mrs. J. P. Larsen was born November 27th, 1894 at Klemme, Iowa, and was very suddenly taken from this earth when the car in which he was riding was struck by an interurban at Des Moines about midnight, April 26, 1932.

Oscar, generally known as 'Scoop' from boyhood on, spent his childhood and most of his young manhood in Klemme, except for a few years spent as depot agent in South Dakota. After a time he came back to Klemme, where he, with his brother, Clarence, operated a meat market until the time of the World War.

He enlisted in the army and on February 11th, 1918 left for Camp Dodge to serve in 313 Supply Train Co. D. He became a corporal in this division and in July crossed the ocean to serve his Country "Over There". He with his company returned to America the summer following the signing of the Armistice.

After he came home from the war he took up the management of the J. P. Larsen's Meat Market at Garner and again the one at Belmond, Iowa.

Oscar was married to Miss Margaret Jean Cheyne at Webster City, December 25, 1924.

To this happy union two children have been born; Charles Leslie who died in infancy and little Patricia Jean, who with her mother mourns his sad loss today.

Most of the time since their marriage has been spent at Ames, Iowa where he owned and successfully operated a meat market until the time of his death.

Besides his wife and little daughter, he is survived by one brother, Clarence A. Larsen of Klemme, Ia., Many other relatives and hosts of friends in whose hearts his memory will ever be cherished.

Funeral services were conducted at Adams Funeral Home at Ames Friday by Rev. Davidson, pastor f the Baptist church, after which the body was taken to the beautiful cemetery at Webster City, Iowa The last rites were conducted by the American Legion and the Masonic Lodge.

ALERT FARMERS PUSH SPRING PIGS

Rapid gains are economical gains and the alert hog raiser usually pushes the early farrowed spring pig rapidly from birth to finished weight, A. L. Anderson, a member of the Animal Husbandry Department faculty at Iowa State College, states.

Under most conditions, a suckling period of about two months is advisable for young pigs, but pigs doing well and started early on supplementary feed may be weaned successfully at younger ages. If the 2 litter a year plan is followed, the suckling period is necessarily curtailed in order to re breed for fall litters. Castration and vaccination for hog cholera may be best accomplished prior to weaning the pigs.

Pigs given proper feeds during the suckling period do not suffer a severe setback when the weaning starts. The use of a creep is suggested to make possible the self-feeding of special feeds at an early age. Good quality home-grown grains are suitable or this use with the exception ofwhole or ground oats which is to fibrous.

Pig meals, the combinations of feeds used during the early period of a pigs life, may be complete or incomplete, depending upon the protein content of the meal or mixture. If choice of no other feed is allowed the protein content should be from 20 to 25 per cent. If the pigs are allowed ree access to the corn, the pig meal should be of higher protein content.

GARNER WON COUNTY TRACK MEET BY ONE POINT

High School Baseball Team Drops Game To Swaledale

Garner high school won the county track meet at Britt Friday by 1 point, scoring 55½ points while Britt was second with 54½. Klemme was one of the schools participating. Others were: Crystal Lake, Hayfield, Conwith, Goodell and Kanawha.

The sprinters at the meet seemed to be exceptionally good and to get one of the four places meant a man must have been a good sprinter. Percy Brown, a freshman showed up good when he placed fourth in the 440 yard dash. When it is remembered that he competed against two Garner runners who established a record at Mason City the week previous the possibilities this boy has in his three years left of school are seen. Missman won 4th in the 220 yard dash. He is a Senior this year and wil be hard to replace.

Raymond Drake took fifth in the half mile run, losing third and 4th places by inches. He should make a good distance runner for the Green and White next year.

The high school baseball team lost to the Swaledale nine on the home diamond Tuesday afternoon 4-0. They defeated the Swaledale team 10-2 a few weeks ago at Swaledale.

The Home Economics class went to Mason City Saturday. They visited the Iowa State Brand Creamery Decker,s and one of the Mason City Bakeries. It brought out more clearly some of the facts concerning meat and milk and the importance of cleanliness in their study of cooking.

Due to an oversight the copy for the Senior class play did not include the name of Mildred Schoenwetter.

Grades 5 and 6

Velma Kaduce was absent from grade five all of last week because of illness.

Doris Johnson was absent from grade five last Monday.

Grade six have competed their text book on Health and Cleanliness and now are beginnig their review for semester examination.

Grades 3 and 4

Russell Wade was a visitor in the third and fourth grades Monday.

The third and fourth graders are thoroughly interested in the spring project this year. Each child brought an eggshell to school and dyed it. In them they planted Sweet Alysium The flowers are about an inch and a half high now.

Synthetic Extract Makes Dwarfs Grow

Berkeley, Calif.—Dr. Herbert Mevans, professor of biology and anatomy at the University of California, is credited with proving that dwarfness can be overcome by "synthetic" gland injections.

A little girl who submitted to the treatments responded miraculously. The "synthetic" extract was prepared from the pituitary gland of cattle.

Dr. William Engelbrach of New York, who administered the gland injection on the first human, prepared the report.

From an under-developed child weighting only 37.5 pounds and only 35.5 inches in height, the girl in nine months increased her weight by 7.5 pounds, her height by 2.7 inches and the circumference of her head by 0.6 inches.

Worth 100 Cents on the dollar

CONSIDER investing funds which are temporarily idle in a Certificate of Deposit.

BECAUSE—it does not fluctuate.

BECAUSE—it is not subject to commissions, deductions, or market conditions.

BECAUSE—it is one investment which is always worth 100 cents on the dollar.

A Certificate of Deposit gives you fair return combined with safety of principal. Interest begins immediately.

It will pay you to join the increasing number of investors who are creating considerable surplus by depositing a portion of their funds in this bank at current interest rates.

We would be glad to explain more fully the possibilities of a Certificate of Deposit for you, if you will call—

BANANA, HEAVIEST U. S. FRUIT IMPORT

Fifty-Five Million Stems Delivered in 1931.

Washington.—"If the bananas imported into the United States in 1931 were evenly distributed, every man, woman and child would have received several dozen, for more than 55,000,000 stems of bananas were delivered at our ports," says a bulletin from the National Geographic society.

"While the banana is one of the most popular fruits in the fruit bowls of the United States, it is an alien. Banana plants demand a hot climate with plenty of rainfall. That is why former Central American jungles have become the world's most prolific banana plantations. Central American republics supply more than half of our bananas; Jamaica, about one-fourth, and most of the others come from southern Mexico, Cuba and Colombia.

"The banana started its journey around the Tropics of the world from India and the Malay peninsula. When it reached the West Indies and Central America is as debatable as the origin of the American Indian. It was a stranger in the United States until the latter part of the last century. In 1870, a schooner captain, returning to Boston from Jamaica, brought a stem of bananas as a curiosity. Fifteen years later a company was organized to appease the growing American appetite for bananas.

"Today hundreds of ships, armies of men—skilled and unskilled—miles of railroads, thousands of freight and flat cars, mules, horses and oxen, many square miles of modern warehouses and many millions of dollars are employed annually to handle the banana traffic. The banana has turned vast acres of tropical jungles into food producing regions, and built modern, sanitary villages with hospitals and schools in former fever-infected regions.

Grow From "Eyes."

"The farmer of the United States who purchases acreage for a farm or plantation clears the land before planting. Not so with the banana plantation owner. He clears away weeds and vines, and plants bits of roots of healthy, producing banana plants among native trees. Each bit of root planted must have an 'eye', really a bud, from which a young banana plant sprouts. Later the native trees are felled and many of them are left to protect the young plants from the hot tropical sun.

"By the twelfth month, a banana plant begins to produce fruit. The plant, though it grows from 18 to 40 feet high, is an herb, not a tree. Its 'trunk' is a compact mass of leaves, the new leaves growing inside the old. A huge blossom thrusts itself out of the top of the 'trunk' after several months' growth. The blossom develops rapidly, becomes topheavy and slowly droops over the side of the 'trunk.' Shortly the bracts or blossom leaves fall and for the first time bananas are visible—clusters of tiny green fingers that stick straight out from the stem.

One Stem Per Tree.

"Each stem of bananas delivered at the ports of the United States represents a plant. Therefore, it took more than 55,000,000 plants to supply banana consumers of the United States last year. The old plant succumbs to the blade of plantation workmen but, meanwhile, several sprouts are shooting from 'eyes' in the old tree roots.

"At every stage of their journey to the fruit bowl, bananas are carefully handled to avoid bruising. Temperatures to which they are subjected also are as carefully watched as the temperature of an infant's milk. Too slow or too rapid ripening may mean the loss of whole cargoes of fruit.

"When the plantation manager is advised, perhaps by radio, that a fruit ship is due to arrive at his port and a certain number of stems are expected from his plantation, he dispatches workmen to bring in the required quantity. It takes an expert to select the stems of proper grade for shipment.

"To clip a stem of bananas from its lofty perch might mean destruction of the bananas and much loss of time, so the cutters, equipped with long poles topped with sharp knives, partially cut the plant just below the fruit so that the plant top and stem droop toward the ground. Then a 'backer' or banana carrier steps under the stem; it is clipped by another workman, and carried to a mule, horse, ox, tram or whatever transport is available to start the fruit on the long haul to the ship's hold."

Cotton Flags Float Over Capitol of Mississippi

Jackson, Miss.—Cotton flags are now flying from the Mississippi capitol building here. Walker Woods, secretary of state, ordered the flags recently when the regular state flag and the United States banner became worn. "It's a new use for cotton," he said. "Maybe the government will order its next set for the army and navy out of the same material."

His Lucky Day

Carthage, N. Y.—The only injury incurred by F. H. Lanschlager, fifty-two, when he was struck and knocked down by a train was to his right forefinger.

He was walking along the tracks at the time. The pilot beam of the engine struck him and he was thrown several feet.

Lights of NEW YORK

By WALTER TRUMBULL

There is a wealthy widower in New York, one of whose daughters lives with him in his rather elaborate home. He is a man of quick temper and strong will who, when he is crossed or if anything occurs which is not to his liking, roars like a couple of lions. Invariably, he eats one egg for breakfast, and has done so for years, but for some reason he likes to see more than one egg on the platter. Perhaps he likes to make a selection. I don't know. At any rate, his cook apparently got tired of seeing the other eggs returned and one morning sent up a platter with a single egg on it.

The head of the house took one look at it and then began to roar in his best manner. He demanded to know why in the blue blazes he was served with a single egg. His butler, an old retainer, told him frankly that he had not in the memory of the oldest inhabitant eaten more than one egg and that the cook undoubtedly had concentrated on cooking that one in the best possible manner. The man roared that he would have things cooked and served in his own house as he goldinged pleased and said to the butler:

"You go out there and tell that fat, addle-pated excuse for a cook to poach eggs and keep on poaching eggs, until I send her word to stop."

The butler delivered the message, the man ate his egg, and then departed hastily for his car, waiting to take him to his office.

Pretty soon his daughter appeared for breakfast. Practically covering the table were platters of eggs. She asked what it meant and the butler explained. She asked how many eggs the cook had poached and the butler said he thought the count had reached about three dozen, and that supplies were running low. The daughter, who was not in the slightest afraid of her father, for all his roaring, smiled a wicked smile.

"Send out for more eggs," she said, "and tell the cook to keep right on following orders."

About an hour later she telephoned her father.

"Don't you," she said, "think it's about time to tell her to stop?"

"What in blue blazes are you talking about?" demanded the head of the house. "I'm busy."

"Oh, all right," said his daughter sweetly. "Only the table is covered and the sideboard is covered and there are platters of eggs on all the chairs and out into the living room, and on the piano. You gave the order, so of course I don't want to interfere. There are ten dozen poached eggs here waiting for you now, but you know your own capacity."

And she hung up the receiver.

When Gene Tunney was traveling in England, he was accosted by a small boy who produced a little book and asked for the retired heavyweight champion's autograph. Tunney gave it to him, and the kid thanked him and said:

"Of course, I don't know a lot about you, but I have Joe Beckett's autograph in here."

As Joe Beckett ended most of his fights lying down, Tunney was not complimented. Gene used to receive a big mail in England, and a large portion of it was from persons offering to sell him public houses. Bombadier Wells owns a bar, and does a good business.

Many Bird Species Flock to Roosevelt Sanctuary

New York.—Since the establishment of the Roosevelt bird sanctuary, in 1024, more than 130 species of birds have taken shelter at the spot marking the last resting place of Theodore Roosevelt at Oyster Bay, Long Island, according to an announcement from the National Association of Audubon societies, which owns and administers the sanctuary.

The Roosevelt bird sanctuary is a memorial to Theodore Roosevelt who, when President, was instrumental in establishing 51 federal bird reserves. Roosevelt's keen, personal interest in birds was an important factor in popularizing the bird-sanctuary movement, and today his grave is surrounded by a 12-acre tract given to the Audubon association for a bird sanctuary in perpetuity.

Doctors Operate on Stomach of Infant

Brockton, Mass.—A major operation on the four-day-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Costello of Providence, R. I., has been successfully performed at Ducy hospital.

Soon after the infant's birth, it was discovered that the stomach opening was not sufficient for it to function. To save the baby's life, surgeons removed its stomach, severed muscles to provide an opening for food, and then replaced it.

Ed's total for the week thus far mounts to twelve car loads, all cat- le, with a total of 286 head. Satur- day he shipped out 4 car loads rom Clear Lake and 1 from Ven- ura. Monday he shipped 5 car loads ut of Clear Lake. Today, Wednes- day he shipped 2 car loads out of Thornton.

GOOD OUTLOOK FOR OAT CROP

Cool, dry weather over most of Iowa the latter part of April and the first few days of May, 1932, slowed up the growth of oats noticeably which raises a question as to what is the most favorable kind of weather through the growing season for oats.

Studies of weather as affecting oats yield in progress by the Weather and Crop Bureau of the Iowa Department of Agriculture, show that in the past 44 years te highest average yield of oats followed a cool, wet March, a warm dray, April, a cool dry May and a cool wet June. These results seem so different in some respects from the general impresion of the people, that they are being given intensive study. A cool wet March means late seeding and yet the plot experiments of Iowa State College at Ames indicate that seeding near the date of April 1 gives the best yields.

The poorest yields have followed a warm, wet April. The average for eight warm wet Aprils is 30.0 bushels per acre, while the average for fifteen warm dry Aprils is 36.5 bushels per acre from the four groupings of weather; cool-wet, warm-wet, cool-dry and warm-dry, or the months of March to July, inclusive.

April, 1932, averaged above normal in temperature except in a few northeast counties, and below normal in rainfall except in a narrow belt from Plymouth and Cherokee counties southeast to the south central counties and in a few localities in the eastern portion of the State If the oats crop of 1932 conforms to past history, it should yield well as the result of the warm, dry April, regardless of its apparent slow growth at the time this is written.

WATCH YOUR MINNOWS

It may not be generally known, but fishermen who seine the Iowa lakes and rivers for minnows for bait must not take the game fish fry for that purpose.... these must be returned to the water. The reason for this is obvious. Only a fifteen-foot seine may be used with a one-fourth inch mesh, unless a special permit is obtained from the fish and game department, when a thirtyfoot seine with the same mesh can be operated, but then only in the boundary rivers and inland lakes. Such seine cannot be used in the inland rivers of Iowa.

They are being paid one cent for each poppy and by the time the ten million for the "Poppy Day" sale are completed their earnings will total $100,000.

WEED ERADICATION AND CORN DISEASES TO BE STUDIED

Seed Corn Disease Tests To Be Run On M. Sprole Farm

Hancock county demonstrational farm has been located in Avery township on the farm of V. A. Cook.

R. H. Porter, plant pathologist of the Extension Service is working through the Farm Bureau on this farm where corn and small grain disease work and weed eradication methods will be carried on. On the corn ground four acres have been given an application of 100 lbs superphosphate per acre. The fertilizer was applied crosswise of the direction the corn will be planted. Through this fertilized strip as well as the rest of the field all but 16 rows of the corn will be treated with Semesan Jr. for the control of dry rot diseases of corn. The 16 rows of corn will be non-treated and this fall a yield and disease test will be checked on the corn treated that is on the fertilized as well as the none fertilized ground. Results will also be checked on the non-treated corn where it is planted on the fertilized and non-fertilized ground.

The results will show the benefit, if any, as to the development of corn diseases on ground that has been given an application of commercial fertilizer as compared to no application. It will show the increase in yield of non-treated as compared to treated seed corn.

With respect to weed control, chlorates and CK will be used on small areas of quack grass. On Mr. Cooks soybean ground a spring tooth harrow will be used until the planting time and then weekly cultivation will be practiced as long as possible. A surface cultivator will be used on a part of the field for all cultivation especially where any perennial weeds are present. The yield will be compared from area surface cultivator is used as against area cultivated with shovel plow.

On the M. Sprole farm in Garfield township a seed corn disease test will be run using three commercial seed corn dusts, namely, Merko, Semean Jr. and Barbak III.

Three or four varieties of corn will be used namely, Hybrid, Ia. 31, McArthur's Golden King, Pannhoff Yellow and Mikesh Silver King. Each of these varieties will be planted as follows: 4 rows check or no-treatment, 4 rows treated with Merko, 4 rows treated with Semesan Jr. and 4 rows treated with Barbak III. The stand will be checked during the growing season and this fall the plot will be harvested and yield determined on the various treatments.

On a similiar plot last year the treated corn gave an increased average yield of 2.2 bu. per acre.

253 Fishing Licenses Issued

The county recorder, Mrs. Fern Katter, issued 253 fishing licenses in April. This is 100 less than last year during April. With the opening of the season for game fish on May 15 it is expected the number will equal the number for last year.

190 Take Examinations

One hundred ninety eight grade pupils in Hancock county have completed examination. Exams were held in all towns in the county except Hayfield.

Correction

In the list of new court cases published in the Times last week the following appeared: "John Hancock Mut. Lf. Ins. Co. vs. Henry W. leke, et al. Piff. asks judgment on note & mtge & for foreclosure."

The mistake was made in the spelling of the defendant in this case. It should have been "Henry W. Luebke."

GERMAN INVENTS NEW DIVING BELL

Expected to Reach Depth of 3,000 Meters.

Berlin, Germany.—The announcement of the American explorer, William Beebe, that he expected to reach a depth of 1,800 meters with a new diving bell has brought to light the work of a young German engineer, who claims to have perfected a diving apparatus capable of reaching a depth of 3,000 meters and of propelling itself electrically along the sea floor, fastening lines mechanically to submerged wreckage and greatly simplifying diving operations as they have been practiced to date.

Hans Philipps of Koeln-Muelheim has worked for five years on a small egg-shaped diving bell with a rudder and propellor and with an electrically manipulated beak something like that of a bird, and he claims that his invention can dive to greater depths than any yet in use and can withstand greater pressure.

Philipps' bell is devised with double shell, forming an air chamber which contains liquid air. This can be heated electrically to expand and form any desired pressure from the inside to withstand the pressure of the water as the bell is lowered deeper into the sea.

The apparatus receives its energy from a mother ship, which also furnishes telephonic connection and the air supply. Inside the diving bell are two separated compartments, one containing motors, and the other for the operator, containing the oxygen supply measuring instruments, telephone and control.

The control, however, becomes automatic in case of any disturbance, signaling to the mother ship above and at the same time cutting off the stream of liquid air from above and releasing ballast water so that the device immediately begins to rise.

The diver himself is protected through special oxygen supply, and he can manipulate the device along the ocean's floor at the rate of three to four kilometers an hour. Special glass forms the eyes of the apparatus, and a pincer-like claw can be operated electrically in front for fastening on to sunken wreckage.

The inventor hopes to be able to put his find to profitable use not only in search of many sunken "treasure ships," but also mentions the possibility of using it in laying and servicing the long-dreamed transatlantic telephone cable. He has already patented his device in Germany and several foreign countries.

Mountain of Gold Free for Asking, None Asks

Colorado Springs.—Nearly $4,500,000 worth of gold lies within the city limits of Colorado Springs and owners of the Golden Cycle mill and residents of the city are anxious to find some one who will take this great fortune away.

Unguarded, this vast mountain of gold, about four city blocks long, two blocks wide and 100 feet high in places, has accumulated in the past 25 years at the rate of $150,000 per year.

On windy days, lawns and carpets are covered with gold dust and folks have to dust the powdery metal off their clothes.

But it would cost whoever attempts to get this gold about twice as much as the metal is worth. The mill dumps about 300,000 tons of earth and gold dust yearly, and now there is a staggering total of more than 7,000,000 tons in the "gold hill." The gold content is about 50 cents per ton.

1,500 U. S. Firms Have Branches in Germany

Leipzig, Germany.—Fifteen hundred American firms at present maintain branches in Germany, and 79 American factories are engaged in turning out marketable products from American raw and half finished material, according to a recent survey. A large proportion of the trade with Germany is carried on through the Leipzig fair.

First Woman Air Cop

Odd Forms of "Exercise"

Dr. Harrison Gray Dyer, Washington (D. C.) biologist who died three years ago, had a unique solution of the exercise problem. Recently workmen engaged in tearing down his former home found an extensive labyrinth of passages and excavations underground. Some of the passages were neatly cemented and fitted with doors. Dyar's widow explained that her husband, ordered by his physician to get more exercise and, being unable to get out into the country, arose at five o'clock each morning for four years and put in several hours of digging daily.

Circus Popular in Russia

Lotto, one of the favorite pastimes in Soviet Russia, being barred because of a shortage of cash, wrestling circuses are drawing large crowds there. The admission is cheap and the wrestling is declared to be, in point of quality, second to none. One wrestler has been known to appear more than 100 nights in succession without meeting defeat. Followers of a knight of the mat will attend every match until their man is defeated.

Triumph for Age

Beauty competitions seldom end in such a way as one in Paris, to find the loveliest pair of eyes. The entrants were all dressed alike, in wide-hooded cloaks that covered all the body except the eyes. Finally one pair were so outstanding the judges immediately decided. The process of removing the disguise caused a murmur of surprise through the audience. The "loveliest eyes in Paris" belonged to an old woman of seventy!

World's Motor Cycles

Germany now has the largest number of motor cycles in use, 721,237 being registered. This was a gain of 112,895 in a single year. Formerly Great Britain led the world and was known as the "home of the motor cycle," but the comparative number for Great Britain now is 698,878. Ninety per cent of the machines are made in Germany. Some American cycles are imported.

Swedes Enjoy Long Life

A Swedish record for longevity seems to be held by the inhabitants of the little parish of Kisa, in central Sweden. The latest figures showed that out of a population of 4,000, 92 persons were over eighty, and of these, ten were over ninety. Some years ago Kisa had Sweden's oldest inhabitant, the farmer Sven Eriksson, who died at one hundred and five and a half years.

Windmills Fight Frost

Don Quixote fought windmills, but up in San Joaquin valley, Calif., they are using windmills to fight frost. An electrically driven propeller of the type used in large airplanes is mounted on top of a steel derrick. It starts enough breeze to keep the frost off of twenty acres of citrus. Six machines have been in service for some time.

BRILLIANTS

A critic is seldom constructive.

Obedience is the mother of success.

Self-control is high discretion.

To the father of twins life seems but a span.

A firm name sometimes indicates business infirmity.

The average man's ambition is to lower his record.

The orator who deals largely in quotations speaks volumes.

An old bachelor says that a marriage certificate is a noose-paper.

A thoroughgoing egotist is usually devoid of the sense of humor.

If men were like clocks they could all go on tick.

The more checks a spendthrift has the faster he goes.

Before marriage men and women argue; after that they dispute.

In casual conversation about people's faults, every gun is likely to be loaded. Be careful.

Because you know the real facts, is not always a reason why you should butt in and spoil the talk.

A profession is something in which you get paid for your reputation as well as your work.

Even the wages of sin have to pay an income tax. Evidently, no money is tainted.

After years of hard times, people might begin to feel angry. But at whom?

Taxes always go up after wars; and nations always insult each other and get into wars.

Getting rich consists in merely laying aside a comfortable residue every year from your twentieth birthday until your fiftieth.

First thing learned in studying journalism is that sections as wide as your hand can be sawed out with a blue pencil without spoiling a story.

Fish Without Eyes

Blind fish swim in subterranean caverns 1,500 feet beneath San Antonio, Texas, scientists there believe. Specimens have been sucked up through pumping plant pipes of the San Antonio Public Service company. The eyeless fish are light pink in color when seen above the ground, probably due to the breakdown of cell composition. Water pressure in their cavernous haunts is about 500 pounds a square inch, whereas atmospheric pressure at sea level is 14.7 pounds. Specimens, 3 to 6 inches long, invariably die on reaching the surface.

Horse-Radish

In one of the showings of horses in the coliseum at the state fair the judges had great difficulty determining the first and second awards.

"Have them canter and lope," requested the judges.

"Why, mamma, that's what we had for dinner," exclaimed a young hopeful.

"What, dear?"

"Why, canterlope." — Indianapolis News.

Can-Opener Age

Says a passing item: "Not five families in a hundred in this country have even a part-time servant." In the good (?) old days before women's clubs and bridge clubs 99 out of every 100 families had an all-time servant in dear old mother. But not any more!—Cincinnati Enquirer.

GET REAL VIEW OF WASHINGTON AS MAN

Now that Prof. Albert Bushnell Hart says again that George Washington swore during a cabinet meeting, there is a double indictment against him. He also swore during the Revolution. It is said that on one occasion he threw his hat to the ground in a fury and jumped up and down on it, uttering strong talk the while. The more sacriligious of the historians say that he was even vulgar occasionally. It is known that he drank in moderation, played cards for money, went to cockfights and raced horses, as all men of his station in life did during the Eighteenth century in Virginia. The best word picture of him done by anybody, that of Thackeray, shows a Washington not greatly unlike the contemporaries.

In history, as in art and religion, there are fundamentalists and modernists. The writers of the latter group go much too far in their efforts to "humanize" him They distort him into cheapness and vulgarity. The fundamentalists still put a hatchet in his hand and make him innocent of even a white lie. Professor Hart and Thackeray are on the middle ground.

As the Parson Weems version of Washington prevailed while the middle men of today were coming to maturity, the silly old legends still prevail. They are dying hard, but they are dying. In another 20 or 25 years there will be a far better conception of this gigantic figure as he really was—"the first, the last, the best"—neither a plaster saint nor a devil may-care.—Boston Herald.

Just How New Yorker Happened to Be "Let In"

John Stewart Bryan, himself a Virginian, tells of a man from Charleston, S. C., who returned home from a visit to New York. Somebody asked him how he enjoyed himself and the colonel said: "Fine! We had a great dinner at Delmonico's. Colonel Ravenell was there; Major Elliott from Columbia was there; three of the Screvens came from Savannah, and there was General Breckenridge from Kentucky and Beverly Randolph from Virginia."

"That made eight, with you?"

"No, there were nine. Oh, yes; there was a fellow from New York there."

"How did he get in?"

"Oh," said the colonel, "he was giving the dinner!"—Boston Globe.

One on Einstein

There is a story current that in the days when even a street car ride in Germany cost some hundreds of thousands of marks, Professor Einstein of relativity fame had an argument with a conductor over the correctness of the change. The conductor finally convinced Professor Einstein that he was wrong, and when Einstein apologized, the conductor said: "Never mind, sir. That's all right. I can see that arithmetic is not your strong point."—Hollywood Daily Citizen.

Twisting Railroad

One of southwest Virginia's most picturesque landmarks passed out of existence with suspension of the Marion & Rye railroad, which ran from Marion 18 miles south to Sugar Grove. The tracks traversed hazardous mountain territory, the path being so tortuous that before reaching the end of one line, a house on the way had been passed three times.

This Machine Age

According to a survey by Joseph W. Roe, professor of industrial engineering at New York university, it would require 12,000,000,000 servants to do the work that machinery performs each day in the United States. It is estimated that for every man, woman and child in this country there is generated power equal to that of 100 servants.

"You don't have to borrow it," replied Mr. Growcher. "Somebody is always willing to come along and hand it to you gratis."

NATURE LAVISH IN GIFTS TO BRAZIL

Brazil has features of distinctive interest both in the universe in general and to ourselves in particular. Kipling once said that the region over which the benevolent and bewhiskered Dom Pedro II ruled, "is a world in itself." Nor did he overshoot the mark.

With an area of 3,275,510 square miles, Brazil is greater in extent than the United States, excluding Alaska and the insular possessions. Some of the states are larger than the largest European countires. Isaac F. Marcasson writes, in the Saturday Evening Post. Amazonas, for example, is five times the size of Great Britain, while Matto Grosso could cover all France twice.

Putting it in another way, Brazil is bigger than the whole European continent, not counting a part of Russia, and is the fifth country anywhere in geographical scope.

The average man thinks of Brazil in terms of Rio de Janeiro, loveliest of all harbors—it lives up to the advertisement—and his cup of breakfast coffee. The republic accounts for nearly 70 per cent of the total coffee supply But Brazil is much more To no land has nature been more generous in the bestowal of her rich gifts of raw material.

An observer has stated that if a deluge should again inundate this world, sparing only Brazil and the United States, the two countries could still carry on their lives and industries with one supplementing the other.

Brazil could supply rubber, sugar, coffee, rice, bananas, meat, cacao, iron ore manganese and timber, especially mahogany, while we could contribute wheat, corn, copper, cotton fruit, manufactured articles of all kinds and capital. Practically the only essentials lacking would be tin and platinum.

Voices From the Past

Phonographic preservation has not been altogether successful. Not all records have stood the test of time. At a recent hearing, a message recorded by Cardinal Manning could be heard clearly, a speech by H. M. Stanley and a recitation by Lord Tennyson of his "Charge of the Light Brigade" were partially reproduced The lady who recorded Cardinal Manning's message is still alive, and tells how, after she had explained the working of the instrument, the great ecclesiastic said to her: "Ah, young lady if you had lived a century ago you would have been burned for a witch!"

Hogs Eat Grasshoppers

Late in the summer some sections of the state of Nebraska were reported to be badly overrun with grasshoppers. Many methods were tried to hold them in check but it remained for a pig breeder to discover one simple plan to destroy them This pig man discovered that his shoats would eat the grasshoppers and if left in a badly infested area would gradually devour or drive away the pests, and make good gains in weight at the same time.—Montreal Herald.

Girls Raising Goats

Goat raising is becoming a favorite vocation for girls in Britain. The milk of the animals is becoming increasingly popular there, and girls at the recent dairy show in London said that the work is easy and pleasant. "To say that anyone is as silly as a goat is to pay him a very high compliment," said one fair exhibitor, "for the goat is a most intelligent animal."

Transition That Marks End of Honeymoon

A tale of broken love, related in a prosaic San Francisco court. Just one in many thousands, and yet it yielded what writers call a "good line" which might have done credit to Oscar Wilde.

The man had been relating his marital troubles, following step by step the path that had finally brought about the divorce. "She stopped loving me as soon as the honeymoon ended," he declared, "and from then on, the skids were under our romance."

"But some married couples claim that the honeymoon never ends," remarked the court. "Just when was your honeymoon over, and how could you tell?"

"Well," replied this Solomon from the oil fields, "a honeymoon is over when a woman quits dropping her eyes and begins raising her voice."

Island Bird Sanctuary

St. Kilda, a lonely island some seven miles in circumference off the outer Hebrides, has been sold by the former owner, Sir Reginald MacLeod, to an ornithologist who wishes his identity to remain hidden. This buyer plans to keep the island in its natural state so it may remain an ocean sanctuary for the sea birds which migrate there in great numbers. Under the terms of the proposed plan it will be possible for tourists to land and visit the huge island aviary, but no buildings will be placed on the land.

Fortunate Gold Seekers

Out of work and with little money, A. N. Foreward and his wife went to Auburn, Calif., from Los Angeles. They had heard about gold mining, but knew little about it. However, they set up a sluice box, had a miner show them how to pick the raw gold, and in six weeks banked dust worth $264. Their sluice was set up in the Last Chance mining district.

Marriage Easy in Poland

Young lovers in parts of Poland have adopted a motto of "marriage without priest, incense or vodka." The new ceremony consists merely of the swearing of an "oath" before a local Communist worker, who then declares the marriage valid. An Ukranian newspaper of communistic tendencies publishes the names of those thus united.

EASY TO STIR HATE IN HINDU PILGRIMS

The monotony of village life, relieved only by occasional market days, has for centuries been brightened by pilgrimage to sacred places. Here the sins of the pious Hindu are washed away by bathing under priestly guidance in the sacred pool. Hither come traders from all parts to sell their wares, elephants, cattle, horses, fine Dacca muslins and machine-made cotton goods, books, household utensils, toys and all the litle articles in daily use among the people. Hither come the maharaja in his glory of elephants and retinue, processions of holy men, naked fakirs, marvels and freaks, calves with five legs, children with two heads, giants, puppet shows and all the appurtenances of the medieval fair in Europe.

Formerly, the pilgrims came in hundreds, on foot or riding, by oxcart, elephant or boat; now they come in thousands by rail and motor car. Recently, there were 3,000,000 at the religious fair at Allahabad. For months beforehand, great preparations are made for the comfort of these crowds, their lodging, food, water supply and sanitation. Happy, orderly crowds they are in their clashing harmonies of color, grateful for kindness and attention, enjoying the fun of the fair no less than the religious merit of the outing. But let some religious dissension arise and all is changed in a moment to blows and shouting, vile insults and a tiger-like ferocity that will hurl people alive into flames and dance with joy at the victim's agony. —From "India Insistent," by Sir Harcourt Butler.

SIGHTS OF LONDON LINGER IN MEMORY

Perhaps there is no city in the world about which more books have been written than London. There are a thousand Londons—those found in Limehouse, Rotten row, Bloomsbury, Cheapside, Petticoat lane, the Strand, West end, Leicester square, Whitechapel—one could go on endlessly just writing the names of the streets and neighborhoods in London that have been made famous by an army of poets and novelists.

But merely because London is so vast, endless and varied, only the outstanding sights of that fascinating city can be described in these short articles.

There are, for instance, the Whitehall Horse Guards. The ceremony of mounting the guard, which takes place every morning in front of this historic old place, never fails to attract a crowd. The moment the new mounted soldiers in their brightly colored uniforms relieve their fellows and get into position they are like men of stone, and their horses seem to be also of stone—neither ever seems to move to the slightest degree.

Only specially privileged persons are permitted to drive through the gateway and arch. Beyond there lies the Horse Guards' parade, where every year, on the king's birthday, the magnificent military spectacle, "Trooping the Colors," is performed before his majesty.

And yet, as interesting as are Whitehall and the other famous sights such as the National gallery with its scores of masterpieces of art, the unmatchable British museum, Big Ben, the houses of parliament and Buckingham palace, none of them are the London you remember after you have left her vast midst.

Beans Worn as Jewelry

Famed as an actress and as the possessor of valuable jewelry, a woman appeared at a party in Paris recently in a pink gown with what appeared to be three rows of curiously shaped pink pearls. After all had admired their beauty, she confessed that the necklace was composed of haricot beans cleverly tinted and strung together. To complete her vegetarian ornamentation her long earrings were of tinted rice grains.

Sales resistance is the triumph of mind over patter.

Mother: "What made you stay so late? Have a flat tire?"

Daughter, dreamily: "No, mother I'd hardly call him that!"

Mother: "Jimmy, did you get that loaf of bread I sent you for?"

Jimmy: "No. The store was closed.'

Mother: "What! Closed at this hour of the day!" ?

Jimmy: "Sure. There was a sign on the door that said 'Home Baking'."

"And do you think I'd read it, ma'am?"

OBITUARY OF CLARENCE V. TANNER

Clarence Tanner was born Nov. 27, 1904 on a farm in Liberty Twp and had lived all his life in that vicinity.

He was married on Feb. 23, 1929 to Miss Mildred Neiman of Kanawha and to this union was born one daughter, Romona.

During their married life they have lived on the home place about four and one half miles south west of Klemme and have farmed the place in partnership with his two younger brothers, Luther and Robert.

Last summer he was taken ill with undelent ever and in August he was confined to the Mercy hospital for two weeks or more for treatment, during which time he was dangerously sick for a while.

He later recovered sufficiently to be about the place and to carry on his work part of the time but in an unsatisfactory manner, as he never fully regained his strength.

During the last few weeks his health had again been failing, aking work on the farm very irksome and finally out of the question altogether.

Plans had been made for him to go to Iowa City for treatment, on the morning following the date of his death which occurred at his home on Monday P. M., May 9. His age at the time of his going was 27 years, 5 months and 12 days.

Mr. Tanner was a member of the Liberty Methodist Church and as a boy took considerable interest in Sunday School at which he was a regular attendant.

He leaves to mourn his loss his wife and daughter; his mother, Mrs John Tanner; two brothers, Luther and Robert; and three sisters, Bernice, Francis and Florence. Likewise his grandmother, Mrs. Lena Tanner of Chaute, Kan. and many other more distant relatives and friends.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to take this opportunity of thanking our neighbors and friends for their kindness and help and for the flowers and words of sympathy extended to us in our recent sorrow.

County Agent Gives Advice To Farmers On Soybean Planting

EDITOR OF THE CORWITH HUSTLER SAYS—

"Boys and girls, the smutmill, supposed to be a cleanser, has commenced to grind and produces only chaff. Vituperation has been injected into an otherwise clean campaign and Chris Jacobs and John Suunballe are the gainers. The man who says Ray Roberts broke up the Farm Bureau may be a humorist, but his wisecracks prove to be boomerangs and the gentlemen he knocks profit therby. The old man, whom we would judge to be seventy-two years old and one foot in the grave, may be in his dotage, as he overestimates the value of his knocks and really believes people take him seriously. A bad case of sour grapes is right. Thus saith a shirt-tail full of type.

GARNER MAY HAVE NEWSPAPER

We have been informed that Garner is to have a newspaper Garner is a good town, has a lot of good people, and presents a good field for a good editor. But if he constructs his editorials on sand a tidal wave of diskust and resentment will sweep his playhouse away.—Corwith Hustler.

NOW IS THE TIME TO PREPARE SOYBEAN GROUND

4-H Club Enrollment Indicates Larger Membership Than Before

Now is the time to start preparing your soybean ground. It is the tendency with your soybean ground to wait until the last minute to prepare the seed bed wich is a mistake because soybeans require a clean ground.

Grow your soybeans on the poorest ground you have providing it is sweet and good results will be obtained. Work the ground at least once a week with a disk or quack digger up until the time of planting and cleaner, better quality hay or beans will result.

Many who grow soybeans have followed this practice and state that they never cultivated the beans more than once if at all. Instead of cultivating they cleaned the ground prior to planting and dragged often after planting. Dragging the beans until they or 8 to 12 inches high will not hurt them. However, on the late draggings it is advisable not to look back, because if you do you will swear that you are destroying the beans. Care should be taken that the harrow or drag does not become clogged with corn stalks or other trash because this will cause the bean plants to be dragged out. Then, too, it is not advisable to drag the beans early in the monring. Better wait until afternoon, when beans are not moist.

A beet drill and plow are ideal machines for planting and plowing beans but if not available use your corn planter. When using corn planter put in large plots and run wide open. Many double row with a corn planter which is a good practice. However, if the ground is inclined to be weedy , single row and cultivate. It is possible to cultivate when double rowed by placing the shanks of the cultivator in close and taking off one shovel. Many have built cultivators especially for soybeans which is advisable if you are going to continue to grow beans.

If you put in beans be sure to inoculate the seed. It pays big dividens. Use the culture inoculant in preference to the dry or powered culture.

4-H Club enrollment this year from all indications will be much larger than ever before. 40 Baby beef calves are on feed, 42 dairy heifer calves have been enrolled to date and the pig clubs show an increase along with sheep and colts. There is still time to enroll in Ton Litter. Dairy, Market Pig, Sow and Litter, Mare and Colt and Sheep so don't fail to drop a line to the Farm Bureau office enrolling in one or all of the aforementioned clubs.

NOTICE TO BIDDERS

Notice is given that the Town of Klemme will require approximately 385 yards of gravel for street repair from the Wm. Stille pit and bids for the gravel and hauling combined per yard will be received by the Town Clerk. All bids must be in by June 6th and the right is reserved to reject any or all bids.

NOW WE ARE FISHING

An angler had a four-hours' tussel with a huge salmon before he was able to land it. When at length he had made sure of his catch he took it home and related his triumph to his wife, and laid special stress on the time it took and the energy he had to expend before he could land the salmon. After he had finished he waited anxiously for praise. For some moments there was silence; then, with a puzzled expression his wife looked up from her knitting.

"But, my dear," she said, "why didn't you cut the string and get rid of the brute?"

FIGHT EUROPEAN STARLING

Serious Bird Pest Increasing In Large Numbers In Iowa

European Starlings, one of the worst of bird pests, are being found more often in Iowa.

J. E. Guthrie of the Zoology department, Iowa State College urges that all Iowans war against this bird as they are destroyers of fruit and rob the nests of other birds. They fly in flocks and when they start in on an orchard, a vineyard or a cherry tree, they leave the spot in ruins as far as a paying crop is concerned.

The starlings can best be described by saying that they are a speckled, short tailed blackbird with a long yellow beak.

Old English "Sport" of Fox Hunting Endangered

Would England still be England, without its hunting rallies? Is this sport of centuries, the merry chase of elusive foxes, fated to die out?

It is unlikely that there is any feature of English country life so typical of the customs and traditions of the nation, as fox hunting. This being so, a recent statement of the earl of Rosebery, on accepting the mastership of the Whadden chase, that this sport is in a very critical condition, came rather as a surprise. He declared that five neighboring packs are having difficulty in finding masters, and that sportsmen must rally around now, or see fox hunting go the way of hawking. His lordship ascribed the decline to hard times and high taxation.

This might be considered bad news, even for the foxes, for from accounts of this sport that I have read, it would seem that the prey gets as much fun out of eluding the huntsmen, as the latter do in the galloping pursuit. After some of these old wily masters of the craft have learned the business, their chances of becoming a mere brush are comfortably few. Why, there are even some of these old fellows who pay visits to the kennels, if the hunt is not up regularly, to see what is keeping their little playmates! At least that's the story told.—Border Cities Star.

How English Merchant of 1480 Sought Custom

One of the earliest posters ever printed in England is to be seen in the Bodleian library, and concerns a Sarum service book, printed in 1480 by Caxton. It reads as follows: "If it pleases any man spirituel or temporel to bye our pyes of two or three commemoracious of Sailsburi Use, emprynted after the form of this prese't letre, whiche ben wel and truly correct, late hym come to Westmonester into the almonestrye at the reed pole, and he shall have them good and chepe." The manner of presentation is somewhat unenterprising. The goods advertised belonged to the Middle ages, which were fast dying. But a new force had been let loose, which in the course of the next century was to revolutionize not only the art of advertising, but the whole of European culture.

FLY-HIGH

Now Fly-High, you know, is the special bird of the elves. He has a great red body and enormous black wings.

"Come, Fly-High," called Effie Elf.

And from somewhere—no one could hardly tell where—Fly-High swooped down into Elfland.

"Here I am," said Fly-High. For as Fly-High is only a bird of Elfland he can talk, and very often he explains the trips the elves take.

"Hurrah!" shouted Effie Elf. "You came so quickly. We want to see our cousins, the members of the oaf family.

"Will you take us to Oafland?"

"By all means," said Fly-High.

"Shall we start right away?" asked all the elves.

"I am ready," said Fly-High. "I am just anxious for a good fly. I want to stretch my wings and feel the wind against them.

"And I want to feel all the little elves on my back."

"That's our wondrous Fly-High," said the elves, dancing happily about.

"But, Fly-High, do you suppose there would be room on your back for the members of the Bogey family and the Gnomes? A great many of them want to go with us.

"We're Off at Last."

"Do you think you could manage us all?"

"Certainly, certainly, by all means," said Fly-High. "Let's be off."

So all the elves and a great many of the gnomes and Bogeys climbed on Fly-High's back, and his broad black wings spread way out until every little creature had a fine, soft, feathery seat.

"We're off at last," said Fly-High.

"And let's go quickly," said the elves.

They flew along so very quickly, and as they flew they passed by birds who were chirping and singing.

The birds were not frightened by the enormous size of Fly-High, for they knew he was the bird of Elfland, and that he would never do them any harm.

At last they all reached the spot where the members of the Oaf family were.

All the family joined in the trip and a wonderful, wonderful trip they had.

At the end of it the members of the Oaf family asked the Elves to send around word once more that there were no dangerous, naughty little creatures among the Oaf family.

So many untrue stories had gone around about them, and the Elves promised.

In fact they wanted to see the members of the Oaf family particularly this time to ask them if they didn't want those messages to go around again.

"And tell them that not a single member of the Bogey family would hurt them," said the members of the Bogey family.

"It's cruel of creatures to say we'll catch children. We wouldn't hurt a single child for anything in the world—whether good or naughty."

And the Elves knew this was true.

Be a Problem

Mr. and Mrs. Bust were very pleased with the new twins. Many and furious had been the arguments over the naming of the little darlings. But at last they had agreed, and now they were at the church for the christening ceremony.

Mother was holding the little girl, while father had the boy.

The clergyman turned to the mother.

"Well, Mrs. Bust—what is the little girl's Christian name to be?"

"Florence May."

And how about the little boy?"

"John Will."

Chooses Life Work

One day when Bobby had disobeyed his mother, she told him that if he was naughty again, he would be given to the rag man.

The next day when an admiring aunt asked Bobby what he was going to be when he grew up, he answered:

"I'm going to be a rag man and pick up little boys."

Music Memory

Doris was playing "Rock of Ages" on the piano, while six-year-old Joan was sitting nearby rocking her doll.

Grandma said: "That's a beautiful piece, I think."

"So do I," piped up Joan.

"Why, do you know what that piece is?" Doris asked Joan.

"Sure," said Joan; "Rock my baby!"

From Other Papers

Britt:— The barn on the farm tenanted by Mr. and Mrs. Carl Franzen was struck by lightning Thursday morning about 4 o'clock, but luckily did not catch fire. The lightning struck the hay carrier track, entered a large door and was traced to the posts which carried the shock to the ground. Some of the timbers and barn frame were shattered and the noise created by the impact rendered seven horses deaf. Mr. Franzen had been in the barn just before the lightning struck to look after his young stock and it was while he was re-entering the house that the barn was struck.

Humboldt:— The Republican office had to call Joe Kautzky of Ft. Dodge Tuesday morning of this week, to open the door of the vault the combination of which had been lost.,.

It had not been the habit of the working force to lock the vault at night, but Monday someone in the office took in fifty cents and it was promptly locked in the vault. The next morning it was discovered that the combination had been lost, so Mr. Kautzky' call. He opened the safe promptly and efficiently.

Clear Lake:— Work has already been started in re-routing and widening the road from the state park to Bayside. The west end is being graded and widened and the S turn near the Lake will be eliminated. A top dressing will be given which will do much toward keeping down the dust on this much traveled highway.

Renwick:— Will Beenen called out several of his neighbors Friday evening to see a strange bird walking around in his garden. The bird proved to be a rail, once quite numerous in this vicinity, but seldom seen now except on marshy ground. It is a game bird, but few people shoot them for food because they are so skinny. They are brown and blacked striped and quite pretty.

Titonka:— A couple of Algona young men (we are not going to mention their names) came to Titonka a few weeks ago to attend a dance. They arrived speeding and returned home speeding. They also left fifteen bones to buy gravel for Titonka streets.

Nora Springs:— Every now and then we hear about the detriment caused by married women taking the place of men who are out of employment. We are at a loss to see the difference when a man and his wife hold positions and when an old maid and an old bachelor each have a job. A married couple will likely raise a family and these children must be fed, clothed and housed. From the standpoint of a consumer the married couple, each working are worth more to the community than the single couple working independently.

SPRAY WHEN PETALS FALLING
Apples Need Application Of Lime Sulphur and Lead Arsenate

Iowa fruit growers should apply the "10 day" or combination spray when approximately three fourths the petals have fallen.

This spray applied from 15 to 20 days following the calyx spray, is designed to control codling moth, and apple scab, as well as the green fruit worm and other pests of less importance.

For apple scab treatment, use a spray made of 1 gallon of lime sulfur to 40 gallons of water. If dry lime sulphur is preferred the mixture should be three pounds lime sulfur to 40 gallons of water.

The spray for codling moth applied at this time should consist of 1 pound lead arsenate to 50 gallons of water.

Excellent bloom and fine weather for pollen carrying by bees and insects indicate that the 1932 apple crop in Iowa will be good.

Aleck McCall's Mad Jealousy

By CHARLES SLOAN REID

(© by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.) (WNU Service.)

ALECK McCALL was swinging along the mountain trail by long strides. His rifle lay across his shoulder, and in his hand he carried a brace of pheasants. Aleck was happy. There was a new little cabin just half a mile ahead to which Aleck had carried Polly Goodiron less than a month before, a bride.

Old man Goodiron, his wife and two daughters had moved in on the Cullowhee range five years before, from somewhere over in Transylvania. Polly was the elder of the two girls; and some had hinted that she had left a sweetheart in the county from which she came, this being the reason she had put off Aleck McCall for so long, for McCall was the outstanding young mountaineer on the range. Aleck's stride was almost a dance step, as he hurried towards home.

"Polly, Polly, Polly, the purtiest gal in the world," he kept singing in his thoughts.

Around the head of a little ravine, across the nose of a ridge, then along the crest of it he hurried until he had reached a spot where a huge boulder marked the fork in the trail. Here McCall paused to contemplate in silent joy the sight of the little home.

Suddenly the young mountaineer grounded the butt of his rifle, and the brace of pheasants slipped from his hand. In the twilight now gathered about the cabin door were to be seen a man and a woman. The woman was Polly, but the man was a total stranger. He was dressed like a Westerner, Aleck thought, for he wore one of those broad-brim, heavy white hats which he had seen worn a few times by men returned from the West. But the part that filled his soul with horror was the sight of Polly in the stranger's arms.

The embrace had lasted for only an instant; but in that instant all of the joy had gone out of Aleck McCall's soul. He lowered his gaze to the rocks at his feet, and his fingers gripped his rifle barrel with a clutch that might have crushed anything but steel. He stood there thus for some moments, then slowly the gun stock came to his shoulder, as once more his eyes turned towards the cabin lot. Polly and the stranger were standing only a little way apart now. Slowly, slowly, the rifle barrel came toward a level. Presently it steadied, with the barrel pressed against the boulder, and the muzzle of it trained upon the cabin lot. The side of Aleck's face sank toward the firelock, and his finger clutched the trigger. Now his eye drew the bead of the rifle along the top of the barrel. A moment later a sharp "Crack!" rang out over the ravine below. Before the cabin door, a hundred yards away, the stranger staggered backward and went to the ground on his back, his big hat flying before him. A scream went up from Polly's throat; and Aleck McCall set his teeth down hard upon his lower lip. Turning aside from the rock he retraced his way back along the mountain trail.

"God, thar ain't nothin' more for me to stay around here for," he exclaimed, after a long silence.

Presently his shoulders began to sway from side to side, and hot tears stole from his eyes. "But I got to have one more look of her, afore I git out—I—I jes' got to!" he cried, no more than half aloud. When he arose from the log, the darkness of night had gathered. Once more he set out for the cabin.

When McCall strode down into the clearing about the cabin, with a queer smile he noted the gleam of firelight from beneath the cabin door. He crept forward to the doorstep, never once turning his gaze toward the spot where the stranger had fallen at the crack of his rifle. He heard voices inside of the house.

"Polly, what yuh reckon's a keepin' Aleck? I shore am anxious to see what yuh got when yuh got married."

It was a man's voice speaking. The red arose to Aleck McCall's temples. Seizing the latch string in the cabin door he gave it a jerk. The door swung inward. Then, as his big form stood framed in the doorway, Polly suddenly threw herself upon his breast, her arms around his neck.

"Brother Bill's come home, Aleck!" she cried, at the same time squeezing his neck so hard he hardly could breathe.

The stranger came forward and thrust out his hand. "Yeah," he said, "I had a hard time a findin' the old folks an' these kids."

Aleck's eyes stared unseeingly for a moment. "What yuh mean, Polly?" he asked.

"Why, Aleck; yuh see, I never told yuh about Bill, c'ase he had to run away six years ago. But thet scrape's been settled, so Bill's come back."

"An' some galoot took a crack at me out o' the woods jes' time I got here tonight," laughed Bill. "Must ha' took me for a houn'."

"I reckon," agreed Aleck.

"Clipped a hole slap through muh hat."

It was an hour later that Polly got a chance to whisper to Aleck: "I shore am glad yuh's so jealous o' me, Aleck! I knowed hit was you as fired thet shot—ain't another man on the Cullowhee as could ha' done it like thet, an' never clipped a hair."

Wobbly Pitcher Saved by Astute Band Leader

A band once won a world series baseball game, according to James J. Coughlin, of Boston, and Mr. Coughlin should know, for he was the band leader.

It was in the world series of 1915, between the Boston Red Sox and the Phillies. The home team took the first game in Philadelphia and the Boston band became worried because if the series ended in four games, the musicians would get no return trip to the Quaker city.

Foster of the Sox and Mayer of the Phillies had been pitching air-tight ball, with the score 2 to 1 in the sixth inning of the second contest. Mayer was working smoothly, but Foster was tired. He started to wobble and Philadelphia got two men on bases with none out. The pitcher needed a rest and he needed it badly.

He was taking his time and was just about to put the ball over when the umpire called time. The gates in the first-base bleachers opened and President Wilson and his party made a dramatic entrance. Coughlin signaled for "The Star-Spangled Banner." But what a rendition he directed.

The band took nine minutes to go through music that should not take more than two. It was a funeral dirge. When the piece had been played once the band started it a second time. Every one was at attention except Foster. He had his hat off but he was industriously relaxing. When the performance was over he went in and struck out two batters and made the other a pop fly. The funeral dirge was a life-saver for him.—Detroit News.

Hard to Get Farmer to See Beauty in Thistle

We scorn the thistle, but Scotland has made it its national flower, its honored emblem. The story goes, however, that the selection of this flower as Scotland's emblem was not due to admiration. Scottish soil was once, at least, pretty thoroughly covered with thistles. The Danes invaded the country. Danes are now one of the most civilized of nations, but then they went barefooted. They stole up on the Scottish camp by night, unperceived, but one of them stepped on genuine Scotch thistle, and let out a yell of pain. The Scots heard it, awoke, arose, drove away the Danes, and saved the country. So the Scots, out of gratitude, made the thistle their emblem. The thistle is a fine and decorative plant, and nearly every spear of it has a pretty flower and a fragrant one. Certainly the bumblebees love it. It has a long and prolific flowering season.

Speaking of emblems, the Nova Scotians have appropriated our mayflower, the trailing arbutus, for their emblem. Why, being New Scotland and also Canada, did they not choose the Canada thistle for the purpose? They would have been good and welcome to it.—Boston Transcript.

Lord Mayor's Banquets

Mr. T. Lewis Sayer's book, "Gog, Magog and I," on the city of London, touches on the famous eating and drinking of the city; quotes Mr. Bottomley Firth's gibe—"It could be written on the back of many a common councilman, 'Widened at the expense of the city corporation'"; and gives a long list of the banquets in the preparation of which he had a share. One story shows their perils other than that of over-eating. At a luncheon to a prince from Asia the company were actually taking their seats when a trophy of lobster and ice, set right before the royal guest, was hurriedly removed, as the result of a last minute discovery that to him the lobster, being the scavenger of the sea, was an unclean, forbidden food. — London Times.

Old May-Day Custom

In the Gentleman's Magazine for 1754 a custom is alluded to that only of late became obsolete, says "Brand's Observations on Popular Antiquities."

"They took places in the waggon, and quitted London early one May morning, and it being the custom in this month for the passengers to give the waggoner at every inn a ribbon to adorn his team, she soon discovered the origin of the proverb, 'as fine as a horse;' for, before they got to the end of their journey, the poor beasts were almost blinded by the tawdry party-coloured flowing honours of their heads."

Some of the highest waterfalls in the world, and their respective heights are: Yosemite (three plunges), 2,600 feet; Oroco falls, of Monte Rosa, 2,400; Roraima falls, Guiana (two plunges), 2,000; Grand falls, of Labrador, 2,000; Sutherland falls, New Zealand (three plunges), 1,904; Kukenam fall, 1,500; Gavornie fall, Pyrenees, 1,400; Krimmler falls, Austria, 1,300; Staubbach, Switzerland, 1,000; Bridal Veil, California, 900; Nevada fall, California, 600; Niagara, 165.

Formed to Promote Trade

The international chamber of commerce was established in 1920 at a meeting of chief business interests of Belgium, France, Great Britain, Italy and the United States, and subsequently forty other nations joined. Its purpose was to promote the development of international trade, to remove or mitigate the effect of trade restrictions and to foster harmonious commercial relations among the nations.

Real Purpose Served by Cultivating Hobby

If more people had real hobbies there would be fewer cases of nervous breakdown, according to Dr. H. F. Kilander, writing in Hygeia, the Health Magazine. Hobbies keep children out of mischief and they relieve the monotony of routine life for adults. It is well to be able to lose oneself for an hour, an evening, or even for a day in something that is not related to the daily tasks, this author believes.

A desirable hobby should furnish enjoyment, pleasure and gratification; it should require a minimum of equipment and expense, in Doctor Kilander's opinion. Many hobbies may be distinctly educational. Literature, music and astronomy are examples of that type. Physical as well as mental health may be improved by a hobby; sports are of distinct value.

Many hobbies are started accidentally without forethought. It is well, however, suggests Doctor Kilander, that parents and educators should plan indirectly to guide children in certain desirable interests in order that their leisure time may be wisely spent.

Recreation has become a necessity, writes Doctor Kilander. The trends of the times indicate that the schools must include more training in the use of leisure time not only for the years that the student is in school but also for the time when he is an adult.

Old Hand-Woven Linen of Marvelous Fineness

Twelve dozen of everything—that was the quantity which the proper continental bride of a century ago received in her trousseau. It sounds lavish, but it was actually common sense, because our great-grandparents had a grand laundering only once every three months!

A relic of those brave days appears on special occasions now, in a smart New York home. The linen damask cloth was woven by hand in the days when George Washington was more than a memory, and hand woven so finely that linen experts of today marvel at it. Narrow looms compelled the weavers to make their cloth in two strips, which are sewn together down the middle of the table.

An interesting feature of this setting is that the ancient damask creates a background of harmony for the latest silver, whose design identically matches the china.

Coffee in 1634

As to the precise date when coffee was introduced into England, authorities differ, and very little of real value on the subject can be found, wrote Edward R. Emerson in "Beverages, Past and Present." Sir Henry Blount visited Turkey in 1634 and in one of his letters says: "The Turks have a drink called 'cauphe,' made of a berry as big as a small bean, dried in a furnace and beat to a powder of a sooty colour, in taste a little bitterish, that they seethe and drink, hot as may be indured. It is good at all hours of the day, but especially at morning and evening, when to that purpose they entertain themselves two or three hours in 'cauphe-houses,' which, in Turkey, abound more than inns and alehouses with us."

Corn's Many Products

Not much more than half of the great corn crop of the country finds its way to the dining table. The remainder goes to the refineries to be made up into a large variety of materials. These include the "sparklers" which do Fourth of July duty, explosives, face cream, soap, artificial rubber and silk, varnish, tanning extracts, radio batteries, textiles, paper carpet, mucilage, salad dressing, sirup, cooking oil, vinegar and milk acids. Some considerable success has attended the manufacture of paper from the stalks, and it is probable that at no distant day a profitable use will be found for the piles of corn stalks which accumulate each year on the farms of this country.

Famous Dinosaur Skeleton

The dinosaur on exhibition at Peabody museum of Yale university is nearly 70 feet long, 16 feet high, and the skeleton weighs six and a half tons. Its estimated weight when alive was between 37 and 40 tons. The specimen was discovered by William Reed in Wyoming in 1881, and the bones were brought to Yale under the direction of Prof. Othniel C. March, whose research resulted in this type's being known as Brontosaurus excelus. At Yale's bicentennial in 1901 a portion of the skeleton was mounted and exhibited. Lack of space prevented the erection of the rest, which remained in storage. A few years ago the mounting was begun anew, the hall of Peabody being especially constructed to house this one animal.

Cake for Indigestion

Claudius Galenus, commonly known as Galen, was born at Pergamum, Greece, in 130 A. D., and is supposed to have died in Sicily. He was a celebrated philosopher, pharmacist and physician, and was for many centuries the supreme authority in medicine and pharmacy, wrote Charles H. LaWall in "Four Thousand Years of Pharmacy."

A bride's cake used at weddings during Galen's time and described by Cato was called "mustacea." It contained aromatics and carminative and was served at weddings to reduce the chances of indigestion caused by the usual over-indulgence on such occasions.

Strange But True

During the World War the United States paid rent on the ground used in France for training purposes. The United States also paid damages for all trenches dug on this ground for training purposes.

COCCIDOSIS TIME IS AT HAND

With the coming of warm weather, coccidosis, a disease which kills many young chicks, will be starting its annual raid on the young flocks., warns Dr. K. W. Stouder, extension veterinarian at Iowa State College.

Coccidosis is practically incurable after it gains a foothold in the flock but may be prevented by sanitation.

Cleaning and scalding the brooder house and allowing it to dry well before putting the chicks into it and locating the house on clean ground where no droppings of poultry have fallen recently are the main steps in preventing this disease. A green crop of some kind growing in the yard is desirable. The house should be cleaned thoroughly each week.

In case of an outbreak, sick birds should be removed until the trouble is over and during that period the houses should be cleaned daily, keeping the flooor as dry as possible Moisture and warmth are favorable to the multiplication of the organism causing coccidosis. Feeding and watering utensils should be cleaned and scalded daily to kill eggs of the coccidia.

Increasing thet milk content of the ration is of marked value in treating a flock infected with coccidosis but a well balanced ration should be supplied at the same time

FARMER FINDS $13,000 IN CASH HIDDEN IN HOUSE

A farmer living north of Minnesota Lake, Mike McArdle, was helping his wife paper the house says the Elmore Eye. At one place there was a hole in the plaster, and reaching in the man touched wads of paper, which proved to be money —oodles of it! A little further on he found a can of $20 gold pieces. Altogether there was $13,000. It is thought that the money had been hidden by Mr. McArdles parents, who died several years ago under circumstances that would have prevented their disclosing the hiding place.—Algona Advance.

Klemme Men Urge Highway Commission To Pave No 179

FARM BUREAU PLANS LEGUME MEETING FIRST PART OF JUNE

Farmers Will Be Given Opportunity To Visit Good Demonstrations

Because of the increased interest in maintaining and building up soil fertility and growing of various legume crops in Hancock county, the Farm Bureau will hold legume field meeting the first part of June to give farmers an opportunity to visit good demonstrations and see what methods are sucesful in growing legume.

Owners will explain the practices they use. E. S. Dyas, Crops Specialist from the Extension Service will be present to give information by the Experiment station and other parts of the state .

The fact that legumes gather nitrogen from the air is only one of the many reasons why they increase crop yields, says Mr. Weiss.

According to actual trial it has been found, for example, that about 60 per cent of the roots of alfalfa are below a depth of 40 inches rom the surace, while in the case of oats practically none of the roots go below the 40 inch depth.

It probably would be impossible to mix the same amount of organic matter or manure mechanically into the same depth of soil to which the roots of legume plants reach.

Alfalfa and clover are the most valuable crops is successful stands are secured but most exspensive if they fail because the seed and soil treatments used are usually more expensive than for other common crops in Iowa.

In order to economically maintain soil in a fertile and productive condition it is necessary to rotate with legumes, which add nitrogen and organic matter to the soil.

BANKERS MEET AT GARNER

Over 200 bankers and their wives met at Garner yesterday for the annual meeting of Group Three of the Iowa BankersAssociation. In the morning a conference of State and Group Officers with officials of the County Associations was held at the Avery Theatre. The main program was held in the afternoon also at the Avery Theatre where Attorney General John R. Fletcher addressed the meeting and declared, "We have served notice on gangsters, racketeers, kidnapers and bank bandits that Iowa is an unhealthy place for them. As long as I am Attorney Geueral, I give notice to organized crime gangs that they can expect no cover from any political parapets they may build, no matter how high they may reach."

The banquet was held at the high school auditorium at 6:00. After the banquet a dancing and a theatre party was held which closed a very successful and instructive meeting.

Those from here who attended were Fred Arnold, Mr. and Mrs. C. G. Waterman and Mr. and Mrs A. J. Kudje.

MRS EDWIN BOCK ENTERTAINS KLEMME SENIOR GIRLS

Last Wednesday evening Mrs. Edwin Bock of Garner, former popular Klemme teacher, invited all the Senior girls to her home to spend the evening. The time was spent playing court whist. Gladys Kothenbeutel and Vergie Meinderts tied for first place and each received a gift. Mildred Lemke received a gift for middle score and Ethel Barz won the prize for low score. At a late hour, Mrs. Bock served a very dainty lunch consisting of a salad made very attractively in the four forms, hearts, diamonds, clubs and spades; tea biscuits, strawberry shortcake and coffee. The girls departed expressing their thanks for a most enjoyable evening.

EFFORTS BEING MADE TO HAVE STUB HIGHWAY 179 PAVED

Delegation Of Klemme Business Men Called On Officials Tuesday

A delegation of Klemme business men drove to Ames Tuesday to meet with the State Highway Commission to discuss with them the matter of paving Highway No. 179, which is the half mile between Klemme and No. 15.

The men who made the trip were Supervisor F. J. Schoun, Mayor J. E. Stille, Councilmen C. A. Larsen, Herb Bailey and G. A. Goll and Dr. D. P. Anderson, E. F. Jacobs, Ben Coobs and Arthur Wellemeyer.

The delegation from Klemme argued that this road should be paved at this time. There has been a bad mud hole near the junction with No. 15 which is very troublesome every spring and most years it is impassable. It is the principal road into Klemme and causes considerable inconvenience to the traveling public.

This half mile road is an expensive stretch in maintaining as the highway men who work on it must drive eight miles from Garner and back again every time it needs attention. Paving this road would eliminate this expense and the road would thus pay for itself in a few years on the money saved. Since this short road must eventually be paved the committee urged that the work be done when machinery is on the ground to pave the balance of No. 15 in Hancock and through Wright County.

The State Highway Commission have had many requests for short stubs of this kind, some of which are paved where heavy traffic exists. Business men of Klemme point out that traffic into Klemme is far greater than many towns of much greater size. The Commission stated that it was not sure whether or not No. 15 would be paved this year. However, they promised to send Mr. Tom Way to Klemme this week to look over the road.

The Times does not know what Mr. Way's opinion will be on the matter, but as a measure of economy nothing but a paved road will remedy the matter as it now stands. This particular road is of a queer nature, being but partially out of a hill where there sees to be a natural spring which keeps the ground moist below the surface of the road. Filling these sink holes full of rock has not remedied the situation. Drainage has been tried with no better results. It will eventually cost the state thoueands of dollars in maintenance if this road is not paved at an early date.

KLEMME KITTENBALLERS WIN GARNER TOURNAMENT

The Klemme A. C. Kittenball team journeyed to Garner last Sunday to participate in a tournament with Garner, Goodell and the Atlas Breweries team of Mason City. The locals won their first game with Garner 14-7 in an easy battle with Brown, local pitcher tossing an excellent game. In the game between the Atlas team and Goodell, Atlas won 24-19. Goodell was unable to stop a first inning hit-fest and the Mason City team scored nuns before the side was retired.

The final game between Klemme and Atlas was the closest of the afternoon with two extra innings being needed to decide the winner. The game finally ended 5-4 in favor of Klemme. The locals have an excellent kittenball pitcher in Leo Brown this year and will give any team they play a real battle. They defeated the Goodell team on the home diamond Thursday night 6-5 after being held scoreless for 5 innings.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Fanselow and daughter, Anita, of Rowan, came Sunday for a visit at the Herman Bridges home. Miss Anita remained to visit here during Commencement Week.

AVOID SUNBURN IN ACQUIRING SUMMER TAN

"In these days when a "healthy tan" is so much in fashion, some thought must be given to the possibility of sunburn during the early stages of acquiring it," says the Iowa State Department of Health "The blistering caused by sunburn differs in no way from the blistering caused by fire or live steam. The summer sun should be avoided between 10:00 a. m. and 3:00 p. m. Exposure to the sun of a skin which has been protected by clothing all winter should be a gradual process Begin with five to ten minutes each day in the early morning or late afternoon. Increase the time with five or ten minutes daily and by the end of a week a light tan without burning will appear After this the danger of burning is slight and longer exposure can be attempted with out harm. Blondes, especially those with red hair, fail to tan, but burn every time Such persons must protect themselves from the sun's rays.

"Young children burn more quickly than adults and special care should be used to protect them. Severe sunburn in children may result fatally. Indeed severe blistering by sunburn of one third of the body of ten has a fatal result. Death mayoccur without blistering. Usually a secondary meningitis is the immediate cause of death. At all times the head should be protected from direct sunlight and the eyes protected by dark glasses from glare.

"Enjoy your vacations, but do not try to get a whole summer's tan in a week, and by all means avoid sunburn."

GRADUATION EXERCISES HELD FOR GOODELL SENIORS

A large crowd attended the graduation exercises in the U. B. church here Thursday night. Fish: Florence M. Mason Marjorie M. Avery, Leona A. Halfpop, Vogel U. Christenson, Oliver Wiles and Kenneth H. Cline.

Florence Mason received a metal key for having the highest average during her high school days. Oliver Wiles was second and Vogel Christenson third.

The following eighth grade students also received diplomas at the same time: Marjorie Christenson, Donna Hofer, Maurice Ahrenkeil, Lydon Kilgore and Taalkeus Ahrenkeil.

KNOW YOUR CHICKENS AND SAVE MONEY

There are hens that "lay eggs" throughout the summer and there are also hens that "lay off", according to W. R. Whitfield, poultry specialist of Iowa State College.

He says the layer and loafer turn their feed to different uses. The poor producers and to keep the perone produces eggs, the other meat, tho each of course produces some of both. But the poor layer should be sold early in the before she molts and before market prices drop.

Flocks usually contain high, medium and low producing hens and culling is needed to take out centage of production high. A flock which is producing less than 60 eggs to each 100 hens per day during April and drops to about 40 eggs during June is harboring loafers that should be eliminated. Good flocks will continue to produce at the rate of 50 to 60 per cent thru he summer.

The loafer can be readily detected by the following:

1. All birds having shriveled, dry and surfy combs.
2. Birds starting to go broody. Sell them while in good flesh.
3. Hens of the yellow skinned varieties, having yellow beaks and shank.
4. Sick or underweight birds. (They should be killed)

These are common characteristics of low producing birds in a flock needing culling. Why feed birds that respond only by getting too fat and dying?

ROY L. McMILLIN
Candidate For COUNTY TREASURER LAID UP ON CRUTCHES

While out calling on the voters of the county on Friday of last week, I accidently stepped in a hole and turned my ankle so that at present I am getting around on crutches.

It is very unfortunate for me at this time as it was my intention to spent the last two weeks before election in making a personal call on the balance of t voters in the County that I had been unable to see.

This accident will make it impossible for me to hand you a card in person and I wish to take this means of asking for your support and thank you for any favors you may show me at the coming election on June 6th.

I IMAGINE THAT—
By Phil Osifer

—In listing the nice things about our town we might proceed as follows. First. We have a clean town. Homes are well kept, our laws are mowed and there is only one rubb'sh pile visible from the street. Second, our business places are all all doing a fairly good business in spite of the slack time chiefly because of the enterprise of our commercial citizens. Third, our people have amenable dispositions and we all get along well with ourselves and any stranger that happens to drop in; last but not least we have a Main Street that was smoothed up Tuesday, believe it or not.

—Now that Amelia Earhart has distinguished herself above all other women by flying the Atlantic alone, I wonder how long it will be before some hoodlum crucifies her and gets away with it as they did Lindy.

—It might be well if she were to stay on the other side of the pond I hear that there is still some respect for law and order over there and that murderers do not go unpunished.

—PO—

—Some of you remember the time a man broke a spring on his car while endeavoring to negotiate one of the bumps in the street. (This was some time ago). He had the spring repaired at the garage and sent the bill to the Town Council The bill was PAID and a precedent established Also the street was repaired next day. I wonder who broke a spring last Monday.

AN OPEN LETTER FROM HON. C. L. ELY, JUDGE OF THE 7TH JUDICIAL DISTRICT OF IOWA AND OTHER PROMINENT MEN

Maquoketa, Iowa
January 10, 1930

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN:

I have known Chris Jacobs for the past twenty-five years. Before he left this County to make his residence in Garner, I had known him quite intimately for at least five years.

At the completion of his last term as a member of the Board of Supervisors of this County, I became County Attorney here, and therefore I have had some opportunity of scanning his record.

With the investigation of said Board carried on in 1913, I am familiar I am convinced that in no act alleged by the investigating Committee was there any malfeasance on the part of Mr. Jacobs.

It is true that there were slight irregularities disclosed by said investigation, which applied to practically all of our County officials of that time, but in none of complaints by the said Committee, in so far as Mr. Jacobs was concerned, was there any evidence of any dishonesty on his part.

I am glad to be able to say, that in my opinion, he rendered many years of painstaking, conscientious and alert work on the Board.

I concientiously believe that he is instinctively honest and has played the game of life on the level and on the square. This is my belief rogarding him during all the time he lived in our midst

Yours truly,
C. L. ELY
Judge

Maquoketa, Iowa

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN:

This is to certify that for many years prior to March, 1914 when Mr. Chris Jacobs moved from Jackon County to Garner, Iowa, I had been personally acquainted with him. I knew him as a farmer and as a member of our Board of Supervisors As a farmer, I knew him to be a capable hard working conscientious and thrifty man, and that he had the respect of his neighbors and friends.

As a public officer, he was industrious, postive and earnest and rendered valuable services to this county. In the management of the affairs under his jurisdiction as a member of the board, he displayed that initiative and business foresight so necessary to the roper management of the public's business.

I consider it a real pleasure to have an opportunity of expressing my sentiment in connection with Mr. Jacobs' standing in our community and feel sure that he will render a good account of himself under all circumstances.

Yours very truly,

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN:

It is a pleasure for me to say a word regarding my old friend Chris Jacobs, formerly of Jackson County and now a resident of Garner, Iowa.

During his incumbancy, I was a member of our State legislature and while our political faith was not the same, I can unstintingly say he was ever a man of courage, determination and diligence. He was quick to grasp any opportunity for service to his district and county. He was always a gentleman fair and square. I say these things without reservation.

THAT SETTLED IT

The chorus girl was giving notice that the company would have to dispense with her services owing to her approaching marriage.

"Pretty sudden, isn't it?" growled the manager.

"It was, in a way," agreed the girl. "I only met him a short time ago, and at first I wasn't sure of my feelings. But the moment I saw his car I knew I loved him."

"When one of your father's horses is ill, what does he do?" asked the stranger.

"Do you mean slightly ill or seriously ill?" asked the young man cautiously.

"Oh, seriously ill! But what has that to do with it?"

"Lots," was the answer. "If a horse is only slightly ill he gives it tonic; but if it's seriously ill he sells it."

Show's Over

Two men went to a wrestling match. As they entered, one of the contestants had a toe hold on the other. This hold was broken; time passed; other holds came and went; finally, the wrestler who had it before, got the toe hold again. One of the spectators reached for his hat.

The Real Figure

"That prima donna hasn't much of a figure," said the coldly critical person.

"You have the wrong idea," replied the impresario. "In order to admire her figure properly you must quit looking at her and think about her salary."

"Why do you delay proposing to that girl?"

"I'm saving up to buy an engagement ring."

"Something especially expensive?"

"It'll have to be. I can't fool her. Her father runs a jewelry store."

"Eric loved a girl called Emma. A month ago he called her 'darling,' three weeks ago he was calling her 'dear,' a fortnight ago he was calling her 'Emma.'"

KNOW IOWA! AND ITS UNEQUALLED ADVANTAGES

Iowa has over twenty thousand miles of graveled or paved highways. Only three other states have as much paved concrete road. This paving is new and of the very best.

Iowa abounds in natural beauty Its scores of charming lakes; its great system of scenic and well kept state parks. and the rugged bluffs that border its great rivers, offer vacationists all they could ask

A summer time ride over Iowa is a joy. Its rolling farms combine scenic beauty with a fertility so great that on them is raised one tenth of the food products of the whole United States.

No point in Iowa is over twelve miles from a railroad and no one walks to the railroad station as she has a total of over 691,000 passenger automobiles.

Iowa's grain products alone annually exceed in value that of all the peaches, pears, grapes and citrus fruits produced in the United States.

Although Iowa ranks sixteenth in population and twenty-third in area of land, she ranks:

In value of Corn, Oats, Horses, Hogs, Poultry, first.

In value of Farm Lands and Buildings, first.

In total value of Farm Products, first.

In combined value of livestock, first.

In total value of Farm Property, first.

In percentage of Farm Land Improved, first.

The farms of Pottawattamie county are worth as much as all the farms of either Vermont, New Hampshire, Massachusetts, Delaware, Rhode Island or Nevada.

The farms of ten Iowa counties (Cedar, Clinton, Crawford, Jasper Kossuth, Marshall, Polk, Plymouth Shelby and Sioux) exceed in value the farms of any one of the states of New York, Pennsylvania, Michigan, Virginia, Georgia, Tennessee, North Carolina, Oregon, Montana, Mississippi, Arkansas, Colorado, or Washington, (Fourteen in all.)

The percapita wealth for Iowa is $4,617. The per capita wealth for the remainder of the United States is $3,062

Iowa soil produces more wealth each year than all the gold and silver mines in the world.

But Iowa does not only produce food; the factories of Iowa have an annual output worth over seven hundred and forty-five million dollars and have over four hundred and fifty million dollars invested in plants and machinery.

Abundant coal, vast raw material fint transportation facilities and unexcelled living conditions make Iowa a most inviting field for manufacturers.

Is The Court House Infested?

From the repeated ravings from the north, attacking our county officials, some might be led to think that the Court House was infested with a bunch of leeches, robbers and crooks, that were slowly sapping the financial life out of our tax money.

Fair minded citizens of the county will not fall for such bunk. This county is not so big but what every tax payer is personally acquainted with the men and women who are running our county affairs. They have placed their confidence in these men and women and have returned them to office time and again. What better recommendation can these same officials have than this same confidence? All the wind-jamming and mud slinging is NOT going to change the opinion of the voters of the county. Those who will take the time to inquire into the financial condition of Hancock County will find that it rates at the TOP of all of the counties of the state. If Hancock County has been run by a gang of crooks and thieves for the past few years it certainly could not be in anything but a bad shape. Hancock County's poor fund shows up brightly when many other counties are overdrawn, some as much as $100,000. Our outstanding indebtedness is less than $5,000. We have no outstanding bridge funds; our county road funds are in good shape. State records show that Hancock County is in very good shape and credit for our condition is due to the care and foresight of our men in office.

All the dirty mud throwing is NOT going to change the facts of the standing of Hancock County. Our men and women in office have given their best to keep Hancock County in good order during these trying times. They are honest and efficient and deserve nothing but the highest praise for the service they have given the tax payers of this county.

If they had been a gang or robbers and crooks the state chequers would have had them ousted long ago. In fact, every official in the Court House has a CLEAR record and there is no reason (but a personal grudge) for being made the target of nasty, dirty remarks.

The Times, and other GOOD papers in this county believe in being fair to all. Personal greediness and mud slinging does not go over so BIG with the fair minded people of our county.

GET RID OF YOUR ANTS

Carbon bisulfide is the best material to use to control ants in lawn .Carbon bisulfide is as explosive as gasoline and should be handled with the same care. Drop some of it into holes 8 to 12 inches deep in the infested area. Cover the holes with dirt as soon as the chemical is dropped in. Several holes 6 to 8 inches apart may be made. A wet blanket spread over the area for about 4 hours will help. The gas fumes from carbon bisulfide are heavier than air and displace the air in the tunnels occupied by the ants . One treatment is usually sufficient.

NEW STATE PICTURE MAPS AVAILABLE AS SOUVENIRS

Beautiful new state maps prepared by the highway department especially for the campaign to promote touring in Iowa are now available to the public.

In the opinion of the map experts they pass anything in this nature heretofore published and are particularly suited for distribution as souvenirs or presents, according to G. Decker French of Davenport, the chairman of the Tour Iowa Committee. , A. A. A. Motor club of Iowa.

Places of interest to motorists, including state parks, lakes, historical and recreational pots are designated on the five color map which is 24 by 36 inches. The primary and county trunk highways are all shown, as well as mileages between towns and junction points. Inserts show the routes through principal cities. Also the connecting roads in adjoining states are indicated.

The souvenir is featured by 45 pictures of points of interest to tourists. These are on the back side of the map along with descriptive material about the 39 state parks and a keyed index. A list of the 64 meander lakes and their size and location as well as interesting statistical acts concerning Iowa are given. A keyed index to all cities and towns in the state with their populations is a feature of the map. The state conservation department assisted the highway department in its preparation.

The maps are available in packets of eight for $1. They are offered in the hope that the purchasers will mail them to their friends throughout the United States. The packets of maps may be obtained by writing to any A. A. A. motor club office in the state or from the Motor Club of Iowa, Hotel Fort Des Moines, Des Moines in care of the Tour Iowa Committee.

Every dairyman can be his own judge as to what the future holds but it is betraying no confidence to say that many important operators feel that buter of good quality is exceedingly good property.

WHY

Title of "Dan" Was Given to Cupid

"Dan" is an old title of honor equivalent to lord, master or sir. It is related to the Spanish "don" and like that title is probably derived from Latin "dominus," lord. "Dan" is now obsolete except in a few special connections, but formerly it was commonly applied to distinguished men, nobles, scholars, poets nnd even deities. Edmund Spenser applied the title to Geoffrey Chaucer and since then it has been applied to many poets. In Book IV of the "Faerie Queen" Spenser wrote:

Dan Chaucer, well of English undefyled,
On Fame's eternal headroll worthie to be filed.

In Roman mythology Cupid, the son of Mercury and Venus, is the god of love and is identified with the Greek Eros. The name is derived from Latin "cupido," meaning desire, passion or love, and Cupid was the personification of the amatory passions. He is generally represented as a beautiful naked boy with wings, carrying a bow and arrow and sometimes blindfolded. Among the early English writers, as well as the writers of other countries, Cupid was given various humorous titles. We find him playfully referred to as "dan Cupido" about 1384. In Shakespeare's time "Dan Cupid" was already part of everyday speech. In "Love's Labor's Lost," Act III, the poet puts the following words in the mouth of Biron, one of the lords attending King Ferdinand of Navarre:

This whimpled, whining, purblind, wayward boy;
This senior-junior, giant-dwarf, Dan Cupid.

Why Falling Cat Can Always Land in Safety

That the cat always falls upon its feet is generally known, but the how and why of it was recently made the subject of a lecture by an English scientist. Pussy scores, as demonstrated at a lecture on the physics of sport, by knowing a trick we cannot imitate—that of turning in the air. The star performer at the demonstration was the professor's kitten, which was held upside down and dropped a few inches on to a cushion. Always the kitten arrived comfortably on its feet. How is it done? The slow-motion cinematograph has given away the secret. With a lightning movement the cat draws in its front paws and stretches out the hind ones. In this position it is easy for the front part of the body to be rotated, and the other half follows suit an instant later.

Why Coxey's "March"

Mr. Coxey's good roads bill was introduced in congress in 1802. Under this bill the treasury was to issue legal tender notes for use in constructing good roads. This in turn would make employment for men who were out of work. Two years later a second and more complicated measure was introduced providing for non interest bearing bonds. The army of the unemployed marched to Washington "as a living petition in favor of Coxey's scheme to provide fiat money, good roads and work for the workers."

Why Human Hair Differs

The contour of the hair is circular, oval or flattened. Whether a hair is to be curly or straight is largely dependent upon its contour; the more oval or flattened it is the more it will be curled. The degree of curliness is influenced also by the conditions of the atmosphere; naturally curled hair becomes more curled when the hair is surcharged with moisture, and less so in dry weather.

Why Honey Is Good Food

Honey is one of the best of the high energy-producing foods, says the United States Department of Agriculture. Because it is composed almost entirely of simple sugars it can be assimilated with ease. Most sugars require action by the gastric and intestinal secretions to break them down into simple sugars similar to those occurring naturally in honey.

FERTILIZERS OFTEN NECESSARY

Because Mother Nature in some way neglected to arrange for sufficient supplies of available nitrogen phosphorus and potassium in many soils for best plant growth, commercial fertilizers often have been found necessary, explains J. B. Peterson, a member of the faculty of the Soils Department at Iowa State College.

Each of these three plant food elements, nitrogen, phosphorus and potassium, plays an important part in plant nutrition. Nitrogen stimulates vegetative growth. When it is missing in the soil, plants show stunted growth and a sickly, yellow leaf color. Too much nitrogen may cause delayed maturity, soft. sappy leaves and susceptibility to disease and insect attacks.

Phosphorus hastens the maturity of the crop and in the case of small grains, increases the proportion of the grain to the straw. It greatly favors growth of an extensive root system. A deficiency of this element is indicated by a small proportion of grain to straw, by slow maturing of crops and low yields.

Potassium strengthens fiber and straw of the plants, prevents lodging and increases the resistance of plant to disease and insect pests. In general, it tones up the plant and increases its vigor and vitality.

The Mild Madness

A Story of Ambition Realized

By FANNIE HURST

(© by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)
(W. NU Service)

LEOPOLD knew that his family was right, and yet, throughout the years of the early childhood of his children, he held out stubbornly against the often angry importunings of his wife Anna, her relatives, and his.

For a man who had been trained to the lucrative trade of master-plumber, suddenly to turn waiter was not only a matter of supreme humiliation to the Dagmar family, one and all, but, as Anna and his own sisters expressed it, sometimes they actually feared for the sanity of Leopold.

It was not as if he had been lazy. Even his sisters said of him that as a boy he had never given symptoms of a lazy bone in his body. And dear knows the servile work of waiting table in the small Russian restaurant where Leopold took up his new labors was no easier than that of a plumber who hired men to work under him. On the contrary, the hours were practically as long, and certainly more arduous. On his feet, carrying hoisted trays, polishing crockery, even sweeping out, and doing servile chores for patrons, from five in the evening until two and three in the morning, was work of an exacting, if less skilful nature than the plumbing.

Wringing her hands, deploring the lack of dignity his work as waiter implied for his young children, over and over again Anna sought to wrest from Leopold the secret of his sudden decision to abandon his skilled work for the less remunerative, less ambitious vocation of waiter.

Not for worlds, after his five years of life with her, could Leopold have been brought to reveal to her the secret reason for this amazing abandonment of his well-paying trade, for the lesser vocation of waiting table in a small Russian restaurant. Like his sisters, she would have cried and screamed her derision of his selfish, wastrel ways.

The secret motive was neither so profound nor so complicated as that imputed to him by those who felt themselves to be the victims of his vagaries. "He is after women," shouted Anna, knowing in her heart that women were not the cause of Leopold's defection.

"He is crazy after the low-life of the cabarets," accused his sisters, knowing that nothing of the kind was characteristic of Leopold.

The reason, meanwhile, lay snugly imbedded in the silence of Leopold. A simple reason; so simple that it shamed him.

The great advantage of waiting table in a restaurant, over the more dignified, more remunerative work as master plumber, was the music! As a waiter, you worked to music! Your work was servile, yes, often in a way that was hateful and revolting, but as a waiter you worked to music!

A five-piece orchestra played at Kosta's from 7 p. m. until 2 a. m. Russian music for the most part, with a balalaika or Russian banjo accompaniment that was as melancholy as wind in autumn trees, and yet at the same time sweet and plaintive and filled with a certain wild lust for life. Music that was as real as the beautiful black hair on the head of Leopold's two-months-old baby daughter.

You worked to music at Kosta's. At 7, the patrons began to come. At 7:15, in trooped the five-piece orchestra. The dinner went something like this. Zakuska, a hors d'oeuvre, which consisted of chopped liver served usually to the accompaniment of a song that wrung the very heart out of Leopold; a piece called "Ochee," which clumsily translated into "Languorous Eyes." Then the borsch course; thick soup clotted with sour cream, to strains that to Leopold were almost the most beautiful in the world: "The Volga Boat Song," filled with the dirge and the urge of those who sweat and toil. Pojarsky, cutlets of chopped chicken, served to the aria from "Eugene Onegin." And so on through an evening repetitiously crammed with melodies that never seemed to pall.

You could not very well go home and say to the most practical wife in the world, and to sisters to whom life was a serious day-by-day business: "I cannot play a note, I do not know one note from another, but one day, while fixing radiators in the home of a famous violinist, and hearing him practice as I worked, I realized that music can lift life from the hum-drum affair it has always been, into something that makes it worth living. I will work twice as hard as a waiter. I will dump every cent of my earnings into your lap. Let me live in my trance!"

Of course the wife and sisters of Leopold did not let him live in his trance. There were children to rear, clothe, educate and feed, and shortly after the startling defalcation of Leopold Anna developed a nervous illness, induced by worry.

Life stepped in and took a hand in the mild madness which seemed to have got hold of Leopold. Within a month after he had gone to the role of waiter in the Russian restaurant, he was back again at his work of soldering lead, laying pipe and fixing the drains and faucets of people's bathrooms. It must be said for him that he took it philosophically. After all, it was uncontroversial that there were children to be reared, and Leopold had seen too much of the struggle of poverty in his own boyhood not to feel imbued with the desire to spare his offspring as much as possible of pain and deprivation.

The children of Leopold, the four of them, justified his sacrifice. There were three boys and a girl, all of them with their mothers' and sisters' square, practical heads on their young shoulders. And all of them held the same attitude of tolerance toward the parent who spent his evenings and holidays picking out futile and unfinished melodies on the flute that time after time, in despair or in the spirit of practical joke, had been hidden from him by his tormented family.

When Betty, the black-haired baby, reached her maturity, there were four young people in the Dagmar family earning each a good living wage, and contributing to the by no means inconsiderable daily wage of the plumber, Leopold.

Five years later the four children of Anna and Leopold between them were in the proud position to give the sum of one thousand dollars to their father on his sixtieth birthday. That accomplished two really triumphant purposes. It sealed by deed, their loving regard for his generosity to them. It increased the nest egg of Leopold and Anna from four to five thousand dollars. Four of this Leopold presented to the astounded Anna on the occasion of their next wedding anniversary.

With the remaining one thousand, he made the first down payment on a little run-down restaurant in a Russian neighborhood, where for sixty-five cents one could eat a table d'hote dinner, to the strains of a three-piece orchestra that boasted a balalaika.

ALWAYS THERE IS ROOM AT THE TOP

Even Where Professions Are Overcrowded.

Mexico is one country where the people get action from their government.

In the state of San Luis Potosi, for example, the local legislature passed a law the other day suspending higher courses in law and medicine for five years.

The reason was simple. The lawmakers decided that there are enough practicing lawyers and doctors in the state. So why spend money preparing others for these overcrowded professions? they asked.

Which, considered from the standpoint of economy alone, is an unassailable position.

But suppose for a moment that such a philosophy of government prevailed in the United States. Both the medical and legal professions are overcrowded in this country, too. Many physicians and lawyers are eking out a bare existence and every year the colleges, universities and night schools turn out more doctors and lawyers to increase the competition.

Should we pass laws to prevent the teaching of law and medicine just because we have too many lawyers and too many doctors?

Of course not. And the reason is just as simple as the reasoning of the legislators in San Luis Potosi.

We have too many lawyers and too many doctors, it is true, but no one will deny that we have too few good lawyers and too few good doctors. The legal and medical professions are crowded at the bottom, but there is plenty of room at the top.

It is an inexorable law of human nature that mediocrity prevails, even in the skilled professions. Thousands of young men are studying law and medicine. Most of them will land in the crowded bottom ranks of their profession. A few will go to the top and do great things for humanity. In American medical colleges young men are studying who will make discoveries which will prolong the span of life. In law schools of today future justices of the Supreme court are learning the rudiments of law.

It is quite obvious that we would lose something of inestimable value if we closed down the law schools even for five years to gain a few dollars in lowered expense.—Houston Post-Dispatch.

Jewish "Baptism"

Baptism as it is understood by Christians is not practiced by the Jews. There was, however, an ancient Jewish rite known as Jewish baptism or proselyte baptism which bears a striking similarity to Christian baptism. When a pagan became a convert to Judaism he was compelled, after submitting to circumcision, to go through a purificatory washing. This washing symbolized the removal of all pagan impurity and the stranger who sojourned among the Israelites did not become one of them until he had complied with this rite. Orthodox Jews still require gentiles to comply with this rite when they become converts to Judaism.—Pathfinder Magazine.

School Robbed of Oranges

The Granada (Calif.) grammar school is probably the only one that has its private orange orchard, but even that has its drawbacks. Late at night while teachers and pupils were away from the school grounds, and the school closed, thieves entered the orchard, where more than 400 boxes of Valancia oranges had been gathered and stored. They took away the entire harvest.

Mountain of Gold Free for Asking, None Asks

Colorado Springs.—Nearly $4,500,000 worth of gold lies within the city limits of Colorado Springs and owners of the Golden Cycle mill and residents of the city are anxious to find some one who will take this great fortune away.

Unguarded, this vast mountain of gold, about four city blocks long, two blocks wide and 100 feet high in places, has accumulated in the past 25 years at the rate of $150,000 per year.

On windy days, lawns and carpets are covered with gold dust and folks have to dust the powdery metal off their clothes.

But it would cost whoever attempts to get this gold about twice as much as the metal is worth. The mill dumps about 300,000 tons of earth and gold dust yearly, and now there is a staggering total of more than 7,000,000 tons in the "gold hill." The gold content is about 50 cents per ton.

F. W. Zeiger

FOR COUNTY CORONER

Over thirty years ago when I engaged in the drug business in Garner and became a Hancock County tax payer, I had no political ambitions, but time changes.

In 1925 I was appointed to the office of County Coroner of Hancock County and have been my own successor ever since. This year I again aspire to this office I have held for the seven years and solicit the support of the republican electors at the June 6th primary.

For over thirty years I have been a registered pharmacist and for the past eight years have been a licensed undertaker and embalmer holding a states license, No. 2366.

I take this method of most respectfully soliciting your vote for an office which I feel I am qualified to fill.

Respectfully yours,

F. W. ZEIGER

For Supervisor

Dear Voter:

The purpose of this letter is to place before you, my candidacy for the office of Supervisor, term to commence January 1st, 1933. I should have liked to call personally on every voter. This is, however, impossible.

I was born and raised in Garfield Township, the geographical center of this county, where I now reside, am forty-eight years of age and have been farming practically all of my life. On February 4, 1931. I was appointed to fill the vacancy caused by the death of F J Urich and I now am appearing before the voters at the Republican Primary, asking that I be permitted to succeed myself, if my services on the Board for the past year and four months have merited that consideration

I have sought to render to the county, the very best service of which I am capable during the time I have held this office and believe from the experience and knowledge of the office gained in the last year and four months, I am much better equipped to assist in the administration of the county's business should I be elected to represent you. Since I have become a member of the Board, the County tax levies have been reduced four and on-half mills, which has meant a saving of $32 000.00 to the tax payers of the county for 1932. In addition to this saving, there have been other reductions and can and will be further reductions in the September 1932 levies, from which our tax payers will benefit in 1933. I do not claim full credit for this reduction. That credit is shared with the other members of the Board.

If you see fit to nominate me in the June Primary and elect me in the November election, I will do my utmost to render good and economical service, and pledge absolute honesty in the management of the county affairs.

If you believe the short service I have rendered has been as faithful as I have tried to make it and that it is worthy of further service, I shall feel very grateful for your vote If you do not feel inclined to support me for this office, I thank you and the people of the county for having been permitted to serve you in the past.

Very sincerely yours

F. J. Schoun

To The Voters Of Hancock County

On next Monday, June 6, it will be your privilege to determine whether or not you want to retain in the office of County Auditor, Chris Jacobs—the present incumbent who has held the office for several terms—or whether you feel it advisable to make a change in that office.

It has been impossible for me to meet all of the voters personally, much as I would like to have done so and I submit this as a personal letter to every voter in Hancock County.

As a candidate for the office of County Auditor, I have not made any personal attacks or instigated any upon the present incumbent, nor do I represent any certain people or factions, but am a representative candidate for all HANCOCK COUNTY and base my right to solicit your votes upon my qualifications.

I have lived all my life on a Hancock County farm, received my rural and High School education in Hancock County schools, and by virtue of my education and qualifications, feel that I am able to fill the office of County Auditor efficiently and creditably.

Believing that there is sufficient merit in my candidacy to warrant your support, I assure you it will be sincerely appreciated.

Respectfully yours,

Fred C. Missal

Sheriff

As most of the voters of Hancock County should know by this time, I am a Candidate for SHERIFF OF HANCOCK COUNTY. This is the first time I have ever asked the voters of the county for their consideration for a public office. I have been unable to meet all the voters personally but have tried to make as thorough canvass as possible. The county is large when one comes to covering every home. So I publish this letter to bring my message to you and to say that I will sincerely appreciate your vote next Monday. I wish to thank all those who have given me help so far and I trust that some time I may repay all of them. If nominated and elected Sheriff I will do my best to make the trust shown in me worthy.

Trusting that I may receive your favorable consideration Monday, I am

Candidate for Sheriff

OF HANCOCK COUNTY

An Upholder of the Law

Protector of Your Property

Since taking over the duties of the Sheriff's office now nearly two years ago, a multitude of duties have fallen to my lot—it has been a busy time and not all of my work has been of a pleasant nature, but my sworn duty is to deal justly and impartially with every subject and this I have endeavored to do. Fear, favor or partiality has in no way entered into the conduct of the affairs of this office. My experience has enabled me to handle matters of equity and deal with criminals in an efficient and economic manner.

If in the rush of my official duties I have neglected to express to you appreciation of past favors, or solicit of you further support, do not think it is because of indifference or lack of appreciation, but place the blame where it rightfully belongs--forgotten in the rush.

I stand upon a platform of economy, efficiency, justice and equity. If sucessful in my campaign for re-election as sheriff, I will continue to strive to do my full duty.

Cordially yours,

ASKS FOR YOUR SUPPORT AT THE POLLS

I would have liked to meet every voter of Hancock County personally before the Primary Election and ask you to vote for me for the nomination as County Attorney on the Republican Ticket, but unfortunately the duties of my office prevented me from reaching all of you personally, therefore I am using the columns of your paper to solicit your support. Vote for me on June 6th.

I have lived in Hancock County for thirty years, am a freeholder and taxpayer, and am now serving my first elective term as County Attorney.

In return for your support at the polls, I promise faithful, efficient and honest service as your County Attorney.

America's Trust in God Perpetuated on Coins

The religious motto "In God We Trust" first appeared on the coins of the country in 1864. It was the result of the increased religious fervor brought on by the Civil war. The then secretary of the treasury, S. P. Chase, received many appeals from people all over the country urging that the Deity be recognized on the American coins in a like manner as those of foreign nations.

Secretary Chase wrote to the director of the mint at Philadelphia, November 30, 1861, stating that "no nation can be strong except in the strength of God, or safe except in his defense. The trust of our people in God should be declared on our national coins. You will cause a device to be prepared without unnecessary delay with a motto expressing in the fewest words possible this national recognition."

Several forms were suggested. Some of the coins prepared in 1862 bore the motto "God Our Trust" and some coined in 1863 were marked "God and Our Country." The familiar form of the motto was decided upon and the two-cent pieces which appeared in 1864 were the first to carry it. The motto is not used on all coins.

Normal Human Instinct for Beauty in Clothes

One reason why clothes, or at least the clothes of men, excite so little interest is that they have become drab, and this drabness is excused on the ground that clothes are meant to be useful and comfortable; and usefulness and comfort have ceased to be associated with beauty in modern life. Neither reason, of course, is true. Clothes are worn to enhance human dignity, and, at bottom, only such comfort is wanted as shall not interfere with the prevailing mode. The women who starved and sliced themselves in order to keep slim, who will cripple their limbs with hobbled skirts when these are the wear, and crucify their feet when pointed toes and high heels are the fashion, display a normal human instinct. Men have suffered much and gladly to wear patent leather shoes at garden parties in the height of summer, and have choked themselves rapturously with tall, stiff collars; and comfort means little to them so long as they remain convinced of the rightness and fitness of both.—Osbert Burdett in the London Saturday Review.

Old Dishes Still Popular

Peacock tongues and humming bird wings may have lost their place on the festive English menu, but medieval dishes still play their part in the true English observance of Lent. In hamlets throughout the shires eating fried peas is a time-honored tradition on Carling Sunday, the fifth in Lent.

Semnel cakes are eaten in Shropshire and Herefordshire on Midlent or Mothering Sunday, the fourth Sunday in Lent, and in Westmoreland ayvers or havers are the rule of that day. Pancakes are in order on Shrove Tuesday and on every successive Tuesday during the Lenten season.

What Is Success?

He has achieved success who has lived well, laughed often, and loved much; who has gained the respect of intelligent men and the love of little children; who has filled his niche and accomplished his task, whether by an improved poppy, a perfect poem, or a rescued soul; who has never lacked appreciation of earth's beauty or failed to express it; who has always looked for the best in others and given the best he had; whose life was an inspiration and whose memory a benediction.—Exchange.

Golf and Geography

The scholars of a Pacific coast school have built an ingenious miniature golf course which is at the same time an instructor of geography. The various links represent different parts of the country and their products which is impressed upon the minds of the players as they make the rounds.

THE OPEN DOOR

By DOROTHY DOUGLAS

(© by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.) (WNU Service)

"MY DEAR," advised Enid's mother, "you would be a very foolish girl not to accept your uncle's generosity. He has to take the trip to London and wants you with him. It will give you a chance to meet many men on board ship and I have no doubt you will come back quite ready to marry George Danbury."

"I know I ought to love him, mother and his money could, perhaps, do a lot for Edward—but I just can't make up my mind."

"It is difficult, my daughter," agreed Mrs. Walker, "but after all George is a thoroughly good man, has heaps of money, and I think you would be happy with him in a year or two."

Enid sighed. "Yes, I suppose it is much the same, in a few years time, so long as one married a considerate type of man."

So Enid went on the ocean trip with Uncle Henry. George Danbury sent her great sheafs of flowers and baskets of fruit on the day of departure and Enid felt reasonably sure that upon her return she would give him the promise he wanted. But deep in her heart she knew that the great big thing called love was not in her life and that lack of money and her little brother's crippled state were the reasons for decision.

She met many men on board ship and found herself studying them and comparing them with George Danbury as a possible future mate. She was using all her wisdom over the trying problem but the more she tried to realize the future the more confused it became.

They reached London safely and Uncle Henry was obliged to tend business much of the time. Consequently Enid was left to wander about by herself. The idea of going back to New York and marrying George troubled her night and day. She felt that Edward might be cured if they could pay for the services of a great specialist. Every crippled man she saw stabbed her for Enid could see little Edward growing up a helpless cripple and she herself in a position to perhaps prevent it.

Enid found herself frequently visiting the wonderful old churches—St. Paul's, Westminister, St. James—and finding in the shadowed, silent walls a great amount of spiritual help.

And then her feet led her into the door of old St. Martin's in the field—that church whose doors are never shut, night or day, to the worn and weary. Human driftwood, asleep on the cushions, found safety, rest and help through the dark night.

Enid slipped in softly and found a seat in a darkened corner. A great surge of emotion swept over her and made her conscious of a tremendous and wonderful power working within the walls of that old church. There was tragedy, despair, poverty, scarred and besmirched bodies of human beings. Yet underneath and round about all a spirit of exaltation.

She went down on her knees and found herself praying for enlightment, seeking the path which she should take and thereby do the most good during her span of life. She prayed, too, for those other poor souls that were so utterly, hopelessly dejected.

Enid found herself weeping softly. She didn't know exactly why—but perhaps she felt that a way was being opened up for her to follow. Perhaps she had drawn nearer her God and he was showing her a path.

She did not start when she felt the young curate's hand drop lightly, understandingly, on her shoulders, but she looked up and into the most kindly eyes she had ever seen—sympathetic, helpful and plainly asking her for the reason of her weeping.

She had watched him going slowly about the church, offering words of help here and a bit of money there—a man happy in the performance of his duty.

Before Enid knew it she was telling him about her problems and her crippled brother and Danbury and all that her marriage to him might mean to all members of her family.

He listened quietly as one used to the outpourings of the heart and all the time Enid felt herself being drawn toward him.

"This is a tremendous sacrifice you are asking of yourself," the young curate admitted, "marriage without love. But, on the other hand, pure love matches are not always happy. So many people seek personal happiness in marriage rather than looking upon it as the stepping stone toward the fulfillment of a greater destiny."

Enid looked up with such sudden comprehension in her big eyes that the young curate smiled. He had not underestimated the worth of this young girl who had sought light in old St. Martin's in the Field. His work had made of him a keen reader of human possibilities. "You would not be here," he added gently, "if you were one who could marry for money and what it can give. I think you love this chap—love him with so big a love that you have been afraid of it—afraid that you could not give him measure for measure—afraid that his wealth would stand between you, and I think that he is just giving you time to realize—all this."

The young curate passed on down the aisle of the old church and Enid's eyes followed him with an intense glow of happiness in them. He had unlocked and opened the great doors of love for her to enter, and somewhere in the soft distance she saw the reflected smile of Danbury's eyes.

Beautiful Brioni Isles

Little as we may know in America of Yukoslavia, we should always associate with that little known land, the lovely Brioni isles. They have broken into the newspapers recently because of the death there of Karl Kuppelwieser, whose family made these islands the paradise of the Adriatic, which was sought out by royalty and by the modern notables from George Bernard Shaw to Eugene Tunney. They were malaria-infested islands when Kuppelwieser bought them 25 years ago, but today they are noted for their freedom from mosquitoes. The late Archduke Ferdinand wanted to buy them, but they were not for sale. Ask any tourist who loves the Adriatic and he will say, go to the isles of Brioni.

Ancient Egyptian Headdress

The Horus headdress for Egyptian women came into use in the Ptolemaic times. Originally, in the earlier history of Egypt, it was customary for a king to have his statue modeled with a hawk back of him showing the protection of the god Horus. Later, Isis, the wife of the god Osiris, was sometimes shown with wings of a hawk, a sacred bird of Egypt. A large figure of the goddess would have the wings like long arms protecting a small mortal standing in front of her. As time passed this was abbreviated into a headdress worn by women of the royal family.

Cuban "Santa Claus"

The Day of the Three Kings, January 6, is the great boys' and girls' day in Cuba. That is when the presents come. It is the Three Kings bearing gifts they picture in their minds for days ahead.

The toys may not be fine. They may be only little carts made from pieces of packing box board, or doll chairs, cradles, etc. These are oddly painted.

Children come first in the Cuban family. Cuban parents will even make personal sacrifices in order that the children may have gifts and playthings.

Attorney At Law Bell Block

Garner, Iowa

TO THE VOTERS:

It has been impossible or me to meet personally all the people in this county as I desired to do at the beginning of my campaign. I am not situated financially to own a car of my own nor do I have the necessary funds to rent one, all of which make my task doubly hard. Please consider this a personal meeting with you.

That you may better know me I will state a few facts about myself. I come from a large family of nine children, thus it was necessary for me to educate myself. I worked myself through High School and seven years of college. While in High School I worked mornings, nights and week ends at the W. R. Mickey Drug Co., of Mason City. I took four years of college work at Columbia. While there I waited tables at restaurants. After completing my course at Columbia I entered the State University of Iowa for the study of Law which I completed in three years. To pay my expenses while there I waited table and tutored a blind student by the name of Earl Wilcox.

At the close of my college work I came to Hancock County through choice after looking over the entire state of Iowa for a suitable location. I have been practicing law in Garner for the last year. For reference I give each and every Judge in this Circuit as well as Chief Justice Wagner, Judge Kindig, Judge Fable and Judge Grimm, all of the Supreme Court of Iowa

If elected to the office of County Attorney which office I am now seeking, I pledge myself to fulfill my oath of office to the best of my ability with partiality to none.

I will appreciate your hearty support.

Respectfully yours,

W. D. Daly

DUTY vs. DESIRE

To reassure the voters of this county of my appreciation of their past favors and to solicit still further support. I had hoped to find time to call upon many more voters than I have been able to.

I fully realize that my first duty is to the taxpayers of this county who have entrusted the duties of this ofice to my care. The work of preparing for the May term of court, and the duties of properly caring for court records during the term, have made it imperative that I remain in my office—that I might in truth and in fact be a clerk of the court.

If you can conscientiously place a cross (X) in front of my name at the June, 1932, republican primary, I will indeed be glad. If it is the will of the voters of this county that I remain as their clerk of the court, I pledge continued faithful, efficient service.

Respectfully submitted

(WNU Service)

MAURICE SPELLMAN had reached the stage where everything he did was important.

A certain movement of his circulated rumors in Wall Street.

International banking interests watched him.

A real estate buy of his in a given district started fluctuations upward in that vicinity.

The position of his box at the opera made adjacent ones especially desirable to their owners.

A special body of town coupe became popular because he chose it originally for his own use.

When he decided to dispose of his thirty-eight-room Fifth avenue house and build himself a thirty-room house in a section of New York hitherto undistinguished, it became quite the esoteric thing to live there. Many Fifth avenue mansions were subsequently deserted for the East River district made suddenly important and desirable by the presence of W. Maurice Spellman.

What actually prompted Spellman to the move, however, was not a desire to create a new social colony. On the contrary, it was something diametrically opposed to that.

There had been growing within Spellman, as his success mounted and as at forty-six he found himself a power among men, a sense of a need of respite from the growing demands of his position.

Success had not come to Spellman without grim battle.

For thirty of his forty-six years he had fought for it rung by rung. From the lean days when he lived with his parents and seven brother and sisters in an old water-front tenement, to his days of newspaper selling along lower Broadway, then on up to the still lean but eager days of his cub reportership, when he shared a walk-up, four-room apartment in Greenwich street with three other fellows, and so on and so on. Through more years of struggle, deprivation, failure, struggle, then failure again and finally the first glimmerings of success. The foray into Wall Street on the slender savings out of two years of newspaper work.

Success. A plunge with the winnings. More success. A clever sideswipe into copper. Twenty thousand dollars profit over night. Then the deluge.

From then on, practically everything Spellman touched turned to gold.

Feature writers had blazoned his story over enough Sunday supplements to pave the way from his new thirty-room home to the tip of Seattle.

Slogans for success were invited from him by the bevy of waiting reporters every time he stepped off a train. His arrival or departure any time or anywhere was a matter of national importance.

All this from the man who fifteen years before had been Bill Spellman, a struggling young reporter who shared a rather dingy down-town flat with three other fellows, two of whom slept on cots in the same room with Bill.

Strangely enough, although in a much less spectacular way, these boys had gone on, too. As if contact with the success-destined personality of Spellman had cast its power over them. Spike Quigley, erstwhile police reporter on the Herald, while Bill had been rewrite man, was now president of a large motor car corporation. Red Dyke, also ex-rewrite man, had recently presented his daughter with a check for fifty-thousand dollars on her wedding day. Even Slow Thompson, special writer for the Town Review, had since come nicely into his own as real estate promoter in the land parcel deals.

The old "Greenwich Guys," as they had been pleased to call themselves, had all come along in the world, so to speak.

Spellman valued those days. Looking back, they sometimes seemed to him to have been the happiest of his life.

They were the days when he had dreamed of writing. Before the moil and the toil had caught him in their clutches and flung him around on the great belt, as it were, of the gigantic wheel called struggle-for-existence.

Bill had been a dreamer back in those days. So had all that particular little nest of fellows. The long, talky evenings over pale red wine and grensy Italian table d'hote dinners in subcellars, dreaming, talking, planning, hoping! And rebelling!

Spellman had been a rebel in those days.

Hating injustice. Crying out against monopolies and against man's inhumanity to man. Spellman had dreamed of writing the great American Comedie Humaine, only, as he outlined it to the Greenwich Guys, as they sat talking on and on into the dream-lit nights, his Comedie Humaine was going to show humanity the grim tragedy, as well.

Oh, Spellman had dreams, all right. They lit the dinginess of the poky little over-crammed flat.

They lit the days and nights.

They were the dreams of idealism. Of youth with his head in the clouds.

And then the deluge. The deluge of the material success that made of life a cyclorama. A success so blinding, so amazing, that the world clamored for its recipe.

No wonder that under the stress of it, the strain of it, there came the time when Spellman, still in love with success, mind you, felt, however, the need of a retreat from the maddening crowd.

At first his family rebelled. His wife, young, a product of the world he had grown into, held back from that move off the Avenue. His children, fiery, spoiled, intelligent, creatures of their kind of environment, shied at first and then capitulated to the novelty of the idea.

In the end, the move turned out to be one of the most brilliantly diplomatic things Spellman had ever done. It proved his position in the social world which his wife and children craved. Society came flocking over after Spellman to the hitherto obscure section along the East river. A new and old-world looking boulevard began to take shape over there.

Brilliantly successful as it was, in the eyes of his family, and the realty dealers who profited by the land boom, so far as Spellman was concerned, it was a failure.

He had defeated his own purpose. In seeking to escape the maddening crowd, he had only brought it tagging along with him.

Travel meant no respite to Spellman. There were the ship reporters, the glare of limelight even in obscure foreign parts, and once when he sought the desert, reporters with cameras had found him out as he stalked across the waste place, camel-back.

Spellman wanted leisure now. But his Long Island home was a social rendezvous and his Adirondack camp that same kind of center all over again. New Mexico became the fad, no sooner he had built an abode hut out there, and a private office in the forty-sixth story of the Woolworth office building remained private for about two weeks.

Spellman wanted leisure. Spellman wanted to write. The old urge was upon him. The old desire to put into printed, palpitating word the human panorama as it had marched so dramatically before his still young eyes. Spellman wanted mental peace. The quiet kind of hours that yield up dreams.

One day an idea struck him like a benign flash out of heaven.

Within three hours, secret agents had been dispatched down to a rickety little old building in quaint old Greenwich street.

Twelve hours later, the property had secretly passed into the hands of Spellman.

One week later, and with a degree of secrecy that only power and money could command, Spellman walked into almost an extra replica of the dingy old flat of days gone by.

He had even managed to have reproduced the mangy old carpet sofa upon which he had slept those eager nights, away back.

There was the ink spot on the wall left from Red Dyke having good naturedly hurled a bottle of the stuff at Bill one night after an altercation on the subject of Neitsche's philosophy.

The first night that Spellman spent in his new retreat promised to be one of the greatest peace he had known in years. A long quiet evening before the tunnel-shaped little old grate in the dingy flat. Books. Memories. Dreams. Ideals.

But, of course, it was hard to concentrate. By eleven o'clock, a hundred details were crowding into Spellman's mind, making it difficult for him to use his well-earned leisure. There was not telephone. There had been none in the old days. One had to go to the corner drug store. That made it difficult. In the last year, Spellman had developed a slight heart leakage. Unimportant, but he required a certain amount of restraint to his activities. By eleven, Spellman, accustomed to chilled mineral water at his bedside, was thirsty. There was only the hydrant. And no ice in the leaky refrigerator. There had never been any in the old days, unless one of the fellows ran over to Grody's saloon and brought back a nickel's worth. Of course there was no Grody's saloon any more.

When finally Spellman turned in, the magic to the old couch was all gone. The old couch hurt! It shot into his ribs with a cruelty that kept him wide awake and concentrating upon his discomfort rather than any of the old dreams he had used to enjoy, with his eyes staring wide open into the comfortable blackness.

The blackness annoyed him now. He had the sensation that vermin might be crawling around and about him. The stiff blanket irked. The air from the shaft was foul.

At eight o'clock the next morning, Spellman, who had fallen off into a brief hour's sleep, awoke stiff and unrefreshed. A blurred mirror gave back his lined and weary image.

The little old room of his memories was a dirty smear.

The old Bill was gone. Spellman was in his place.

Emerging from the rickety little building that morning, eager for a taxi and a trip uptown to his warm and mellow bath, he found a battalion of reporters and photographers lying in wait for him who leaped into action at sight of him.

"Mr. Spellman, have you anything to say—click—click—click—on the subject of—"

"Yes, fellows, I have," said Mr. Spellman smiling, as he hailed his taxi. "He who would seek for his lost youth, must find it in his heart. There is no going back."

The Boyhood of Famous Americans

By J. V. Fitzgerald

Vice President Charles Curtis

The Cheyennes were on the warpath. They were out to exterminate the Kaws. Vastly superior in numbers, they attacked their enemy at the Council Grove reservation. The Kaws were in a perilous position. They faced death.

The chiefs met in council. They had to get a messenger through to Topeka for aid if they were to survive. They selected an eight-year-old boy to carry the news of their plight through the lines of the Cheyennes and across 57 miles of prairie that separated them from Topeka.

Charles Curtis was the lad picked for that hazardous errand. He took a supply of dried buffalo ment, won his way through the Cheyennes, and trotted and trudged all the way to Topeka to get the aid that reached the Kaws in time to save them. That was in 1868, when the West was really wild and woolly, when buffalo roamed the plains, when Indians still fought and scalped.

The boy's father was a white man, a New Englander of good birth. His Indian heritage came through his mother, a descendant of White Hair, famous Osage chief. White Hair was the great-great-great-grandfather of the lad who brought relief to the beleaguered Kaws. The boy was attending school at the Kaw agency, living there with his mother's people, when the Cheyennes took the warpath.

The little fellow, destined to become leader of the United States senate and vice president of the United States, was brought up in the Indian tradition that fortitude, ability to stand hardships, and physical superiority were traits to cultivate from the cradle.

Before his mother died, which was when he was three, he had learned to swim and to ride. His mother had put him on the back of an Indian pony when he was a year old. It was she, also, who taught him to swim. He could follow a trail, catch fish and hunt when he was of the kindergarten age of the present generation.

He was born in 1860 in a log cabin, near the banks of the Kansas river, in what is now North Topeka. The great outdoors of the prairie was his early school room. There he learned the lessons that were of so much help to him in getting his feet on the first rungs of the ladder of success.

After his mother's death he went to live with his Indian relatives, but following the Cheyenne raid he rejoined his father, staying with his father's parents at North Topeka. There he entered the grade schools, attending them during the winters until he was sixteen.

Almost born on the back of a pony, he spent his summers as a jockey, riding in races at the country fairs. He was famous as a jockey all over the state and the frontier country by the time he was ten. He rode the horses of his father and other owners in the sprint races that were such a feature of western fairs those days.

He was riding at a Kansas City track when Jesse James and his gang held up the course in 1872. The bandits were after money only, but the lad thinking they might steal his favorite horse, hid the animal until they rode away.

While he got a bad fall when a horse bolted with him in a race, the marks of which he still carries on his face, he didn't quit racing until his wise Indian grandmother advised him to leave horses alone and study, that he might amount to something in life. She gave him this advice after he started with her tribe on a migration to Oklahoma, then Indian territory.

Persuaded by her to return to Topeka, he resumed his schooling. He drove a hack at night to pay his way through high school. He turned down a fine contract as a jockey so he might follow the advice of his Indian grandmother and get an education.

He was a good student, once his mind was made up to find a career for himself. He made particular strides in elocution, and delivered the commencement address when he was graduated. It so impressed the wife of a lawyer in the audience that she induced her husband to take the youngster into his office.

That is how Charles Curtis began the study of law that was to help him reach such high places. He was admitted to the bar in 1881. He went to congress in 1892, rose rapidly to a commanding position as a legislator, and was his party's successful nominee for vice president of the United States.

Odd Refuge for Quail

A trained dog stays when told to drop. Old "Lookout," a hunting dog belonging to Charles Lanier, was told to lie down when two quail flushed silently, indicating that their nest was near.

The dog obeyed immediately, but the young ones could not be found. Finally a curious stirring of the setter's silky "feathers" revealed that 14 baby quail had taken cover beneath the motionless dog.—St. Nicholas.

FEDERAL AID FOR HOPPERS REJECTED BY CONGRESS

The recent action by Congress in turning down federal aid in the control of grasshoppers has brought about serious objection throughout Iowa, according to M. G. Thornburg secretary of agriculture.

We are going ahead with the organization of county units and encouraging local organizations to co-operate in control wherever there were many grasshoppers last year. We also hope that Congress may be induced to reconsider the grasshopper situation and provide some funds for control work, declared Mr. Thornburg.

County agents in western and northwestern Iowa have met at Missouri Valley and Sioux City in order to secure detailed field information in regard to making and applying grasshopper bait. They have been asked to set up local organizations, train local leaders and keep the state committee informed in regard to local developments.

All organizations in the state are asked to aid in getting a reconsideration of the federal bill for grasshopper control. A letter or wire to your senator or congressman will undoubtedly give them the information they need to present this middlewestern problem to other members of congress.

SAVE MONEY BY PAINTING WITH LOWE BROTHERS STANDARD BARN PAINT—

8 Points

TO CONSIDER IN BUYING A BARN PAINT

1. Made by The Lowe Brothers Company which has been in the paint business sixty years and has a national reputation for making quality products.
2. It takes ust as much work, often more, to paint with poor pait than with good paint. Poor Paints usually require nearly twice as many gallons—which adds to the cost of the finished job.
3. Poor Paint fails in half the time—then the work must be done all over again which means more expense.
4. We are passing on to you a Special Price obtained by our buying in large quantities.
5. Many "mail order" barn paints and these sold by "house-to-house" canvassers do not contain one drop of linseed oil but in its place contain mineral oils which have no value as binders and the paint soon washes off.
6. The makers of our barn paints publish the formulas on their labels showing contents of the cans.
7. We handle Lowe Brothers Barn Paints because after careful investigation we recognize them as the best value for the money. It is a line we can safely sell to our customers.
8. Lowest in Price since 1917.

W. C. KERAUS LEADS ALL IOWA AGENTS IN NO. OF POLICIES SOLD DURING MAY

Local Insurance Representative Receives Congratulations Of Company Officials

W. C. Keraus, local representative of the Equitable Life Insurance Company of Iowa received a telegram June 1st from the General Agent, H. C. Finch, of Northwood stating that he held first position of all Iowa Agents in number of cases paid for during May, and that his agency held first position of all Iowa agencies during the month of May.

Recently the General Agent issued a special bulletin to all representatives of his agency which said in brief: "Bill Keraus was in the Mason City office this morning with eight applications and cash settlement with each one. Five of these applications were written in One day. All applicants examined except two; appointment with doctor for these tonight Now who says it can't be done?"

At a time when insurance agents are facing many unusual and difficult problems Mr. Keraus continues to be one of the state leaders in risks written for the Equitable Life Insurance Co. of Iowa, which he represents.

The Equiowa, monthly magazine of the company, published at Des Moines, recently carried a picture of Mr. Keraus in connection with an item telling how on September 10 of last year he sent out form letters to thirty-five selected prospects and followed these up with personal calls in which he secured eight applications for $26,000 dollars worth of business. The writeup goes on to state that "the average application was for $3,250, the applications per one hundred letters mailed was 12.83 per cent and the insurance per letter sent was $419.35. All of these figures are in excess of the service letter results obtained by our agent as a whole. Yet Mr. Keraus lives in a small town where conditions are not especially favorable and does most of his selling to farmers."

Mr. Keraus also received letters from the President of the company, H. S. Nollen, and the vice-president H. E. Aldrich expressing their appreciation and gratitude for the fine work he is doing for the company and commenting on the example he is setting and the inspiration he is giving to the other agents

BANDITS HOLD UP FARMER

Ringsted Dispatch:—Henry Fox a farmer residing about five miles north of Ringsted, was held up by bandits one day last week. Two men came to the field and took him to the corn crib where they tied his hands and feet. INNOCENT EDITOR BLAMED FOR BOY'S PLAYFUL PRANK

Britt News-Tribune:— One day last week while County Treasurer John Suurballe was in Britt a boy playfully placarded his car and forged the name of Marshall Naser telling John to appear in Mayor J. L. Llody's court. That may have been funny to the boy but it was not so funny for the editor who was accused of doing the trick, because the car happened to be parked close to the editorial office. When Mr. Suurballe presented his card to "Hishonor", the Mayor, Mr. Lloyd quickly detected the trick for he knew the handwriting was not that of Marshall Naser. Later Marshall Naser discovered who the boy was who tagged the car but not until the offended officer had left town.

SHOVELS STOLEN FROM CULTIVATOR IN FIELD

Britt Farmer Offers $25 Reward For Information On Guilty Parties

Britt News-Tribune:— Some contemptible low down cuss stole six shovels off a corn cultivator standing in the field of H. J. Kyhl. This happened Friday night and when Mr. Kyhl discovered the loss as he was ready to start blind plowing next morning he was so mad that he says he will spend the price of two or three new corn plows to find out who the thief was. He is in earnest about it and tells the editor he will pay $25.00 to anyone who will tip him off as to who the thief is—and that is going a long way in these days of $2.00 hogs and 15c corn.

DOWN POUR OF RAIN FLOODS TIMES PRINT SHOP

The Times is somewhat delayed this week as the down pour of rain here Tuesday afternoon flooded the prining plant of the Times Office. This is the first time in 15 years that the basement of the plant has been put out of commission because of water. Many basements in Klemme which have never suffered from rains were flooded Tuesday. The rain in Klemme was near a cloud burst and caused quite a lot of damage in flooding basements.

TWO AUTO WRECKS ON NO. 179 OVER WEEK END

One of the Betsy Ross bread trucks from Mason City on leaving Klemme Saturday, ran into a car at the intersection of Highways No. 179 aud 15. As we gather the story the brakes on the bread truck failed to hold when the drived slowed down for the corner and the truck tangled with a car going north on the highway, with the result that the car was badly damaged, but no one was reported injured. The truck was slightly damaged.

Bennie Beek driving his Chevolet coupe into town Sunday moning on No. 179 ran off the grade near town and upset. The cause of this accident was that a part of the steering apparatus became disengaged and the car headed for the ditch being out of control of the driver. Broken windshield and glass was about the extent of the damage and Beek was but slightly injured.

Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Wiles are now located at Clear Lake. Mr. Wiles, who has been ill this spring is greatly improved in health again and says he is feeling fine. Mr. and Mrs. Wiles reside at 117 Clara St.

DOCTOR HAS PECULIAR CASE

Livermore Gazette:—Dr. Beardsley was summoned to the Lewis Olson home on the Air Line road west of town Friday to attend their girl Mable Olson, 14, on of the Olson Twins. It was to the ordinary reader a very peculiar case, but happened to be one with which the doctor's experience had made him familiar, and the results might have been serious but for the prompt summoning of medical aid. She had been stung on the head by a bee, the mark scarcely showing and little or no swelling being in evidence. Nevertheless she had the appearance of being nearly lifeless. and the heart was scarcely beating. The body was already broken out with swellings similiar to hives, although it was less than a half hour since the child had been stung. The medical term for her condition is "acute anaphylactic shock". It is known to the medical profession that the sting of a bee will in rare cases produce these symptoms and death if the system is in the right condition. The girl is now in her usual good health.

IOWA FISHES—THE PIKES

(Taken from Natural History Series of the Iowa Fish and Game News)

The common pike is a noble fisn and quite common to certain waters of Iowa. It is found in the lake region and in the Mississippi, r wherever the waters are reasonably clear. It varies in weight from a few pounds to many pounds. It prefers cleau, clear, cool water, with a sluggish current. Strong and active swimmer, extremely voracious, with senses remarkably acute.

Feeds principally on other fish, although includes many animals 'n its diet such as frogs, in fact anything in the water which it can capture and manage. Remains very quiet among the reeds and "shoots out" with great speed after its prey Spawning takes place early in the spring of year, where long strings of spawn may be seen clinging to submerged bushes. Eggs hatch in a week to ten days.

Excellent as food. A single female may deposit as many as 100,000 eggs. It is readily caught with minnow bait, or with a trolling spoon. Will also take a fly.

—There must be reason for younger young men swimming in the river. It must be that the water is so thick that it makes swimming easy for the novice. Or there may now be some extraordinarily sweet nectar mixed in the water on the down-stream side of a dead pig. I don't know. It didn't used to be that way.

CULLING CUTS HEN LOSSES

Disease Is Thief In Poultry Flock Which Steals Profits Of Good Hens

That death loss in the poultry flock causes large losses in income is proved by the reports of 113 Iowa farmers who kept records the past year, the average loss during the year being 16.5 per cent.

Much of this death loss occurring in the farm flocks is preventable, according to Wm. R. Whitfield, poultry specialist of Iowa State College Extension Service. He says that culling the flocks wil reduce the death loss.

Birds which are not laying and which may die later from one of many causes will be removed, he said. The high producing hen is in good health, while the non-layer may be affected by disease or parasites or she may be healthy but become too fat and die, particularly during hot weather

The prevalance of disease carriers in farm flocks is a further reason for culling birds which are not laying as such birds may be harboring infectious diseases, or important parasites which need only an opportunity to get to healthy birds to cause their sickness. These birds should be killed and burned.

Culling should be done promptly especially if the mortality has been high during the year because the and summer summer are extremely weather conditions during spring favorable to the spread of diseases and parasites and usually heavy losses are likely to occur at this time.

Culling is an excellent measure for the various outbreaks of disease. Bad cases of tuberculosis, cholera and others may be largely controlled by a rigorous adoption of this measure.

CONSFISCATED ALCOHOL DISAPPEARS

Ringsted Dispatch:— The 213 gallons of alcohol captured sometime ago by county officers and which was stored in the vault at the Emmet county court house basement, was stolen last week. However the supply had dwindled from 213 gallons to 191 gallons and about 16 gallons were overlooked by the thieves so the amount stolen was around 175 gallons.

The thieves entered the court house basement thru a coal chute. They were able to open the vault and then they broke into the clerks office and it is assumed they loaded the alcohol on a truck thru the office window. The robbery is a bold one and was carried out without being seen by the Estherville night police.

HOW TO KEEP FLOWERS FRESH

Various Treatments Lengthen Life of Different Cut Flowers

Freshly cut flowers are a source of delight in any home, but at the same time they often are a trial and dissapointment to the housewife because of their short life.

This situation can be remedied some what, floriculture specialists at Iowa State College have found, by proper handling of the flowers after they have been cut.

Pure, fresh water every day, kept at as low a temperature as possible will do wonders. In addition, the practice of breaking off a bit of the stem each day aids in keeping the flowers alive.

Poppies, heliotrope, mignonette, dahlias and poinsettas will keep the best if the stems are plunged into boiling water shortly after they have been cut and are then placed in cold water. Hot water seals the ends, prevents the sap from flowing downward and permits absorption through the outer surface of the stems in parts higher up.

Chemicals such as Charcoal and aspirin disinfect the water and consequently can be used as an aid in keeping flowers fresh. It has been found in the Floriculture Department that the use of a 0.1 solution of boric acid will improve the keeping qualities of carnations three to seven days. One-half tablet of aspirin to two quarts of water helps the chrysanthemums and dahlias, but fails to do much for other blooms. One teaspoonfull of can sugar to 1 quart of water will do much to freshen asters.

NOT ENOUGH RED CLOVER GROWN IN IOWA

Less Than 1,000 Tons Produced In Several Counties In 1931

Not enough red clover is grown in Iowa, in the opinion of R. B. Bennett, assistant in field experiments for the Farm Crops and Soils Department at Iowa State College. In 1931 a number of counties in the state produced less than 1,000 tons of this crop.

Red clover fits into the rotations used in Iowa without any trouble, says Mr. Bennett, whether it be corn, oats and clover or a four year corn, corn, oats and clover rotation. The second growth of clover as soil builder should be plowed under in order to incorporate the nitrogen in the foliage into the soil. Pasturing the second crop also returns some of the plant food to the soil in the form of manure.

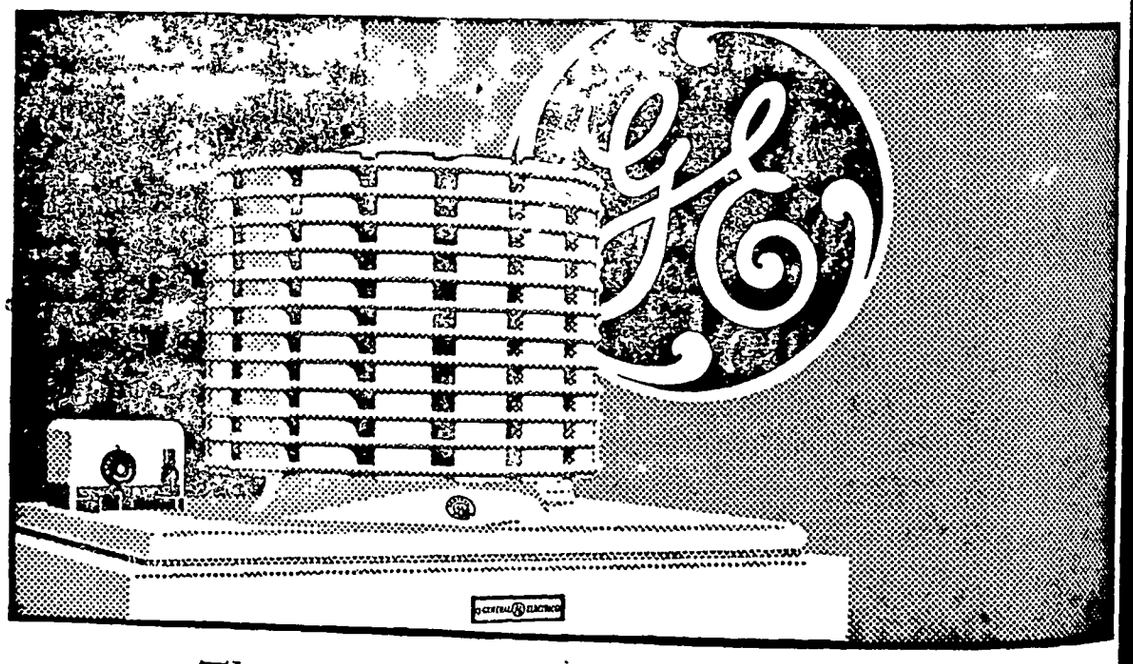
Before You Buy Your Refrigerator



The Mechanism of Any Refrigerator is More Important to You than the Price Tag

LET'S GET DOWN TO THE FACTS on modern refrigeration.

It is misleading to focus all attention on incidental features . . . or on the price tag only. The mechanism is your most important consideration in the selection of a refrigerator. When it fails, service and repair bills commence. Continuous service charges on a "cheap" refrigerator can eat up the very savings modern refrigeration makes.

DYAS GIVES ADVICE ON LEGUME GROWING AND HARVESTING

E. S. Dyas, crop specialist of the extension service, spent Thursday June 9th in Hancock County holding five legume meetings, all of which were well atteded.

At the meetings Mr. Dyas answered any questions asked in regard to growing and harvesting legumes.

In the older seeding of alfalfa visited a very small amount of alfalfa wilt was found. In some cases, where wilt is found, one year will find it taking the entire crop but usually it does not destrop so fast. Wilt is present when you find alfalfa plants that have grown nicely only to turn yellow and die. If you examine the roots you will find that healthy root is whit while the root of an alfalfa pant infested with wilt has a yellow core or center. When the plant is completely dead the root turns black and is rotten.

The only thing to do with an alfalfa field that is badly infested with wilt is to plow it under and do not reseed same land to alfalfa for at least two years.

Right now is a good time to seed alfalfa if you have not already seeded some. Test that ground that was in rye and if sweet, seed it to alfalfa. If you seed now do not put on a nurse crop but sow the alfalfa alone It is not adivisable to seed alfalfa alone early in the spring because the weeds probably would take it, but now seed alone applying from 12 to 15 pounds per acre.

For those who seeded alfalfa this spring, may I suggest that you watch the nurse crop so that it does not smother out the alfalfa. Cut the nurse crop off for hay and play safe.

A fellow who buys livestock in this community tells the story of what was told him in the north part of the county recently. He was traveling on a side road a short time ago when the roads were bad. As he was passing a farm house he noticed his car which had been pulling hard was heating. He stopped and asked the boy in the yard if he could get a little water, and the lad disappeared, later returning with a bucket of water which he put in the man's car. The man took a fifty cent piece from his pocket and handed it to the boy. The boy refused, saying, "he didn't want pay for the kindness, because they weren't that hardup. They didn't own the farm, they just rented it." There may be some significance attached to that story or there may be none. Anyhow it was told to us for the truth.—Thornton Enterprise.

Mexicans Waste Timber

Most Mexicans still use charcoal to heat their homes although their land is rich with oil and gas. Assistant Trade Commissioner. E. D. McLaughlin in Mexico City reports to the United States Commerce department that charcoal is being used there at the rate of 300 tons a day. This consumption requires the destruction of approximately two square miles of woodland daily. Several government officers met recently to consider the situation and are formulating plans to educate the populace to substitute other fuels for charcoal.

Easy Way to Call Children

"I find the porch light a great help in calling the children home," writes a mother in the Parents' Magazine. "In the winter, when they are playing out in the snow or in a neighbor's house, turning on the light saves me a trip to call them. Even in the summer when they play out in the long evenings, they can readily see it the length of the block when they are watching for it."

ODD "INDUSTRIES" IN BRITISH ISLES

I reckon," said the farmer, "that I get up earlier than anybody in the neighborhood I am always up before three o'clock in the morning."

The second farmer said he was always up before then and had part of his chores done.

The first farmer thought he was a liar and decided to find out

A few mornings after he got up at two o'clock and went to his neighbors house He rapped at the back door and the woman of the house opened it

"Where is your husband?" asked the farmer, expecting to find him in bed.

"He was around here early in the morning," answered his wife, "but I don't know where he is now."

"I regret, sir," said the pedagogic waiter, "that I cannot supply you with the desired information. I am supposed only to serve the soup, not to explain its ingredients."

"But a dead fly, man," persisted the customer "A dead fly; how did it happen?"

"I am sorry to say, sir, I have no idea how the poor insect met its fate. Possibly it had not taken food for a long time, and fluttering near the soup, found the aroma paticularly appetizing, and eating too heartily, contracted appendicitis or gastritis, or some similar digestive malady, which, in the absence of an opportunity for the application of x-rays and appropriate medical and surgical treatment, caused its untimely demise."

What Volume Means

To a Creamery and Why We Are Interested in New Patrons--

A survey was made some time ago for the purpose of ascertaining the cost of manufacture of a pound of butter in various creameries in Iowa

6The result of this survey showed that the cost of making a pound of butter ranged from 2.18 cents for creameries producing 500,000 lbs., to 4.87 cents per pound for creameries producing 100,000 pounds or less.

..We are indeed pleased to report that the Klemme Co-Operative Creamery Co. manufactures a pound of butter for even less than the low figure given.

..The report shows that as production increases that the cost of manufacture increases—a good reason why we should all work for more, as well as better cream.

DIRE RESULTS OF WASTED RESOURCES

Perhaps the richest country in Europe in natural resources is Rumania, yet its people live on the lowest level of culture, in squalor and poverty Perhaps the poorest countries in Europe in natural resources are Switzerland, Holland and Denmark, yet these have the highest general level of well-being.

Within the limits of common experience, prosperity depends not so much on abundance of natural resources as upon the manner of controlling and using them.

The way in which natural resources are controlled and used to promote well-being is a good measure of a civilization. Half a million Indians fought for hunting grounds and lived precariously in what is now the United States. The Greece of today has been robbed and denuded until it looks like a desert. The peasants' goats have stripped the mountain sides, as the army and the politicians have the nation. A man will travel long distances over the mountains to gather a bundle of brush no larger than a lilac bush, to use for fuel. Yet Greece under good care could be a land of plenty.

Poor, barren Switzerland has educated her people, managed her forests, enriched her meadows, harnessed her waters, and exploited her natural beauty (which is no finer than that of Greece) to support a moderate and thrifty, but relatively widely distributed, well-being.- V. H. Morgan in "Antioch (College) Notes."

Profanity Called For, and Caddy Was "There"

Dr. J Whitcomb Brougher, now of Boston, but formerly of Los Angeles, took a fling at golf on the public links in Franklin park. He was doing splendidly until he reached the seventh hole when he sliced his drive and had the embarrassment of seeing it dribble at right angles down the slope into an almost impossible lie.

As he gazed after the ball sadly, a vehement string of profanity shattered the air and turning sharply, Doctor Brougher stood aghast as his caddy spluttered cuss words on all six.

"Great heavens, lad!" demanded Doctor Brougher "what is the reason for all this profanity?"

"Well," replied the tough little caddy, "after a shot like that, somebody had to cuss and knowing you're too ignorant to do it, I thought I'd better do it myself."—Los Angeles Times.

Dock Floats 13,000 Miles

After a journey of nearly 13,000 miles, or half way around the world, one of the largest floating docks in existence has come to its destination at Wellington, New Zealand The dock left Newcastle, England, where it was constructed, more than six months ago. and so efficiently was it handled that its trip was rather uneventful. The dock was built according to the specifications prepared by experts of the Wellington harbor board, whose representatives went to Newcastle to supervise the work It is designed to accommodate ships of 17,000 tons, which engage in the New Zealand trade.

Autos Lost in Fog

Descending suddenly at Harringay dog-racing track near London, recently, a fog caused abandonment of the meet and created chaos among the spectators. Cars leaving the inclosure could move only at walking pace, and in some parts the mist was so thick that drivers had to be guided by people walking in front of the cars with handkerchiefs tied to their backs.

Eagle Made Much Trouble

When power trouble resulted between Dodge City, Kan., and Bucklin, investigators found a large eagle had fallen on the wires and caused a short circuit. The bird measured six feet between wing tips and had a rabbit in its claws. It was a white-headed eagle, rarely ever seen in this section of the country.

Discovers Meaning of Alaskan Totem Poles

Secretary of the Interior Wilbur has found out what the two brilliant Alaskan totem poles outside his office door mean.

So many people asked him about them when he first put them up that he wrote Governor Parks of Alaska. The governor called upon John Wallace, the Indian, who carved them, to explain his work.

The Indian advised Wilbur that one pole shows the raven, a good spirit. Below is the daughter of the Spirit of the Creek, then a bird, representing the Creek watchman; then the Spirit of the Creek, who has a frog in his mouth (being eaten), and the Spirit of the Salmon in his ears.

The other pole is topped by the beautiful daughter of an Indian chief, riding on a bullhead fish. Below is her father wearing the sort of hat to be used in time of trouble. At the bottom is a whale killer who acted as messenger in finding the daughter after the bullhead had carried her away.—Washington Star.

A Chaud-Froid

Lieut. Apollo Soucek, the airman who won an altitude record, said in Los Angeles the other day:

"The cold, 30,000 feet up, is so extraordinary that when you tell people about it you feel as if you were a liar. Yes, you feel like the farmhand.

"'The coldest day I ever seen, the farmhand said, 'was back home wunst in pig killin' time in the Vermont mountings. Why, it was so dum cold that day that we had a kittle of b'ilin' water a-settin' on the stove, and when we took it out in the yard it friz so dum quick that the ice was hot.'"

Irish Spurn New Homes

Claddagh, the picturesque fishing village in Galway, may not be abandoned after all. For generations the interesting people, with their traditions of Spain and the Gael, have lived there, and the present generation likes the place. Recently the Free State government offered to build a new village for them, and the Claddaghites at first were enthusiastic, but after estimating the extra taxes and rents, they refused to desert their old thatched cottages for comfortable houses with slate roofs.

"Pants" Oddly Restored

Walter F. Stanley was gassed in the World war. Moved to a hospital in England, they took away his uniform and gave him civilian clothes. He went back home to Charlotte, S. C., and resumed his trade. Recently, needing a uniform for a parade, he went to a salvage store and asked for a pair of O. D. pants, the only thing he lacked. The pair on top of the pile looked as if they might fit him. They did. Inside were his name and serial number. The pants he lost in the hospital had come home.

Roman Altar Found

A delightful find has been made near Newcastle, England, on the line of the old Roman wall. It is a Roman altar in a good state of preservation, with its inscription still sharp and clear after all the centuries that have streamed away since Britain was a Roman colony. The altar was dedicated to mothers by a detachment of the First Cohort of the Verdulli. The altar was found near Matient Piers by the North of England excavations committee. It is a great treasure that they have discovered.

Texas Preserves Relic

The oldest complete structure still remaining in Texas is the stone fort at San Pedro Springs, San Antonio. Plans to preserve it are well advanced. Its construction is placed at various dates between 1690 and 1716. The stone fort formed the southwest corner of a cedar stockade, burned by Indians. Defense of the old fort from attacks of decay has been spurred on by recent loss of the old stone market house and the Veramendi palace. Both these old buildings gave way to the march of industry. The fort is on ground made a park by the city, so is free from danger of razing.

Erosion's Heavy Cost

Erosion has modified the surface of the earth more than the combined activities of volcanoes, earthquakes, tidal waves, tornadoes, and all the excavations of mankind since the beginning of history, says the United States Department of Agriculture. The fact that it proceeds slowly, usually taking a thin layer at a time, does not in the least alter the impoverishing effects of erosion, speeded up by man and operating through long periods of time.

Hunger Adjective

A Hoosier miss was wearing a new dress at dinner, and her date's only comment was:

"Your dress is very nice."

"Your vocabulary does not contain any superfluous adjectives," said the disappointed girl.

"Look what a beautiful beefsteak we are having for dinner," replied the hungry date.

Almighty Dollar Sold

At an auction of antiques in London a United States gold dollar piece bearing the date 1853 was sold for seven shillings, which is about $1.75 at par. "Oh, no!" said the auctioneer when somebody bid five shillings for the coin. "The sovereign is up seven shillings. Surely the almighty dollar is worth more than that."

Response

"What was your greatest disappointment in public life?"

"Opening letters after my first speech," answered Senator Sorghum. "I thought I was going to get a lot of fan mail like a motion picture star."

The Subtle Sex

NATIVE EXPLAINS BUSH TELEGRAPHY

For many years white men have been puzzled by the uncanny way in which the Australian aborigines can communicate with one another over long distances without any apparent means. This has been known as bush telegraphy.

An explanation has just been given by David Unaipon, an educated Australian aborigine. Bush telegraphy, he explained, was developed by an intense form of discipline started in youth, by which the young aborigine learns to detach himself from his surroundings. First he is taught to eat only when his body needs nourishment, and then to fast.

The supreme test of fasting for a boy is that he should walk for three days without food, and then on the fourth day eat one day's rations.

When it is desired to communicate with another aborigine at a distance a smoke signal is made by a man who concentrates on the message he wishes to send. The recipient of the message also frees his mind from all outside influences to receive the telepathic message.

"One morning," explained Unaipon, "I was sitting in Sydney and trying to write, when a message came to me that my wife in South Australia was dead. Next day a telegram came to tell me what I already knew. I learned afterwards that my wife's mother had sent the original message to me by the bush telegraphic method."

TRUTH ABOUT POEM "BEAUTIFUL SNOW"

The story that the familiar poem "Beautiful Snow" was written by a young woman who committed suicide in Cincinnati is a romantic yarn that has tagged after the poem for years. It is entirely untrue. Burton E. Stevenson, in "Famous Single Poems," is one writer who explains the source of the story.

During the Civil war an unidentified young woman died in the Commercial hospital in Cincinnati, and among her effects was found a manuscript of this poem. It was sent to Enos B. Reed, editor of the National Union, who printed it and credited its authorship to the dead girl.

But it developed when the verses began to be copied among the newspapers that the lines had originally appeared in Harper's Weekly of November 27, 1858, some years before the death of the unknown girl.

The poem was published originally unsigned. It was written by John Whitaker Watson, who was born in New York in 1824, graduated at Columbia university and studied medicine, but entered journalism and developed into a writer of sentimental verse and sensational serials. None of his other poems ever achieved the notice of this one, and because of the attention it attracted, he used its name as the title of a book of verse which he published in 1869.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Women Inventors Increasing

The number of applicants from women for patent papers has increased greatly in recent years. When the last detailed analysis was made, women were applying for patents at the rate of about 500 a year, but it is known to have increased considerably, since recently a large number of women have entered industrial life. As might be expected, the highest percentage of inventions of the number studied a few years ago confined themselves to domestic devices, but a great many applications are now from the realms of metallurgy and other higher technical fields.

Grewsome Death Watch

Paralyzed by fear, an old woman of Bayeux, France, lay in bed and watched her husband hang himself. Even after he was dead, when she found sufficient strength to get up, she did not cut the cord, but lit two candles, one on each side of the body. Finally, neighbors, anxious at not seeing the old couple, entered the house and found the old woman on her knees before the body suspended above her in the candle light.

Unhoarding

Jack had listened attentively to the various opinions of the family on ways and means to bring money into circulation. A few hours later the lad's mother found her cookie jar empty and asked for an explanation.

"The boys and I were hungry so I passed the cookies and they unhoarded them for you," replied the benefactor.

George Morgan Ferrell, twenty-months-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy L. Ferrell, of Appalachia, Va., has twelve living grandparents, or rather eight great-grandparents and four grandparents. A great-uncle of the child is fifteen years old and an aunt is four.

Lesson in Tact

Mrs. W. F. writes: "Six-year-old Edwin wanted to continue playing, but I told him he must go to bed."

Looking up at me, he said: "Mummie, don't say 'must' to me. It makes me feel 'won't' all over."—Toronto Globe.

Last winter he rescued his playmate when he fell through thin ice while crossing the river

The water in the creek is exceptionally high just now because of the rains and the high river, the water having backed up into the creek. —Goldfield Gazette.

A CORRECTION!

A paragraph in the adv of the creamery last week was misleading so we have corrected the adv and it is run again this week.

The mistake was "as production increases the cost of manufacture increases". It should have read that as production increases the cost of manufacture DECREASES.

The local creamery has increased production and along with it they have also shown a very decided decrease in the cost of manufacture. This is the ideal combination which all good creameries strive for.

STATE GOES FIFTY-FIFTY IN GRASSHOPPER CONTROL

Des Moines, Iowa, June 22:— Iowa is trying to whip her grasshopper problem by going 50-50 with the farmers in each county, according to a plan of operation which has been started by the state grasshopper committee consisting of M. G. Thornburg, Secretary of Agriculture, R. K. Bliss, Iowa State College and Dr. C J. Drake, state Entomologist.

The state has entered into contracts to purchase poison ran bait from companies in Des Moines, Sioux City and Omaha. County committees with the county agents acting as administrative officers, order such ran as will be needed in their respective counties, the same to be sold to farmers at 50 cents per 100 lbs. The fifty cents per sack is remitted to the state to help yap the costs.

Transportation of the poison bait from the place of manufacture to the county is paid by the state on all orders of over five tons. Smaller orders are paid locally. The state is also furnishing a limited supply of bait for use in demonstrations by county agents and for application to waste areas where the surrounding farms are being treated by their owners.

TIMES OFFICE FLOODED AGAIN!

We could save time by leaving this item of news stand from week to week. Again last week the down pour of rain Friday flooded the Times Print Shop for the second consecutive week. Many basements in Klemme which escaped the first flood were on the roll call this time.

The storm Friday covered a large section thru-out North Iowa. In a number of places paving was washed out, bridges on both highways and railroads were out. The Great Western train detoured over the R. I. tracks here for a couple days because of wash outs on their line. In some localities the storm was in the nature of a cyclone and damage was done to farm buildings. Live stock was lost in the storm and farm crops badly damaged.

BIBLE SCHOOL PICNIC HELD AT EAGLE LAKE FRIDAY

The Klemme and Liberty Bible school pupils accompanied by their parents and friends drove to Eagle Lake Friday for the annual picnic celebrating the close of a three week course in Bible work. Despite the threatening weather a large crowd was present and a fine picnic dinner was enjoyed.

Festivities came to a sudden end after dinner when the weather man emptied his bucket of water in Northern Iowa and many of the picnic party had difficulty in getting home as the rain soaked the parked cars and many were hard to start.

However, all had a fine time at the lake and are looking forward to another year when the weather mam may smile.

LARGE MOUTHED BLACK BASS

Natural History Series From Iowa Fish and Game News

Length 15 to 18 inches. As well known and more numberous in Iowa than the small-mouthed black bass and east about the same food. Both these bass vary in color, running through all the shades of slate, yellow, green, olive to almost white. This bass is somewhat less active than the small mouthed, but will leap everal feet out of the water to escape a net. Ranks high as a game fish. It will take live minnows and other live baits, as grasshoppers, frogs, helgramites and is also caught by fly.

Its breeding habits are very similar to the small-mouthed bass. Nest built and protected by the male. Spawning season May to June. Young remain together in compact schools, more so than the small-mouthed making it easy to seine the fry. They reach a length of about six inches the first year after hatching. Does not submit to stripping but propagated by methods of pond culture.

DELILA LENZ BRIDE OF MAURICE GREIMAN AT GARNER CEREMONY

Well Known Couple Will Reside At Springfield, Mass.

GARNER:— A wedding took place in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Lenz Thursday, when their eldest daughter, Miss Delila Lenz, was married to Maurice Greiman, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Greiman, four milles southeast of Garner.

To the strains of Mendlessohn's wedding march played by Miss Ruth Zeismer of St. Paul, they took their places under an arch of roses, garden flowers and ferns. The Rev. H. R. Wrede, pastor of St. Paul's Lutheran church performed the ceremony in the presence of 30 relatives and friends of the contracting parties.

The couple was attended by Miss Lucille Zeismer and Lawrence Greiman, brother of the bridegroom. Miss Ruth Zeismer sang "I Love You Truly," accompanied by Miss Anne Wrede on the piano and Miss Zeismer and Miss Wrede sang "Because," accompanied by Mrs. H. R. Wrede on the piano.

Following the ceremony a wedding dinner was served, the table decorations were carried out in rose and white. The bride was graduated from Garner high school in the class of 1927, and attended Iowa State Teachers College and taught for four years in rural schools.

The bridegroom was graduated from Garner high school and finished a four year course in electrical engineering at Iowa State College, Ames. He was elected to Eta Kappa Nu, honorary fraternity, for electrical engineers, Sigma Upsilon, literary fraternity, Knights of St. Patrick for honprary engineering activities and is a member of Theta Xi, a social fraternity.

For the past two years Mr. Greiman has been employed with the Westinghouse company and Pittsburgh, Pa., has been his headquarters. They left for Minneapolis and northern lake resorts on a trip and will return to Garner June 27. On leaving here they will go to Pittsburgh, Pa., and then on to Springfield, Mass., where Mr. Greimann will have his headquarters with the Westinghouse company.

WHEN LOAFER'S GONE GOOD HEN LAYS BETTER

Experience of Many Poultrymen Shows Value of Culling

The remaining flock of hens often lays better after the poor layers are sent to market. When this happens, says Mr. W. M. Vernon, poultry specialist at Iowa State College, it is conclusive proof that proper care was not provided before the flock was culled.

The original flock was crowded, the house was too smaal for the flock and the uncomfortable conditions which prevailed caused low production. Such conditions prevail in many flocks.

Some birds don't even get enough to eat because there are too many birds trying to eat from the same hopper. The good layers are the ones that get "gipped" since they must have a little extra feed to lay well. When they cannot get the few pounds of extra feed and comfort they simply cut down on the egg yield.

Owners of poor laying flocks should sell the loafer hens in June or July because they not only fail to return a profit themselves but reduce the number of profit eggs laid by the good hens.

LOOK TO THE SMALL TOWN

Be thankful that you live in a small town or rural fastness. For there, at least, you escape most of the additional burdens and irritations which go with current metropolitan despondency. For one thing, country residents have—or should have—enough to eat. Which is more than can be said for many of the urban unemployed. Also, crime and corruption and inefficiency and double dealing have seldom been more rife than in our metropolitan areas today New York officialdom's inexhaustible "black boxes" and Chicago's unpaid school teachers are passing examples! Then, too, a great city has become a place where big folks think it smart to buy gallons from little half-pint sized bootleggers. America needs more "thick towns" where people can have a good time without having to take aspirin the day afterwards. Nor do we have to remind you how the depression has knocked the halos of metropolitan business leaders into cocked hats. It is a strange prank of fate that high hats are now being bruised and battered by the very economic turmoil which they were able to ignore so long as only the farmers' lids were being dented. Now the nation must look to its backbone—the smalltowner, if you please' —Pathfinder.

I am always glad to see my old Klemme friends and customers. Drop in for a visit!

What Volume Means

To a Creamery and Why We Are Interested in New Patrons--

A survey was made some time ago for the purpose of ascertaining the cost of manufacture of a pound of butter in various creameries in Iowa

The result of this survey showed that the cost of making a pound of butter ranged from 2.18 cents for creameries producing 500,000 lbs., to 4.87 cents per pound for creameries producing 100,000 pounds or less.

We are indeed pleased to report that the Klemme Co-Operative Creamery Co. manufactures a pound of butter for even less than the low figure given.

The report shows that as production increases that the cost of manufacture decreases—a good reason why we should all work for more, as well as better cream.

LINEN SALT SACKS

We again have a number of those fine linen sacks for sale at—

Do You Analize Your Tax Receipts?

Every farmer in Hancock County receives some time during the year at least one tax receipt. After said receipt how many of you analyze it to learn how much money goes to the various items upon which you are taxed?

Following you will find the analysis of a tax receipt on a 240 acre Avery Township farm. This particular 240 acre farm has had a real estate taxable valuation of $3410 and personal property valuation of $286.00 making a total taxable valuation of $3696.00. By dividing your total valuation by 1000 you obtain the cost per mill in taxes on your farm. Following is each item figured for your benefit.

Item	Mills Levied	Amount Of Taxes Paid	Total
State General	8.	$29.60
Soldiers' Bonus	1.	3.70
Total State			$ 33.30
General County	6.	22.50

State Insane	1.3	4.81
County School	1.6	5.92
Soldiers Relief	.7	2.59
Court Expense	.5	1.85
2 Scond. Road Construction	4.5	16.65
2 Scond. Road Maintenance	5.	18.50

Total Miscellaneous			9.99
GRAND TOTAL	81.1		$300.07

Total State General Tax On This Farm $29.60 (not including Soldiers' Bonus)

Item	% Of State General Taxes	Amount Taxes
(1) Total for Institutions under Board of Education	42.8%	$12.66
(2) Total for Institutions under Board of Control	33.2%	9.82
(3) Total General Administration State Departments	24.0%	7.10
GRAND TOTAL STATE	100.%	$29.58

Taxes Paid on This Farm For Following Items Included In Above

(1) Institutions under State Board Of Education (Total given above)
Iowa State College, not including Extension Service and Home Economics	32.8%	$4.15
Extension Service in Agriculture and Home Economics	3.2%	.40
(2(Institutions under State Board Of Control (Total given above)
Five Penal Institutions and Reformatories	41.2%	$4.04
Six hospitals for Insane, Feeble Minded and Epileptics	42.0%	4.12
Four other Institutions including orphanages, Soldiers' Home. Tuberculosis Sanitarium and special emergiencies	16.8%	1.64

You will notice that the county Farm Bureau Appropriation comes out of thec ounty general fund.

The $3000 county appropriation figures out to be 6.9% of the county general fund which on thffis farm amountel to $22 60. 6.9% of $22.60 equals $1.53 or the amount this farmer paid in taxes to support the Local Farm Bureau. This amounts to 5-8 cents per acre. This farmer paid in taxes .40 cents to support the Extension Service in Agriculture and Home Economics making a total of $1.93 that it cost on this 240 acre farm to support the Farm Bureau and the Extension Service

In other words if the Extension Service and the Farm Bureau were done away with this farmer on 240 acres would save $1.93. His total taxes instead of eing $300.07 would be $298.14.

If you check closer you will see that it cost this farmer more in tax money to support the County Insane than it did to support the Farm Bureau and three times as much went to support the State insane as he Farm Bureau.

SILVER WEDDING CELEBRATED BY MR. AND MRS. JOHN DAY

Royal Neighbors And Ladies Aid Sponsored Surprise Party Tuesday

Sunday, June 26th, was the 25th anniversary of the wedding of Mr. and Mrs. John N. Day.

The Royal Neighbors and the Methodist Ladies Aid sponsored a surprise party in their honor Tuesday evening, which was attended by a large crowd. Games were played out of doors and later a program was given in the dining room of the Methodist Church. An amusing feature of the program included a mock wedding in which Mrs. A. R. White read a more or less solemn 'sentence". Mrs. W. F. Pavey was the bride and Mrs. Martin Barz the groom. They were accompanied by a regular parade of flower girls, ring bearers, brides maids, the proud papa who gave the bride away, etc. Special music was furnished by Viola Freie and A. R. White. Rev. Whyte gave a very interesting talk. Mr. and Mrs. Day were prevailed upon to appear as they did twenty-five years ago, so John wore his black wedding suit and Mrs. Day her pink wedding gown.

A nice lunch was served, after which Mrs. Elder gave a very nice talk and presented Mr. and Mrs. Day with a silver set. Mr. and Mrs. Day both responded with a short talk.

The dining room was decorated with pink and white streamers, the colors used at Mr. and Mrs. Day's wedding. Places were set for Mr. and Mrs. Day under a white bell and a large wedding cake was placed in front of them and used as a centerpeice for the tables that were placed to form an open U. During the lunch it was requested that all who were at Mr. and Mrs. Day wedding should stand up. Eight persons responded.

All enjoyed a fine time, congratulated Mr. and Mrs. Day, wishing them continued happiness and that they might be able to celebrate their Golden Wedding.

WILLIAM F. KATTER CRUSHED BETWEEN TREE AND TRUCK

Funeral Services Held At Elkhorn Monday Afternoon

William F. Katter, age 47 years and single, met with a fatal accident early last Friday afternoon. Mr. Katter had driven his truck into the pasture near his home on his parents' farm northwest of Klemme, to get some repairs from an old iron pile. The piece he was searching for was a wheel for a cultivator. He was evidently loading this on the truck, which he had left a short distance away on a slight incline and headed toward a group of large willow trees. As he was loading the wheel the truck evidently started to roll down the slight hill and Mr. Katter ran to the side of the truck to apply the brakes or to steer the truck to one side. Before he could accomplish his purpose the front corner of the truck box struck a big willow tree, pinning Mr. Katter between the tree and the truck, in which position he was found. Death was apparently instantaneous. The coroner was called but no inquest was held.

Obituary

William Frederick Katter, aged 47 years and single, was born on a farm in Liberty Township, July 2, 1885. He was the first son of five children born to his parents, William H. Katter and his wife Anna (nee) Grieman.

The deceased attended the public school in Liberty township District No. 6 and completed the course of religious training in the Ell Town Reformed Church. He was a sincere Christian and for several years was a teacher in the Sunday School and a few years ago served his congregation as a Deacon in the church.

Mr. Katter was a strong, healthy man, a willing worker and of a friendly disposition. These qualifications all helped to make him the sucessful farmer that he was. He lived all of his life with his parents in this vicinity where the family owns several farms.

He was interested in te welfare of his community and served as a director of the Farmers Elevator, was always a good booster for the local creamery and interested in local and community improvements.

He leaves of his immediate family, his mother Mrs. Wm. H. Katter two brothers, Arthur and Louis; two sisters, Mrs. Herman Stromer, and Mrs. Ray Velthouse. The death of his father three years ago was in the nature of an accident. While trimming trees Mr. Katter fell from a tall cottonwood tree, resulting in injuries that caused his death.

Funeral services were held Monday, June 27, 1932 at 2:00 P. M. in the Ell Reformed Church. Rev. C. A. Schmidt used as his text these words, "There is but a step between me and death."

Special musical numbers were given by the quartette, Mrs. C. A. Schmidt, Mrs. H. H. Greiman, Ben V. Greiman and Calvin Huenemann. They sang "Harre, Meine Seele," "Mein Hegeskrang ist langst gelichten," "Jesus Only" and "The Lord Is My Shepherd."

Pall bearers were Henry Katter, Henry Greiman, Victor Huenemann, Gideon Wittenberg, Fred H. Greiman and Ben Katter. Burial was made in the family lot in the church cemetery.

EASY MONEY

Scripps-Howard newspapers recently carried a cartoon showing "The Veteran" at the crossroads, one sign pointing to "Business Revival, Employment and Security" the other to "Cash Bonus, a Little Quick and Easy Money."

Editor E J. Tippett, Jr. of the American Legion Councilor, of Ohio replied, and we quote his colsing words both for the effectiveness and to show our readers that we are not the only Legion editor who occasionally turns a flame thrower on veterans' opponents:

"Easy money! Talk to us of easy money, you bloated profiteers who fed your beastly bellies on the blood of men and the tears of women. Easy money! Talk to us of easy money, you workmen in your silk shirts and bomb proof jobs, with five, ten and twenty times a soldiers pay!

"Easy and quick money! Yes—a dollar a day then and another dollar twenty-six years after the war!

"Easy money! Damn all of you who say that! Why didn't you go out in 1917 and get some of it? There was plenty of opportunity.—Iowa Legionnaire.

TWO LIONS ALMOST ESCAPE FROM CAGE

There would have been a great story to tell if the two lions had gotten out of their cage on the circus grounds Friday afternoon thru the door that was accidently broken in by one of the elephants which had offered its services to help move the truck that was stuck in the mud. The lion tamer was there with his sword, ready to use it if necessary. as both the lions were very angry and it would have been hard telling what would have happened if they had gotten their freedom. It took several men to get the door back in place after a struggle with the lions who jumped for every chance to get their freedom.—Britt News-Tribune

THE NEW TAX ON ELECTRICITY

The Congress of the United States in its effort "to alance the budget" has placed a tax on electricity and made us a tax collector.

The 1932 Revenue Law which became effective on June 21, among many other new methods of raising revenue, provides for a tax of Three Per Cent of the amount paid for electrical energy used for domestic or commercial purposes.

It also provides that the tax is to be paid by the person paying for such electrical energy and to be collected by the seller.

We receive no compensation for collecting this tax and derive no benefit from it — we are obliged to give our services in collecting and remitting this money and to bear the cost of furnishing this service to the government.

The bill rendered July first will include the tax on the current used after June 21st—thereafter our monthly bills will include the amount of tax you must pay. The tax must be paid when bills for service are paid.
Further information in regard to this tax will be gladly furnished at any Division Office of the Company.

EARLY PIGEON HISTORY

d C. Volkert, Dubuque, has more y regarding the pigeon, now ex- , but whose hosts clouded the n Iowa at an early day. Mr. Vol- writes: "Those who today hold their hands in holy terror over t seemed to them to have been ton destruction of the pigeon t be carried back to the time condition of that early day be- they can judge rightly. At that we were not so far removed the days when Wisconsin and hwest Territory were still fre- nt one the earlier maps. The t tides of emigration from Eu- were filling the Northwest erness and the western plains settlers. At that time the grain ers now in use where unknown settler sowed his grain by hand, to be followed by the horse and ow to cover the grain. Pigeons e so numerous that it was of- difficult to get the grain covered re it was devoured by the pig- and at best it produced only spotted stand". I have watched n sowing fields with swirling es of pigeons following the er by a few yards and cleaning the grain before it could be cov- . So you see to the early settler passenger pigeon wa not ad a pest as the grasshopper was r to the Dakotas and Nebraska.

LOOK FOR GRAIN DISEASES NOW

Inspection Of Fields Before Harvest Allows Detection Of Trouble

Before, not after harvest, is the best time to inspect small grain fields to see if any diseases which may be controlled are present, according to R. H. Porter, extension plant pathologist at Iowa State College.

Two types of oats smut, the loose and covered, are controlled by treating either with formaldehyde or with such dusts as Ceresan and Corona oats dust.

Another disease of oats, known as "blast", causes a blasting or whitish appearance of the heads. Since the causes are not definitely known no control method has been developed.

Barley diseases which can be detected in the field are: covered smut loose smut, stripe disease, scab and spot blotch. Covered smut is different from the loose smut in that the smut remains covered with a whitish membrane and is not scattered off the plant.

The loose smut disease comes on as a black head but as the barley ripens the smut powder is blown away leaving a bare stalk. Covered smut may be controlled only by the hot water treatment which is not advisable under ordinary farm conditions. The stripe disease appears as long yellowish brown stripes on the leaves and stems of the infected plants which produce either badly shriveled heads or no grain at all. This disease may be controlled by treating the seed with Ceresan before it is sown.

The spot blotch disease appears as yellowish brown spots on the oat leaves. The spots later become a darkish brown and usually have a whitish area in the center. Infected seed when planted produces weak plants with rotted roots.

Treatment with Ceresan will prevent the seedling blight. but not the leaf blotch entirely. For the control of this latter type of infection. it is necessary to practice crop rotation.

Scab especially prevalent in wheat this year, also attacks barley oats and rye. The disease appears after the heads are formed. Individual spiklets become shrunken and compressed with a pink or whit mold Entire heads may shrivel and become lightish green or whitish and produce few or no kernels. Severely infected kernels are light gray or pink, shriveled and light in weight.

Among other diseases of wheat are the bunt or stinking smut disease, loose smut and rust. Information regarding the control of any of these may be secured by writing to the Iowa State College.

FLIES CONSUME MUCH BLOOD

Stale Kind May Take Twice Own Weight In First Adult Meal

Stable flies which are usually found swarming in huge numbers around cow barns and stables are able to suck up twice their weight in blood from warm blooded animals on their first feed in the adult stage of life, says Roy Melvin, entomologist at the Iowa Agricultural Experiment Station, Ames.

They suck the blood mostly from cattle and then sit around on fences and barns to digest the meal. Ordinarily each fly takes about one to two drops of blood from an animal when the fly feeds. This causes the cows to worry and fret with a resultant loss of rest.

With thousands of flies swarming about a barn, each feeding upon a cow's blood. the amount of blood lost by the cattle may become a serious problem.

One of the best fly-swatters the modern age has produced is the four tined manure fork, contend entomologists at the College. Flies receive a severe set back on farmsteads where the manure is hauled away fro mthe barns and sheds as fast as it accumulates.

SIX STATES URGE BETTER GAME STATUS

Conservation of Wild Life Keynote of Worthington, Minn., Meeting

DES MOINES (Special):—Meeting at Worthington, Minn., recently in a three day session, enthusiastic sportsmen and conservationists from six north central states made game history, if reports of the meeting are any indication of the sentiment developed.

Protection The Key Note

One of the predominating notes which was outstandingly apparent to every man who attended this convention was "conservation" of wild life rather than its destruction.

From 300 to 400 conservationists and sportsmen were in attendance at the three-day session, with some 175 attending the Friday meeting which was the business session.

Dr. Boone, chairman of the Iowa State Fish and Game Commission; Arthur E. Rapp, a member of the commission; W. E. Albert State Game Warden; William Schuenke, Supt. of Game and Deputies; and I. T. Bode were in attendance. Dr. Boone and Mr Schuenke were on the program.

A New Organization

Out of the convention grew a new organization, the Association of North Central States Game and Fish Commissions, which will have for its objective the preservation of our migratory waterfowl. Burnie Maurek, fish commissioner of North Dakota was elected president, and W D. Stewart, director of Minnesota game and fish division, was elected secretary.

The purpose of this organization is to coordinate more closely the efforts of the north central group of states in promoting real conservation of migratory waterfowl.

BREAD DOUGH IN MAIL

When a mail clerk opened a sack of mail in the Des Moines post office on a recent morning he found the contents covered with a sticky bubbly mass of dough with a strong yeasty smell. The contents removed from the bag, a tin box was found in the bottom full of yeasty dough. The post mark on the box was from Indianola, but the name of the sender and the addressee had been obliterated. Some one had mailed a box of bread dough. Warmth of the mail sack had caused the dough to rise until it blew off the can lid and overflowed the contents of the mail sack

NO TAX ON COOPERATIVE CHECKS

A ruling by the internal revenue department will save cooperative societies from the tax on checks. Cream checks and farmers cooperative checks will not be charged the two cent tax as required by other checks under the recent law passed by congress.—Ringsted Dispatch.

They couldn't even report a prize-fight over the radio without sandwiching in some disgusting advertising between punches. Some day the public is going to get up on its hind legs and reform the whole radio business with a vengeance. After that it won't matter much whether you "inhale" or exhale.—Livermore Gazette.

Some editor has dug this old one out of his old newspaper files: "Seven years ago a farmer in Iowa hung his vest on a fence in the barnyard. A calf chewed up a pocket in which was a gold watch. Recently the animal, a staid old milk cow, was butchered for beef, and the time piece was found in such a position between the lungs of the cow that respiration kept the watch wound up and the watch had lost but four minutes in the last seven years." Poor cow, how the ticks must have pestered her all these years.

GARNER PASTOR DIES AT 33; ILL LESS THAN A WEEK

The Rev. David J. Lewis , 33, Presbyterian pastor at Garner, died in a Mason City hospital at 6 p. m. Saturday.

The Rev. Mr. Lewis was operated upon for appendicitis Tuesday and became critically ill Thursday.

A graduate of Xenia Seminary, St. Louis, Mo. he came to Garner 5 years ago. He was secretary of the young peoples religious work of the Cedar Rapids Presbytery.

GRASSHOPPER CONTROL AT SMALL COST

Des Moines, Iowa, July 6:—The Iowa plan of grasshopper control, wherein the state and the farmers are going on a fifty-fifty basis in the purchase of the poison bran bait that is necessary, has proven economical from the standpoint of state expense and reasonably effective from the standpoint of control, according to officials of the Iowa Department of Agriculture.

"Slightly over 75 tons of the poison bran has been shipped to the various counties," stated Carl N. Kennedy, assistant secretary of agriculture. "The largest amount has been sold out of Sioux City, with Omaha second and Des Moines, third. All of the western counties of the state now have poison bran available to farmers as they need it.

"Army worm invasions have undoubtedly caused some to use poison bait. Many others are perhaps delaying the application until they are sure that the insects will do some damage. Early applications on hatching areas are proving the most economical method of control, as less poison is necessary.

THIEVES BREAK INTO BULK GASOLINE STATION

GOLFIELD GAZETTE:— Goldfield has been visited twice the past week by someone who is in search of gasoline and wants to get it without paying either for the gasoline or the tax.

Friday night the W. & H. Co-Op. Oil Co. bulk station was entered by prying off the latch on the side door and when they found this would not permit them to get the gasoline they pryed open the large door so they could get to the truck. They took approximately sixty gallon of gasoline and three measuring cans, evidently using the latter to carry it away in.

Then on Sunday night the Standard Oil bulk station was entered and about forty gallons and an empty barrel taken. Similar robberies have been reported in neighboring towns so it may be the work of an organized band. The sheriff and his deputy have been investigating the thefts.

FATHER AND SON BANQUET AT GOODELL CHURCH

The first father-son banquet was held at the U. B. Church in Goodell last Thursday evening. The affair was sponsored by the men's Sunday school class. Following the dinner a program in charge of Rev. Harry Herlein was presented. Rev. W. B. Milne, of Clear Lake delivered the address of the evening. Special music was provided by Fred Missal's quartette from Hutchins. A number of piano selections were presented by Arthur Savogue, of Chicago, who is in Goodell visiting with his parents at present.

The first annual father-son banquet was a fine success in every way.

Who Says Iowa Isn't Cool?

The morning of July 1st the temperature was 54 degrees and the highest it reached during the day was 69 degrees.

In fact it really seemed much cooler and especially did one feel the shivers when Dent Church came into town garbed out in a big fur overcoat.

Who says it isn't cool in Iowa?

WASHINGTON PROGRAM GIVEN AT MESERVEY JULY 1ST

A pageant commemorating the two hundredth anniversary of the birth of George Washington was presented at Meservey Friday evening July 1. The Meservey American Legion post sponsored the event as an educational event as part of the organizations national program.

The production had an out of door setting with a natural background of trees and shrubs for the pageantry and with a gradual inclination providing a natural stage and amphitheater. Elaborate costumes were worn by the characters, some of whom were featured in speaking parts.

The pageant was presented in 5 parts showing the events in Washington's life. Following this the winner of the popularity contest was crowned queen of the celebration by the community's pioneers.

The author and director of the pageant is Mrs. H. C. Barger. She was ably assisted by various chairmen and sub committees.

BIRDS ARE GREAT BENEFIT

A little study on the part of those who are inclined to under-estimate the worth of bird life, would yield much information. For instance. here are some ways in which birds help mankind: eat weed seeds, eat insects, protect crops, protect forests, charm our ears with their songs, delight our eyes with their beauty, sea birds warn mariners that rocks are near and also help fishermen to discover schools of fish, harbor birds destroy refuse matter, game birds furnish food and sport, carrion eaters clear away carcasses that pollute the air. Protect the birds.

HUNGARIAN HISTORY

The Hungarian partridge is one of Iowa's finest game birds, and while there is no open season on this fine exotic bird, sportsmen and bird lovers generally are tremendously interested, watching with great interest the gradual spread of these birds to newer and enlarged territory. Interesting data has been compiled by Aldo Leopold. in charge of Iowa's game survey, which I am passing on because of its worth. In 1905 small planting of these birds were made in Palo Alto and Carroll county with the first planting made in Black Hawk county in 1902 by Senator H. W. Grant of Waterloo. The Palo Alto planting, made by a Mr. Carter. survived and spread and may be said to be Iowa's first wild planting. The Carroll county planting disappeared. Department reports show that plantings were made as far back as 1879, some 33,782 birds having been purchased and distributed over a period of years, extending from 1910 to 1914. In 1914 the entire northwestern corner of the state was covered with standardized planting of 20 pairs each such plantings being made on a "game preserve", leased by the state, from private owners, and posted against hunting. The birds were put in timber, it being supposed that the "Hun" was a timber bird, but it was soon found that this bird deserted the timber for prairie land.

Butter produotion in Iowa during April showed a decline of 13.23% as compared with April 1931, but the production during May increased 42.06% over the April production and was only 2.07% under the production of a year ago, according to information furnished the Iowa department of agriculture from the federal department. The production in the entire United States for the first five months of the year is slightly over that of last year.

140 STUDENTS ENROLLED IN SCHOOL THIS YEAR

Fine Program Presented In Church By Pupils Friday Morning

The Klemme Reform Bible School concluded with a demonstration of some of the work they have learned last Friday morning They presented the exercise in the church owing to the weather, as it was a very chilly day. There was an adult class, Junior class, Intermediate class and the beginners. They all gave several selections which were very good. They had a song contest between the different classes which the judges decided in favor of the beginners, who received first place, with the Intermediates second Eugen Haberkamp sang the solo part for the beginners and he certainly has a fine voice for such a little fellow. The contest held in hunting verses in the Bible was fine, as was a contest for finding names of characters of the Bible. It was surprising to see how quickly they were found. Some of the members held a contest with Senior members who had taken the work in previous years and the class this year won It was a very fine program.

One hundred and forty were enrolled in the school with an average of 90 per cent with 80 children that were neither absent nor tardy. The Leaders were Helen Albers, Dale Schlei, Marie Meinderts, Paul Thieman, Hilda Keeper, Stella Thieman, Johann Albers and Mildred Thieman The teachers were Ethel Barz, Lucile Kraus, Norma Stromer and Rev Calvin Grosshuesch. Twelve received diplomas presented by Rev. Calvin Grosshuesch with a few splendid remarks. He also invited them to return next year as leaders in the Bible School.

Special music was provided during the dinner hour by the Sunday School orchestra.

IOWA FISHES—THE PERCHES

A single widely distributed species is known in our waters—the yellow perch. This fish is readily recognized by the black crossbars and yellow coloration on the lower part of the sides.

The yellow perch is carnivorous, feeding on a large variety of animal life, ranging from microscopic organisms to sizeable animals like. crawfish, minnows and young fish.

Spawns in the spring and is peculiar in that the eggs are cemented together in a single layer in the form of long hollow strings, which when extended are several inches wide and folded or plaited like the bellows of an accordion, but are capable of being drawn out to a length of 3 to 7 feet.

Vast numbers of eggs of this species are hatched annually by fish-cultural strains.

Averages less than one foot in length and one pound in weight. Has wide distribution and popular as food. Is a ready biter and takes a large variety of baits.

A year ago Iowa people were buying approximately 1,000,000 pounds of oleomargarine monthly. This year the low price of butter, the campaign for the increased use of Iowa products and the oleomargarine tax have caused a marked reduction in sales of oleomargarine. Oleomargarine tax stamps sold by the Iowa department of Agriculture during the month of May were only 77,352 pounds or a decrease of approximately 93% as compared to previous sales.

SPRAY PERENNIAL WEEDS NOW

Proably Never Had Better Time To Treat Canada Thistle. Etc.

Many Iowa farmers have tried sodium chlorate and other chemicals in recent years to kill out Canada thistle, quack grass and similar weeds, but there has probably never been a better time than right now to use these chemicals to kill stubborn perennial weeds in Iowa, in the belief of R. H. Porter, specialist in plant diseases and weed control at Iowa State College.

The fatcors which make this an unusually good year to kill weeds. especially Canada thistles, with chemical spray materials are: an abundance of rain which has made soil moisture content high; plants have made a vigorous growth. Canada thistles are now in the bud stage. Every condition is right for effective use of spray materials.

It is much better to spray while thistles are in the bud stage than to wait until they are in full bloom. This is contrary to the belief of many that the plants are the weakest and most easily killed when they are in full bloom.

Some chlorate—sodium chlorate or calcium chlorate—is recommended for killing out small patches of thistles. Sodium chlorate is most commonly used and pound for pound is probably superior to calcium chlorate. The chlorate should be mixed in the proportion of 1½ lbs. per gallon of water. The plants should be thoroughly sprayed.

Atlacide has been used to some extent in Iowa, and when the weather is very hot and dry is probably equal to sodium chlorate but not in a year like this.

After a patch of weeds has been sprayed watch for new plants that come up in July or August and make a second application when needed.

Those who spray weeds with sodium chlorate are cautioned to avoid getting it mixed with organic matter of any kind. Clothing or gloves which become saturated with the spray solution should be carefully washed out before they are worn because of the danger of their catching on fire. Sodium chlorate is entirely safe while in solution. It is only after it dries that there is danger of fire.

It is not known definitely whether weeds sprayed with sodium chlorate are poisonous to livestock. It is probobly best, therefore, to keep livestock away for several days from areas that have been sprayed. If cattle are not removed from area that has been sprayed, keep the stock well supplied with salt.

Perennial weeds, in addition to quack grass and Canada thistles, that sould be sprayed because of their root systems are: Sow thistle, learfy spurge, European bindweed and perennial peppergrass. Leafy spurge and perennial peppergrass require more spray material per square rod than the other weeds in order to destroy them completely.

Vast Tracts Set Apart as GoriHa Sanctuaries

The gorilla, alone among animals, has a country.

A 700-square-mile area in the heart of Africa constitutes Gorilla land—essentially a gorilla nation under a Belgian protectorate. Within this country, from which outsiders are excluded rigidly unless they are on scientific expeditions which meet the approval of the Belgian government, the great apes, who generally are recognized as man's closest relatives on earth, are free to manage their own affairs and are given probably greater protection than is accorded any aboriginal tribe. They are immune from hunters and collectors.

This is one of the two places on earth where the gorilla still is found. The other area is a mountainous stretch of the British Cameroon region of West Africa. Here, although there is no special administrative provision for gorillas, the animals are protected by the most stringent laws and it is doubtful whether the British government would allow the killing or capture of one of them under any circumstances.

There are only two or three thousand gorillas, at the most, in the world. Gorilla land has a population of only about 1,000. In the past the great apes, who breed very slowly, have been slaughtered ruthlessly. Few have been brought into captivity. It would be impossible to capture an adult, and the capture of an infant usually has heen possible only by the slaughter of the whole family. Father, mother and children stick together when danger threatens.

Statistics Provide New Pastime for Fat Folks

Are you fat or lean? In either case you will appreciate these valuable statistics revealed by a magazine writer regarding adipose tissue, says the Detroit News. New fat added to the frame naturally has to be nourished by the extension of blood vessels. And a pound of fat, says a writer, requires small vessels totaling 5-6 of a mile in length. When a man puts on 30 pounds he interlaces his system with 25 miles of new capillaries, veins and arteries.

This fact supplies a very amusing pastime for persons addicted to laying things end to end, and is supposed to explain why fat folks are so contented and jolly. Every evening, as their weight increases, they can sit by the fire and, after doing the cross-word puzzle, lay a fresh supply of capillaries end to end. Or, when losing weight, they can remove them end from end. It keeps the mind innocently and pleasantly occupied, and makes for happiness and good citizenship.

Beware of us fellows with the lean and hungry look. Such men are dangerous.

Italian City Worth Visiting

One of the most impressive sights in Italy, and one which few travelers seem to have seen or even heard of, can be found in Cumae, a pleasant ride from Naples. Cumae was the most ancient Greek colony in Italy. Here sat that great oracle, Cumaean Sibyl, and the subterranean passages leading to her grotto were described by Vergil and Dante.

Only in the last few years have scientific excavations been made among the extensive ruins of this region. Still the automobiles of tourists speed along the main roads without pausing to see the wonders that have been disclosed. There is a Colosseum second in size and importance only to that of Rome.

City Typical of East

Northern Africa is the gateway to the Orient. Nowhere else has the East with its fascinating Moslem art and customs advanced so far west as in Tripoli, Tunis, Algeria and Morocco. A tourist can leave Paris at night by train for Marseilles and arrive 36 hours later at Algiers, amidst mosques and sparkling white round-domed houses. The visions of Arabian nights become reality for anyone visiting northern Africa. For not only have old Islamic towns remained intact there but the life and habits of the Mahometan population have not changed during the centuries, despite the French conquest.

Turf for Airport

The United States Department of Commerce recommends an evenly proportioned mixture of the following grasses as a tough, durable turf for an airport. Canada blue grass, fancy red top, meadow fescue, hard fescue, sheep fescue, red fescue and Pacy's perennial rye grass. For the best results the exact mixture should be determined by an experienced landscape gardener after a careful examination of the soil. For the cheapest runway surfaces of reasonably good quality, earth oiled with an asphaltic base oil is probably the solution.

The Chair in History

Chairs are of extreme antiquity and were originally for purposes of state and dignity rather than for ordinary use. They did not become common until the Sixteenth century. Many of the chairs of the ancient nations were of great richness. They are represented in some of the earliest monuments of Ninevah. They were known to exist in Greece in the Fifth or Sixth century B. C., and in Rome at a later period. One of the most famous of the ancient chairs is the reputed chair of St. Peter in St. Peter's, Rome.

Famous Eulogy Said to Have Been Spontaneous

The case in which Senator Vest delivered his eulogy on the dog occurred shortly after the Civil war. Charles Burden of Kingsville, Mo., owned a hunting dog called Old Drum, of which he was very fond. His neighbor, Leonidas Hornsby, had lost a number of sheep which had been killed by dogs during the summer and fall of 1870. He threatened to kill the first dog who was found on his place. One day he had been hunting with Dick Ferguson and after they returned home a dog was heard outside. Hornsby told Ferguson to shoot. The next morning Old Drum was found dead and Burden decided to make Hornsby suffer. He therefore, sued him for $50 damages. The first jury disagreed. The second jury gave him $25 damages. He appealed the case. According to Vest's family, he was asked by Burden to assist his lawyers at the trial for a stipulated sum of $10. He took no part in the trial until the closing appeal to the jury, when, without either notice or preparation, he made the well known appeal. Tears were in the eyes of many members of the jury and a verdict of $500 damages was allowed, but the court stated that this amount was in excess of the petition and could not be allowed.

Church and Palace One When World Was Young

Worship in early times, Prof. David Moore Robinson of Johns Hopkins university says, took place in the palaces where the king was also priest, and in the palace of King Minos as early as 1600 B. C. there were aniconic images, such as the Greek cross which is used now in the Greek church. "After the destruction of the Minoan civilization," he continued, "Greece was plunged into a dark age from 1100 to 700 B. C., and had to develop all over again from humble origins. The church was separated from the state and the temples came to be separate buildings from the palaces."

Professor Robinson said that in the early times in Crete and elsewhere in Greece caves were used as shrines and votive offerings were deposited in the caves. "Such use of caves was continued through the classical and medieval ages," he added, "and still exists at Lourdes and other places."

The earliest Greek temples which were separated from the palaces, he declared, were of stone foundations with walls of mud brick and columns of wood, such as that of Hera at Olympia. Others like that at Corinth had monolithic columns of limestone covered with stucco. But the great temples of the Fifth century B. C were built of marble.

"Shorthand"

The origin of brief writing is cloud ed in mystery. No authentic record exists establishing its practical use much before the First century B. C From that period until about 300 A D the art flourished throughout the Roman empire. The secretary and librarian of Cicero, Marcus Tullius Tiro, was the pioneer of Roman shorthand. The chief use of shorthand in Roman times was made by the leaders in the church and by government officials. Church dignitaries who made conspicuous use of shorthand were St. Augustine, Origen, St Jerome All the Roman emperors employed shorthand secretaries. Several emperors attempted to learn it. For centuries the art of shorthand fell into disuse. Modern shorthand dates from 1588, when Dr. Timothy Bright produced a system to which he gave the title Characterie.

Spirit of Asia in Italy

It might be said of more places than one that where Italians live today the spirit of Asia permeates everything but of Palermo in Sicily it always seems to be specially true. Its lovely and strange cathedral itself conveys this to the mind, as if the East and not the West had reared it for a glory other than that of Rome.

Byzantine, Norman, German, French and Spaniard have come here to reign, but they seem to have left only bones, the spirit which lives after them is Saracen and Phoenician Asia sits on the throne invisible and rules every understanding heart which comes within its influence.

Economy Hurt Golf Game

A story about Woodrow Wilson was told by Joe Horgan, golf caddy who used to carry the President's clubs at Deal Beach, N. J. "The President wasn't a good golfer," Horgan related in the American Magazine, "but he seemed to enjoy the game thoroughly. He laughed and joked a lot, and once, when he almost missed a shot completely, he blamed it on the fact that when he first took up golf, he had to play without a caddy for the sake of economy He said that was when he learned to lift his head with each shot, a fatal habit for golfers."

Soil Carried to Ocean

The Mississippi river carries yearly to the Gulf of Mexico 418,000,000 tons of silt. On the basis of the chemical analysis of soils over the United States generally, the following estimate has been made of the contents of this silt: Phosphoric acid, 627,000 tons; nitrogen, 418,000 tons; potash, 6,479,000 tons. In addition the Mississippi river carries aproximately 200,000,000 tons of dissolved matter which cannot be analyzed in this manner.

Eagle Long Associated With Pomp and Majesty

The Persian monarchs adopted the eagle as a symbol of monarchy, the Assyrians carved it in stone along with their other emblems of power, as did the Egyptians also. Poets of antiquity termed it the king of birds as the lion was dubbed the king of beasts.

From the time when a Tuscan embassy visited Rome, on a message of kindliness and encouragement to a young nation, bearing among other gifts a splendid royal scepter surmounted by a carved ivory eagle, such majestic figures, first of wood, then of metal, were the standards borne by the Roman legions. Napoleon Bonaparte, in boastful emulation of those conquerors of the world, replaced the oriflamme and other battle flags of France with glided eagles, which, however, disappeared with the Napoleonic dynasty.

Russia, Prussia, Spain, Poland, Sicily, and Sardinia had already made the eagle their national bird, as did later the United States.

Nor can the respect this powerful and rapacious bird evoked from mankind generally be wondered at, when its size, its powers of flight and of attack, its dignity in repose and on the wing, its ferocity and its beautiful parental care of its young are taken into account.

"First Citizen" Worried Over Supply of Butter

That butter was used generously in the George Washington household back in 1759 is disclosed in Washington's diary. Procuring enough butter was a problem for Washington despite the fact that several hundred cattle roamed his pastures. During the winter of 1760 he was short of this necessary article for cooking and table use. On January 7 of this year he writes:

"Accompanied Mrs. Bassett to Alexandria and engaged a keg of butter of Mr. Kirkpatrick, being quite out of that article." And the next day he says: "Got a little butter from Mr Dalton." On Sunday, January 20, he not only received more butter, but other supplies. Listen to this: "My wagon, after leaving two hogsheads of tobacco at Alexandria, arrived here with three sides of sole leather and four of upper leather, two kegs of butter, one of which for Colonel Fairfax and 15 bushels of salt."—Hoard's Dairyman.

A Modern Child Says:

"I had a hard time keeping my face straight today when I was sent out in the car with father and he told me he had decided it was time for me to learn to drive. He picked out a nice quiet road and showed me how to start the engine, shift the gears, set the brakes and everything You can't imagine how much he enjoyed showing me. It made me ashamed, really, and almost sorry that I had learned to drive three years ago in Skinny Brown's car. But you should have seen how pleased and proud dad was when he stalled the engine on the railroad tracks while explaining to me how to avoid it and I spoke up and told him how to get off. He's telling the neighbors now how quick I pick things up."—Kansas City Times.

Far-Eastern Civilizations

The civilization of China goes much farther back than that of Japan. As a matter of fact, Chinese civilization was introduced into Japan about the First century A. D. In modern times, however, Japan has outstripped China in many respects, Japan having adopted western standards of living to a much greater degree. While Japan has shown a capacity equal to that of any other known people and, while their manners and customs and certain institutions were modified in ancient times by Chinese culture, they have kept pace with European and American civilization.

Poland's Scenic Beauty

Possessing a wealth and great variety of scenic beauty, Poland appeals strongly to the lover of nature. Especially alluring are the romantic and rugged peaks and the valleys and lakes of the Tatra mountains, which Poland shares with Czechoslovakia and which, on both sides of the border, are now studded with tourist centers possessing every modern comfort in the midst of virgin forests. The country is a huntsman's paradise, with almost every variety of game, including wild boar and bear.

Early Aqueducts

As early as the year 312 B. C., Appius Claudius Caecus constructed an aqueduct which brought in a supply of water to Rome. The second aqueduct, known as the Anio Vetus, was constructed 40 years later. Toward the close of the First century A. D. there were nine aqueducts. Some of the structures still remain, both in Italy and in other parts of the former Roman empire, examples existing at Nimes, France, and at Segovia, in Spain.

Fasting the Best Way

"How to improve the appetite," was the theme of a recent medical address that consumed more than half an hour's time. We could tell it quicker: Pass up your breakfast, dinner and supper and repeat the same second day, if necessary. Your appetite will improve.—New Orleans Times-Picayune.

VOLKERT ON PIGEONS

Writing the fish and game department on some of his early day experiences, E. C Volkert, Dubuque an enthusiastic outdoor advocate, says: "My own life experience (I am nearly seventy and was born here along the Mississippi) should yield something beneficial for posterity Fifty years of following fur trails in five or six state, north and south have taught me much. I still have vivid memories of days when the passenger pigeon darkened the sun at times in spring and fall. I helped net them in spring nets, 30x-60 feet. when we trapped 1,500 live ones in a single afternoon. The live ones were brought home in coops to be shipped east for public pigeon shoots then a universal form of sport. and they realized 10c each for the trappers. From 3,000 to 5,000 were usually kept on hand for shipment. When the net was sprung —it was loaded with lead balls on each edge—many pigeons were caught in mid air and crippled. As we cleared the net for a fresh set, we wrung the necks of all cripples and threw them in barrels, which netted the trapper $1 a barrel in Chicago."

MAY PAY TO CUT OATS FOR HAY

If Oats Are Harvested For Grain, Allow to Get Ripe as Possible

With oats prices around 12 cents a bushel and a new crop about ready to harvest, it may be wise to cut more than the usual amount of oats for hay instead of allowing it to mature and threshing it for the grain, suggests H. D. Hughes, in charge of the farm crops work at Iowa State College.

If oats are cut in the milk stage they make a very palatable and nutritious hay—not quite equal to red clover as often claimed, but far superior to timothy. The content of protein in oats cut in the milk stage is quite high.

Hay has been scarce in Iowa the past few years and to those who can use some oat hay, it looks like a distinctly wise move to cut a part of the oats for hay. Mr. Hughes believes.

If oats are going down (lodging) as they are in many places in Iowa this year because of the abundant moisture and favorable growing conditions, then they had just as well be cut for hay because they will never fill anyway.

But if one does not wish to cut the oats for hay he should realize that the time the grain is cut has considerable effect on the yield. Many farmers begin cutting with a binder earlier than they would like because they fear a storm might come up which might so delay cutting that the grain would shatter badly.

Carefully conducted experiments have shown that there is an increase of about 10 percent in yield of oats if cut when fully ripe as compared with harvesting them at the earliest date at which they might be cut.

"Results secured here at the Iowa Station and in other states indicate that there is no movement of plant nutrients from the green stalk of oats when cut to fill out the hear," Hughes says. Evidently, then, if grain is cut while green, the kernels will not fill out properly.

Of the various small grains barley shatters the most. Hence if any grain should be cut early barley should get the first consideration Wheat shatters least easily after ripening. Various varieties of oats differ in this respect. Iowa 105 has been found to stand ripe without shattering badly for an unusuallly long period.

LIKE CORN WITHOUT WORMS?

Most Of Ear Worms May Be Controlled With Lead Arsenate

Ear worms which ruin sweet corn for table use may be largely controlled by dusting the silks of the corn each evening with a mixture of 1 part of ordinary sulfur to 4 parts of lead arsenate. The forgoing control measure is recommended by entomologists at Iowa State College, for small areas.

The arsenate dust should be applied in the evening because it is at this time that the moths of the ear worm lay their eggs on the silks. The dust should be applied each evening, too, because the silks grow out each day, exposing a portion not previously reached with the dust. The new growth as well as the old must be kept covered.

The poison dust may be applied with a cheescloth bag or with a tin can which has had many small holes punched in the bottom.

D. C. H. Richardson, entomologist who has used this control method says that it is not 100 percent effective, but that if used regularly it will control most of the ear worms.

THERE IS

No Tax On Coal

To explain a rumor that there is a $2.00 a ton tax on coal, we wish to assure the public that there is nothing to it.

Congress put a $2.00 per ton tariff on coal to keep out Russian coal, which was being shipped to Atlantic seaport cities, mined by the communists of Russia, who receive cabbage, soup and black bread for their labor and reward. This coal was being dumped on the eastern market for less than the freight on our own coal.

PROPOSE MAKING OFFICIAL TERMS FOUR YEARS

Suggestion For County and State Offices Taken Up By Committee

DES MOINES:—A proposal that terms of state and county officials be lengthened to four years is being considered by the legislative committee on reducing governmental expenditures.

In a statement made public, the committee declared that "if Iowa adopted the proposal to elect state officials for four years instead of two year terms as at present, it would be following the practice of nearly half the states."

Arguments advanced in favor of the suggestion are that it would allow an official to become better acquainted with his duties before his term ends and before he would have to campaign for re-election, that many state officials are elected for two terms anyway and that shortening of the ballot in this way would permit an election saving.

It was Willie's first ride in a railway train and the sucession of wonders reduced him to a state of continuous astonishment. The train rounded a slight bend and with a shriek of its whistle plunged into a tunnel.

There were gasps of surprise from the corner where Willie was. Suddenly the train rushed into broad daylight again and a small voice was lifted in wonder.

"It's tomorrow!" exclaimed the small boy.—Christian Register.

The Way Out

Tommy was hopeful, but doubtful as he handed in his exercise to his teacher. Seven times he had worked the same long sum and seven times he had been told to repeat it.

Teacher was sympathetic, but the figures were still wrong. "I'm very sorry," she said, "but it is still two pence out."

Wearily Tommy searched his pockets and then proffered two coppers. "Here you are, Miss," he said, "I'll pay the difference."

HAIL OVER WIDE AREA LAST WEEK WEDNESDAY P. M.

Path Of Storm Reached Over Five Miles Wide North of Klemme

One of the worst hail storms in many years struck Hancock County last Wednesday afternoon, covering an area over five miles wide and scattered along a route fifteen miles long.

The center of the storm seemed to strike near the John Goll farm north and east of Klemme. In this particular section all crops were wiped out completely. Windows were broken in buildings in that community. The hail was very severe beginning at the north edge of Garner and covering a few miles east from that point. Likewise to the south and east of Garner crops were badly damaged. The small grains on most of the area are a complete loss, while corn was badly damaged. In driving over the hail area we noted that it reached as far as northwest of Britt and was scattered as far as five miles east of Garner.

It was twenty-five years ago on July 3rd that a severe hail storm visited practically this same area and destroyed all crops.

A carnival arrived in town and some of the boys decided to give one of their number a treat. Being more or less effervescent from a continued application of corn liquor, he readily consented to accompany them to a sideshow where he gazed with awe upon a petrified woman.

"What do you think of that?" they asked him.

"'S wonderful," replied the souse "'S jush wonderful. Who do you sh'pose took her out?"

THERE IS

No Tax On Coal

To explain a rumor that there is a $2.00 a ton tax on coal, we wish to assure the public that there is nothing to it.

Congress put a $2.00 per ton tariff on coal to keep out Russian coal, which was being shipped to Atlantic seaport cities, mined by the communists of Russia, who receive cabbage, soup and black bread for their labor and reward. This coal was being dumped on the eastern market for less than the freight on our own coal.

TIMES STAFF WERE ON TRIP TO MISSOURI

Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Jorgenson and son, Buster, accompanied by Otho Keraus, linotype operator on The Times, left early last Thursday A. M. for Kansas City, where they went to celebrated the 75th birthday of Mrs. Jorgenson's father, Titus Davis Crops all looked fine. In southern Iowa and Missouri small grain had been cut and in some places threshing had been completed. Many fine fields of timothy in southern Iowa were being cut and shocked later to be threshed for seed. As usual the stay in Kansas City was full of pleasure seeing all the sights in and around Kansas City. Plenty of chicken dinners at the Hugh Chapman home were worth driving miles for. A trip thru Missouri's highest skyscraper, the K. C. Power & Light Building was a great sight. Other trips included scenic drives, a visit to the arport, Swope Park, Fairyland Park, a trip through a box factory and visiting many points of interest. We returned home Monday afternoon.

One thing of interest at the Hugh Chapman place was the garden. They have 22 different vegetables in their garden. How many do you have? The reason for our going at this time and during the hot spell was to help Mrs. Jorgenson's father celebrate his seventy-fifth birthday. Sunday evening we drove out to Swope Park. which is a small park. just 1500 acres, where we saw a tree that measured 19 feet in circumference. Some tree! Here in the park there were over a thousand cars parked, where people had gone with their blankets, cots and all kinds of bedding to sleep for the night and avoid the heat in their down town apartments.

The Chapmans have three and a half acres of land and have chickens and rabbits to eat, eggs, and a fine cow that gives seven quarts of milk night and morning. We enjoyed the fine roasting ears from the garden. One night when they gathered the eggs they found one large egg which measured ten and a half inches one way and nine inches the other way. When we broke the egg we discovered there were two eggs. In the large egg was the yolk and white and inside of this was another perfect egg, the shell of which was very hard and which contained both the white and yolk. The children decided the hen forgot to shift gears. Who can beat this egg story? But this was the truth.

SURPRISE BIRTHDAY PARTY

MRS. ROSE TANNER AND ROBERT ENJOYING TRIP THRU WEST

Brighton. Colorado
July 10, 1932

Dear Editor:

We have been here at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Archie Wire since Saturday noon. Mrs. Wire is my oldest neice. They have three children, Alice, John and Donald. The boys ages are 19 and 15 so Robert had an enjoyable time here.

The Wire's came here thirteen years ago and bought this ranch. It consists of 145 acres. Brighton is situated i nthe valley of the South Platte river, 18 miles from Denver. It is irrigated from the Platte river and they raise sugar beets, cucumbers, tomatoes, beans and cabbage. Brighton has the best eqiupped sugar beet factory in the world. There are also canneries for the vegetables raised.

Water can be obtained here near the surface, 30 or 40 feet, but it contains alkali and lime It is used for irrigating and drinking. but where they go to the depth of from 400 to 500 feet they get a good soft water. The well on the Wire ranch, 468 feet, is the softest I have ever used. They use it for everything. Have it piped to the milk house. At one time they had quite a business retailing milk but now the people come to their ranch and get milk, cream and cottage cheese. Another man pastures his cows here and milks them every morning and evoning. Mr. Wire and two neighbors were mowing weeds along the irrigation ditches all day on Monday.

The mountains here are beautiful Long's Peak is 50 miles N. W. and Pike's Peak 85 miles S. W. and you can see he whole range. On Lookout Mt., where Buffalo Bill is buried. there is a museum and you can see the lights of the cars as they go up and down.

The last of three banks failed to open in Brighton on Monday morning, July 11th. Several heavy depositors drew out $40,000 and took it to the Denver banks.

We left Brighton at 5:30 July 12 and drove as far as Las Vegas, New Mexico where we had a cabin for the night. There have been rains every day and it is cool enough that traveling was real enjoyable. The cities of Denver, Colorado Springs, and Pueblo are beautiful. The mountain scenery while going thru the pass was wonderful.

Robert would like to make the 7V Ranch by tonight (Wednesday). A party going east told him that the ranch didn't pay out so they turned it into a camp

We are on No. 85 or the Old Santa Fe Trail and will go thru Santa Fe andAlbuquerque today.

Highway No. 38 as shown on the maps has been changed to No. 6 and goes from Boston to Boulder. Thru Nebraska it was marked No. 6, the No. 38 had been taken up. but in Colorado it was still No. 38.

We have a laundry stove in our cabin with kindling and fine hard coal fuel so we will have a breakfast of bacon and eggs and be going.

Your truly,
Rosa Tanner

Majority of Headaches Traced to Eye Strain

Seven out of ten headaches are caused by eye strain due to neglect of ordinary eye care, pointed out M. J. Iulian of the Better Vision institute, in a speech in Boston before a group of eyesight specialists. Other ills, such as insomnia and indigestion, are also traceable to this cause, he pointed out, and yet 40 per cent of the people of this country need glasses and are trying to do without them.

"The eyes are such faithful servants that we are inclined to forget the burdens we put upon them," said Mr. Julian. "Particularly in this age where men are pushing their investigations farther and farther into the realms of stars and atoms and where most manufacturing processes depend upon fine precision, the tax upon the eyes has become far greater than we realize. The nervous energy possessed by the body is limited, and the eyes, if they perform this additional labor unaided, steal some of the energy required for other functions. Lenses especially adapted to the work in hand are necessary to relieve the strain on the eyes and release the stolen energy through the intended channels. Proper eye care is more needed in this age than in any other."

Greek Legend Gave Us Augean Stables Story

In Greek legend Augeas was a king of Elis who possessed a herd of 3,000 sacred oxen whose stalls had not been cleaned for 30 years. The cleaning of these stables in a single day was one of the 12 difficult and dangerous labors imposed upon Hercules by Eurystheus, king of Argolis. Hercules, who was promised a tenth part of the cattle in payment, succeeded in performing the task within the required time by turning the rivers Alpheus and Peneus through the stables. Augeas refused to turn over any part of the cattle to Hercules on the ground that he had carried out the commission in the service of Eurystheus, whereupon Hercules sent an army into Elis and destroyed the insolent king and his sons. Figuratively, cleaning the Augean stables means to clear away an accumulated mass of corruption or filth or to reform wrongs almost past the power of man to remedy.

Manila Up to Date

Venice of the Orient is one of the names given to Manila of the Philippine islands. The name comes to it because it is situated on both banks of the Pasig river and enjoys some canal life from the river. These waters provide a lot of bridges for the city suggestive of the Rialto of the Old world.

Thirty-five years ago the city had no drainage system and a heavy rain made boats on the streets a necessity. Around the Intermuros, or walled city, which is most typical of its Spanish days, were walls and a moat dating back to 1590, two miles long and 25 feet high. Today the moat is given up to fine driveways and only the bridged river and canals remind the tourist of a city of islands.

The Postgraduate Wife

She asks her husband occasionally if he thinks there is any real danger in the political situation. The time most favored by experts for this question is when he has only five minutes in which to make his train.

She never unfolds his morning paper. Few, even from the post-graduate school, develop sufficient technique for this important detail within five years.

She takes charge of, reads and returns all books lent him by his friends and gives him a few sentences which enable him to talk about them if cornered.—Kansas City Star.

Vienna Old and Beautiful

Vienna, founded 2,000 years ago by the Romans, destroyed and rebuilt several times, is still a queen among modern cities, although it is no longer the residence of an imperial court. It has a famous opera, by many considered among the best in German-speaking lands. It certainly has the oldest tradition, dating back into the Seventeenth century. The public buildings, palaces, galleries, educational institutions, theaters and museums offer an inexhaustible fund of beauty and instruction.

Shiny-Headed Monster

At three o'clock in the morning we were awakened by a loud knocking at the door. On looking out of the window, we saw a queer looking beast about six feet long, having four legs, no neck and a shiny head three feet long. Before we could get a gun it disappeared in the darkness. We thought it an escaped animal from the circus. The next morning, cautiously walking, we found a big stray pig with its head tightly wedged in a ten-gallon milk can.—Farm Journal.

Odd Human Passion Is Mania for "Collecting"

I know a gentleman who has devoted the best years of his life to collecting clay pipes and the buttons from soldiers' uniforms. He has, in effect, married clay pipes and military buttons, and is living with both in bigamous content. In this marital union he probably finds happiness above the average.

It would be impossible to produce comparative statistics in proof, but anyone who has touched the fringes of this subject will agree that collecting is on the increase; it is one of the major enthusiasms of our time.

A list of things which are the objects of the collector's passion would sound like the table of contents of a mail order catalogue—or an inventory of the city dump: shaving mugs, mustache cups, gilded rolling pins, hat boxes, cigarette snuffers, miniature furniture, glass slippers, maps, old insurance policies, conch shells, wish bones, wooden Indians, wax flowers, time tables, playing cards, hymn books, beaded bags, fans, canes, baskets, beer ties, babies' caps, spectacles cases, ink pots, buttons, garters, crutches, talking machine records, petticoats, old love letters. It is revealed that at least one macabre amorist has even made a collection of tombstones.—Mary Day Winn in the North American Review.

Expert on the Subject Explodes Snake Myths

The way animals adapt themselves to environmental changes has always been one of the wonders of zoology. When shrews went to sea, they did not develop fins, but changed forelegs to flippers and became whales. In like manner, the reptiles that took to the trees changed scales into feathers and became birds. A great subject—adaptation to changed environments.

Doctor Mosauer, "snake expert," has taken away some of our favorite illusions. There are no true hoop snakes, he says. The "black snake" doesn't take its tail in its mouth and roll like a hoop across the prairies as the pioneer believed. Nor can you tell the age of a rattlesnake by its rattles. It gets a new rattle every time it sheds its skin, and it may shed oftener than once a year. Human beings, he says, shed their skin continuously, snake all at once. Snake eyelids are a part of their skin, the lids being fused together but quite transparent at first. As the skin thickens, a snake sees less and less clearly—through its eyelids. When ready to shed, the skin breaks around the lips where skin and mucous membrane meet, then the skin slips backward, eyelids and all, as if pulled by invisible strings.—Los Angeles Times.

Green and Black Teas

The same kind of tea leaves can be used for the manufacture of either green or black tea, the difference of the two teas lying merely in the process of curing. Some varieties of tea leaves, however, are better adapted than others for making certain kinds of tea. In producing green tea the leaves are sterilized by steam. This prevents oxidizing or fermentation of the leaf which retains its green color and when boiling water is poured over it the result is green or greenish-yellow liquid. In manufacturing black tea the leaf is allowed to ferment which changes its color from green to very dark brown. In the case of oolong or semi-fermented tea the fermentation is allowed to reach a certain desired point.

Wooden Leg Uninsurable

The Supreme court of California has decided that a workman cannot collect a workmen's compensation liability benefit for injury to a wooden leg, in the case of John Driscoll, a teamster, whose wooden leg was broken when his horses shied and threw him. The case was bitterly fought, three judges dissenting from the majority of the bench. It was urged that loss of an artificial member was a real disability. The majority held that a decision favorable to the workman would open the door to claims for damage to crutches, eyeglasses and false teeth.

Capturing Oil Gushers

"Wild" oil wells are capped in a number of different ways, depending upon conditions at the casing head when the wells blow out. In general the operation consists in attaching a gate valve to the casing head and closing the valve after the connection has been made. Connections which provide a number of flow lines are then made to flow the oil from the wells. The complete assembly of well head connections is known as the "Christmas tree," because of the various branch connections off of it to the main header above the large flow control valve.

Marsh Hawks Groundlings

The marsh hawk is our only species of hawk that habitually nests on the ground. The dried grass nests of these birds built among the weeds near a pond or marsh may contain from two to nine eggs of a bluish white color. When the eggs are hatched both male and female share in the care of their offspring and the family remains together for most of the summer. Their food consists chiefly of mice, but other small mammals, birds, snakes, frogs and even poultry are sometimes found on their menu.

NEW INTEREST IN OLDEST HERO STORY

From Oxford comes word that 50 more lines of the epic of Gilgamesh, the traditional Babylonian hero, have been found inscribed on a stone tablet lately excavated at Kish a very ancient city in the desert of Irak. This is regarded as a most important addition to the oldest adventure story in the world. One estimate of the Kish tablet places its writing at about 4,000 years ago.

But even that does not necessarily mean the beginning of the Gilgamesh epic. From time to time contributions to this adventure story have been made as records have been unearthed, with evidences of earlier production. As digging is continued and older and older cities are brought to light earlier versions of Gilamesh may come to hand. For Gilgamesh is the fundamental, basic story of heroism. Historically Gilgamesh is reputed to have been a king in the first dynasty of Erach, to whom is attributed a reign of 126 years, which is doubtless an exaggeration to be understood in the light of some of the great ages reported in very early records of man. Gilgamesh was a soldier who became a sun god. To him were attributed many feats of great valor. He sought the secret of immortal life and perpetual youth. In him are embodied the nature myths such as are identified with all primitive civilizations. From the Gilgamesh epic ramified innumerable legions throughout the Mediterranean area and southwestern Asia. There are traces of Gilgamesh in the folk tales and myths of the Hebrews, Phoenicians, Syrians, Greeks and Romans, throughout Asia Minor and even in India. The finding of 50 new lines, presumably dated earlier than those hitherto available for study, is consequently an achievement of moment, and it is hoped that these lines may supply gaps in the story of this oldest tale of heroism of which man now has any records.

Excellent Business in Breton Marriage Mart

No depression exists in the marriage mart of Brittany. After the final count following a three-day marriage festival there, it was discovered that a conservative estimate placed the number of ceremonies at 1,400. This made a day's average approximately 466 brides and bridegrooms. This is the result of a century-old tradition which claims that the best days for getting married are the Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday following Easter. To comply with this custom in all Breton towns the men and maidens, clad in their picturesque costumes, are married each year. Breton bagpipes play the wedding marches and there is dancing in all the public squares. The vows of fidelity are made in French at the mairie, but in Breton in the churches.

Unlucky Dogs

One of the unluckiest things that can happen to a breed of dogs is to get fashionable, says the Cleveland Press. This means that the dogs will be transplanted in huge numbers from their natural environments to overheated apartments. It means in many cases, that hardy animals bred to hunt and fight will have to eat chocolates and sleep on silk pillows.

One of the popular breeds these days is the Scotch terrier. Certainly a rugged, warm-coated, tough-fibered outdoor dog if there ever was one. Yet—believe it or not—full-grown Scotch terriers may be seen on the streets of Cleveland wearing knitted sweaters on cold days. Think of the humiliation!

"Who's Afraid?"

Women outnumbered men by 15 to 1 at the recent South of England mouse show at St. Albans. They forgot about skirts and crowded about the exhibit pens to see mice from all parts of the country, brought to compete for 20 challenge cups and 44 special prizes. There were mice of almost every "colour," as the British spell it, and only a few were valued at less than $50 while one was priced at $250.

Guard for Pigeons

A unique form of guard duty is practiced at Fort Monmouth, N. J. Many of the army's carrier pigeons are kept there under care of the signal corps. To protect them from hawks and owls, which have killed or injured several of the homers during training, a special pigeon detail has been added to post guard.

which prevents the growth of harmful bacteria and helps to keep your cream sweet--

Bacteria are the smallest form of plants and grow rapidly in milk. Some kinds are harmful— cream should be kept as nearly free as possible from bacteria growth.

Proper cooling of the cream as soon as it can be separated and then the maintainance of the cream at a low temperature keeps down the bacteria growth.

Cool your cream promptly this hot weather— keep your cans in cool water and you will have done much to climinate the sour cream problem.

Ancient System Revived

The old craftsmanship of the Middle ages is being revived by the Greenwich house workshops in New York. Youths are trained there in stone cutting, wood carving, cabinetmaking and bronze work, under the five-hundred-year-old apprenticeship system as it was practiced in the days of the old masters of arts and crafts. In this school where, it is hoped, the machine-made art of the present day may be counteracted, there are already 30 or 40 students at work. They are all of foreign parentage, the majority being Italian and most of them from poor families.

"Nuggets" Were Brass

Jacob Lowstuter of Charleroi, Pa., found two nuggets in the gizzard of a chicken. The butcher who sold the fowl said it came from a village nearby, where there was a gold strike 30 years ago. Excitement ran high and there were visions of a gold rush until a jeweler assayed the nuggets and found them to be brass. Every one lamented, particularly the butcher. He had killed six chickens looking for more "nuggets."

Welsh Singers Persist

Not even the collapse of the platform on which they were standing could deter a Welsh choir which was trying for a prize at the recent Eisteddfod at Nebo, Wales. During the chief choral competition the stage gave way when the third choir had assembled on it preparatory to giving their number. They were hurled to the ground and, despite the shock and injuries, the singers tried for the prize later.

Modernistic Piano

Modernistic art has transformed the piano into something new and unfamiliar. A new art piano has been exhibited at the Leipsic fair in which the solid piano legs are replaced by steel supports, no thicker than a finger. The sides of the piano, a triangular grand, are made of plates of red glass, while the top and even the music rack are covered with glass.

ONLY LEGENDS AS TO LOST ATLANTIS

According to ancient tradition, Atlantis was the name of a large island or continent which existed at a very early period in the Atlantic ocean, and eventually was sunk beneath the waves.

An account of it is given by Plato. His writings state that in the Atlantic ocean, over against the pillars of Hercules, there was once an island which was larger than Asia and Africa together (or the then existent notion of the extent of these continents), and near it lay other islands through which there was a passage to a large continent beyond.

Nine thousand years before Plato's time, said the tradition, the island of Atlantis was thickly settled and very powerful. It held sway over Africa as far as Egypt and over a large part of Europe, but the advance of its conquering power was checked by the valor of the Greeks. At last, during a violent earthquake, which lasted a day and a night and was accompanied by inundations of the ocean, the island was wholly submerged. The account adds that for many years thereafter, the sea in this part was unnavigable because of the shoals caused by the sunken lands.

This ancient legend may, and probably did, have some historical circumstances for foundation, but what these were no historian has ever been able to determine.

Robin Had Business There

Some time during the winter a pane of glass was broken in the clubhouse of the Bath (Maine) Country club and an early arrival from the south decided that was a good place to build a nest and rear her young. As the clubhouse had not been kept open during the winter no one knew about the feathered visitor and recently the glass was reset. Then it was noticed that a robin kept flying against the glass and pecking at it. Inside the clubhouse was found a nest with two blue eggs in it.

Record Butterfly Collection

The late Dr. William Barnes, a surgeon of Decatur, Ill., devoted practically half a century to collecting what is the finest assemblage of North American butterflies in the world. Doctor Barnes' widow has been offered $50,000 for the specimens by the United States government. Upon her acceptance they will be brought to Washington and placed in the National museum

The Power of Smell

Hawaiian natives, by smelling a fish, can tell from what bay in the island it was caught. But Capt. William Mouat of Portland, Maine, goes them one better by declaring the way to determine the proximity of an iceberg is by its smell. Years of sailing in regions where they abound give him powers of detecting them by their "musty odor."

Cat Like Kangaroo

At Camden, Tenn., a cat at the home of G. M. Spence has features and characteristics resembling those of a kangaroo—rear feet larger and longer than fore feet. It leaps like a kangaroo, using its short, heavy tail for balance and propeller, and sits like a kangaroo.

Definition

A fourth-grade teacher was trying to introduce the subject of mining.

"What is a mine, Samuel?" she asked.

"A mine," began Samuel, "why a mine's the thing we got inside our heads."

In the Wrong Sense

"Saw your new play last night. It's very diverting."

"Yes, I'm afraid it's diverting people to the other show across the street."

MORE THAN RADIO "FAN" COULD STAND

The assault, to all appearances, had been unprovoked. The victim, an affable little man, was of the sort incapable of making enemies. And yet, on the night in question, he had been most brutally assailed, he knew not by whom, and left unconscious upon the pavement near his home.

What made the case so baffling to the police was the fact that he had not been robbed. His watch, his modest roll were still on him. For sheer diabolic frenzy the attack could be matched only by those of Mr. Hyde.

It would have been docketed with the unsolved mysteries had not a richly dressed man motored to police headquarters and given himself up. He made, as police reporters say, a full confession.

"Deal with me as you will," he said. "I deserve it. But at the time I struck him down—with this loaded ebony cane—the provocation was too great, God help me, to resist. He is my wife's brother, a poor little runt, with a mechanical bent. And, blast him!—"

Here the confessor's teeth were suddenly clinched in a return of the paroxysms in which his crime had been committed.

"He made a little radio set for $4 and a dishpan that would hook on programs which I couldn't get on my guaranteed outfit that cost 350 bucks, not including the aerial. His only aerial was a bedpost, a common enamel one at that. And—and he taunted me!"

A soblike murmur of sympathy, a rare visitor there, had swept through police headquarters. . . .

Little remains to be told. The ultimate outcome was a suspended sentence and a silent handclasp from the court.—Kansas City Times.

Sight-Saving Methods Aiding Children's Eyes

Four hundred sight-saving classes have been established in the schools of 112 American communities, according to statistics received by the Better Vision institute. The classes are conducted so as to put the least possible strain on the children whose eyes are naturally defective; large-type books are used, the children can choose their own positions in the classroom so that they can see the blackboard without difficulty, and they are taught to use the touch system on the typewriter as soon as possible to avoid the strain of hand-writing. According to the institute, one out of five children are handicapped by defective vision, and since they are compelled to attend school up to a certain age, school authorities are beginning to realize that they owe a special responsibility to the 5,000,000 out of the 26,000,000 children in the United States who do not see well.

Queensberry History

Queensberry house in Scotland, hereditary property of the house of Queensberry, it is said was constructively in the county of Dumfries. It is recalled that when the duke of Queensberry was attending the closing session of the convention of Estates—the old Scots parliament—in June, 1707, and passing the act of union with England, his chef went mad and trussed up the turnspit boy, but was stopped in time from roasting him alive.

Isolated Munitions Depot

Hundreds of miles from any ocean is located the newest United States naval munitions depot. It is in the center of 211 square miles of government land at Hawthorne, Nev. Just to the north of the naval storehouse is Walker lake. The unusual location of the depot, far from the fleets which it serves, is due largely to the factor of safety. Here in the desert explosions would do only local harm. At a seaport they would mean a catastrophe.

Long Railway Rails

The longest railway rails in the world are to be laid in England soon. They measure 90 feet in length, compared with the usual length of 30, 45 and 60 feet. It is hoped that the longer rails will provide smoother running, less noise and wear. It is estimated that on a train traveling at 40 miles an hour on 30-foot rails, each wheel jolts 117 times a minute, due to the joints. On the new rails this number will be reduced to 39 a minute.

Busy Airway

On the San Francisco-New York airway, 2,766 miles long, longest improved airway in the world, there are 161 Department of Commerce lighted emergency fields, with permanent caretakers. Supplementing these are the weather bureau observers and hundreds of beacons and two-way radiophone stations.

Demonstrated

"How long have you had your new cook?" asked her dearest friend.

"Just long enough to understand why she was out of a job when we got her through the agency," she replied sadly.

Few and Far Between

He was warning a little neighbor about being careful crossing streets.

"Oh, don't worry," the child assured, "I always wait for the empty space to come by."—Parents' Magazine.

In canning fruit and tomatoes, a slightly different process is used. Fruit, after being prepared, is dropped raw into sterilized containers which are standing in hot water and shake to settle the fruit. The jar is filled with boiling syrup and allowed to stand for a few minutes in boiling water to drive out air. They are then sealed tightly and process ed. Apples need to be brought to the the boiling point in syrup to prevent shrinkage and then packed.

If the open kettle method is used the fruit should be processed for five minutes after sealing.

The average family of five or six persons should can a minimum of about 550 quarts of fruits and vegtables. This amount should include 40 quarts of greens, which used 2 times a week will last four months. One hundred and ten quarts of tomatoes and tomato juice used 3 times a week will last nine months, and 90 quarts of other vegetables used three times a week will last 7 months. Three hundred quarts of fruit and fruit juices are needed in order that the family may have them in some form 10 times a week for eight months.

BELMOND'S BANKING OFFICE TO BE DISCONTINUED

Small Amount Of Business Does Not Warrant Branch Here

BELMOND INDEPENDENT.—All Franklin County banks opened at one o'clock Saturday, following an eight and a half day holiday period for the signing of waivers. The local banking office of the Franklin County State bank opened at the same time.

The people of Belmond felt much relieved when the local banking office opened and they hoped that their banking difficulties were at an end.

But Wednesday afternoon word was received that on account of the small volume of business the Franklin County State bank found it necessary to discontinue the local office. So Belmond is again without any banking facilities at all.

The receivers of the closed State Bank of Belmond and the Belmond Savings bank have asked the court for permission to declare a ten per cent dividend. It is expected that this will be paid in the near future but no definite date has been set This will be the second dividend paid by these two banks. The several thousand dollars placed in circulation in the local community by the payment of this second dividend will be of great benefit to the town.

THRESHING IN FULL SWING AROUND KLEMME THIS WEEK

Small Grain Better Than Last Year; Oats Averages 40 Bushels to Acre

Threshing is in full swing around Klemme this week and every threshing ring is operating on full time. Another week will complete threshing in many rings around here.

Most fields of oats around here run from 30 bushels as high as 50 and 60 bushels to the acre. A fair average around here, according to threshers, is about 40 bushels to the acre This is about 10 bushels higher than last year.

In the district which was hailed out a few weeks ago the grain runs from only 5 to 10 bushels to the acre. However, the straw is valuable and will be used for feed.

Corn never looked better around here than it does this year. The rain Monday night was a real benefit to the corn crops.

SOUTH DAKOTA FARMERS HAVE GOOD CROPS

Rev. Calvin Grosshuesch returned with his family Saturday from Menno, South Dakota, where Mrs. Grosshuesch and children had been for a three weeks visit with her parents and family. Her mother Mrs Kuhlman has not been well for some time and is still ill. Other members of the family are all well. Menno was in the draught district last year and it will be remembered that grain was shipped to that point from Klemme last winter to help the farmers there. Rev. Grosshoesch reports that crops are good there this year and he believes most of the farmers will be able to take care of themselves. He reports, however, that the corn is in need of rain soon.

ECKARD ZEIDLER ON NOON BROADCAST FROM FIELD'S STATION TUESDAY

Those in our community who happened to be tuned in on KFNF Tuesday noon were perhaps surprised to hear the deep bass voice of Eckard Zeidler coming over the air. However, such was the case and it was none other than our townsman they heard.

Mr. and Mrs. Eckard Zeidler returned to Klemme Tuesday evening from Manhattan, Kansas, where they were called by the serious illness of Mr. Zeidler's father. When they left for Klemme Mr. Zeidler was improved but is still quite ill. Returning to Klemme the Zeidlers decided to visit the radio station at Shennandoah and it was while on this visit that Mr. Zeidler was asked to broadcast.

SPRAY SMALL WEED PATCHES

Spraying Uneconomical On Areas As Large As Acre

Spraying with chemicals is the most economical and quickest method of eradicating small areas of perennial weeds, considering total cost and labor involved, in the judgement of R. H. Porter, extension plant pathologist, at Iowa State College.

Cost of spraying makes it inadvisable to use this method on an area as large as an acre, except where it is impossible to cultivate. The most successful chemicals, according to results of experiments, are two of the chlorates. In most cases sodium chlorate has been more effective than Atlacide, although in dry seasons Atlacide gives equally good results. Atlacide has the advantage of being less inflammable, but if the necessary precautions are observed in the use of sodium chlorate the user should have no serious trouble with fire.

Sodium chlorate should be used for most weeds at the hate of 1½ pounds per gallon of water. This mixture is sprayed on the plants. using from 1 to 1½ gallons per square rod. Weeds should be treated the first time when they are in bud, covering all the leaves and stems. The second application should be made when the new shoots come up and are 4 to 6 inches high, unless it is unusually hot and dry at that time. If August is hot and dry, spraying will be more effective if delayed until September when the soil is wet. Under those conditions sodium chlorate is more effective.

Information on how to apply the chlorate may be secured from any of the farm bureau offices in the state.

Burgulars tried to rob the safe in the closed Fenton State bank recently but were scared away. A hole had been bored in the top of the safe and the safe filled with water to prevent burning of the money that was supposed to be in it. An acetlyne torch was used on the door Had the burgulars succeeded in getting into the safe they would have secured just $17 for their trouble. Many business places in Fenton have been entered the past two years but no big haul has been made. But the biggest joke of all probably was this last attempt of trying to rob a closed bank.

GARNER MAY COME TO SPENCER

A. J Livingston, the Spencer farmer whom Vice President Curtis said was "too damn dumb to understand." has invited John N. Garner, the democratic vice presidential nominee to speak at Spencer. Fair officials have become interested in this speaking date and it is now quite likely that Garner will visit Spencer during the Clay County Fair and deliver an address.

Curtis was unable to answer the Spencer farmer when asked how republican farm relief was going to help the farmer and he made the now famous retort. And if Curtis were to visit Spencer today he would still be unable to explain republican farm relief.—Ringsted Dispatch.

HOW DO FISH SWIM AND DO FISH WALK

A series of interesting experiments has just disproved the old theory that fish swim by means of their tails. It seems that they can swim just as well with their tail fins cut off. It is actually the muscles on the sides of the body that sends them through the water and this action starts from the head. But swimming is not the only form motion of which fish are capable. Some of them can come out of the water and walk. (Not Iowa fishes, however). A number of these fish arrived at the London Zoo recently. They are the Mudskippers of Java. When out of the water they use their breast fins as legs.

MALLARD NESTS ON BARN FOR SIX YEARS

A female mallard with Biological Survey band No. 555414 has nested six consecutive years in the same box. F. J. Keller, Antioch, Nebr., banded the bird in 1927 after she had hatched her eggs in this unusual nest site. She has returned to the box to nest every year since. Mr Keller tells of how she got her ducklings off the barn roof. Leading the young to the edge she flew lightly to the ground and the young followed. They were so light that despite their lack of wing feathere they were in no way injured.

Patents Issued To Two Local Men For Valuable Inventions

BEN GREIMAN HAS DEVELOPED NEW HEATING PRINCIPLE

W. L. Thada Given Patent On Clever Mouse Trap

Ben F. Greiman, farmer living north and west of Klemme has received his patent from the Government on a new heating system for buildings. Mr. Greiman, who has been working and experimenting on his system for several years has developed a heating outfit that is entirely different from anything on the market.

Is Adapted To Farm Buildings

Mr. Greiman's system is especially designed for heating hog houses, brooder houses, seed corn houses, etc. The heating conduits are installed underneath a concrete floor. This assures a dry, warm floor in otherwise damp hog and brooder houses. In the summer time the floor can be kept perfectly dry by simply letting the air circulate thru the system; thus the system is useful 12 months during the year.

Mr. Greiman has his system installed on a hog house on his farm. He expects to build a combination seed corn drying and brooder house which he will use for demonstration purposes.

Thada Invented Mouse Trap

W. L. Thada, Klemme merchant, has a patent on a new type of mouse trap that is entirely different from anything in that line. Mr. Thada's mouse trap is constructed entirely of metal, is automatic in setting and the dead mouse is easily freed from the trap without having to touch it in any way, a feature which will be especially pleasing to the women. Mr. Thada's trap is simple in operation, is a sure catcher and will trap very small mice as well as large ones.

Mr. Thada conceived the idea of a better mouse trap when he became disgusted with the ordinary traps on the market. He observed that it was more or less of an accident when a mouse was caught in the old style traps. He set about a way to fix the traps so the mice couldn't play tag and leap-frok over the traps without getting caught. His new trap is the product of his experimenting.

He has several of his traps in his store. A mouse has never yet sprung one of these traps without getting caught. It has proved out under actual test to catch a great many more mice than any other trap yet made.

EVERY BOY A SWIMMER AT CUB CAMP

Dorance Grange and Buster Jorenson returned Saturday morning from four days spent at the Cub Camp which was held at Camp Roosevelt on the South Shore of Clear Lake.

This camp for younger boys made a record this year in that every boy in camp was able to swim. Many could swim before coming to camp while others were taught how to swim. A boy was classed a swimmer if he could pass the fifty foot mark. Many exceeded this distance with a few days of instruction and practice. Dorance Grange improved his swimming an was able to swim 125 feet when camp closed. This was Dorance's second summer in the camp. Buster Jorgenson, an "old timer" who has spent his third year in the camp improved his swimming record by passing the 100 yard test and so was permitted to go out to the diving board in deep water. Besides swimming, the boys enjoyed nature study and game hikes. handicraft work and other activities.

Another four day period for boys nine to eleven years inclusive, will open next week. Any boy of that age in this community is eligible to attend. Parents can feel perfectly safe in having their boys in the camp. They are under adult supervision and older Boy Scout leadership.

MANY WILL FEED ON CONTRACT

Scarcity Of Credit, Abundance Of Crops May Force Adoption of Plan

Although the average farmer who can secure financing for his feeding operations probably will find it best to buy cattle outright, many Iowa farmers will be forced to feed on contract during the coming season believes J. C Galloway, extension specialist in farm management at Iowa State College.

The prospective Iowa feed situatio indicates that the corn yield will be about 19 per cent above a year ago and 12 percent above the five year average. There are about 15 per cent fewer cattle on feed and a 10 per cont decrease in the spring pig crop. These facts point to a probable decrease in the demand for feed. This situation raises the question of what to do with the corn. If cattle and lambs are fed, many of them will undoubtedly be fed on contract.

At the present time western growers give no assurance that there will be a supply of lambs and steers for contract feeding. Most of them expect to market their feeders Mr. Galloway expects, however, that lack of cash to buy feeders on the market will prevent many farmers from doing so and a rush will develop late in the fall on the part of western growers to place their lamos and steers with farmers for contract feeding.

If this condition develops, it will pay Iowa farmers to know what points constitute a good contract. In order to acquaint county agents livestock feeders and bankers with the requirements of a good contract a series of nine district conferences were held in Iowa from July 25 to August 1.

At these conferences the following recommendations were made: (1) Deal only with experienced parties of known responsibility, (2) see that the contract is itemized in every detail such as a clause concerning waivers on all leins on both feed and livestock; (3) Have a thorough understanding of weighing conditions. division of shrinkage death loss and marketing expenses. (4) Insist on a clear statement of designation of agent and the method of division of returns.

Information concerning cotract feeding may be obtained from the county agents or by writing to the Extension Service, Iowa State College.

A Washington Square Idyl

By H. IRVING KING

(© by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)
(WNU Service)

NIGHT had fallen over the city and the benches of Washington square were beginning to fill up with the varigated assortment of men who filled them when darkness made its daily and punctual arrival. On one bench, facing that intensely respectable row of old brick mansions which line the north side of the square sat a young man of perhaps thirty, whose dress and general appearance caused passersby to glance at him wonderingly—he was so evidently out of harmony with the usual frequenters of the place. Maurice Davenport seemed unaware of the interest he aroused. His eyes were fixed upon the lighted windows of a mansion opposite.

In the house upon which his eyes were fixed lived Mabell Harrison, and six months before he had written her a letter offering her his heart and begging for her hand. Why he had written instead of making his avowal by word of mouth he could not say, except that he was of a rather bashful nature and had thought it more easy to say what he had to say in writing. The night before he had written the fateful letter he had said to Mabell in taking leave of her for the evening: "I am going to send you a letter tomorrow, Mabell, and I hope that your answer will be such as my very soul desires." And Mabell had replied with a smile: "Go home and sleep well, Maurice. I can guess what the nature of your letter will be, and —good-night!"

He had gone away buoyed up with hope. He had written the letter and sent it by messenger. But to it he had received no reply His messenger, a clerk in his office, came back and said that, as directed, he had delivered the missive into the young lady's own hand; that she had read it and had said: "Tell Mr. Davenport that there is no answer." The shock had been terrible. Two weeks later he saw in the paper that she had sailed with her father and mother for Europe. And now, that very day, he had seen in the paper that the Harrisons had arrived home. Scarcely aware of what he did he had wandered to the square and sat gazing at the house which held all that he loved.

A tall, lanky, shabbily dressed young man came and took a seat by Maurice's side.

"Got a match, Bo?" asked the youth.

Mechanically, Maurice handed the intruder his match case. As he did so the youth got a good look at Maurice's face and gave an exclamation of surprise. Maurice looked and said: "Why, are you not John Davis? You used to be in my office, I think."

"Yes." hesitated the youth, "I am John; but I didn't recognize you at first."

"You left me, I think, to go with Boswick & Claffin, did you not?" asked Maurice.

"Yes, I did," replied John, "and I wish I'd never done it. I ain't had no luck since. Boswick is dead—killed in a joy ride. as you know—and I am out of a job. I'm down and out."

"Perhaps I can find room for you in the office again," said Maurice.

The youth began to cry. "I ain't worth it," sobbed he. "I played a low-down trick on you. I'm broken down and weak, or I wouldn't cry so. and I wouldn't confess what I done. either. But, somehow, I got to tell you. Will you still give me another chance?"

Greatly surprised Maurice said gently: "Of course I will! What is it that you are so sorry for?"

"Well, you know the letter you gave to take to that very house over there? The fact is. I didn't take it."

Maurice rose angrily from his seat and for a moment it seemed as if he would fell the youth to the ground. But controlling himself, he sat down again and said sternly: "Why not?"

"Oh," went on John, the conscious-stricken, "Steve Boswick met me on the street, right over there: he was just after coming out of that house. I asked him where the number I was after was, and showed him the letter. He thought a moment, and then offered me a hundred dollars and a job in his office if I would give the letter to him and tell you that I had delivered it. And I fell for it. As long as Steve lived it was all right. But when he was killed they sacked me."

"Come with me," said Maurice, and strode across to the brick mansion, John following him in fear and trembling. A few minutes later Maurice and Mabell stood confronting each other in the drawing room. She looked worn and pale, but her self command was perfect. Then Maurice broke out impetuously and told her the whole story of the letter and the unfaithful messenger. Turning to the door he called in John, whom he had left in the hall, and made him repeat his confession of guilt.

Life, happiness and color came back to Mabell's face as she listened. "I thought it very strange; but, oh, Maurice, how could I have doubted you? Stephen Boswick proposed to me and I had just rejected his suit when this unfortunate young man met him coming from this house."

"Come to my office tomorrow morning and I will talk further with you—now go," said Maurice to John, and John went.

But Maurice lingered.

"No," Clarence explained, "but he's hung her photo next to the picture of his pet dog."

Active Fight Waged on Bots and Worms

Illinois Farmers Organize to Conduct "Drive."

More than half of the 2,000 farmers in Woodford county are having their horses and mules treated for internal parasites, such as bots and worms, in the state-wide campaign which the College of Agriculture, University of Illinois, and co-operating agencies are conducting to restore horse power, according to a report by Farm Adviser H. A. deWerff. There are about 9,500 horses and 625 mules on farms of the county.

Local veterinarians who are co-operating with the college and Farm Adviser deWerff are conducting an organized cleanup in practically every township of the county. Liquid carbon disulphide is being used in the treatment, this material having proved most effective in preliminary tests made by the college.

Cleanup campaigns are being conducted in 48 other counties beside Woodford. "It is the best move that farmers can make to rejuvenate their horse power and thereby lower production costs," said Dr. Robert Graham, chief of the college animal pathology and hygiene division. "Few horses are entirely free from parasites of one kind or another. Although the injury often is unnoticed, the loss in feed bills and work may be more costly over a period of years than an attack of some contagious disease."

Terraces Stop Erosion of Much Valuable Land

Five and a half million acres of Illinois land are subject to heavy erosion and much plant food and surface soil is being destroyed each year that could be prevented by terracing, according to E. G. Johnson, University of Illinois.

The mangum terrace is a series of low ridges built crosswise of the slope and catch the run-off water and carry it away on a slight grade to an outlet at the side of the field instead of allowing it to gully the land.

Complete plans for constructing these terraces can be had from your county agent or from the University of Illinois by asking for bulletin number 20, "Saving Soils by Means of the Mangum Terrace."

Ration for Lambs

Corn and wheat have about the same feeding value in a ration for lambs. Alfalfa hay as a feed to lambs produced gains at about 10 per cent less per 100 pounds than sudan hay.

Bearing out the results obtained from similar trials last year, lambs fed cut alfalfa hay made faster and cheaper gains than those fed whole alfalfa. There was no appreciable difference in the results obtained from feeding sudan hay ground and whole. These are the results of Oklahoma lamb-feeding trials.—Successful Farming.

Potatoes in the Ration

Potatoes may furnish half of the dry matter in the ration for cattle and sheep, and one-fourth for horses. Dairy cows should not receive more than about 35 pounds per day, as larger amounts may impair the quality of butter produced. For fattening sheep, from two to three pounds daily may be fed with the grain. For cattle and sheep feeding, the potatoes should be chopped and mixed with the grain.

For cattle and sheep, potatoes should be fed raw and may be fed raw to hogs, particularly brood sows, if time and labor cannot be spared for cooking.

Record Potato Yield

By growing 420 bushels of Certified Rural Russett potatoes on 1.2 acres last summer, Joy Bishop, senior vocational agriculture student in Arlington high school produced one of the state's record yields among Smith-Hughes students. In making this high yield he used 20 tons of manure on clover and alfalfa sod, planted certified seed the 20th of May, applied 1,000 pounds of 6-8-6 fertilizer, cultivated seven times during the summer, and sprayed eight times. Total cost of the crop was $147 and the net profit was figured at $73.—Ohio Farmer.

Agricultural Squibs

More than 33,000,000 head of sheep and lambs were marketed in 1931, or 3,815,000 head more than in 1930.

FOOLED THE VOTERS

"What made you elect that man to the legislature?"

"Well," replied the voter, "he showed us his calloused, toil-stained palms and convinced us that he was one of us plain people."

"But he proved a disappointment?"

"Yes. We found out too late that he got his hands into that shape by trying to fix his own car."—Washington Star.

No Time for That

Alice had been disappointed in love. Her aunt was telling her a few home truths on the subject of life.

"Ah, my dear," she said, "you will find that time is a great healer.

The girl nodded.

"That's true enough," she replied; "but it's certainly a very poor beauty doctor."

His Expectations

"You must remember, my boy, that wealth does not bring happiness," said the fatherly person.

"I don't expect it to," answered the modern youth. "I merely want it so that I may be able to choose the kind of misery that is most agreeable to me."

HARD ON SHOES

"Walking home has preserved the happiness of many a girl."

"And yet it's bad for the sole."

Expurgation Demanded

"Did you read Homer in your youth?"

"Yes," answered the unwavering advocate of peace. "I objected then to its fascinating fight descriptions. 'The Iliad' is a beautiful literary work. But it ought to be expurgated."

A Bit of Advice

"Better not hurry with your dinner, sir," said the waiter.

"Why not?" asked the little fellow.

"Because you are sitting on a prize fighter's hat," replied the waiter, "but he doesn't know it."

Advice

"That man always seems willing to give advice."

"Yes. He's one of those people that you esteem much more highly for the kind of advice they give than for the kind they take."

Put a Collar on Him

Husband—Now that I've lost everything in Wall Street, do you mind being poor, dear?

Wife—Not at all. Everybody thinks the wolf at our door is our police dog. —Border Cities Star.

No Escape

"At least a small income isn't taxed," said the cheerful guy.

"No," growled the gloomy one, "but it taxes a wife's patience, and that's even worse for her husband than a tax on his income."—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Excusable

The Auditor—You shouldn't be so hard on that poor young office boy.

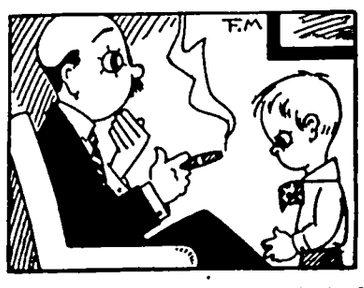
The Cashier—Gosh, I didn't know his father owned so much stock in the company.

Merely a Question

Her Suitor—Don't you trust me, sir?

Her Papa—Yes, indeed, but will the landlord and the butcher, the grocer and the gas company do the same?—Chicago News.

USE FOR HORNS



Dad (describing animal)—And the cow carries two horns on her head.

Willie—And does she blow 'em to let you know she's coming, dad?

No Trouble There

Juryman—Sir, I desire to be excused from jury duty, as I can only hear with one ear.

Judge—Oh, you'll do. We hear only one side of a case at a time.

The Boyhood of Famous Americans

By J. V. Fitzgerald

Chief Justice Chas. E. Hughes

Kindergarten certainly wasn't any place, even for a boy of five, when the lad was able to outline a plan of study for the classics to his father. Rev. David Hughes, Baptist minister in Oswego, N. Y., made up his mind to that effect when his son, Charles, presented such a plan to him shortly after he had been entered in the infant class.

The result was that the boy was taken out of school and tutored by his mother and father. Mrs. Hughes had been a school teacher before her marriage. Few parents were so well equipped to teach a bright lad at home.

Charles Evans Hughes was a precocious child, as his formulation of a plan to study the classics when he was in kindergarten will bear out. He was born in 1862 in Glens Falls, N. Y., where his father had a small congregation. He was delicate as a child and didn't romp and play much with other little boys and girls.

Perhaps because he was not particularly robust his parents devoted more time to him than might ordinarily have been the case. His mind developed rapidly. He showed a decided interest in books as soon as he was able to talk. He was reading nursery rhymes when he was three and a half years old. He was five when his father was transferred to a church in Oswego when Charles was summarily removed from kindergarten.

When he was eight, and the family was living in Newark, N. J., the lad was able to translate the Bible from the Greek. He was also a wide reader of Shakespeare's works at this early age.

He later went to school in New York city where he was graduated from high school in 1875 at the age of thirteen as salutatorian of his class. His oration, because of its scholarly tone and the fine delivery of the orator, surprised a big crowd that attended the exercises in the old Academy of Music in that city.

While attending high school he wrote essays on such subjects as, "The Limitation of the Human Mind," "Self Help," and "The Evils of Light Literature." He was marked even then as a deep student and thinker.

The Rev. Mr. Hughes wanted his son to become a clergyman, if the boy felt a real call to the religious life. Young Charles had not made up his mind definitely as to his future career when he entered Colgate at the age of fourteen. He was a slight boy at the time and timid, save when it came to questions of scholarship. Then he would talk well and enthusiastically, even with his elders. Mentally he was more mature than his classmates.

The boy spent two years at Colgate. From there he went to Brown university, entering as a sophomore in 1878. He immediately showed all the promise indicated in his high school days. He was a brilliant student, but modest and retiring in disposition.

He gained many scholastic honors at Brown. He won the prize for the highest standing in English literature when he was a junior. Upon graduation, at the age of nineteen, he was awarded the prize as the student showing the most all-around promise. He was honor man in his class.

By this time he had finally made up his mind not to become a clergyman. Deciding against following the career for which his father had hoped, he went from Brown university to Delphi, N. Y. There he taught mathematics in the Delaware academy.

He studied law at Columbia university at night after returning to New York city and was admitted to the bar when he was twenty-two years old.

While the young lawyer had been sickly as a child he showed great physical capacity for work in the next three years. He was engaged as a clerk in a law office during the day. At night he acted as a teacher and tutor at Columbia.

Finally his health suffered under the strain. He was ordered to take a vacation. He spent it as a teacher of commercial and contract law at Cornell university.

The upstate climate agreed with him. When he returned to New York city he was able to throw himself vigorously into the duties of his profession as a practitioner. He first attracted wide public attention as counsel for the gas investigation committee. He added to his reputation as an outstanding lawyer by his conduct of the insurance investigation, another New York state inquiry.

Later he was elected governor of New York and re-elected, resigning to become a United States Supreme court justice. He retired from the bench to be his party's candidate for the Presidency. He lost the highest office within the gift of the American people because of a factional squabble in California. Later he served as Secretary of State and is now chief justice of the United States Supreme court.

THE SUNFISH AND BLUEGILL

Iowa Fishes--Natural History Series

These two fishes are confusing to many. There is a difference, however. They both belong to the same family. The Bluegill, which is the most common in Iowa lakes and streams, is the larger of the two and is known to have reached the length of twelve inches and weight of nearly a pound. The color of the adult fish is olive green with a coppery red belly. The young are purplish silver with greenish cross bars. The flesh is of excellent flavor and very fine. The Sunfish or Pumpkinseed, as it is sometimes called, is much the same shape as the Bluegill. It does not grow as large, however, the largest being about six inches in length. They are most common along the Mississippi river in sloughs and bayous. The Sunfish is the most brilliantly colored of the two. The sides are greenish olive tinged with blue, spotted with orange. Belly and cheeks are dep orange. The fins are orange or orange spotted. The gill cover is broader than that of the Bluegill. Both of these fish spawn in May, June or July, and their diet consists of insects, minnows, worms ant small marine animal life. The Sunfish is known to be one of the best fish to keep a pond free from mosquitos. Both Bluegills and Sunfish are encellent pan fish.

KNOW THE LAW BEFORE YOU FISH

There are a number of violations of the fish and game laws through ignorance. Two things that every fisherman should watch are that he has his fishing license with him while fishing and that e does not fish with more than two poles, one hook on each. In addition 2 trot or throw lines, with not more than 15 hooks on each. are permitted in the rivers only. They cannot be used within 300 feet of any dam or fishway. Persons fishing must be in attendance of their lines at all times

DO FISH SLEEP?

Fish cannot close their eyes and therefore they are unable to sleep in the ordinary sense of that term, as applied to mammals. According to the Bureau of Fisheries, however experiments with special apparatus indicate that fish are more active at certain times and that these periods of activity are followed by periods of repose. Such periods of inactivity, which are variable in degree, may be comparable to sleep in the sense of physiological rest.

STATE FAIR CHAMPIONS

Des Moines, Ia., Special:

Here are the two healthiest babies in Iowa—winners of the grand sweep stages at the State Fair last summer. Patricia Rose Graham of Fort Des Moines on the right is 98 44 per cent perfect, and James Elmer Milligan of Des Moines on the left is 98.60 per cent perfect. Whether the new state champions to be chosen in the state wide baby hoalth contest at this year's State Fair can better these phenomenal scores is a problem. Over five hundred babies are expected to compete for this year's honors when the State Fair contest opens in Des Moines August 26th.

ILLEGAL FISHING DEVICES DESTROYED

In patrolling the Des Moines river from Eddyville to Ottumwa by boat, Deputy Wardens Geo. Coon and Taylor Huston saved a great many fish from illegal devices. In this short space the two wardens destroyed 40 trot lines with 25 to 85 hooks on each, 7 dip nets and racks, 5 fish traps and 4 hoop nets. Most of the fishing equipment was unattended when the wardens arrived and the owners could not be found. However three arrests were made and the men were fined. Deputies Coon and Huston state that these trips down the river will be made at regular intervals from now on.

RAILROAD TAKES ACTION IN THEFT OF 100 OF ITS CARS

Buffalo Center Tribune: Over a hundred box cars, belonging to the M. & St. L. railroad, have disappeared from their parking places in the gravel pit just northwest of Albert Lea.

The discovery was made by Agent Wells about ten days ago He immediately notified the heads of the railroad and a bevy of some twenty detectives were sent post haste to Albert Lea. Already parts of these box cars have been located. They are scattered over a wide section of the country in this part of the state, and have taken on the forms of garages, corn cribs, coal bins, shacks wood sheds and even additions to houses.

Thirty people have been rounded up by these detectives and according to reports there are many more who will be called on to answer fod the disappearance of these box cars.

The management of the railroad has been using the long side tracks in the gravel pit north of the city for storing of disabled cars. The company has felt that owing to the depression it would be best to curtail present expenses by not putting any extra expense on these cars until business showed signs of improvement.

'Tis said that the carrying away of the cars, piece by piece, was started on a very small scale by a few people. Then others joined in and began carrying away grain doors. The came the wrecking of the cars until more than a hundred of them have actually disappeared. It is the biggest wholesale destruction of property of this company ever taking place, along this line of robbery.

Just what will be the outcome, the company is not ready to say. In other words, (no action will be taken until the detctives have made every effort to locate all guilty ones and all the property taken.

DOBBERSTEIN ROCKS TAKEN BY VISITORS

Titonka Topic: Monday afternoon we visited the grotto at West Bend, the first time in several years. A great deal of work has been accomplished since we were there last and the grotto becomes more and more impressivo as the work advances.

Father Dobberstein was much annoyed by children who were permitted to run at will over the grounds or whose parents did not make it their business to see that their youngsters obeyed them. He said that children would pick up stones and throw them at the work that they were disobedient and caused him a great deal of annoyance when undisciplined. He said that one chil dhad cost him $2800 because she wouldn't mind.

Father Dobberstein also said that one Sunday there were 5 000 visitors at the grotto and in the evening one of his helners called him to look at his pile of stones. That afternoon people had carried off a ton and three-quarters of rock that had cost hom $400.

A BREWER'S VIEW

Persons who have looked upon the return of beer as the sure-fire solution of the employment problem will be interested in one candid brewer's estimate of the possibilities along this line as he was quoted in the Brooklyn Eagle:

"Don't expect too much. As far as brewing beer is concerned if beer comes back it will mean that we lay off men. It takes three times as big a crew to make near beer, the beverage that we've been putting out, than it does to put out the real stuff."

The explanation here is that to manufacture near beer, the one half of one per cent kind now the legal limit, the brewer must first produce the real article. Then he must 'strip' the real beer of its alcohol, the most difficult and laborious proceeding of the manufacture. And, of course, this "stripping" must be done just so, what with government men around inspecting operations to make sure that every guilty drop escapes.

"It amounts to this," the brewer went on. "If you work 300 men in a 100,000 case a day brewery on near beer, you will only need 100 men for the process of making real beer

"But what," the brewer was asked, "about the increased demand for the real article?"

"We can work to capacity on near beer," was the reply. "And we could double or triple our capacity on real beer with only a handful of extra men.

" There would, of course," he continued, "be a boom in the other lines of manufacture, apparatus, pipes, bottles, barrels and hop raising. But I doubt if the return of beer would more than take care of the trucks and drivers now delivering it anyway.

"And don't think there's not going to be trouble here if beer is returned. The racketeers and bootleggers are in too strong to give up without a fight and they are going to be around to tell us just what we can sell, where we can sell and what price we will get for it You don't believe it? Well. we've had them around already.

"Yes. sir, it's going to be a battle.

"But there is nothing to worry about now. Congress won't bring back beer for three or four years. These promises and platforms—just politics Every brewer knows that."

This provides an interesting slant on the question. The thing most interesting, however, about the wets' position is the changed story which has come since the economic unemployment argument was dumped in their lap in 1930. Up to that time the claim had been: "The country is drinking more liquor than ever before" Then all of a sudden it became : "Restore liquor and increase both industrial employment and farm crop consumption " The reason of this sudden shift is that detached observers don't know which story to believe Some are compromising by accepting neither.—Mason City Globe-Gazette.

LIQUOR BUSINESS OF "GOOD OLD DAYS"

We owe Capper's Weekly for the following liquor business figures of the "good old days". It is revealed that from a bushel of corn the distiller got four gallons of whiskey, which retailed at $16.50. The rest of those involved in the manufacture and consumption of the whisky made the following out of it:

The farmer got	$ .25
The U S. Government got	4.40
The railroad got	1.00
The manufacturer got	4.00
The drayman got	.15
The retailer got	7.00
The consumer got	DRUNK
His wife got	HUNGER
His children got	RAGS

Will the right thinking citizen allow the return of a business that contributes its returns in this manner?

800,000 VISITED IOWA STATE PARKS DURING JUNE

BLACK SNAKE DOES A SECOND STORY JOB

While patrolling the Des Moines river below Ottumwa, Deputy Wardens Geo. B. Coon and Taylor Huston stopped at the Clifton Bridge. On examination of the territory near the bridge Deputy Huston discovered a wren house up in a tree placed there by some bird lover. Hanging out of the small opening of the box appeared to the the tail of a snake. The Deputies attached a fishhook to a long pole and drew the snake out of the wren house. It was a Blacksnake measuring five and one half feet in length. Five enlargements along the snake's body indicated that five wrens had been eaten. From the position of the wren house it was necessary for the snake to climb the tree and drop down on the roof of the house to get into the opening. This is quite unusual. in that most snakes are not tree climbers.

The mission of this Creamery to the community is to give the producer every cent that their butterfat will bring, consistent with good business. A certain expense must be met including taxes, insurance, etc. and a sinking fund is maintained—aside from that the balance goes to the producer— farmers in our own community.

What about the prices where creameries are so few that they are not real competitors of the centralizers and where the latter dictate the price to be paid? It means anywhere from 6c to as high as 16c or more loss on every pound of butterfat produced in the community. If you will look up the amount of butterfat we handled last year you will see what an important business asset we are to the farmers in this community.

The Boyhood of Famous Americans

By J. V. Fitzgerald

Owen D. Young

The life of a county boy in rural New York fifty years ago was made up of much work and little play. It meant getting up before daybreak on the cold winter mornings, helping with the stock cleaning stables. It meant cutting and hauling wood, plowing, seeding, and harvesting in season. Early to bed and early to rise was the program. Most of the day during the summer was spent in tasks that made for a strong body. The development of the mind was left largely for the winter. Then a boy took his books and sometimes trudged miles through the snow to the little rural school house. He had to quit a warm bed, dress by candlelight in a chilly room and do his share of the chores before he set out on his tramp to school in quest of an education.

That was the sort of a life Owen D Young, chairman of the board of the General Electric company, financial genius and diplomat, led as a boy. He was born in Van Hornesville, N. Y., in 1874. His ancestors had settled there before the Revolution. His father owned a farm five miles from the town. The boy had to perform all the tasks that fell to the lot of other youngsters in the same environment.

The Young farm was 15 miles from the railroad. Itinerant peddlers were its chief contact with the outside world. Their coming was eagerly awaited. Trips to town were taken only when necessary. Such excursions meant much lost time in the days of the horse-drawn wagon and poor roads. Electric power, which has lightened the work in rural sections the radio, which has put the farmer in touch with the world and his affairs, were not thought of as farm equipment when Owen D. Young was a boy. They were made largely possible for the farmer through his genius for organization.

Education, beyond the rural school, was seldom considered worth while for farm boys of the time unless they planned on a professional life in town or city. If they could read and write and do simple problems in arithmetic, they soon qualified for the job of running a farm. Such a rudimentary training with books was bolstered by hard and practical schooling in matters of agriculture.

Owen D. Young was not the average farm boy. He walked five miles a day to the rural school and back during the term, helping his father the while with the chores. He was an only son.

It was a red letter day in the boy's life when he was taken to Cooperstown, the county seat of Herkimer. Dressed in blue jeans he went to the courthouse and heard the lawyers argue a case. They wore boiled shirts, stiff collars, black ties and broadcloth, impressive garb to the little boy from the farm. Their arguments fascinated him. He decided that when he grew up he would be a lawyer.

But there were many obstacles in his path. He had to obtain a better education than the rural school offered, if he was to qualify for his chosen profession. Any effort to gain advanced schooling meant that he would have to leave home. His father needed him on the farm.

When an uncle came to help his father the way to an education opened for the lad. He went to the East Springfield academy, encouraged by his parents in his ambitions.

His father drove Owen to school each week and brought him back home on Friday. His mother prepared the food on which he lived while away from home. Each week the boy carried away with him, packed in a big box, the good things his mother cooked for him to eat.

He was ready for college when he was fifteen years old. He wanted to go to Cornell, thinking he could win one of the state scholarships there. But he was too young to be eligible to try the competitive examinations. So he returned home to help his father again. He became interested in church work and conducted the Sunday school in the little church in Van Hornesville.

Alpheus Baker Harvey, then president of St. Lawrence university, came to the town to preach. He heard Owen Young speak in church. The lad interested him so much that the educator persuaded the elder Young that the boy was deserving of a college education even at a great sacrifice to his parents.

So the father borrowed $1,000 and on that money, and his own earnings, Owen D. Young went through college. He got his bachelor of arts degree from St. Lawrence in 1894.

He still held to his ambition to be a lawyer. He entered Boston university, knowing that he would have to work his way through the law school. He served as a librarian and tutor to earn all the money needed to meet his modest expenses. He completed the three-year course in two years.

After being admitted to the Massachusetts bar he went to work for the General Electric company. His promotion was rapid. The farm boy of 50 years ago is now the organizing genius of the electrical industry and one of the financial wizards of his time.

His Promise Fulfilled

THE long freight slowed to a stop at the small station on the outskirts of St. Albans. Bob Jefferies swung himself from the engine cab and for a moment gazed ahead, where directly in his path, vast sections of the forest burned fiercely.

The night agent stood on the platform, a slip of paper in his left hand, a revolver in his right. "Bad news, Bob," he called warily as Jefferies approached.

The engine driver sprang up beside him. "Yes? But how's the track? Can I get through tonight?" Then noting the revolver he demanded. "What's the trouble?"

The night agent's face was fraught with anxiety. "This wire is from the chief," he replied. "You are to put No. 13 on the siding here. It is impossible to proceed further. And say!"—he stepped closer, his low voice harsh with anger—"Two bandits held up the State bank at Barton this afternoon and one of the murderous devils shot down a little girl in cold blood! They were seen to jump your train as you passed through Barton."

Jefferies muttered a fierce oath. "Well, one thing is certain," he growled. "If I brought them this far, they won't travel much further tonight!"

"I'm going to find out if they came," declared the agent.

Jefferies leaped down to the rails. "Wait a moment!" he cried. "I'll put the old bus on the siding, then I'll join you."

Some five minutes later, two men slunk from the shadows across the tracks and under cover of the noise made by the shunting train hastened up the road leading to the village.

The elder man, Tom Guthrie, had been wounded in fighting off their pursuers at Barton. He turned weakly to his companion and asked, "Where are we, Bill?"

"In Canada, I believe," replied Ryerson.

"Let's move," muttered Guthrie. "I'm getting worse." Without warning, he fell heavily to the road.

As Ryerson lifted up the wounded man, a shout rang out from the station.

Guthrie stirred painfully. "They've seen us! Hide me somewhere! They must not take me alive!"

Ryerson perceived the dim outlines of an isolated barn just ahead and close to the road. With a grunt, he threw the other across his shoulder, and trudged towards the structure.

After a silence that seemed interminable, Guthrie opened his eyes, 'Bill?"

"Yes, Tom?"

"Bill! I wanted that money for my daughter, Bessie. I wanted to give her the things in life, her mother never had. And now that—that other girl—so like my Bess—dead!" His voice died in a whisper.

Guthrie strove to sit up. "I want you to bury me in a grave on which little girls will place flowers and pray over me! Promise me! Quick!"

"I promise you, Tom."

The frail body relaxed suddenly and was still.

A streak of light stole across the eastern sky. Outside, under the waning light of the stars, Ryerson mopped the sweat from his brow. Stumbling across the road, he opened a rusty little gate, which lead directly into a graveyard. A small church-like building loomed through the mist. He entered the building and carefully struck a match. His eyes gleamed as he surveyed the interior of the single room. Then, softly closing the door, he retraced his steps to the barn. In the afternoon sunlight, a few hours later, the grounds of the cemetery were packed with humanity. Most of the inhabitants of St. Albans were there, from the oldest to the youngest. Two days previously their school had burned to the ground, snuffing out the lives of eight pupils and their teacher.

The children stood in groups around a single, large grave, into which nine coffins had just been placed. Eight of the caskets were small and of uniform length. The ninth, however, was full size and containing as it did, the charred, unrecognizable remains of a young woman, bore mute evidence to her desperate courage. And yet, to those who lowered it, this larger coffin had seemed exceedingly heavy! Careful hands had carried the caskets from the small building close by.

The grave was slowly filled in. On the edge of the crowd a tall, bareheaded stranger watched the ceremony intently. He saw a line of little girls approach and place flowers on the long mound of fresh earth.

The stranger turned swiftly, as a voice hissed in his ear. "You are under arrest! Come quietly!"

"Now tell me," threatened Jefferies when they reached the roadway. "Where is your companion—the one who wounded the girl at Barton?"

Ryerson's heart leaped. Wounded—not killed! "We separated last night," he lied slowly. "I never saw him again. He ran into the woods in that direction." He pointed to what was only blackened, smoldering countryside.

Jefferies nodded slowly to the detective at his side. Then turning to Ryerson, he said gruffly, "Let's go!"

Silently, the three men turned down the road to the station.

Good Results From Changing Hog Lots

Colorado Farmer Found It Saved the Pigs.

Frank Austin, Colorado farmer, has found that it pays to change his hog lots frequently, if large litters of healthy pigs are to be grown successfully.

Two years ago he was almost discouraged with hog raising, he told George Henderson, county extension agent at large for the Colorado Agricultural college. For years he had been producing hogs, but of late his returns were very small.

He got rid of most of his sows, but one of the few he kept he decided to move across the road to some new ground. There she farrowed a litter of ten pigs and saved all of them.

"That's the way I used to raise them when I first started," Austin said. "Changing lots for pigs certainly worked that time."

Last year he took all his sows across the road and put them in clean pens to farrow. It worked again!

Now Austin has about 80 healthy, fat 200-pound porkers ready to sell. He raised these from only 12 sows.

That was no accident, for 31 other eastern Colorado farmers owning a total of 635 sows saved 4,125 pigs, an average of six and one-half pigs per litter. Every one of these 31 farmers changed their hog lots at least every two years!

Clover Yield Increased by Cutting First Crop

The yield of red clover seed can be increased by cutting the first crop when the plants are coming into bloom, rather than later, according to the Ohio experiment station. Cutting the hay crop early, so as to give the second or seed crop a good chance, is the one important factor in increasing yield which is within the grower's control. Important factors beyond his control are favorable weather and plenty of bumblebees or other pollinating insects. Early cut hay is more difficult to cure and the yield is somewhat less than later cut hay, but the feeding value per ton is greater than that of more mature hay.

Proper Calf Meals

A four-month-old calf can be made to thrive on calf meal as a part of its ration without milk if the meal is properly balanced, says the Idaho Farmer. It should receive whole milk from its mother for two to four days, at which time skim milk may be gradually substituted for the whole. It should receive the skim milk thereafter at least until four weeks old During the second two weeks the meal may be substituted gradually for the skim milk, so that by the end of four weeks it is taking a pound and a half a day. This should be gradually increased to two pounds at two months old.

Weeds on Rough Land

One of the difficult questions asked is: "How are weeds to be controlled on rough land which cannot be cultivated?" The hawkweeds, daisy and blue weed are gradually getting worse and land that used to make good pasture is hopeless today. In some cases, hand-picking, spading out, applying salt, waste oil or chemicals to small patches, close pasturing and planting back to trees are recommended. One man who had a rough, badly-infested piece of land claims that by applying manure he was able to stimulate the growth of grass so that it gradually killed off the weeds.

Beef Cattle Statistics

Washington has 286,000 beef cattle, or one beef cattle to every five and two-fifths persons.

Oregon has 510,000 beef cattle, or one beef cattle to every one and nine-tenths persons.

California has 1,205,000 beef cattle, or one beef cattle to every four and seven-tenths persons.

The twenty central states hold their dominating position in agriculture in the matter of beef cattle, having 24,683,000 beef cattle, or 68½ per cent of all the beef cattle in the country.

Agricultural Hints

The feeding value of barley is higher than that of oats, pound for pound.

* * *

Leaving machinery standing outdoors increases farm expense and cuts down profit.

* * *

All beds for new planting should be prepared as soon as possible. The soil should be spaded deep and left in a well pulverized condition.

* * *

Wisconsin's wool clip of 1931 was 3,102,000 pounds, or 3½ per cent less than in 1930. There were 425,000 sheep shorn last season, 5,000 less than the year before.

* * *

During the past 14 years the number of horses in the United States fell from 21,555,000 in 1918 to 12,679,000 in 1932.

* * *

If temperature and other factors are the same, a plant grows faster at night than in the daytime; the difference may be considerable.

* * *

With fertile soil at least 20 bushels of potato seed may be used profitably to the acre, using one and one-half ounce pieces spaced 10 to 11 inches in the row.

WALNUT TREES LOSE LEAVES

Many Of Them In Southern Iowa Are Defoiliated By Caterpillars

Many walnut trees in southern Iowa and northern Missouri have been completely defoliated by the walnut caterpillar. This pest has been particularly active the past season and a large number or trees have been rendered unsightly by him, especially those that are used for ornamental purposes. It is believed that the destruction of but one crop of leaves has not killed the trees.

As the caterpillars eat the leaves a spray of lead arsenate solution applied soon after the grubs or worms hatch will effectively get rid of the pests. During their growth the caterpillars are congregated in clumps or masses on one or a few branches and it is often possible to trim off these branches and destroy the insects by burning. A torch on the end of a long pole may also be used.

As there is but one brood of the insects during the year, there is not much likelihood that the trees will be defoliated a second time after new leaves have grown.

BILL TURNER CATCHES 17 POUND CATFISH OFF DOCK

Bill Turner, son of Mr. and Mrs. Crit Turner, caught a 17 pound blue catfish Saturday evening off the White Pier dock, using a large minnow as bait . Bill found it was more of a job to land the huge fish than is was to catch him.

Boats tied along the dock prevented him from pulling the fish to the shore. Several boys came to his rescue One took a rowboat out to the end of the dock where Bill and the others jumped in. After rowing out a few rods to clear the docked oats, they used a big net, finally tiring the fish enough so they could land it. The fish measured 36 inches and weighed 17 pounds.

CONROY BROS. HAD GOOD CLEAN LITTLE CIRCUS

Conroy Bros. one ring circus showed in Klemme Monday night as advertised. They deserve special comment in that they had a show far above the run of tent shows ordinarily played in small towns. Their show was clean, clever and they certainly gave patrons their money's worth.

Their circus had some very fine acts. Their trained dogs were top-notchers. Aerial acts, trapeze stunts, tight rope walking and other stunts were high class in every way.

The management was pleasant to do business with and their show is the type that can come back year after year.

When the hired man came home Tuesday night, he heard voices in the chicken house and supposing it was some memers of the family, started walking in that direction. Upon nearing the door he was surprised to see two men rush out and make their getaway through a nearby cornfield. The thieves must have been at work only a short while as they did not have time to fill their sacks.

OPOSSUM DRIVES HEN FROM NEST; TRIES TO HATCH EGGS

Mrs. Joe Hansen who resides northwest of Latimer, had the unique experience one day last week of finding an opossum that wasn't playing 'possum—it was playing turkey hen.

Mrs. Hansen had some turkey hens sitting a short distance from the house and one morning she noticed on of the hens making a big fuss, when it should have been sitting on its nest of eggs. Upon investigation, Mrs. Hansen found that a large opossum had driven the turkey from the nest and was blissfully sitting on the eggs.

Mrs. Hansen attempted to chase the 'possum away with a big stick but couldn't budge it so she called her dog and even the big canine couldn't chase the 'possum off the nest. Mrs. Hansen then called on Mr. Hansen who brot his gun and killed the animal. — Hampton Chronicle.

'TWAS ALL MY FAULT

His car and her car met headon. Both drivers got out and with that fine courtesy so characteristic of motorists nowadays, both began to apologize profusely.

"I'm so sorry," said the woman, "it was all my fault."

"Not at all, madame," the man responded with a gallant gesture; "I was to blame myself."

"But I insist the fault was mine. I was on your side of the road"

"That may be true; but my dear madame, I am responsible for the collision. I saw you coming blocks away and I had ample opportunity to dart down a side street."

BULL FROGS AT EAST LAKE GIVE ANNOYING CONCERTS

Tales of giant bullfrogs emitting ghostly croaks late at night in East Twin Lake for some time, but only recently has and tangible evidence of their existence there been announced. Some residents of the East Lake community aver that the mammoth frogs have been keeping them awake nights with guttural, basson-like croaking, and having heard of this several Kanawhans made the journey to the lake to verify the story.

Some claim it is many a moon since these croakers of the deep have inhabited lakes in this vicinity Among the reasons advanced for their appearance here at this time is the possibility of the lake having been stocked by the fish and game department. But, whatever the reason. the bullfrogs are here and the East Lakers don't enjoy the nightly concert—Kanawha Reporter

Getting out a paper is no picnic:

If we publish original matter, they say we lack variety.

If we publish things from other papers, we are too lazy to write.

If we don't print contributions, we don't show proper appreciation.

If we do print them, the paper is filled with "junk."

Like as not, some fellow will say we swiped this from another paper. He's right—we did.

NATURE'S GREATEST BATTLE

The continuous battle of Nature is with the insect hordes of this country. Nature's combat troops for repelling the invasions of the insect enemy are birds Their protection should be a matter of constant concern. The devastation of grain fields in the middle west by the grasshopper is a startling demonstration of what the insect enemy can do in way of attack. Birds have often met and conquered the attack many times and such is a matter of record In Salt Lake City there stands a monument surmounted by bronze figures of two gulls. This monument commemorates the service rendered by the gulls when they met the attack of millions of black crickets that threatened to ruin the crops.

These were the California Gulls which range the western coast but nest in the interior. These birds wiped out the crickets, thereby saving the crops. Utah has never forgotten this service and throws every protection around these birds. At another time the Gulls gathered to render similar service. This time it was in 1907-08 in the State of Nevada where field mice were a menace to the crops.

The examination of the stomachs of most any bird in this section of the United States or elsewhere will prove that these feathered friends are constantly on the firing line in battle with the insects. The Sparrow Hawk, Red Shouldered Hawk, Red Winged Blackbird, Blue Jay and many others share the taste for the grasshopper. As the numbers of abirds in a section decrease so will the number of insect pests increase. For economic reasons if no other most birds merit protection.

RACE IN MOOD FOR ACADEMY OF HUMOR

Establishment of an American Academy of Humor has been suggested. We fear it would too frequently be drawing comparisons between Mark Twain, Bob Burdette and Bill Nye and our present generation of laugh makers. There was an Age of Poesy. It passed. And has the Age of Humor in America gone over the hill?

This is the age of mechanics and mechanism. The race has its moods, as do individuals. Long ago its minds was possessed of a medieval religiosity; and it exhorted and proselyted in the name of its new-found savior.

Next it flew in pursuit of "liberty" and performed such deeds before high heaven as would make the angels weep. It romanticized with Shakespeare and Dante and made war with Charles XII and Napoleon. It took its pen in hand with Shelley, Keats and Tennyson, and in America with Bryant and Longfellow.

Then it laughed with Artemus Ward and Twain, Nye, Burdette, George Ade, George Fitch and all that school. Now, upon what is it most employing its still substantial intellect? Certainly not on Humor. Let us have the American Academy of Humor and see what it can do for us.—F. H. Collier in the St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Score One for Horse

Something new in nature-study stories comes from North Queensland. A peaceful old nag was browsing by the roadside, perhaps pondering on the difficulties of earning a carrot in these days of motor transport, when a motorcycle with a pillion-rider ran into him. The horse was knocked down but to the utter astonishment of the cyclists, who had also taken a toss, he deliberately rose, bared his teeth, and waded into them and the machine. The latter will never compete with horse labor again; the cyclists, considerably knocked about, had to find refuge behind a stiff three-railed fence while the infuriated animal obviously a cavalry brigadier's charger at one period of his existence—told them what he thought of them from the other side.—The Bulletin, Sydney.

SEED RYE NOW FOR SPRING PIGS

Solves Swine Producers' Problem by Providing Early Pasture

Sowing or rye this fall is being urged by the Extension Service of Iowa State College to help farmers solve the problem of providing early spring pasture for pigs and sows.

Because of this problem which faces many swine producers a special effort is being made to acquaint farmers with the advantages of rye.

Rye not only will provide an abundance of succulent green feed, but will help solve the sanitation problem by providing clean ground for the spring farrowed pigs. It ... pecially desirable for the period from March 15 to May 15, while the ground in the clover or alfalfa pasture is becoming firm and the crop is obtaining a good growth.

Farmers should seed rye in August or early September so that it will get a good start and provide the maximum amount of feed. The earlier it is sown the better the better the growth will be by winter and the more pasture will be provided next spring.

REALITY

By FANNIE HURST

(© by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.) (WNU Service)

WHAT happened to Norman Perry in Paris, during the latter 'teens of the Twentieth century, was just as much part of the world upheaval as machine guns, trench misery, air raid and barbed wire.

Upon this boy from the placid world of a suburb of Cincinnati, Ohio, there burst, with the variegated fire of a skyrocket, the spectacle of plunder and death, Paris and beauty, license and pain, vice, cowardice and a panorama of bravery that through the rocket's red glare, made mankind seem sublime.

Perry, at twenty, from the even tenor of his father's tool factory in the pretty suburb outside of Cincinnati, found himself something of a World-war hero, two bravery citations to his credit; a citizen of the world, floundering around the battlefields of France and Flanders for two years; and finally, a disabled soldier on extended leave while wounds of an all but mortal nature, slowly but surely closed their ugly mouths.

Then what happened was just normal part of the abnormal condition. He met, through a vagary of circumstances, the usual little French Colette, whose hair was like a wet mop of curls, whose drolleries were as exciting as they were alluring, whose constancy was pathetic and whose adoration healed him more swiftly than medication.

He forgot, in the phantasmagoria of the moment, "the girl back home," ensconced himself with Colette in the traditional thatched attic on the left bank of the Seine, and for months the idyllic, irresponsible life of a man and his maid, flowed in uninterrupted bliss.

Colette! He tried simetimes to capture the words to describe her. A dragon-fly skittling over bright waters. Popcorn dancing in its pan. A chrysanthemum in a gale. All to no effect. She would not be caught in the prison of words. She was thistledown, dancing ahead of the wind. She eluded on every side. She was delectable nonsense, and then strangely, paradoxically, she was the frugal little French girl, conserving your interests, your funds, your health, your well-being.

Life in that attic, with geraniums on the window sills, cookery reeking from the little improvised stove, laughter blowing about the corners, happiness squatting every turn, was a dream caught in an interlude between two realities: the reality of war; the reality of the suburb of Cincinnati.

Life and Paris and flower stands and holidays on the Seine and walks in Fontainebleau and nibbles in patisseries and kisses on the back of Colette's darting adorable neck were just one bouquet of irresponsible hours crammed with irresponsible joys. You awoke with a sense of holiday, you breakfasted with Colette on your knees with a sense of holiday, you galloped through the all too short days with that same sense of holiday and blessedly, wornout with fatigue of pleasant hours, you slept that you might awaken to another holiday.

And so the days became the weeks and the months and finally the year, and then, as is the case with all perfect holidays, there came one day the awakening to the still cold dawn of reality.

It came in the form of two trumpet calls. Armistice! And a cable from the girl back home. Helen, worn with the waiting; eager, homesick, rejoiced, was arriving with her mother for a Paris wedding and a honeymoon trip to America.

Well, it fell into the midst of that small paradise as bombs like that were falling into one after another of the transient paradises that honeycombed Paris and had been erected out of the toil and moil of war. Colette, who knew everything, and in a way had been prepared for the blow before it fell, took it when it came in the same dauntless spirit that characterized the countless of her kind.

Norman, feeling smirched, guilty toward both Colette and Helen, wretched, apprehensive, and filled with a sense of the kind of obligation and responsibility that has its moorings in sections like the suburbs outside the Cincinnatis of America, bowed his head and his heart and succumbed to the predicament of caring for two women and having to choose one.

It was characteristic of Helen, when she arrived, that she should have tolerance and sympathy and understanding for the veiled confessions that came in driblets from the lips of her fiance.

Of course Norman had been indiscreet. The wonder of it is that he had survived to tell the tale at all. A man could not be held accountable for his reactions under the hell of conditions of war. No more about it. As if it had not happened. Forgive. Forget.

And so, as the saying goes, they were married and lived happily.

There was a bungalow adjoining the parental home in the beautiful suburb outside of Cincinnati. A lovely setting, with a rock garden and a tudor living room and a gun-metal, streamline, family sedan in the two-car garage.

Helen, beautiful, dutiful and right, was proper complement to such a home. A housekeeper, a mother, a considerable social entity in the community and a wife who furthered the steady advancement of the man of her choice. You could not live in the quiet orderly and always lovely environment created by Helen, and not relax against its sedative lure. If Norman had stopped to question himself, which, in the ordinary course of events, the busy American business man does not, he would have found within himself contentment, pride and no small amount of happiness.

Helen, who wore her hair in dark loose portieres over her ears and caught low in a knot at the nape of her neck, was in her very beauty of repose, the essence of what a man seeks in his marriage. In a way, although he did not pause to realize it, Norman, with his slick, short, tan hair, his square jaw, which in America is the badge for efficiency, his brisk tailor-made manner and up-and-coming commercialism, was just as neatly hewn to his environment.

The Norman Perrys, when their children were six and eight and ten, were the sort of young people who are "coming on." Norman, already a rich man on his own effort, was about to inherit his father's business, as well as certain important real estate holdings which would accrue to him through Helen, whose parents had died.

It was about then that the Perrys decided to use their bungalow as garage and servant's quarters, and erect on the site of the old parental mansion, a new and even more pretentious home.

It was one of those success stories of a normal, up-and-coming little family working its way up and up in its prosperous community. Clean, rather cautious, conservative living; good strong ideals; well educated children, social advancement, travel, comfort and praiseworthy old age.

Mrs. Norman Perry, as the vice president of the largest woman's club in Cincinnati, patronized every important musical enterprise in town, sponsored cultural events, community sings and was a member of the board of one of the city's largest charity hospitals.

Norman, as president of two corporations, officer in a bank, president of a noonday club and pillar of a church and several philanthropic organizations, marched onward toward millions.

Like every other radical conservative, however, he has his "blind spots" as Helen laughingly puts it. It was his wish, and she abided by it, although she counts it as one of her most wifely sacrifices, that she cut her lovely flowing hair and wear it in a mop of curls on her head. It subtracts in dignity but does, it must be admitted, lend a certain air of insouciance to her placidity. With her hair shorn and worn "mopped," something gay and almost a little naughty seems to crop out in Helen.

Norman adores it.

Another of his "blind spots" was his insistence for a den, in the attic part of the new house, after an architect had already planned him a luxurious one on the second floor. Perry's choice, however, was for one of those slanting-roofed, garret corners, where he has geraniums growing along the window sills and all sorts of fantastic charcoal drawings on the wall. For all the world, laughs Helen, like one of those Paris garrets you read about, where Trilby lived and loved.

In this garret, sometimes it seems to Helen, strangely aloof from her, Norman spends hours and hours.

Colette has married, too. The rather pompous owner of a patisserie in whose shop she flits about all day, helping him to succeed.

He is a rough-haired, half blond, rather charming French fellow, adores his wife and makes no secret of it.

In her way, Colette returns his homage. She has done much toward toning him into a more impressive type of business man. Especially, in the years since marriage, has his appearance changed.

She has worked over his head until, instead of the tow-headed, rough-haired fellow she married, he has been metamorphosed into a sort of American-business-man looking person, with slick flat tannish hair that give him a look of efficiency.

Hindu Puzzles Scientists

"I am completely mystified," declared a famous scientist, after witnessing a remarkable demonstration of poison swallowing by a Madrasi, Swami, carried out at Calcutta university under strictest scientific supervision. The man drank every available known kind of deadly poison, showing a preference for cyanide of potassium, varied with broken glass and nails, without ill-effect. The poison was retained in the stomach, and the man was afterwards X-rayed and the position of the articles located. The performance was regarded as a definite challenge to modern science.

Too Funny for Words

It was a rainy day, and little Cora Ann, spying her uncle loafing about the house, decided to ask him some questions. So she inquired: "Uncle Ed, why does corn pop?"

"Well, you see," replied the uncle, "the starch polygons are of such a nature as to facilitate expansion and render the grains explosive in character; there is a fracture of a particle along its two radii, the endosperm swelling very considerably, the peripheral portions cohering with the hull, but the fractured quarters turning back to meet below the embryo—"

"Why, my dear, where are you going?"

"Oh, I can't wait—I must go and tell little sister."

The Boyhood of Famous Americans

By J. V. Fitzgerald

Julius Rosenwald

Peddling wasn't as profitable as the ten-year-old boy thought it ought to be. The wares he had to offer didn't seem to appeal particularly to the busy housewives of Springfield, Ill. Older and more experienced salesmen had called on them before the lad appeared. Those who needed such wares as Julius Rosenwald had to offer generally seemed to be stocked up with them. Not encouraging, to be sure.

But the youngster wasn't discouraged. He knew there was a brisk market for him as a door to door salesman if he could hit on wares that were somewhat out of the ordinary. He put away the staple articles of the trade and stocked up on chromos. He did a land office business with them.

The boy, who later built up the mail order business of Sears, Roebuck & Company, got his first lessons as a salesman at the age of ten. He learned then that there was always a market if you had goods people really wanted or could use.

Springfield was the place of his birth. He was born in 1866 in a house not far from the old home of Abraham Lincoln. His father was in the clothing business so the boy seems to have come by his ability as a salesman naturally enough.

Even before he turned to selling goods to the thrifty housewives of the Illinois city he had earned money. He got five cents an hour for pumping a church organ when he was just about able to perform the task.

While he attended public schools he earned money as a newsboy as well as a salesman of chromos. He sold pamphlet programs when the Lincoln monument was dedicated in Springfield. He earned $2.25 that day and had the added pleasure of getting a close up of President Grant, the great hero of the Civil war. The general was the first man he ever saw wearing kid gloves.

He was a busy and thrifty youngster. He had a chance to work as a clerk in a fancy goods store during his vacation when he was fifteen years old. Even at that age he was known as a good salesman. Otherwise he would not have had such an opportunity.

He saved $25 of his first earnings in the store and used it to buy his mother a tea set as a gift for the twentieth anniversary of her wedding, much to her joy and to the great surprise of his brother and two sisters. He was already a man in the eyes of the latter.

That year he went to New York to work as a clerk in the store of his uncles. They thought the youngster was deserving of a chance in the big city. He lived frugally in the metropolis, developed his natural ability as a salesman and saved his money. New York, even in the early eighties, had many fascinations and time wasting diversions for young men from the country who thought more of pleasure than of business.

The youngster from the West was interested in little other than business. He passed up any excessive recreation for the serious task of learning his job thoroughly and putting by his money. He wanted to establish his own business. Even in those days it took real money and good credit to open a store of your own.

After six years as a worker in the establishment of his uncles he decided he had enough money and sufficient experience to take the plunge. He was twenty-one when he opened his own clothing store. He made money with his business for four years. But he was looking for bigger worlds to conquer. He had his eyes open for opportunity.

He heard of a clothing manufacturer who couldn't fill his orders for summer weight goods because he was unable to meet the demand. The young merchant decided that any business, where the demand was greater than the supply, was an excellent one with which to tie up. He moved to Chicago to put his money and his energies in the manufacture of clothes.

His business prospered from the outset. R. W. Sears, pioneer in the mail order business and president of Sears, Roebuck & Company, was one of the young manufacturer's best customers. Sears, watching the newcomer to the clothes making business, was deeply impressed by his direct methods and business acumen. He found the young man to be a person of few words but mighty quick on the trigger when it came to making decisions.

The Rosenwald concern did so well that when its directing genius was offered a chance by Sears to buy a half interest in the mail order house for $70,000 he was able to finance the deal. That was in 1895. The next year he became Vice President Rosenwald. He was made president of the company when Sears retired in 1908. Now the business is worth millions of dollars and the boy who sold chromos at the age of ten is devoting his vast fortune to philanthropy.

FALL PLOW TO CHECK GRASSHOPPERS

Early Plowing Will Concentrate Egg Laying In Fence Rows

Iowa farmers who had crops damaged this year by grasshoppers or who noted the pests in any considerable number may aid in avoiding possible serious damage next season by fall plowing as well as using poison bran mash. acording to G. C. Decker, entomologist at Iowa State College.

Whether the ground is plowed early or late, however, will determine the follow up program for next year in case any considerable number of grasshoppers hatch. If the ground is plowed early this fall—before the grasshoppers have deposited their eggs in the meadow or stubble land—then the eggs will be laid along the fnece rows In that event, the young grasshoppers next spring would be concentrated in a small area, making it easy to apply poison mash to kill them.

If ground is plowed late this fall—after the grasshopper eggs have been deposited in the soil—one should plow as closely to the fence rows as possible, for late plowing will destroy the eggs. Late plowing has the objection of increasing the possibility of injury from some other insect pests next year. Those most likely to be favored are cutworms, sod webworms and army wroms.

Upon completion of an inspection tour of Iowa, Dr. Decker found that grasshoppers have presented no problem at all this year in areas which were treated last year with poison bran mash. In only one area—western Plymouth county—did he find them doing serious damage this year. There they have taken the second crop of alfalfa, and are devouring the leaves and silks of corn. Where the silks are eaten before fertilization has taken place, the stalk will produce a cob with only scattering kernels.

Farmers who have attempted to spread the fungus disease of grasshoppers to control the pests have met with failure in all cases. The disease seems to be preesnt thru out the state and when conditions are favorable it attacks the grasshoppers. If conditions are not right it does not affect them and attempts to spread the disease prove futile. Many of those who tried to spread the disease as a control measure are now relying on poison mash.

Because the state is aiding in the purchase of poison bran mash.Decker urges that farmers fight the "hoppers" this year with poison The work last year demonstrated that killing off the adult grasshoppers now is good insurance against a possible outbreak next season.

FOR OUR "STRANGE THINSG" COLUMN

The Times reporter missed another good item for our "believe it or not" column. We did not know at the time that Mrs. Fred Gates has gone in for raising large tomatoes. Saturday she picked a tomato which weighed 1 lb and 2 oz. She has many tomatoes in her garden which will easily weigh a pound. Believe it or nit, Mrs. Gates has tomatoes that are real whoppers.

MIX POISON FOR COCKROACHES

Now Bait Seems to Offer Excellent Promise for Control

A poison bait for the extermination of cockroaches, discovered by W. G. Grant, a graduate student at Iowa State College, is being tried experimentally in a number of the college buildings in which these pests are numerous.

Mr. Grant made the discovery when he attempted to rid the Insectary building of silverfise. He mixed a death potion for them consisting of 100 parts of finely ground rolled oats, 5 parts of sugar. 2 5 parts of salt and 8 parts of white arsenic. This mixture was then moistened and mixed thoroughly, dried crushed and scattered about in small bits.

The bait not only exterminated the silverfish, but also the cockroaches which infested the building If the material proves to be a successful cockroac eliminator under all circumstances, it is believed that Mr. Grant's discovery will be a boon to many persons desiring to rid their premises of these pests.

TEN TIMES BIGGEST CIRCUS HERE SOON

Ringling Bros. And Barnum And Bailey Offer Stupendous Program

The world's largest circus, traveling on four trains of double length steel railroad cars, with 1600 people, 50 elephants, 1009 menagerie animals and 700 horses will exhibit in Mason City, Thursday, August 25 and throughout this section plans are perfecting for the attendance of every man, woman and child—so it seems—at one of the performances.

Everybody wishes to see the Ringling Bros and Barnum and Bailey Circus this year and it is a foregone conclusion that the world's largest tent, seating 16,000 persons, will be filled to the last chair afternoon and night. Seven rings and stages and the hippodrome track. to say nothing of the vast maze of aerial and wire display rigging. will be filled by the earth's foremost arenic talent—eight hundred acknowledged kings and queens of daring, grace, skill and incredible agility. One hundred clowns will project ten nes that number of mirth waves Countless new foreign features and innovations new to America are introduced on the gigantic program of the greatest show on earth this year.

By popular demand, a tribe of monster mouthed Ubangi Savages from Africa's darkest depths are presented in the main performances.

A herd of the largest and tallest giraffes in captivity; 26 zebras and the same number of camels, two rhinoceroses and the seven herds of elephants will be seen in the huge menagerie tent, where 1009 rare wild animals pace to and fro in ornate dens and cages.

Throughout Circus Day the three gigantic tented stables of the Ringling Bros and Barnum and Bailey organization will be open to the public free of charge. Here lovers of fine horses may view at random hundreds of the world's most beautiful thoroughbreds. Perfect specimens of almost every known strain will be found in the big show's free horse fair which also includes a congress of tiny Shetland ponies to delight the little folks.

FINE PROGRAM GIVEN BY BAND AT SCHOOL GYM

The benefit program given by the Band, under the direction of Miss Mildred Johnson, was one of the best musical programs which has been given in Klemme for some time.

The program was varied in nature and included band numbers, piano numbers, orchestra selections, duets of various kinds, solos of various kinds, violin numbers and a fine one act play. A drill by some of the younger children was interesting and was concluded by a special song for the Klemme Band.

The crowd was rather small. A program of the type given by the band should have drawn a full house.

Entry Breaks Record

Des Moines, Ia., Special:

American livestock breeders have answered the depression by breaking most of the former entry records in all livestock departments for the Iowa State Fair opening here August 24.

Known for years as the largest livestock fair in the United States, this year's show will be of even larger proportions than before. Entry lists in the horse, cattle and swine departments embrace some of the most famous show herds from coast to coast, in addition to thousands of prize entries from the midwest. Nearly two thousand head of calves, pigs, sheep, and colts have also been entered by Iowa boy and girl farmers in the statewide 4-H Club show.

Livestock judging will be in progress continuously from August 26 through September 1 and will be open to the public each day.

KLEMME GIRL MAKES SECOND TRIP TO YELLOWSTONE

Many Interesting Places Visited By Local Girl On Recent Trip

Mr. Gerald Koerner and Bernice Rule, of Storm Lake and Miss Valeria Koerner left on August 5th for a trip through the west. Some of the most interesting places that were visited were: Black Hills; Big Horn mountains; Shoshone Dam and Canyon; Sylvan Pass; Yellowstone Nat'l park; Teton Nat'l park; Salt Lake City; Mormon Church and Tabernacle; Estes Park; Big Thompson Canyon; Colorado Springs; Garden of the Gods; Williams Canyon; Cave of the Winds; Pike's Peak; Fort Riley and Leavenworth Prison.

The Shoshone dam is 328 feet high. The thickness at the base is 108 feet and at the top is 10 feet. The length of the reservoir is 10 miles and the width 4 miles. The deepest place in the reservoir is 233 feet. The purpose of this dam is to irrigate some 300,000 acres of land.

Yellowstone Park is not nearly as interesting as it was eight years ago. Several of the things such as mud volcanos, terraces and some of the pools have dried up. To my estimation the terraces at Mammoth Hot Springs were the prettiest things in the park eight years ago. Now they are nearly dried up. The Water is still running in a couple of places. When it stops running over the terraces the beautiful colors change to pure white.

The roads in the park are nearly all oiled now. Much of the best scenery was taken away by changing the road. Most any car can make the climbs in 2nd gear now. We saw bears, antelope, buffalo and elks in the Park.

The Mormon Tabernacle in Salt Lake City is made without a nail Wooden pegs were used and consequently the sound carries in the mammoth building. A pin dropped on the opposite side of the building is heard as well as if one were right beside it.

Williams Canyon which leads up to the Cave of the Winds is so narrow that some cars have quite a time getting through the passages. This is a one way road In the Cave is a room which is called the "Old Maids Kitchen". All single ladies leave a hairpin and wish in a year they would be married and the wish should come true. There are millions of hairpins in that room The cave is about 3-4 of a mile long and takes about an hour to go through.

Pikes Peak is the highest point in the world that can be reached by auto, the altitude being 14,109 feet. This also has the famous cog railway. While on the peak it snowed When lightning flashed it looked lavendar and it was possible to smell the sulphur.

On the way home we went by Ft. Riley and the Leavenworth Federal Prison. We covered 3,885 miles on the trip.

LADIES AID WILL HAVE FAMILY PICNIC

Mrs. Edwin Josten and Mrs. C. A. Arnold were hostesses to the M. E. Ladies Aid at the church parlors on Thursday. A delicious lunch was served by the hostesses at the close of the meeting.

At this meeting the ladies decided that at the time of their annual election of officers that they would also have a picnic to which their families could be invited. This meeting will be held in September.

The lades also talked over the probability of holding a fancy work and quilt fair sometime the latter part of September.

I IMAGINE THAT—
By Phil Osifer

—Most of us had a pretty good oats crop. It isn't worth much. We have some pretty fair hogs. The price is shot. If everything holds reasonable we are going to have a whale of a corn crop. So will everybody else and wo won't get much for it. But WE have all these things and with the dead wood out of the grove this winter to keep the fire going....well it won't be so bad, considering.

—PO—

—If you should drive in the right (or wrong) place in Des Moines and keep your eye peeled you should see a sign that reads like this: "Notice! These are private grounds. Because of annoyance and damage caused by children throwing stones, bricks and sticks into the water and breaking electric light bulbs and annoying tenants, children are requested to keep out!" I didn't have any stones, bricks or sticks handy so I didn't go in. But it is a relief to know that youngsters in this neck of the woods don't seem to be quite so much that way. Well, most of the time anyway.

—PO—

—A lot of us have wondered in the past, and are still wondering, just why it is our electric power rates are slightly higher than they are at some other places situated about as we are. Possibly somebody should petition somebody else to do something about it Mebbeso I can find out why without a petition. Possibly

—PO—

—I don't know all there is to know about this little strip of road out to the highway, but it seems to me that while there are so many paving outfits in the near vicinity it would be a good time for some of the powers that be to start a little agitation. What do you think? If we ask for it and get turned down—well, nobody hurt.

CO-OPERATION Wins -- Always

Good times or hard times— it has been proven time and again that Co-Operation wins out every time. Through Co-Operation this Creamery is working hand in hand with the dairymen of our community. The Co-Operation between dairyman and the creamery plant has guaranteed the stability of the industry in our community. It has benefited the dairyman by giving him higher prices than if he were forced to sell his product to the centralizer.

Think it over— compare prices where co-operative creameries operate with the communities where the dairyman does not have this advantage— and you be the judge.

LOW PRICED HELPERS FOR THRIFTY HOUSEWIVES

IN MANY homes reduced budgets have forced housewives to perform numerous tasks they never did before. Women who now do their own laundering, should take advantage of the low cost helpers which electricity provides. Modern electric washers and ironers make home laundering easier than you ever thought it could be. The electric washer of today makes clothes cleaner in less time, with less wear on the clothes. Modern press-type or rotary ironing machines and adjustable hand irons reduces ironing time many hours. And all this help can be had by adding only a few kilowatt hours a week to your present consumption.

He cannot go to dental school—

He cannot go to a pharmacy school—

He cannot go to an engineering school.

He cannot go to an embalming school—

He cannot be admitted to an army aviation school—

Only two changes have been made in high school text books this year. The new books are American History, Muzzy and Introduction To Science by Caldwell and Curtis. The old books in these courses had been very dissatisfactory to the student, teacher and administration. We feel no apology is required for these changes; much of the course depends on the text and the best is none too good.

One is inclined to be a bit conservative these days in changing text books. However, if no changes are made from year to year, within a few years we find the entire school infested with obsolete books and it bears additional burden to the parents by the expense coming all at once. The books will be sold at the office at cost. The ninth and tenth English students will be required to buy only the Literature & Life text this year. A work book will take the place of the second text This will be cheaper and give practical drill in grammar.

YOU DON'T HAVE TO BELIEVE IT!

Another item for our "queer things" was found by a Times reporter Tuesday while over at Larsen's Food Market trying to decipher the mysteries of bologna in the process of manufacture. "Happy" was carving up a heart and asked our reporter, "What kind of heart contains bone?" Of course we thought he was kidding for whoever heard of any heart containing bone. But, believe it or ot, the heart out of a beef contains bone and a pretty good sized piece at that. If you don't believe it, buy a beef heart and find out for yourself. No other animal known has bone in the heart.

CLARENCE ELDER MARRIED OSCEOLA GIRL FRIDAY NOON

Rev. Gedye Performed Ceremony At Radcliffe M. E. Church

An event of unusual interest to this community took place at Radcliffe, Iowa, on Thursday, August 26th, 1932, at eleven A. M. The marriage of Mr. Clarence Elder of Osceola, Ia., and Miss Helen Campbell of Osceola. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Elder of Klemme, Iowa, and the bride ,the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Russell Campbell of Osceola, Iowa. The ceremony took place in the Methodist Episcopal Church at Radcliffe. The groom was attended by Mr. Andrew Wellemeyer of Klemme. Iowa and the bride by Miss Bernice Gibson of Osceola, the marriage service being read by Rev. Arthur B. Gedye pastor of the church and a former pastor and Scoutmaster of both the groom and best man The bride, attended by her bridesmaid and her father, entered the church to the strains of Lohengrin's Wedding March, played by Miss Ursula Gedye The groom and best man awaited them at the altar. The beautiful ring service of the Church uniting the happy pair.

The bride was attired in a wine colored travelling ensemble; the bridesmaid in a brown ensemble, while the groom and best man wore navy blue suits. The color scheme of the decorations in the church was carried out in pastel shades of pink and white as were also the decorations of the luncheon table in the church parlors. A profusion of flowers adorned the altar, among them being a beautiful bouquet of pink and white gladiolas. The luncheon served immediately after the ceremony at the church was a sumptious one and the table decorations in pink and white were very pleasing.

Mrs. Elder has been a teacher in the Osceola schools. She is a very pleasant and refined young lady and the number of parties and showers given in her honor the past few weeks indicate that she is very popular with the young people in Osceola.

Clarence is a Klemme boy. During his high school days he learned the printing trade in the Times Office. He graduated from the Klemme High School ad then took a four year course in Journalism at Iowa State College. For a time he was affiliated with the Farmers Wife publication at St. Paul, and later worked on Minnesota and Iowa weeklies. For the past few years he has been with the publications at Osceola. working on the Sentinel. At present he is in charge of the Times, another paper published in the Sentinel office at Osceola. Clarence has made good in the field of journalism The Times has always been greatly interested in his work and we are proud of the record he has made, and may he continue as we know he will, to make good in newspaper work.

At the announcement party given by Mrs. Campbell for her daughter, Clarence "pulled a fast one" on his prospective wife. Clarence is always on the look-out for a good joke and even for such a serius affair he culd not overlook an opportunity. He printed a special edition in minature form and had a small boy go to the party with a bundle of papers on his arm and cry out "Extra. extra." and then delivered the papers to the ladies of the party. The special edition informed them of the approaching marriage of Miss Campbell, and of course Clarence had quite a write-up on the young lady.

The happy couple left for their wedding trip for MacGregor and points east. Those attending the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Elder and daughter, Reva, of Klemme; Mr. and Mrs. J. Russell Campbell and daughter, Virginia, of Osceola; Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Gedye and daughters. Ursula and Beulah, and a select number of local ladies and those who served the luncheon were present at the ceremony.

The Times joins with the many friends of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Elder in extending congratulations and best wishes.

SHOULD PLOW GRASSLAND FOR CORN NOW

Early Fall Plowing Means Less Sod Webworms, Cutworms, Army-Worms Next Spring

Wherever the moisture in the soil is sufficient, farmers should plow now the sodland that is to be plowed this fall, especially if the land is to be in corn next year, advises Dr. George C. Decker, of the Entomology dDpartment at Iowa State College.

The adult moths of the sod web worms, cutworms and armyworms, are now flying in largie numbers and depositing their eggs over grass lands throughout the state. These eggs soon hatch to tiny caterpillars which after feeding for a short time prepare a shelter for the winter and remain until spring as half grown larvae. Plowing now will prevent many moths from depositing their eggs on those fields and will destroy grass and other vegetation so that the young caterpillars will not attain sufficient size and vigor to successfully pass the winter

Plowing of the areas late in the fall or in the early spring affords little protection from the ravages of these insects. The control is precaution, which means the removing of the possibility of infestation. This is especially true of the sod webworm. The cutworm can be controlled in the spring by bait, but before the infestation is recognized it is usually so severe that replanting is necessary.

BIRD FEEDING CUSTOM IS NOT NEW

For centuries it has been a custom in Norway. Sweden. Germany, Denmark, and other European countries to gather the small grains that have escaped the mower and place it out to feed birds. Christmas trees are decorated with small bundles of grain for the birds, which gives us the thought that now is the time to begin saving small seed from our garden to feed the birds next winter. Many of these seeds go to waste and when the snow comes it is hard for the birds to find them

THE COMMON HOUSE CAT

A great deal of information on the destructive ability of the common house cat has come to the attention of the Fish and Game Department In a report from J. C. Graham, deputy game warden at Centerville, comes the story of a cat killing a young squirrel The kill was witnessed by Graham and he states that it was in the vicinity of a abandoned mining camp. The former occupants of the camp had evidently removed everything from their homes except the cats. This is often the case where homes have been deserted and the consquences are that the cat must go out and hunt for its food. The Washington State Board of Health has issued a pamphlet on cats It states that there are more than 25,000,000 cats at large in the fields and woods of this country They destroy on an average of from one to a dozen birds a day each. Those birds if spared would each kill thousands of harmful insects every day. Cats have no economic use. They do their bird killing at night and are not seen. They cannot be cured of this habit because it is inborn They are members of the tiger family, the most dangerous of the animal tribe. Dogs are friendly and obiedent, but cats never are, except when they purr for something to eat. The common house cat has been found as far as eleven miles from civilization living as wild and raising her young to feed on birds and small animals. They are good mousers and will keep the place rid of rats for which we give them credit, but we also have mouse and rat traps. The cat is a disease carrier and intelligent doctors forbid the presence of the cat in any sick room Twenty five million stray cats are too many in a country which we are endeavoring to build up to be a good home for many species of birds and animals Some states are now requiring by law a license for the possession of a cat on the premises. which tells us that the danger in the increased number of stray cats means less birds and more insect pests.

No Argument

After a young lawyer had talked for nearly five hours to a jury who were beyond the point of endurance his opponent, a grizzled veteran of the legal cockpit. smiled sweetly at the judge and jurymen and said:

"Your honor I will follow the example of my young friend who has just concluded, and I will submit the case without argument."

DIG POTATOES WHEN MATURE

Root Cellar Or Cave Gives Cooler Storage Than Ground

Early maturing potatoes dug now and handled properly will keep better than if they are allowed to remain in the ground until late fall, states A. T. Erwin, of the Vegetable crops department at Iowa State College.

Keeping of potatoes is largely a matter of temperature. They want a cool place and therefore if they can be put in a root cellar or cave, each of which is cooler than the ground, it is better to dig them as soon as they mature Potatoes may be put in piles not over three or four feet deep. During the fall months the storage room be kept open at night and closed in the daytime in order to maintain a more desirable temperature.

More material on the storage of potatoes as well as the storage of other vegetables, may be secured from the Extension service bulletin No. 184, "Home Storage of Vegetables."

Here is an interesting story from the state of Michigan:

In 1929, before the crash, a man had a $280,000 loan at a bank, to cover which he deposited stock worth at the market then existing, $400,000 When the market went into a tailspin, the bank sold him out getting $330,000 for the stock and leaving the man with his debt paid and a $50,000 credit in the bank.

Then a little later, the bank collapsed. In a short time it was reorganized and in the shrinkage that was involved, the man's credit dwindled to $36,000. Thereupon he drew out $30,000—and bought back all the securities he had held originally. So now he holds the same stock he held in 1929, he has wiped out a $280,000 loan and he has made $6,000 in cash. Has he gained or lost by the depression?

LARGE CATFISH CAPTURED IN BAYOU

From the Platte River near Bedford comes the story of the taking of a large Catfish from the backwaters of that river by B. Weese. The fish weighed 32 pounds and was three and one half feet long. When it was being prepared for cooking, another fish weighing one and one half pounds was found in its stomach.

MACHINE GUN ADVERTISING OR "BIG BERTHA" TYPE?

"I believe that the constant spitting of a machine gun does more execution that the occasional boom of a big Bertha. It's spat-spat gets results. So it is with advertising; the fair sized ad run every week and an occasional larger size is better for results that the large ad run hit or miss. Consecutive advertising gets the business," says a prominent and successful Oakland, Neb., merchant.

A progressive young fellow who left the farm and got a job in the city wrote a letter to his brother, who elected to stick by the farm, telling him the joys of the city life, in which he said: "On Thursday we autoed to the Country club, where we golfed until dark. Then we motored to the beach and Fridayed there."

The brother on the farm wrote back: "Yesterday we muled out to the cornfield and gehawed until sundown. Then we suppered and then piped for awhile. After that we staircased up to our room and bedsteaded until the clock flived."

No Numbers

A little city boy was visiting his cousin in the country.

"What do you know about cows?" quizzed the country lad. "You don't even know if that's a Jersey cow."

"I don't know from here, 'cause I can't see its license."

Per Acre

An American passing thru an English village stopped to talk to a farmer.

"Do you get much rain here?", he asked.

The farmer shook his head. "A little but not much," he said. "My neighbor over there gets more than me."

"Well, I surely don't see that, sir," he remarked. "Why your neighbor is only about a hundred yards away."

"Yes," said the farmer, "but he has more land than I have."

"It's no wonder you're a sissy," said the bad boy. "Your ma and pa were married by a justice of the peace.

"Well," retorted the other, "from the noise I hear coming from your house your pa and ma must have been married by the secretary of war."

The Big Problem

They were partners, Ike doing the traveling, while Mossy looked after the office. Monday was collecting day and and old customer came along and paid his account of $15. After he left Mossy discovered two $5 bills were stuck together, so the old customer had paid $20 instead of $15.

Mossy looked at the separated notes and appeared confused until he actually became upset. Just then an old friend came into the office and noticing his countenance, inquired:

"Vat's de matter, Mossy, you look in trouble? Va's wrong?"

"Vell, an old customer just came in and paid me twenty dollars instead of fifteen."

"That's not trouble; call it good luck."

"That don't bother me, but I'm vondering should I give to my partner half?"

Nationalities

When the British King was so ill a little while ago he went into a coma. A blood transfusion was needed at once. Doctors looked all over England for a man whose blood was rich. but finally had to go to Ireland for the right fellow.

British newspapers fussed and argued that England's King should not have any Irish blood in him. However, the King's condition was so serious the doctors wasted no time and gave him the Irisman's blood.

At the first transfusion His Highness opened his eyes. At the second he sat up At the third, he jumped off the operating table and roared "To H— with the King!" —Walter Winchell in New York Mirror.

RACE IN MOOD FOR ACADEMY OF HUMOR

Establishment of an American Academy of Humor has been suggested. We fear it would too frequently be drawing comparisons between Mark Twain, Bob Burdette and Bill Nye and our present generation of laugh makers. There was an Age of Poesy. It passed. And has the Age of Humor in America gone over the hill?

This is the age of mechanics and mechanism. The race has its moods, as do individuals. Long ago its minds was possessed of a medieval religiosity; and it exhorted and proselyted in the name of its new-found savior.

Next it flew in pursuit of "liberty" and performed such deeds before high heaven as would make the angels weep. It romanticized with Shakespeare and Dante and made war with Charles XII and Napoleon. It took its pen in hand with Shelley, Keats and Tennyson, and in America with Bryant and Longfellow.

Then it laughed with Artemus Ward and Twain, Nye, Burdette, George Ade, George Fitch and all that school. Now, upon what is it most employing its still substantial intellect? Certainly not on Humor. Let us have the American Academy of Humor and see what it can do for us.—F. H. Collier in the St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Score One for Horse

Something new in nature-study stories comes from North Queensland. A peaceful old nag was browsing by the roadside, perhaps pondering on the difficulties of earning a carrot in these days of motor transport, when a motorcycle with a pillion-rider ran into him. The horse was knocked down but to the utter astonishment of the cyclists, who had also taken a toss, he deliberately rose, bared his teeth, and waded into them and the machine. The latter will never compete with horse labor again; the cyclists, considerably knocked about, had to find refuge behind a stiff three-railed fence while the infuriated animal—obviously a cavalry brigadier's charger at one period of his existence—told them what he thought of them from the other side.—The Bulletin, Sydney.

Harnessing Hot Springs

Gardeners in Iceland are using the hot springs for horticultural purposes with such good results that they claim that Iceland need import no more foreign vegetables—they can grow sufficient to supply the whole island. The islanders are starting a campaign with the slogan: "Buy Icelandic."

How Willie Helps

Guest (after dinner)—And don't you help your mamma with the dishes when she has company?

Willie—I don't help her wash 'em, but I help her count the spoons after the company's gone.—Capper's Weekly.

The Compliment

Sister—George declares I have a perfect rosebud of a mouth.

Brother—A beautiful compliment, indeed, considering rosebuds are usually closed.

Saving Fido's Nerves

"What has come over your wife that she doesn't yell at you all the time, like she used to?"

"She said she found it was making Fido nervous."

Funeral Services Held Here Sunday For Clarence Wiles

FORMER KLEMME BUSINESS MAN BURIED AT GOODELL

Funeral Services Were Held In Klemme Methodist Church

This entire comunity was saddenby the news of the death of a former resident. Clarence W. Wiles. who passed away at his home in Clear Lake early last Friday morning. Mr. Wiles had been in poor health for the past year, and his condition became serious in the earlier part of the summer.

Mr. Wiles had much to do with the growth of Klemme in a business way. When he moved to Klemme he entered the automobile bu.. and was very active in that line. After being in business for a time he built the brick building now occupied by the Klemme Auto Company He was located in that building for a few years and then sold out. About that time the Wiles family moved to Ames where their son, Howard, received his college education.

Mr. Wiles again went into the automobile business at Ames. He again sold out and then erected a fine filling station near his home which he had built on Highway 15 at Ames. Mr. Wiles enjoyed a fine business for a few years, when he again sold out and returned to Klemme where Mr. and Mrs. Wiles again lived in their home here. However, Mr. Wiles was not content to take life easy and looked about for a new venture in the business world. The result was that he sold his home here to the Becker Sisters and then moved to Ventura where he built a modern tourist camp and the finest filling station in North Iowa. In this venture Mr. Wiles over-taxed his strength and he was forced to lease the place after a few months. Mr. and Mrs. Wiles then moved to Clear Lake where Mr. Wiles hoped to regain his health by a long rest. Early this spring Mr. Wiles sold his tourist camp at Ventura.

Mr. Wiles was an active man, had a keen ability for business, was a man who gained many friends who knew him as a square dealer. a good booster and always ready to more than do his part in community enterprises. The many people in our commuity. at Ames. Ventura and Clear Lake, who became acquainted with Mr. Wiles will feel his loss.

Obituary

Clarence Wilbur Wiles passed away at his home in Clear Lake, Iowa, Friday morning, about one o'clock, September 2, at the age of 49 years, 11 months and 29 days.

Deceased was the eldest son of Janet and Martin Wiles, born on a farm north of Goodell, Iowa, Sept. 3, 1882. He grew to manhood in this vicinity, attending the rural schools and later the business college at Toledo, Iowa.

In 1903 he was united in marriage to Hulda Quigley of Boone, at Goodell. After residing on a farm north of Goodell, in 1914. he moved with his family to Klemme, living there until 1924. when he and his wife moved to Ames . After five years in business there they moved to Ventura.

His failing health caused him to dispose of his business there and in April of this year he and his wife moved to Clear Lake.

He was affiliated with the I. O. O. F., Woodman and Yeoman lodges

He is survived by his wife, one son, Howard Martin and granddaughter, Marjorie Mae of Wausbeka, Wisconsin; his mother, Mrs. Janet Wiles; a brother, Roscoe of Goodell; a sister, Mrs. Clara Schuldt of Waterloo. Three sisters preceeded him in death.

Funeral services were held Sunday afternoon in the Methodist Church in charge of the pastor, Rev H E. Whyte. Rev. John Peterson, of Ventura, preached the funeral sermon. Burial was made in the family lot in the cemetery east of Goodell.

DON'T NEED TO TRAMP SILAGE

Will Keep Just As Well Without, Many Have Found

The miles of tramping and the vast amount of energy expended in tramping silage when filling the silo have all been in vain so far as the silage keeping is concerned.

Such is the conclusion reached by an increasing number of Iowa farmers and experiment station workeds. It is pretty well agreed now that about the only advantage in tramping is that is usually results in getting a few more feet if silage in the silo.

Probably the most important consideration in getting silage to keep is whether or not is is sufficiently moist. If corn is too dry when put in the silo, it is likely to spoil whether it is tramped or not.

C. Y. Cannon. head of dairy husbandry work at Iowa State College. tells of instances in his observation where the doors were put in the silo at the beginning of the filling operation and no man was inside the silo until it was filled. The silage kept excellently.

In former years it was the common custom to keep at least two men in the silo tramping and keeping thes ilage level. Sometimes three were employed. Now in many runs in Iowa. the silos are all filled without tramping and the farmers report just as good quality silage as when formerly tramped.

THE RUDDY DUCK

The Ruddy Duck and the Buffle-Head Duck are the two species of ducks named in a speiial provision of the Federal Migratory Waterfowl Regulations for the coming season, to have complete protection from the guns of hunters. This was done because these two species suffered a great loss in numbers through the drought of the previous years. One must be quick to identify these species when they fly by The color and markings for identification of the male Ruddy Duck are: the top of the head is black; cheeks and chin white; the throat and back are rufous-chestnut with the lower back blackish; breast and belly silvery white; upper tail coverts very short tail feather stiff and short; the bill is blue. The female of this species is marked with colors as follows; Upper parts are dark grayish brown the feather with fine wavy bar of buff; sides of head and upper throat whitish, lower throat grayish, rest of the underparts silvery-white The short upper tail coverts and stiff, pointed tail-feathers will always serve to identify this species. The pointed tail is particularly noticeable when this duck swims on the surface of the water. It will dive when pursued, unless oo hard pressed, and then after pattering over the water, it takes to the air with rapid whirring wings and a low straight flight like that of a bumble-bee. The Ruddy Duck is not considered a large duck, the length of the adult being about 15 inches.

At the completion of the compilation of information from petitions and from the surveys made by the Fish and Game Department, the Commission will publish the dates and counties to be open.

BIRDS AS A BENEFIT TO MANKIND

A little study on the part of those who are inclined to underestimate the worth of bird life will yield much information. For instance, here are some of the ways in which birds help; eat weed seeds, insects, protect crops, protect forests, charm our ears with their songs. delight our eyes, with their beauty, sea birds warn mariners that rocks are near, and also help fishermen to discover schools of fish, habor birds destroy refuse matter, game birds furnish food and sport, carrion eaters clear away carcasses that pollute the air. Protect The Birds.

PLANS BEING MADE FOR XMAS SEAL SALE

Mrs. C. E. Barnes has again been named county Christmas seal chairman. As in the past few years, she is organizing the county with her town and township chairmen.

A county meeting of the seal chairmen will be held at the Barnes home Wednesday, September 28, at 1:30 p. m. Chairmen are asked to bring baskets as supplies will be given at that time. The mailing system will be used entirely throut the county. Mrs. Barnes issues the following statement:

"We are anxious that the people respond liberally this year as we will have more need for health funds this winter than ever before Some of the things our seals have done this year follow: Bought and supplied 600 pints of milk to needy families; refilled 2 first aid kits in town schools; held the heart and lung clinic with thirty patients examined; one-half day nurse service in one school; furnished all Iowa dental plan supplies to both town and rural schools; had Christmas seal film shown in all theatres; bought medicine for the poor and needy"

"This year we intend to continue along the same line of work. People hardly realize that 85 to 95 per cent of all school children suffer from dental defects and that these defects cause illness, school failures and absence from school. Thus the Iowa dental plan which we have organized in our county schools ought to be supported by the buying of the little one cent Christmas health seal. Buy the health seal instead of the commercial seals that are on the market at the Yuletide season."

A Few Facts

Tuberculosis in Iowa has been reduced 51 per cent in less than 20 years

Average life expectancy has been increased 2½ years.

Tuberculosis is still the most costly disease. More young people die of tuberculosis than any other disease.

Every two hours some one in Iowa dies of heart disease.

Forty-one persons died of heart disease in one year in this county.

There are 80 active cases of tuberculosis (Estimated.)

Eighteen hundred school children have physical defects which can be corrected.

INSURANCE UNDERWRITERS MAKE IT A QUARTET!

In a recent address. Dr. S. S. Huebner, Dean of the American College of Life Uunderwriters and a member of the faculty of the University of Pennsylvania, observed that when we want counsel regarding financial and business matters to go to members of three professions—the lawyer, the banker and the accountant. He then said that this trio should be changed into a quartet, by adding life underwriters That certainly is a sound idea. The work of the life uderwriter is similar to that of the lawyer and the banker, in that each deals with future and can help in the solution of problems we bring to him. Nothing is more vital to society than life insurance—nothing is so intimately related to our own financial safety and that of our dependents. The life insurance salesman is not a drummer of a stadardized commodity—he is a teacher of ideas.

Most of us would be a good deal better off today had we, back in 1926-29. looked on the insurance underwriter in that light, instead of trying to avoid him. No other investment is as safe as life insurance—few others have managed to survive the crash without depreciation in value. To hundreds of thousands of men, life insurance policies are the only things of definite value left from a once sizeable estate.

The lawyer, the banker, the accountant and the life underwriter—there is no better quartet than that to care for our economic well being.

New Species of Carrot

The supremacy of the potato as a food plant is challenged in a part of its original ancestral home in the Andes, by an outsider from Eurasia. Farmers in Ecuador are raising a white variety of the common carrot, as a between-rows crop in their corn patches, says Dr. A. Avila, a practitioner in Guayaquil. Doctor Avila has made chemical analyses of the white carrot, and finds that it is richer than the potato in amino acids, the essential building blocks of meat-making proteins. He has also extracted a high-grade edible starch from it, which he believes has distinct commercial possibilities. From the residues left after starch extraction he made a hard, transparent paste, similar to casein glue.

Silent Lancashire Clogs

Another new trade has come to Lancashire, in the wake of a new fashion. It is the making, and the wearing, of the silent clog. Once every cotton town was filled with the clatter of the wooden clogs of the millworkers as the irons with which they were shod clanged on the pavements. Now clogs are being made again in this time of economy, shod with rubber instead of iron. The millworker has taken back her old footwear, but goes to her looms on silent feet. Even postmen and policemen are using the new clog.

Riddles

Six-year-old Billy was giving riddles with his grandmother. Billy gave "h" and his grandmother guessed "house."

When it was Billy's turn again, he gave "h" another time. His grandmother guessed "house" again, but told Billy not to give the same riddle twice.

"Well," said Billy, "I didn't give the same riddle twice. The first one was our house and the last one the house next door."

Order in the Court

Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Heigham of Albany, N. Y., argued so hard about a quarter that neighbors summoned the police. In court, after hearing the evidence, Judge Edward Hogan said: "It is lucky it was not a dollar or it might have been necessary to call out the marines."

Fastidious Birds

After a snowstorm the two-year-olds were throwing bread crumbs and crusts to the sparrows. One piece of hard toast was ignored by the birds for the smaller crumbs.

Billie looked seriously at the discarded toast and said: "No butter on it!"

Gen. John J. Pershing

The competitive examination for West Point was on. It was a close contest between two of the candidates. The Missouri congressman, conducting the examination for his district, had a hard time grading them. Finally, he decided that one of the two leaders rated just one point better than the other. He named John Joseph Pershing as the winner and appointed him as a cadet to the United States Military academy.

It was by this narrow margin that Uncle Sam obtained the general who was to command the greatest armed host ever raised in the United States and to lead it to victory with the allies in the greatest war in the world's history.

No ambition nurtured from early boyhood prompted John Pershing to seek admission to West Point. He had no set ideas on becoming a soldier when he was a little fellow. In fact, he was headed for a career as a teacher or a lawyer, and was a student in the Kirksville Normal school when he won the appointment to the Military academy.

He saw his congressman's notice of the examination in a newspaper and asked his sister, who was also attending the Kirksville school, if she would advise him to try the test. She certainly would, she told him. This coincided with his own ideas on the subject, so his military career may be said to have had its first impetus in the reading of a newspaper advertisement.

General Pershing was born in 1860 at Laclede, Mo., a hamlet of some 700 inhabitants. His father, whose ancestors had come from Alsace, had the general store at Laclede and also owned a farm on the outskirts of the town. The future commander of the A. E. F. was the oldest of six children. He assumed much responsibility in helping to care for them.

The Pershing youngsters spent considerable time on the farm. Young John developed into a capable worker in the fields even as a boy. The outdoor life and exercise made him a fine upstanding and vigorous youth. He was known as a good fighter when he had to use his fists, but he was never one to go out looking for trouble.

He could ride horseback, fish, swim and hunt when he was a little shaver. Such training fell to the lot of all boys in the West in those days. His mother taught him his first book lessons and instilled in him the desire for a good education.

If he wasn't a brilliant student, he was a conscientious one and stood well in his classes. Fellow pupils of the Laclede days can recall that when John Pershing had a problem to solve he worked at it until he had the correct answer. While he was quiet as a boy, he was full of fun and enjoyed playing pranks with the youngsters of his own age.

Before he entered the Kirksville Normal school he taught for two terms at Prairie Mound, a few miles distant from Laclede. He was eighteen at the time. Some of his pupils were older than that. One day he had to chastise an unruly pupil. The lad's father, well over six feet tall and big in proportion, appeared the next day to demand satisfaction of the teacher.

He had a gun in his pocket. He stormed about and roared threats. First the young teacher took the gun from the man. Then he handed him a sound thrashing with his fists.

Young Pershing was a leader among the students at Kirksville. He was equally prominent at West Point. They tell the story that when a group of hazers tried to put the new cadet through the mill, he thrashed two of them soundly.

He was serious, persistent and determined in his efforts to become an excellent soldier during his student days at the Military academy. He made a good record in his studies, ranking thirtieth in his class when he was graduated in 1886: He was senior cadet captain and was elected president of his class.

The newly made second lieutenant was assigned to the cavalry. He saw service as a young officer under Nelson A. Miles in the Apache, Geronimo and Wounded Knee campaigns. Then he taught military tactics at the University of Nebraska, also acting as assistant professor of mathematics.

He studied law while assigned to Nebraska, was graduated with honors and admitted to the bar. Then he was ordered to West Point as an instructor. From there he was detailed to duty in Cuba, serving under General Shafter in the Spanish-American war. He was promoted for bravery at the battle of El Caney.

He made a brilliant record in the Philippines and led the expedition into Mexico before being put in command of the A. E. F. Uncle Sam was fortunate, indeed, that John Pershing topped his rival in the West Point competitive examination for his district by the narrow margin of that single point.

WHAT WOULD WE DO?

If crime went out of fashion.
If men could not be bought,
If communists wree banished,
If racketeers were caught—

If everyone were honest.
If men did nothing sly,
If bootleggers turned lawful,
If the public all went dry—

If slander had a death blow,
If gossip sealed its lips,
If barbers ceased their chatter,
If waiters took no tips—

If Wall Street changed its method
If business felt secure,
If taxes were abolished,
If polotics were pure—

If everyone were perfect.
If no one could abuse,
What would we do for movies?
What would we do for news?.

FEWER BUT BETTER HENS

One of the most important problems facing the Iowa poultry farmer today, in the opinion of R. K. Bliss, director of the Extension Service of Iowa State College, is the securing of fewer but better hens.

Although the number of chickens on Iowa farms has increased only 8 percent from 1925 to 1930, the number of eggs increased about 65 percent, according to figures from the United States census report. Since 1900 the number of chickens has increased about 50 percent while egg production has increased 70 percent. This trend needs to be carried still further with increased emphasis on culling the unprofitable birds.

Such an increased number of eggs per hen means lower cost of production per dozen and consequently a higher margin of profit than would otherwise be obtained. Records of calendar flock owners show clearly that the highest producing flocks are the most profitable.

The increase in egg production from 1925 to 1930 was aided by an extensive poultry culling campaign conducted by the Extension Service county farm bureaus and other organizations.

Increased culling, improved sanitation, disease prevetion and better feeding will result in higher production per hen and lower cost per dozen eggs. This factor is oe sure way of increasing the margin between costs and receipts.

Hancock County Made Good Showing At North Iowa Fair

FARMERS SHOULD WATCH STORED GRAIN

Pests May Totally Destroy Oats, Corn or Wheat

A warning that stored grain may be totally destroyed by such insect pests as weevils before they have been discovered at work has just been issued by Carl J. Drake of Iowa State College, state entomolokist.

Many farmers and some elevators are now holding grain that is several years old. This grain should be examined periodically to see that insect pests have not started working in it. Oats, corn and wheat are all subject to attack by stored grain pests.

A good many letters have been received by the state college entomologists from various parts of Iowa reporting damage and asking for methods of combating the pests.

Fumigation is recommended for the control of all kinds of grain pests. Either cyanogas or carbon disulfide are used in fumigation. The choice between these two will depend on the local conditions. The use of either gas holds some danger so complete information for their use should be secured from the County Agent or from the Entomology Department, Iowa State College, Ames.

Although stored grain pests usually work in old grain, they may start to work in the current year's crop, especially if the new grain was thrown on top of the old grain or if all of last year's crop was not carefully cleaned out before this year's crop was put in the granary.

Our Own Oddities!

Frank Gruetzmacher grew some odd tomatoes this year that were heart shaped. They are very meaty and have but few seeds and the flavor is delicious. He gave us three but one was plenty large enough for a meal.

Believe it or not, but Emil Patet raised some Chinese potatoes in his garden this year that are the oddest looking potatoes we have ever seen They look like ladies fingers. The queer potatoes have an excellent flavor, are mealy and will bake in twelve minutes. We know, for we had a mess of them and they sure are great.

Odd, isn't it? But Nome Alaska is further west than Honolulu, in the Hawaiian Islands. Look it up on your map, we did.

An item in the Publishers Auxiliary notes some of the shortest names in the world: H. P. Re of Coldwater, Mich; W. F. Ek of Richmond, Va.; F. J. Ix of Charlottesville, Va.; and J. A. Ey of Columbus, Ohio.

To this list we can add "another shortest name in the world," in fact several: W. Ax, C. Ax, and H. Ax, all brothers residing in the vicinity of Klemme, Iowa.

There are many odd things in our own community. Will you help us find them. Send in your contributions.

"Do I have to see a doctor before I get a drink here."

"No! Not till afterward," answered the man.

Silent Lancashire Clogs

Another new trade has come to Lancashire, in the wake of a new fashion. It is the making, and the wearing, of the silent clog. Once every cotton town was filled with the clatter of the wooden clogs of the millworkers as the irons with which they were shod clanged on the pavements. Now clogs are being made again in this time of economy, shod with rubber instead of iron. The millworker has taken back her old footwear, but goes to her looms on silent feet. Even postmen and policemen are using the new clog.

A merchant closed his store for remodeling, and over the front door he hung this sign: "We are not transacting business this week, as usual."

Twins were born three days apart last week, and while we have not read much about the incident, we'd bet a 5-cent drink that the one that was late was a girl.

Reciprocity

An old Indian down in Oklahoma, hard up, went to the bank to borrow $100. The banker said it would be all right provided he had some security. The deal was finally made the Indian giving a mortgage on 20 ponies.

Not log after that oil was struck close to the Indian's allotment. and he sold his oil lease for a lot of cash, so tepped into the bank and peeled off a $100 bill to pay the loan.

"That's fine," remarked the banker, when the business was completed, "but you don't want to carry all that money around with you. Better leave it here with me."

"All right," replied the redskin "how many ponies you got?".

Clean, Dry Bed Essential Part of Humane Dog Care

"Let the pup be your furnace man," if you like, but don't make him live in the basement with the furnace, advises the Chappel Kennel Foundation, Rockford, Illinois.

Any old place used to be thought good enough for the dog to sleep. Now, most dog owners realize that a little attention to sleeping quarters will do much to safeguard the animal's health.

The dog that stays in the house is entitled to a corner in the kitchen or some other convenient place that is free from dampness and draughts. For small types, a turkish towel makes a nice mattress; a large dog may be given a washable rug.

The dog's bed should be off the floor. If he lives out of doors, his kennel should be sufficiently large and light, but free from draughts. Although animals can withstand cold, depending on the length and thickness of their coats, draughts and dampness are often fatal. The sleeping bench should be removable, so that it may be taken out in the open occasionally and washed with water and a disinfectant.

A good kennel, with a hinged roof to facilitate cleaning, can be built at low cost by a carpenter, or by any man or boy who is "handy with tools." If possible, it should be placed under a shed or other protection, facing south or east. It may stand on any kind of soil but sand, which is ideal breeding ground for fleas.

Keep the kennel clean if you want a healthy dog. Give it a limewash frequently, using a little disinfectant in the lime water. The bedding should be stirred daily and changed at least once a week. In summer, he will sleep best either on pine shavings or on bare boards. For winter, oat straw makes a warm and comfortable bed.

Next to injudicious feeding, bad housing probably causes more weakness and disease than any other cause. A clean, dry, draught-proof bed, a balanced ration and a thorough brushing once a day are all most dogs need to be healthy, happy and handsome.

Most of the Foundation's experimental breeding dogs are fed a canned ration made of horse-meat, cereals, cod liver oil and minerals, at the supper hour. This method is the most economical because there is no waste; the least bothersome because the food is ready to serve; the safest because the product is government inspected, and the best because the ration is scientifically balanced.

Man's "Magic Wand" Now Serves Dog

Simple Can-Opener Is Now Key to Happiness for Hungry Canines.

A generation ago bridge parties and other wifely diversions outside the home usually meant a cold snack for hubby. Then the can-opener came along, ending tag-end and left-over feeding by making a good, nourishing meal quick and easy to prepare. It soon became the queen's sceptre in the American kitchen.

Now this magic wand is freeing the family dog from haphazard table-scrap feeding, which kills thousands of pets every year, says the Chappel Kennel Foundation, Rockford, Illinois. A recent survey shows there are now more than 200 varieties of prepared dog foods on the market.

Just as a twist of the wrist now brings to our table food luxuries once too rare and costly for ordinary humans, so the canning process brings the choicest and most unusual morsels within reach of every dog.

Horse-meat, for instance, tastiest and most nutritious of all animal foods, is now included in every high-grade line of dog foods. A few years ago so little horse-meat was available that only "special" dogs, like Rin-Tin-Tin, the movie "star"; choice packs of hounds and a few leading show dogs, ever tasted it. Now Mr. Average Dog is consuming huge herds of meat-horses every year, and half a dozen manufacturers are kept busy canning horse-meat.

As yet the dog lacks the legal safeguard his master enjoys in the matter of canned foods. Leading national brands are prepared as carefully as human foods, under the supervision of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, but there are many nondescript, uninspected dog foods on the market, the Foundation warns.

It is best to avoid uninspected products. Feeding tests show that many of them will not properly support animal life. Often they are made from cast-off meat, trimmings or other waste by-products which are not sold for human food. Some even contain pork.

Healthful dog diets may be made at home, but the average dog owner who is not familiar with the science of canine nutrition is advised to use one of the canned, ready-to-feed preparations, because they contain the exact proportions of meat, cereals and mineral products needed to keep the animal in full health.

No Bark—No Bite

The North American Eskimo sledge dog, an extremely good-natured animal, is the only one of his race which does not bark, states the Chappel Kennel Foundation. He sneezes.

Good Results From Changing Hog Lots

Colorado Farmer Found It Saved the Pigs.

Frank Austin, Colorado farmer, has found that it pays to change his hog lots frequently, if large litters of healthy pigs are to be grown successfully.

Two years ago he was almost discouraged with hog raising, he told George Henderson, county extension agent at large for the Colorado Agricultural college. For years he had been producing hogs, but of late his returns were very small.

He got rid of most of his sows, but one of the few he kept he decided to move across the road to some new ground. There she farrowed a litter of ten pigs and saved all of them.

"That's the way I used to raise them when I first started," Austin said. "Changing lots for pigs certainly worked that time."

Last year he took all his sows across the road and put them in clean pens to farrow. It worked again!

Now Austin has about 80 healthy, fat 200-pound porkers ready to sell. He raised these from only 12 sows.

That was no accident, for 81 other eastern Colorado farmers owning a total of 635 sows saved 4,125 pigs, an average of six and one-half pigs per litter. Every one of these 81 farmers changed their hog lots at least every two years!

Clover Yield Increased by Cutting First Crop

The yield of red clover seed can be increased by cutting the first crop when the plants are coming into bloom, rather than later, according to the Ohio experiment station. Cutting the hay crop early, so as to give the second or seed crop a good chance, is the one important factor in increasing yield which is within the grower's control. Important factors beyond his control are favorable weather and plenty of bumblebees or other pollinating insects. Early cut hay is more difficult to cure and the yield is somewhat less than later cut hay, but the feeding value per ton is greater than that of more mature hay.

Proper Calf Meals

A four-month-old calf can be made to thrive on calf meal as a part of its ration without milk if the meal is properly balanced, says the Idaho Farmer. It should receive whole milk from its mother for two to four days, at which time skim milk may be gradually substituted for the whole. It should receive the skim milk thereafter at least until four weeks old. During the second two weeks the meal may be substituted gradually for the skim milk, so that by the end of four weeks it is taking a pound and a half a day. This should be gradually increased to two pounds at two months old.

Weeds on Rough Land

One of the difficult questions asked is: "How are weeds to be controlled on rough land which cannot be cultivated?" The hawkweeds, daisy and blue weed are gradually getting worse and land that used to make good pasture is hopeless today. In some cases, hand-picking, spading out, applying salt, waste oil or chemicals to small patches, close pasturing and planting back to trees are recommended. One man who had a rough, badly-infested piece of land claims that by applying manure he was able to stimulate the growth of grass so that it gradually killed off the weeds.

Beef Cattle Statistics

Washington has 286,000 beef cattle, or one beef cattle to every five and two-fifths persons.

Oregon has 510,000 beef cattle, or one beef cattle to every one and nine-tenths persons.

California has 1,205,000 beef cattle, or one beef cattle to every four and seven-tenths persons.

The twenty central states hold their dominating position in agriculture in the matter of beef cattle, having 24,633,000 beef cattle, or 68½ per cent of all the beef cattle in the country.

Agricultural Hints

The feeding value of barley is higher than that of oats, pound for pound.

* * *

Leaving machinery standing outdoors increases farm expense and cuts down profit.

* * *

All beds for new planting should be prepared as soon as possible. The soil should be spaded deep and left in a well pulverized condition.

* * *

Wisconsin's wool clip of 1931 was 3,102,000 pounds, or 3½ per cent less than in 1930. There were 425,000 sheep shorn last season, 5,000 less than the year before.

* * *

During the past 14 years the number of horses in the United States fell from 21,555,000 in 1918 to 12,679,000 in 1932.

* * *

If temperature and other factors are the same, a plant grows faster at night than in the daytime; the difference may be considerable.

* * *

With fertile soil at least 20 bushels of potato seed may be used profitably to the acre, using one and one-half ounce pieces spaced 10 to 11 inches in the row.

Some Reason

Young Mrs. Scott was attending her first ball game. The home team was doing well, and for a time she patiently endured her husband's transports andhis brief explantions.

But when, mid the cheering, howling crowd, he sprang upon his seat, waved his new straw hat three times around his head and almost shattered it on the fat man in front. Mrs. Scott exclaimed:

"What on earth's the matter, John?"

"Why, dearie,' he answered as soon as he could get his breath, didn't you see the fielder catch the ball?"

"Of course," said young Mrs. Scott disgustedly. "I thought that was what he was out there for."

Funeral services for Henry L. Suckow. Sr. were held this afternoon (Wednesday) at the Methodist Church with Rev. H. E. Whyte officiating. Burial was made in he Klemme cemetery.

Mr. Suckow who until several years ago was a farmer in Liberty township where he owned a farm, was always active in the civic life of his community. He had during his residence in Liberty and Klemme, held a number of public offices Until about a year ago when his health failed him he held the office of Justice of the Peace in Klemme. Mr. Suckow was always interested in politics and in the affairs of his community and was always willing to give of his time. He served in Klemme for a time as councilman.

Obituary

Henry L. Suckow was born at Albany, N. Y., February 11, 1865. At the age of four, he came with his parents. Mr. and Mrs. John J. Suckow to Elkport, Iowa, where they lived until he had reached the age of 13. At this time the family moved to Hancock County and settled on a farm west of Klemme about two miles.

Mr. Suckow was one of the old residents of this community, having come here when the country was quite new and having spent all of the intervening years in or about Klemme.

He was married on Nov. 9th, 1887 to Taldina Brouwer and the young couple settled on a farm in Liberty Township, later moving to the old homestead where they lived until the fall of 1919 at which time they moved to Klemme, where they resided until his death.

While living on the farm Mr. Suckow was not too busy to concern himself with the affairs of the community, and was willing to carry his share of the responsibility.

He not only held township, county, and school offices, hut was active in the M. E. church. of which he has been a faithful member since he was a boy. He has filled some office in the church or Sunday School, either in town or in the country for many years, and was always greatly interested in every thing connected with the church program.

Mr. Suckow had always been a hard and willing worker and had known little serious sickness until a little over two years ago when it was first noticed that his health was breaking. His illness continued slowly to incapacitate him for his work and for his several responsibilities in the church and community life. After having been confined to his bed for several weeks the end came peacably Sunday afternoon about 2:30. His age at the time of his death was 67 years, 7 months and 7 days.

He leaves to mourn his loss besides his wife, their 7 children, Mrs. Herman Paul and John of Klemme. Mrs. Laurence Schaefer, Milwaukee Wisconsin; Carl of Garner, Ia.; Rev. William of Russel, Ia.; Louis of Mason City, and Henry of Klemme.

Besides these he leaves three brothers, Rev. W. Suckow of Alden; Edd, of Union Ville, Ia; Charles of Clarinda; likewise one sister. Mrs. Ed Schaefer of Klemme. A sister and a brother having preceeded him in death.

He also leaves 13 grand children and a wide circle of friends and acquaintances.

Strange, but true, if you care to investigate you will find a lizzard in every pocket gopher's hole. We found this fact when we interviewed a gopher trapper working in this vicinity last week. The man rode about on a bicycle and when he saw indications of pocket gophers working. he would set a trap. catch the gopher and later collect the county bounty of ten cents for each pair of front feet. In this way this man invented a fair paying job, with but little overhead expense. Getting back to the lizzard part of the story he led us to where he had a trap set A gopher had been caught and in the burrow we also saw the lizzard scampering for cover . The man's occupation was an odd one, but it paid him good money and at the same time he was rendering the farmers a real service in ridding their farms of the pocket gopher.

There is nothing odd about a pear. But it is an oddity when fine. large, well flavored pears are found growing in abundance on a tree right here in Klemme. Wm. C. Keraus has just such a tree at his residence in Klemme and a conservative estimate is that this particular tree produced about six bushels of pears this year.

You may not at first agree with us, but black is not a color. Black is the absence of color, while white is the combination of colors of the spectrum, or those colors which you see in the rainbow.

"Thar's Gold In Them Thar Hills" Said the Forty-niner--

AND— There's still good money in the dairy business for the farmers in this community. The old timers took to the hills to search for gold. But you have a "gold mine" right on your own farm if you will but take advantage of it.

During good times and poor times dairying has come through with a fair return of profits for time and money invested. The dairy industry has stood up under all kinds of conditions. There will continue to be good profits for the farmer who keeps faith in his co-operative creamery which is always working for the best interest of the farmer.

Straight Bean Diet Too Much for Welsh Miners

Beans, hard-boiled brown beans, were responsible for the first labor strike in Cariboo, and perhaps in western Canada, writes Louis Lougheed in a Vancouver paper. The strike occurred in the winter of 1863-1864, when 26 Welsh miners employed by "Captain" John Evans on Lightning creek, Cariboo, walked out as a protest against a straight bean diet.

"It was not the noise—and it was plenty—made by 26 men trying to crack open and masticate a plateful of half-cooked beans at each meal, to which we objected," said Harry Jones, recalling the incident. "It was the smell of the cursed things, as much as anything while they were being cooked.

"The cook, a Welshman like ourselves, was entirely unfamiliar with even the first essential in the preparation of beans; and for a long time he refused to learn. We suffered as a consequence.

"When we struck, Captain Evans was furious, but he was forced to compromise by adding flour and rice to the bill of fare."

Formal Notification of Call to Domestic Duty

It seems that the wife of a well-known member of the Central Manufacturing District club, whom we shall name fictitiously for obvious reasons, has experienced considerable difficulty in persuading her spouse to assume a share in the family responsibilities. Particularly would she appreciate a helping hand in the morning when there are breakfast to get, children to dress, and a host of other cares to discharge in a minimum of time.

Other means failing, she finally resorted to the formally ironic and, wakening him one morning, thrust before his astonished eyes the following neatly done card:

Mrs. Easton Weswood requests the esteemed company of Mr. Easton Weswood
at the robing of their children,
Edward, Eleanor, and Edelweiss, this morning at seven-fifteen in the main and only bathroom of the Weswood domicile.

Poor Outlook

An anonymous English poet doesn't take very kindly to the info that our longevity is increasing.

"So we're all getting stronger, are bound to live longer? There's nothing consoling in that! It's really no blessing; in fact, it's distressing to think we may rival the cat. . . .

"The chap who has married will wish he had tarried: Nine lives with one wife, in a bog of credits for dresses and crimps in her tresses would equal nine lives of a dog.

"Whoever's elated to learn we are slated for ancient Methuselah's role, is perfectly sappy—or maybe he's happy at thought of nine lives on the dole."—Boston Transcript.

How Shoes Are Measured

The difference in the width sizes of shoes is one-twelfth of an inch, according to the standard system of measurement, explains Pathfinder Magazine. Widths are indicated alphabetically by letters; as, AAA, AA, A, B, C, D, E. The first letter stands for the narrower widths and the greater widths are indicated progressively to E. By width is meant the amount of ball room in the shoe, that is, the widest part of the front section of the shoe. Combination lasts are often used. An A width may be used for the heel and a B width for the ball. This gives a snug fit to persons having small boned ankles.

First Mention of Gorillas

The word gorilla is perhaps African, but more than 2,000 years separate its first appearance from its present use. In the Fifth or Sixth century B. C., a Carthaginian navigator named Hanno sailed beyond the Pillars of Hercules along the west coast of Africa. He wrote in Punic a record of his adventure, and among the wonders he described were some hairy savages called gorillas. His work was translated into Greek and later into several European languages, so that the word became familiar to naturalists. In 1847 it was applied to the giant ape which had recently been described by explorers.

"Ocean of Atlas"

The name Atlantic as applied to the ocean between Europe and Africa on the east and north, and the Americas on the west, comes from the Greek word Atlas, which referred in Greek mythology to a divinity having charge of the pillars which upheld the heavens. Atlas was supposed to stand at the spot where the Strait of Gibraltar now lies, holding up the sky, and because the Atlantic ocean was reached through this strait, it was called the Ocean of Atlas or the Atlantic ocean.

The Lion in Scripture

Balsam the prophet, desirous of foretelling the future dignity of Israel, compares the nation to "a lion and as a great lion, who shall stir him up?" (Numbers 24:9). (Deuteronomy 33:20). "What is stronger than a lion?" said the Philistines to Samson (Judges 14:18). So might we go through the Scriptures, were it necessary to prove the high opinion held by its writers of the power and kingliness of lions.

Dogs That Uphold and Others That Break Law

Dogs are used to smuggle contraband into Spain. They swim ashore from the smugglers' boats, carrying "duty free" goods in waterproof packages strapped to their backs.

They work swiftly and silently, not even shaking themselves when they reach the shore, but making off at a good pace for the smugglers' inland depot. They are trained to avoid men in uniform.

But dogs can assist the police as well as break the law. The work of police dogs abroad is well known, and even "amateurs" sometimes act as detectives.

In one recent case a dog, after sniffing for some minutes in a room which had been burgled, ran away. It entered, climbed the stairs, and sat down outside a room which had just been vacated. When its former occupant was arrested he confessed to the theft.

Dogs have also a good record as lifesavers, and hardly a holiday passes without some venturesome youngster in difficulties being rescued by a four-footed hero.

Vagaries of Spiders

Spiders are cannibals. Members of some species often associate with members of other species, all living together without animosity, apparently, when there is sufficient food for all. Members of other species are intolerant of strangers. Some webs are suited to snare very small and delicate insects that breed in water close to the spiders' dwelling places. Not far from these webs may be seen stout webs that hold heavy insects. Some hunting spiders live in flowers and catch flying insects that sip the flowers' nectar. Other spiders live all their lives under stones, and feed almost exclusively on creatures that crawl. They shun moths and butterflies and other insects that flap their wings.

Thieves Broke Into Creamery; Butter And Cheese Stolen

THIEVES ENTERED CREAMERY EARLY SUNDAY EVENING

Attempted Robbery May Have Been Nipped By Visit Of Manager

Thieves entered the refrigerator room in the Klemme Creamery, by breaking thru the loading chute, early Sunday evening.

Manager Paul Mueller discovered the attempted robbery when he went to the creamery Sunday evening to gather up overalls and towels for the Monday's wash. Paul entered the refrigerator room to get some butter when he noticed a bundle of cheese was missing and on further investigation noticed a tub of butter on the floor which had been taken off the pile and rolled over to the loading chute. He found that the door to the chute, which is about two feet square, had been caved in, and entrance made into the room. He established the fact that the robbers might have been at work when he entered the entered the building, for the temperature on the thermometer had not raised as would have been the case if the loading chute had been left open for any length of time. George Carolus had been at the creamery during the afternoon, but nothing had been disturbed at that time The only loss that could be checked was the bundle of cheese. weighing twenty-five pounds. A few prints of butter might also have been taken, as a close check is not kept on the small amount of print butter kept in the refrigerator, according to Mueller.

Sheriff Peck Hanson was notified and was on the grounds early Monday morning checking up for possible clues.

Wayne Hurd Confesses Robbery

HAD BUTTER AND CHEESE HID IN SHACK NEAR HAYFIELD

Sheriff Peck Hanson Secured A Complete Confession Tuesday P. M.

Sheriff Peck, who was here early Monday morning investigating the robbery at the Klemme Creamery in which butter and cheese was stolen, Tuesday had his man lodged in the jail at Garner and had secured a confession from Wayne Hurd, who was working in a truck garden near Hayfield. and who confessed to breaking into the creamery and stealing butter and cheese.

Sherift Hanson suspected Hurd might be connected with the robbery so he searched an old shack near Hayfield which Hurd had taken possession of and where he was living while working for Marion Trass, a farmer who is harvesting potatoes and onions. Sheriff Hanson found six pounds of Klemme butter and ten boxes of cheese hidden in the walls and rafters of the shack occupied by Hurd. He then went to the field and placed Hurd under arrest and lodged him in the jail at Garner where he left him until he was ready to confess. Hurd plead guilty on a county attorney's information and will go before the judge at once to receive his sentence

CARELESSNESS IS CAUSE FOR MANY FATALITIES

With some seven million hunters going forth in the United States in pursuit of their favorite game within the next few weeks, it is well to give thought to the hundreds of hunters who are killed and injured each year through carelessness. There are many common causes of fatality aud injury and the following list of "DONT'S" were made up from these common causes. Set them firmly in your memory:

"DON'T carry your gun put together in automobiles; wagons, etc; it's the 'unloaded' gun that shoots, too! Iowa has a law against carrying uncased gns in automobiles.

"DON'T load or shoot your gun, after putting it together, until you have looked through the barrel or barrels and find it clear of grease oil rags, or any foreign obstruction.

"DON'T pull guns through fences carry them over the fence with you, keeping the muzzle pointed away from yourself and others. If a breech loader, open it before crossing.

DON'T set your loaded gun again a tree or leave it on the ground if they have dogs about when you stop to rest, they may knock it down or step on it.

DON'T lay your loaded gun down in the bottom of a boat; picking it up sometimes causes it accidentally to discharge and shoot the bottom out.

"DON'T shoot your gun after falling, climbing a bank, or walking over newly plowed ground until you have examined the barrel and find it clear.

"DON'T let your gun muzzle point toward the water for if the gun is fired with the muzzle under water it will explode in most cases.

"DON'T shoot at movement—it may be a man, cow or other livestock. Besides, every sportsman not only wants to see his game but hit it in a vital spot.

"DON'T shoot at game until you have assured yourself that no other living creature, house, barn or such property is in the line of fire

We do not hesitate to recommend Mr. Taylor highly as a candidate for County Treasurer.

Luckily neither of the men are injured.

Mr. Hughes' car was badly smashed up in front receiving a twisted front axle, broken fender, radiator and hood and the the frame was badly sprung. The grave l truck came out with but a few broken boards in the gravel box.

TOO MUCH STEALING GOING ON IN COMMUNITY

It has been called to the attention of the Times that stealing is going on in the community. Just recently two homes in Klemme have been invaded. In one cellar thirteen quarts of canned chicken were stolen, but other canned food was not touched. Another cellar was robbed recently and some farmers have reported chickens stolen from their premises recently. The creamery was broken into Saturday or Sunday night and some cheese was stolen. Sheriff E. P. Hanson was here Monday morning getting clues In the event that your place is entered by thieves, call the Sheriff at once as soon as the theft is noticed. Officers are able to gather important clues if notified at once and may lead to the arrest of the guilty parties.

Thieves breaking and entering homes are taking a long chance. It may lead them to ten years in the pen.

I IMAGINE THAT— By Phil Osifer

—If the folks who shoot pheasants now days would open the crops of the birds they kill, I should not be a bit surprised if they should find a great many weed seeds and the remains of quite a few grasshoppers and other bugs. Look once!

—Only a few bumps in our streets are still to be fixed.

—If John Deere, McCormick-Deering, Ford and a few others would make some real drastic price reductions until the price of corn comes back to something reasonable we would all buy more.

—The fellow most concerned probably won't see this, but a certain hardware drummer was standing on the street and the fire engine went by in the direction of his home. He belittled the suggestion of a friend to go see the fire When it was all over he found out that it was his own house that caught fire. Odd oddity?

—There has been.. much.. gassing about gas. Before we sign up, let us find out just how much gas it will take to equal a ton of coal in heat, and then see that the price is set accordingly An uneducated specialist can figure that out very easily if he knows the efficiency of your coal burning stoves and furnaces, or how much coal they burn.

—It is bad enough to have ordinary things stolen, but when stealers purloin a man's entire private stock of wine and then leave a note thanking him for it and wanting to know when another batch will be ready—mere words are inadequate!

1933 AUTO PLATES ARE NOW BEING COMPLETED

The contract calling for 1,650,000 Iowa auto license plates is nearly completed at the men's reformatory at Anamosa. Five hundred tons of steel are being used in the manufacture of the 1933 plates. The background of the 1933 plates will be midnight blue with white letters and numerals. It is expected that shipments will start to the different counties in the near future.

PECK HANSON

Announces As Independent Candidate For

Sheriff

Hancock County, Iowa

In making my announcement as an independent candidate for the office of Sheriff of Hancock County, I wish to make as plain a statement of facts as possible and yet be brief.

The expression that "friends have prevailed upon me" is weather beaten, but in this instance, never-the-less true. Hundreds of loyal supporters have called upon me singly and in groups, urging that I make the race. I admit that I have been susceptible to their urge.

I look upon the present economic condition, not thru the eyes of a pessimist, but never-the-less feel that one is justified in making an effort to retain a position which means a living for one's self and his family. It is a time when experience in handling the affairs of the Sheriff's Office means much to the taxpayers of this county.

In entering the fall campaign, I stand upon my record as a law enforcing official of Hancock County. The general public, I believe, will credit the assertion that I have given public affairs the same careful consideration that I have given my own personal matters. I am familiar with the law of the State of Iowa relative to the duties of a Sheriff, and realize that there is greater demand for painstaking service in the office today than ever before.

I was defeated at the June, 1932, primary, by a small majority— a majority which many of my friends contend could easily have been overcome had they but taken time to cast their vote at such primary. Then, too, there are those of opposite political faith who have volutarily pledged their support at the November election. And so, viewing the situation from many angles, I feel justified in making this attempt to be re-elected to an office, which my conscience tells me, I have filled creditably

To recount the instances in which I have saved the taxpayers of Hancock County money, would perhaps be taken as braggadocio by some, so we ask that you inquire of those who have occasion to contact the Sheriff's Office in a business way, about our accomplishments along this line.

I have lived in Hancock County all of my life. The people of this county know me and I know them. I will be before the voters at the November election, pledged to continue to render as nearly perfect service in the office of Sheriff, as is humanly possible.

We are not saying to you, friend voters, that we are going to be a better Sheriff, for we have always done our best, but give you this assurance: If greater service is required, Peck Hanson, if elected, will supply it.

High School Students Plan For Annual School Outing

HIGH SCHOOL HAS ADEQUATE ACCOUNTING SYSTEM

Raymond Drake In Charge Of Extra Curricular Activity Funds

The question of high school party or picnic was presented at the Student Council meeting and later referred to the assembly. No definite plans have been made.

Raymond Drake was appointed school treasurer at the Student Council meeting Monday. This office takes considerable work and much responsibility is attached to it. Raymond is under the supervision of Supt. Hunter. with whom he audited the books and with some special training and study he will be ready for the duties of the office All extra curricular activities funds have been and will be handled by the school treasurer, responsible to the Superintendent of Schools. Each organization or class has its own treasurer. Money taken in by an organization or class will be deposited by the school treasurer or Supt. in the bank. A receipt is given to the organization treasurer by the school treasurer. The school treasurer then enters the deposit in the general ledger and in the organization ledger.

If an organization desires to pay a bill it must fill in a requisition blank signed by the organization treasurer and sponsor and give it to the school treasurer. He in turn writes the check which must be signed by the school treasurer and Superintendent of schools.

Each month the school treasuer will make a statement showing the condition of each organization or activity, who may check the organization books with the school books.

This system gives a complete history of every transaction and enables the Principal, Superintendent, Board of Education of any student to tell at a glance exactly how the organization stands financially. There is also a triple check on all extra curricular activity funds.

Juniors Give Assembly

The Junior class presented a program before the assembly last Wednesday morning. It consisted of a cornet solo by Dale Schlei, accompanied by Fay Neuberger; a paper on "Famous People Whose Birthdays are in September" by Roy Arnold, and a stunt representing an old fashioned school.

Orchestra practice started last week with the following people enrolled: Violins, Marie Stille. Ruth Wellemeyer, Emily Paul, Margaret Gates. Jeanne Thada and Jackie Rudje; Cello. Nora Wellemeyer; Flute. Buster Jorgenson; Cornets, Max Barz and Dale Schlei; Saxophone, Franklin Kluckhohn; Clarinets, Milvern Barz, Dorance Day, Paul Schuldt and Lloyd Ax; Drums George Stokesbary; Piano, Nellie Stromer Miss Ford made a real showing with the orchestra last year. Although she lost much good material through graduation last year things look favorable for a good orchestra this year.

The Misses Irene Bridges, Thelma Kluckhohn and Frances Tannar visited school one day last week.

The agriculture class went on a field trip to the Brown farm last week to select seed corn.

The picture of the class of 1932 is now hanging in the assembly along with those of former graduating classes.

The sophomores plan to present an assembly program this week.

Grades 5 and 6

Cecil Leitzinger, Donald Lemke and Pearl Wade were absent from grade five last week because of illness.

Ronald Gibbs and Ruth Heginger were absent from grade six last week because of illness.

Grade five has begun their study of South America and are using their new work books.

In the sixth grade we have completed our work on early man and are now studying the Greeks.

Grades 1 and 2

The second grade had a perfect attendance last week. In the first grade, Mavis, Leitzinger, Julia Bell and Corrine Merkel were absent.

We were all weighed and measured Friday. Miss Sanders made a chart for our height and weight for each month of the school year.

The first grade finished making their "Home Books" Friday. There was a separate page for Daddy, Mother, Brother, Sister, and Baby

Both grades studied about our bird friends and talked about their going south for the winter.

The first grade entertained the second grade Friday afternoon by giving a dramatization of "The 3 Bears" We all enjoyed it very much and will be looking forward to the next one.

We appoint committees in our room to help Miss Sanders keep our room nice. The committee for last week was: Harlan, empty the waste-basket; Mavis, keep the reading table neat; Billy, keep the chairs in order; Betty Jean inspect the desks

Friday we began practice for our rhythm band work.

115.9 BUSHEL YIELD SHOWN BY TEST CORN

Experiment Farm At Kanawha Holds Field Day

A yield of 115.9 bushels of corn to the acre was the highest reported at the annual field day of the North Iowa experimental farm at Kanawha Thursday. This was F. 1 Hybrid A crowd of 1500 persons visited the various plots and heard the announcements of results. Eight members of Iowa State faculty, Ames were in attendance.

The next highest yield of corn raised on the test plots was 931, which produced 105.1 bushel to the acre. Krug 979, a cross between 936 and 126, had 96.5 bushels to the acre. A straight strain, Kossuth county Reliance, yielded 83.4 bushels to the the acre.

Narrow Planting Best

A result considered of exceptional importance was the comparative yield figures of corn planted in 21 inch rows and the wider standard planting The 21 inch row yield was 83.1 bushels to the acre while the standard was only 72.9.

It was explained that the county revealed that the 21 inch row had approximately the same number of stalks to the acre as standard. In the 21 inch plantings, however, there were only 1 to 2 stalks to the hill. The 21 inch row corn matured 7 to 10 days earlier than the standard planting, it was also found.

Prove Quite Successful

Results of important experiments on scab and black scurf control on potatoes were also made public. Several treatments offered provided good control. cutting down the disease to about 1 per cent. In sugar beets, it was said machine checking of rows showed possibilities of leaf spot control and also eliminated labor in weeding. This experiment experts present stated had proved quite successful.

Announcements were also made of results of dust treatment of seed corn for controlling dry seedling rot The yield for flax and oats had been reported previously. The yield of velvet barley was 40 bushels to the acre. Results of several other experiments being conducted by the station are announced at other time of the year.

Is For North Iowa

Proper facilities were not provided for the exhibition of work by the beet lifter.

This was the second annual ifeld day. Last year rain interefered considerably with the event The experi mental arm is maintained to ascertain what particular varieties of crops are best suited to North Iowa

THOSE GOOD OLD DAYS!

A dear old lady attended a reunion of old settlers and sat down next to an old fellow whom she had known in her youth.

"Why, Mr. Brown," she said eagerly, "It's years since we met. Do you recall when we used to play together and I used to spank you when you didn't behave?"

"Yes, indeed," said the old gent who had grown somewhat deaf with the passing years. "Heh, heh, you'd hardly recognize the old place now, would you?"

Elephant Made History in Conquest of India

If, in 1700 B. C., numbers had decided the conflict between Alexander the Great and the Indian prince, Porus, on the battlefield of Jellum, the Greek influence in India would have been unknown, but it was for the elephant to make history. In the forefront of the great Indian army was a vanguard of elephants which were expected to trample beneath their feet and to terrorize the insolent foe. Behind the elephants were the cavalry and the charioteers, and behind the cavalry and the charioteers was the infantry. Alexander ordered his men to direct all their arrows against and to throw lighted torches in the faces of the elephants. The frightened pachyderms turned swiftly around and stampeded the cavalry and the charioteers behind them; these in turn stampeded the infantry, and in a few moments the fate of western India was decided. If, indeed, there had been no elephants, there would have been no Patalla and no Hyderabad.

Museum Exhibit Recalls Tragic Arctic Episode

The Museum of Science and Industry, Chicago, has among its exhibits several cans of soup which were carried by the third relief expedition sent to Major General A. W. Greely, United States soldier and explorer, more than a half century ago.

Greely's famous expedition to the Arctic regions was undertaken in 1881. The party reached Discovery Harbor on Lady Franklin bay, Grinnell land, during the summer There they established a permanent station, where they remained until the late summer of 1883, when they retreated southward, according to a prearranged plan, finally reaching Cape Sabine after a journey of 400 miles. There they expected to meet relief ships, or at least to find supplies cached at designated points. Failing in this, they were obliged to spend the winter at Cape Sabine, where all bnt seven of the party lost their lives as a result of starvation and exposure.

Edible Frogs and Snails

Fried cuttlefish is one of the great delicacies of the restaurants in the south of France, Spain, and Italy. The frogs the French eat are not the same as those which inhabit our rivers and ponds. They are bigger and greener. Only the legs are eaten, and they taste rather like the best parts of a chicken. In several foreign countries those big fat snails that you find on ivy-covered walls are highly esteemed. The oyster is a snail, as are the scallop, the whelk and the winkle. Many British rivers teem with fresh-water crayfish. They are as tasty as any shellfish, but they are seldom eaten by English folks. Abroad, the river crayfish commands high prices.—London Mail.

Luminous Paints

The luminous constituent of paints is usually the sulphide or sulphate of calcium, barium or strontium; when these are exposed to very strong light they become luminous. The luminous paint on watch dials is made from zinc sulphide, which has been exposed to rays emanating from radium. An example of a luminous paint giving a violet light is as follows: 100 parts each of sulphur and a strontium carbonate, .5 parts each of potassium chloride and sodium chloride, .4 parts of manganese chloride. These materials are heated together to a very high temperature for some time.

Army of Women

Chinese women formed an army to save their country and turned defeat into victory, in 1853 during the Taiping rebellion, which broke out three years before. At Nanking, an army of 500,000 women recruited from various parts of the Chinese empire, was organized and divided into brigades of 13,000 each, under female officers. For garrison duty in the city, 10,000 were selected and the rest performed the ordinary routine of a soldier's life. Though they were a great help they did not bring immediate victory to the cause. The rebellion was not finally suppressed until 1864.

Elephants Roamed Rome

The last resting place of a Roman or fossil elephant that died perhaps 25,000 years before the Christian era was believed to have been found recently at the foot of a small hill between the Colliseum and the Constantine Basilica. A molar tooth three meters (about 117 inches) and 75 centimeters wide was unearthed at the foot of the hill. It was at a depth of about 45 feet in ground formed by alluvial sand. It is believed the carcass was transported to Italy by floods, as prehistoric mammoths have never been traced near Rome before.

One of Heaviest Trials

To have produced works of genius and to find them neglected or treated with scorn is one of the heaviest trials of human patience. We exaggerate our own merits when they are denied by others and are apt to grudge and cavil at every particle of praise bestowed on those to whom we feel a conscious superiority. In mere self-defense we turn against the world when it turns against us; brood over the undeserved slights we have received and thus the genial current of the soul is stopped.—Hazlitt: The Spirit of the Age.

CHECK-UP ON WHEAT PRICES PROVES TARIFF BENEFITS

The extent to which the American farmer has benefited through the Republican tariff on agricultural products and cooperative marketing operations is indicated by a comparison of prices for wheat selling in adjacent territory on opposite sides of the United States-Canadian line.

An investigation made simultaneously in towns similarly situated with respect to freight rates and shipping facilities, but on opposite sides of the Canadian line, showed the following:

Canadian farmers, for No. 1 wheat, were receiving 44 cents a bushel at Morden, Manitoba; 42 cents at Stirling, Alberta; 46 cents at Gainsboro, Saskatchewan; 45 cents at Stanton, Saskatchewan.

Across the line, on the same day, No. 1 wheat was selling at Bismarck, N. D., at 59 cents; at Ambrose, 58 cents; at Grand Forks, 62 cents; at Fargo, 65 cents and at Roberts, Montana, 68 cents.

What gave the American farmer this advantage in price? Without the American tariff on wheat, Canadian wheat would have poured across the border, breaking our price to a level with theirs. While the American farmer did not realize the full amount of the tariff, as he would if his production were limited to the domestic demand, he did get, on the basis of this comparison, an average benefit of 18 cents a bushel.

A further index of the protection actually enjoyed by the American farmer through the tariff on wheat is the fact that while the week before the tariff became effective foreign grown wheat to the amount of 2,260,000 bushels was sold in this country, the week after the tariff bill became law these sales dropped to 37,000 bushels.

Even more striking is the comparison of prices in American and foreign grain centers. Figures gathered by the Bureau of Agricultural Economics in February, 1931, covering May futures on wheat, showed prices as follows:

Chicago, 83⅜ cents a bushel; Winnipeg, 60 cents; Liverpool, 65 cents; Buenos Aires, 49¾ cents.

Without tariff protection, this situation ordinarily is reversed, the Liverpool price being approximately 15 to 18 cents above the Chicago market, that representing approximately the cost of transporting wheat from Chicago to Liverpool. The differential in this case represents nearly the entire 42 cents protection provided for by the tariff law.

"Socker" Coe Wallops Campaign Poppycock

"Repudiate the promiser, perpetuate the performer!"

This is the challenge to American voters by Charles Francis Coe, author and two-fisted champion of American principles, who has turned from his writing to volunteer his services during the campaign for the re-election of Herbert Hoover.

"I have never before allied myself definitely with any organization, nor yet felt called upon to identify myself with any specific cause," Coe told his first political audience, gathered in Jersey City. "I am, and forever hope to be, an ordinary, everyday, earnest American citizen; jealous of the rights of Freedom, proud of my heritag , consecrated to the simple fundamentals of our Constitution.

"Certain outstanding issues face us," he declared. "I defy conscientious, thoughtful Americans to evade the responsibility of their solution. I see the issues; not the man or the party. I analyze the actual promise of two programs, not the verbal promise of hopeful outsiders, knocking at the door of personal fame and power.

"On the one hand I find the Republican party, with its experience, its stability and its well-begun program of reconstruction. On the other hand I find a series of ambiguities prepared alluringly by politicians who have long knocked unsuccessfully upon the portals of public trust and tolerance These are the Democrats.

"In President Hoover's presentation of the issues before us and the ways in which they are being met there is no evasion of the question, no quibbling, no chicanery, no trickery. He scorns political poppycock and ballyhoo. His leadership is a leadership of honesty and determination in righteousness.

"By contrast with this fine and fearless leadership, what has Mr. Roosevelt offered? A nebulous network of mighty promises backed by nothing but campaign fire!"

WHY I SHALL VOTE FOR HOOVER

By BRUCE BARTON

I shall vote for Herbert Hoover for President because, in the greatest crisis this country has known since Lincoln's day, he has stood the gaff.

I do not like the idea of having the next four years used by the occupant of the White House as a springboard from which to leap at renomination in 1936. I prefer to take my chance on the man who has stood the battle for four years and who can say to himself: "I have only four years more and nothing to think of except to do what I believe to be right."

There is plenty that can honestly be said in Mr. Hoover's praise without attempting to paint him as a superman. More important, in my estimation, is the fact that he is human and that he has been through the fire. Instead of having been broken by the depression, he has been strengthened. By his experience he is enabled to face the future in terms of facts and not of theories.

"Don't swap horses while crossing a stream" has usually proved good logic. I believe it is especially good logic in our present political crisis. It appeals to me, also, because I see nothing in Franklin Roosevelt to prove that he is a better horse than Herbert Hoover. Nor a better man, either intellectually or spiritually. I do not like his appeal to discontent and class prejudice. My vote is for Hoover

ROOSEVELT SHOULD PRACTICE WHAT HE IS NOW PREACHING

A challenge to Franklin D. Roosevelt to practice, as governor of New York, what he preaches as Democratic candidate for President of the United States, has been hurled at the Democratic standard-bearer by Secretary of War Patrick J. Hurley.

Roosevelt has particularly sought to impress the Mid-West and West, Hurley declares, with what he would do to regulate and reform the New York Stock exchange in event he is elected President.

"Fine," says Hurley.

"But why wait? Why not do it now?

"The governor favors the reform of the stock exchange," Hurley explains.

"The stock exchange is an institution existing under the laws of the state of New York.

"There is no doubt but what abuses have existed in the operation of that exchange. There is no doubt but that there were organized bear raids detrimental to the welfare of the public.

"But what has the governor of New York done to remedy this situation during the long period in which he has had the power to act?

"Governor Roosevelt now suggests federal control and publicity for the sale of securities. Why has not the governor inaugurated these reforms during his incumbency as chief executive of the state of New York? The control of the sale of these securities and the conditions under which they may be sold or not sold is now in the state of New York.

"The governor did not suggest reforms until he became a candidate for the Presidency. New York has the laws, but as governor he has not enforced them. Why hasn't he acted?"

Farm Credit Corporations Will Benefit the Farmers

Farmers of the Middle West and the West will be the first to benefit from the operation of the new Agricultural Credit corporations which are being organized as a part of the far-flung activities of the Reconstruction Finance corporation. These corporations, now being organized in ten land bank districts, are to finance farm operations of all kinds with special reference at first to putting the live stock industry on a sound basis. Later, attention will be given to the farmer who raises wheat, corn and other crops, the plan being to aid agriculture on the broadest possible basis. When one hears, as he does now and then, that the farmers of the country are dissatisfied with the present administration, one wonders if they realize that more has been done for them, and more is continuing to be done for them, than ever before in any administration of any party since the Republic was founded.

The benefits to be derived, and which are just beginning to be felt in many sections, might have been in operation several months earlier had it not been for the opposition of a Democratic House, led by Democratic vice-presidential candidate, Garner.

Tariff Lies

Democratic spokesmen, from the heads of the ticket down, continue to repeat the stale untruth that the Hawley-Smoot law is the highest tariff law ever enacted in the history of the country. The Tariff Commission, made up of three Republicans and three Democrats, has officially declared that four preceding tariff laws were higher than this one, one of them being the Mills bill, a Democratic measure. What confidence can be put in the arguments of political leaders who persist in repeating statements they must know to be false?

J. J. Bonnstetter

CORWITH MAN IN RACE FOR STATE REPRESENTATIVE

CORWITH HUSTLER:— J. J. Bonnstetter, Corwith farmer and business man, is the democratic candidate for state representative from Hancock County, and has opened a vigorous campaign in which he hopes to be victorious He has many friends in this vicinity who are strong for him and he is meeting with encouragment wherever he goes. The democrats of Hancock county are to be congratulated in securing as their candidate for this important office a man of Mr. Bonnstetters qualifications,—one whose honesty, sincerity and ability has never been questioned. That the public may know him better we pub lish a brief out-line of his history.

J. J. Bonnstetter, democratic candidate for state representative, was born at West Bend, Iowa His parents were among the pioneer settlers of the state. His father drove overland to California during the gold rush of 1849 and later homesteaded at West Bend. J. J is the youngest of a family of ten He received his education in the public schools and attended college in Highland Park. Des Moines He moved to his present home one mile east of Corwith twenty-eight years ago and has been a resident tax payer of the county ever since. He has been actively engaged in raising purebred Belgian horses and in general farming.

Mr. Bonstetter has a family of four sons, all grown, and one daughter in high school. Mrs. Bonnstetter passed away three years ago

In the summer of 1919 he was appointed field manager for the Northern Sugar Beet Co., which later became the American Beet Sugar Co. This position he held for eleven years and in that time gained a wide knowledge of farm problems and labor conditions. When unemployment became acute in this part of the country he resigned this position and has since been writing Mutual Insurance and managing his farm interest.

Mr. Bonnstetter has always taken an active interest in the public welfare altho this is the first time he has sought election to any office.

HOGS NEED MORE THAN CORN

Hogging Down CornNot Successful Without Supplements

One of the common mistakes made in hogging down corn is to assume that, if you turn a bunch of pigs into a field or a part of a field of corn, they need no other feed until the corn is gone.

It is impractical to hog down corn unless one supplies the proper mineral and protein supplements, observes A. L. Anderson, of the Animal Husbandry Department of Iowa State College. The gains without supplements in hogging-down corn will not be as rapid as they should be and the will be uneconomical.

Soybeans planted in corn will not supply enough protein feed. Tankage, or some high protein supplement is needed. Mineral also should be kept before the pigs at all times. If the pigs have the run of a clover or alfalfa field close to the corn, that will help, but it will not replace tankage.

In hogging-down corn, the usual experience of farmers and the experiment stations has been that the safest plan is to turn the pigs into the corn for only a part of the day at a time at the beginning in order to avoid digestive disturbances. Usually a limited area—about enough to last the pigs is fenced off temporarily rather than to turn the pigs into the whole piece that is to be hogged down.

Sometimes the weather is such that hogging-down corn is not as economical as husking it and feeding it in drylots. Since the weather cannot be predicted so far in advance, those who hog down must take their chance.

Mrs. Adolph Schlichting spent Wednesday afternoon with friends in Garner while the men attended the Ben Riebe public sale.

INDEPENDENT CANDIDATE FOR COUNTY ATTORNEY

TO THE VOTERS OF HANCOCK COUNTY:

I hereby announce that I am a candidate on the independent ticket for the office of County Attorney for the general election to be held November 8, 1932. I submitted my candidacy to the republican voters at the June primary—in that contest I had two opponents, one of whom received the nomination. I now appeal to the entire electorate of the county as the court of last resort, and submit my case to you.

I was born in Mason City, Iowa, in 1907, where I received my public school education, having graduated from the high school of Mason City at the age of sixteen, following which I had four years of college work. securing a B. A. degree. I then entered the State university law school at Iowa City, and received my degree from that institution in June, 1931, following which I took up my residence at Garner, where I have since been engaged in the practice of law.

I worked my way thru school by waiting tables and tutoring a blind student and I have not since forgotten how to work Neither am I dismayed over the June defeat. A lawyer learns early in his practice that he will meet defeat, but that he should not be whipped by a temporary setback and so I have decided to submit my candidacy for the earnest consideration of all voters, irrespective of party affiliation.

As a reward for your confidence, I do not promise that all crime in the county will be eliminated, but I DO PROMISE HONEST, CONCIENTIOUS SERVICE AND ASSURE YOU THAT ALL THE ABLILITY I POSSESS WILL BE EMPLOYED TO RENDER UNTO THE COUNTY, THE SERVICE TO WHICH IT IS ENTITLED.

If you believe my experience and preparation has equipped me for the office of county attorney and that I merit your vote I shall feel deeply grateful, and if elected. will discharge the duties of that office in such manner that I hope you will have no cause to regret your action.

Very respectfully submitted

Local Nine Defeats Kanawha Team In Playoff Of Tie Game

SOPHIES GIVE INTERESTING ASSEMBLY PROGRAM

Six Week Examinations To Be Given Last Of Week

The local high school base ball nine finally downed Kanawha by a score of 8 to 7 after tying the first game on Friday 19-19. The first game was called because of darkness and the score being tied made it no contest so the game was replayed on Monday.

The first contest showed a game rallying spirit, a number of errors and a home run. In the first inning the Kanawha sluggers began to find the ball and they clubbed it all over the park for seven runs off Smid and three more off Bridges who finally succeeded in stopping the slug-fest.

Percy Brown was the outstanding star of the local sluggers when in the seventh inning with the score tied he clubbed out a long high drive over the right fielders head for a home run.

The lineup for the first game:

Bridges pitched a good game of ball for Klemme, striking out 7 in the first game and 8 in the second compared to the Kanawha pitcher who struck out 3 men in both games His "twister" ball was working perfectly and caused many of the strikeouts against Kanawha.

Clarence Kluckhohn played an outstanding game at his position as catcher. His catching ability and team work have been an outstanding asset to the Klemme team.

The high school nine again plays the Kanawha team on the local diamond this Friday. If you are interested in seeing a good game of ball, come and watch these two evenly matched teams play.

AVERAGE COST IS LESS THAN $500 PER MILE

Work Done By Local Contractors With But One Exception

(By C. F. Merten, County Engineer)

During the summer season your engineer has been busy with construction work but with the coming of the long evenings I shall try by a series of articles to cover the progress we have made since spring. All of the graveling on our program for this year has been completed, with the exception of one and one half miles past the W. H. Greiman place in Ell Township. The grading of this piece of road had just been completed and the roadbed had not sufficiently settled to make it advisable to gravel the road before spring. Seventyseven miles of Hancock County roads were graveled during this season for which the contractors were paid $37000 or an average of less than $500 per mile With one exception the work was let to local contractors so that most of the money was spent locally for labor and trucks. We are very fortunate in having local men who are equipped to do this work and are willing to take the work at a lower price than outside contractors.

There is a great variation in the costs of graveling different miles of road depending on the location of gravel pits, the difficulty or ease with gravel may be loaded and the hauling conditions. The road on the township line past the Spalla place was graveled from the Hejlik pit at a cost of 416 dollars per mile. If this road had been graveled from the Hutchins pit as advocated by some of the landowners the cost for hauling the same number of yards of gravel would have been 968 dollars per mile. The last time the writer drove over this road the surface was in excellent condition. Those interested in saving the tax payer's money should examine this road and see if the Boand of Supervisors did not use good judgement in using the Hejlik gravel instead of the Hutchins gravel. The cost of graveling three miles of road past the McDougal farm in Amsterdam Township out of the Knudsen pit was $973.81 or approximately 325 dollars per mile. If this gravel had been hauled from the Ruka pit the cost would have been 670 dollars per mile. There was considerable objection to using the Knudsen gravel on this road but we have in the past been securing excellent results on roads graveled from the Knudsen pit and felt fully justified in using it. A gravel road is never at its best until the gravel is packed which usually takes several months and the road past the McDougal farm will have a much better riding surface next spring than it now has.

There is sometimes a large difference in cost between two adjoining miles of road when the gravel comes from different its. The cost of graveling the Ludwig Smid farm mile in Erin Township from the Hutchins pit was $940.78 while the cost of graveling the next mile to the south past the Howlett farm from the Haefner pit was $569.08. The future will decide for s which mile was the cheapest in the end. Our cheapest mile cost the county only 47 dollars. This was the mile between sections 19 and 30 Bingham Township on which the balance of the cost was paid by the people who use the road.

This year's construction has placed the county another big step out of the mud and there is now no place in Hancock County more than one and three fourths miles from a gravel road.

PAVING NOW OPEN

Those who wish can now drive on No. 15 going thru Goodell and Belmond as work is nearing completion and the new paving is open to traffic. Work on throwing up embankments and shoulders is being completed.

RAISE PAVING DIPS BETWEEN GARNER AND DUNCAN

GARNER:—Workmen of the Iowa State Highway Commission have been busy the past week raising the paving on U. S. Highway No. 18 between Garner and Duncan in places where it has settled and caused dips in the paving. In one place just west of the Boutilier a Geddes filling station and gard farm the concrete slab was rais eight inches on one side.

A bad bump resulted in the p ing when the Milwaukee railro raised the track a few inches wh it crosses Highway 18 in Gar The paving was raised three inc here to eliminate the bump.

In the operation of raising pavement, holes are first dri through the concrete about feet apart. A cement-dirt mixt under air pressure, is forced un the paving through these holes the cement slab is raised to the sired height.

G. M. Dickson of Forest City engineer with the maintenance partment of the Iowa State H way Commission, is in charge this work.

I Believe--

1. We should have a reduction on all taxes to a point that will be in harmony with the taxpayer's ability to pay.
2. In a state income tax used to replace property levies, based on net earnings.
3. The burden of our present economic distress should be carried by ALL classes of people.
4. That chain organizations do not contribute to the welfare of our country.
5. That each generation has problems of its own to solve, and am therefore opposed to the idea of piling up unnecessary bonded indebtedness to burden our children.
6. That principles are greater than political parties.

WHICH WAY

When an individual's income drops far below his actual expenses and he cannot borrow, he has only one recourse— he must cut his expenses.

Unfortunately, the government has another way— that of increasing its income by levying higher taxes and by taxing additional commodities.

Generations of careful saving will be required to pay what the government has already spent.

Demand action, not promises, in reducing governmental expenditures.

IT'S TIME TO GROW PEONIES

They'll Grow Almost Anywhere But Some Details Need Watching

"A peony will grow any place you put it—just like iris"

This popular belief is fairly accurate. according to W. F. Jeffries. manager of the greenhouse at Iowa State College, but nevertheless. in planting peonies this fall you ought exercise some care about details.

Use a sharp spade or knife in dividing the clumps. It is convenient in cutting them to split the clumps in four sections. If it it desirable and the clump is large enough, cut these sections once again, being careful to save at least three eyes in each section.

In planting the cuttings, set them in the earth about 2 or 3 inches below the surface.

THE FARMER RECEIVES THE EARNINGS OF HIS CO-OPERATIVE CREAMERY COMPANY

In serving the farmers of this community it is our aim to procure for them ever cent that their butterfat will bring. A certain overhead must be met, taxes must be paid, a small sinking fund must be maintained— but aside from that OUR EARNINGS are YOUR EARNINGS paid directly to you on your cream check.

Farmers who do not have the advantage of selling to a co-operative creamery do not have this opportunity— the result is, of course, a lower price for butterfat, as the earnings of the centralizer are not distributed to their patrons. The co-operative creamery is a farmer-owned, farmer operated institution for the farmer.

The Co-Operation Of The Farmers Of This Community Is Appreciated—

LIBERTY TOWNSHIP FARMER IS SUPERVISOR CANDIDATE

Ben F. Greiman, who is the democratic candidate for county supervisor, for the term beginning January 1, 1934, was born in Liberty township on a farm northwest of Klemme and southwest of Garner and has spent all of his life as a farmer in Hancock County.

Mr. Greiman has never before asked the voters for a county office. He has served in his own township as trustee for several year and the records will show that he has handled township affairs in an economical and efficient manner, saving the taxpayers large sums of money on several occasions. He is fully acquainted with drainage matters and road construction as well as any man in Hancock County.

Mr. Greiman has been in close touch with county matters as his father, Wm. F. Greiman, was at one time supervisor of this county, and his record is still a topic of conversation among those who remember back a number of years. Much of the senior Greiman's knowledge was naturally passed along to his son who was interested in the father's work.

The present candidate is a farm owner and a taxpayer and he is greatly interested in eliminating unnecessary expenditures of county funds. Mr. Greiman believes that taxes should, and can be lowered considerably in Hancock County.

Statement To The Public

A a candidate for the office of Supervisor, I deem it only fair to the voters of Hancock County to make a statement as to who I am and what I stand for.

I reside in Britt Twp. about two and one half miles west of the center of thec ounty, where I own and operate a 160 acre farm. I have lived on this farm during the past 18 years I will, if elected. devote my best efforts to conducting the business of the county in the same manner that I conduct my own business and as a means of relieving the overburdened tax payer I shall stand for:—

Reduction of county taxes by reducing number of appointive officers and employees.

Reduction of road building program for the present and until farm prices exceed cost of production.

Doing road maintenance by horse drawn machinery in place of motor propelled machinery in so far as practible,especially as to dirt roads.

A strict observance of the law relating to employment of relatives

A strict oversight into letting of contracts for road and drainage improvements to the end that real competetive bids are received and that the work is let at the lowest price possible, consistent with good work.

I believe the office of Supervisor should be administered in an economical manner, that the perdiam and milcage should be kept down to only as much as is reasonably neccssary to transact the business of the county.

I do not believe that the office require the attendance of the supervisors, either at the Court House or on committee work, anywhere near every working day of the year and I believe the mileage of the members need not be anywhere near as much as is shown by the last financial report of Hancock County, from which I quote the following figures and by way of comparison show the expenses of the board members of Winnebago County for a like period However, to be fair. I wish to call attention to the fact that Winnebago county is only three-fourths as large in arca as Hancock County the population being:

Hancock County 14,692
Winnebago County 13.143

The salaries and mileage of the board of Supenwsors of Hancock County for 1931 amounted to $8,-555 85. while the salaries and mileage of the the Supervisors of Winnebago County amounted to $2,624.91 The difference in the per diem and mileage of the two counties is $5,-830.94.

I am sure the expenses incurred by our board for per diem and mileage could be reduced by one-half, without, in any way, impairing efficiency.

CENTRAL STATES ELECTRIC CO. INSTALLING NEW POWER LINE

Material for a new power line and a crew of men from the Central States Electric Co. arrived in Klemme Monday morning to begin the work of erecting a new power line in Klemme.

A new line is being built from the pumping station along the street to the west, across the tracks and connected to the high line. This new power line will feed the motors at the pumping station.

The present feeder line comes across the track around the farmers elevator, through the alley on the south side of main street and to the pumping station. As the old line is in the fire hazard district and in case of a bad fire which might destroy the lne, it would put the pumps out of commission. The new line goes through a district that is safe from any such accident.

NORTHERN LUMBER CO. HAS NOVEL DISPLAY SYSTEM

During the past few weeks the Northern Lumber Company have made a number of improvements at their yard.

One of the heretofore little-used, but necessary pieces of equipment at the yard was the "cat-walk" along the piles of lumber. This catwalk was used to handle lumber in the upper bins. Here an improvement was made by installing a railing along the walk. This gave an excellent space for displaying a number of items of merchandise carried at the yard. The price of each article is marked on a panel of the railing. Not only did the railing improve the looks of the walk but it was put to good use.

Just another little item of improvement is a display rack which has been built and set up in front of the yard. This rack at present carries a display of woven wire. It is built to display almost any article in the yard and has a frame for two signs. As the improvements were made they were also painted with cream and green paints, a combination that looks very nice in the yard

Paul Grange, the manager, is to be complimented on the way he keeps up the appearance of the yard Without doubt. the Northern Company yard in Klemme is among the best in Iowa, both as to beauty. convenience and stock carried.

HERE'S LIST OF STATES AND ELECTORAL VOTES OF EACH

New York And Pennsylvania Have Most Votes; Wyoming Only Three

Following is a list of states and the number of electoral votes each is entitled to. We do not vote directly for the Presidents of the United States, as some people believe. The electors in each state cast the vote in the direction of the swing. However, it is possible that the man receiving the popular vote may not be elected. He may not get enough electoral votes. The whole thing is silly and there is a movement on foot to do away with the present system and in it's place the man receiving the majority vote will be elected.

The list follows:

Emil Patet perhaps holds the record of something out of the ordinary Mr. Patet has sung for 372 funerals. He began his peculiar career in Germany as a boy where he was called upon on numerous occasion to sing at funerals. Mr. Patet has sung at funerals at Garner, Forest City, Hayfield, Crystal Lake, Goodell and Klemme, Iowa and at Eureka Kansas. Most of his appearances as a funeral singer have been at Forest City. After Emil Patet has reached his 375 appearance singing at a funeral, he says he is going to celebrate the event by inviting in a number of friends to his party.

We believe Mr. Patet holds a national record in the number of times he has sung at funeral services.

The Pathfinder magazine says that Iowa is the only state in which poison ivy is not found. We would like to show the Pathfinder editor where he can find just plenty of poison ivy in Iowa.

It may seem odd, but one of our Klemme ladies, who we would say is rather well versed on the progress of the times. asked for a two cent stamp at the post office the other day. She was quite surprised when Postmaster Frank Gibbs told her that a letter now required three cents postage, and in fact. has, for several months.

CORN AS CHEAP FUEL AS COAL

Tests Show That 40 Bushels Corn Equal Ton Of Iowa Coal

Iowa farmers can burn corn just as cheaply as Iowa coal, a little cheaper than Illinois coal and much cheaper than anthracite, at present prices, according to results of a survey conducted by the Iowa Engineering Experiment Station.

That, however is not the whole story. It may be more profitable to feed corn and market it as meat next spring or fall, workers at the College point out. There may be sufficient moldy and unmarketable corn for the winter fuel. There may be sufficient cobs and wood on the farm to supply the winter fuel. Then again, even though the expense is the same, it may be more convenient to sell corn and buy coal.

According to the tests conducted 141 pounds of ear corn with 8 percent moisture had the same heating value as 100 pounds of Iowa coal. In other words, 40 bushels of crn (70 pounds per bushel) are equivalent to a ton of Iowa coal. About 47 bushels of corn are equal to a ton of anthracite. It would require the corn from 10 acres of Iowa land to produce enough fuel to heat the average house for one winter.

Prices on Iowa coal are about $5.25 to $5.75 per ton; Illinois coal (best grade) $.75 to $8.00; anthracite. around $19.00. Corn is selling around 13 and 14 cents.

Dry cobs are equal to ear corn for fuel purposes.

Other influences enter into the problem of whether to use fuel or not. The grates usually have to be covered with coal clinkers or the kernels will drop through and be lost. There has been no method discovered to hold a corn fire overnight. Additional tests are planned to discover, if possible, a method of holding a corn fire. Another problem is to protect the corn from mice and rats.

The amount of ash from a corn or cob fire is very small—usually 1.84 percent or 1¼ pounds for each 70 pound bushel, the tests showed.

CATTLE AND LAMBS ARE BEST GRAIN AND FORAGE MARKET

An abundance of cheap feed this fall makes cattle and lambs the outstanding market for grains and forage, according to Mr. S. J. Oberhauser, county Agricultural Agent, who at the same time issues a word of caution of inexperienced feeders who may now be making their purchases of feeding animals.

Mr. Oberhauser also states that information just received from the National Live Stock Marketing Association, warns countrymen to beware of speculators who in some Corn Belt counties are taking advantage of the demand for feeding animals and are peddling small lots of cattle and lambs to individual feeders at prices ranging from $1.50 to $3.00 per hundred above the prices at which similar grades can be bought on the market.

Stringency of local credit in most communities enables these operators to offer a proposition that appears attractive at present feed prices, in view of top cattle prices particularly. They offer seven per cent money as a bait to buy these low quality cattle which will probably be fed for spring of ear'y summer market, just the market which should be avoided for this class of cattle.

Observing market men have noted that in the case of lambs the movement to the Corn Belt is greatly curtailed, which means reduced supplies and improved markets during the period from early December to early February—a fact which should be kept in mind regardless of where the lambs are bought.

Prospective feeders of either the lambs or cattle should get in touch with the Farm Bureau office or the nearest co-operative live stock sale agency for information on market supplies and credit for feeding animals.

Reconstruction Finance Corporation loans to cattle and sheep feeders are now available through the Regional Agricultural Credit Corporation at Sioux City. This new bank was recently established at Sioux City and anyone desiring further information call at local Farm Bureau office.

DEVISE NEW POULTRY FORMULA

High Protein Mash Permits More Home Grown Grains

Feed formulas developed by Poultry Husbandry Department Iowa State College are planned permit the maximum use of home grown grains.

A new laying mash is recommended which is richer in protein than those generally recommended. Such a mash costs more per ton than one lower in protein, but more home grown grain can be used with a mash rich in protein and the total cost of balancing the ration is reduced to a minimum.

The new plan of feeding calls for the use of 2 parts of grain to 1 part mash. When a mash containing 20 per cent protein is fed more ground feed must be fed to balance the ration and therefore the total cost of feeding per hundred is increased. With a rich mash before hens are given all the mash and grain they can eat at night, about one fourth of the night allowance in the morning.

YOUR VOTE

A formidable barrier to economic recovery is govermental expense.

The government must stop waste —cut out every dollar of unnecessary expenditure. Until that is accomplished there is very little foundation on which we may build hope for a business recovery.

Before you vote, interview your candidate and find out what he will actually do and what steps he will take to cut out government expense.

SAMPLE BALLOT

A sample ballot just like the official ballot to be used at the election Nov. 8, will be found in this issue. Only your official ballot will have the township candidates names

Save this ballot and study it carefully. Then you will find it easier to mark your ballot when you get into the voting booth and you will be able to do it in less time.

HOW TO MARK YOUR BALLOT

(1) If you want to vote a straight ticket put a cross in the CIRCLE at the top of your party's column.

(2) If you want to "scratch your ticket", put a cross in the circle at the top of the party to which you are giving most of your support Then go over to the other column and put crosses in the SQUARES to the left of the candidates for whom you want to vote. Such a ticket counts for all the candidates under the circle where you put the cross, excepting those candidates in the other columns, before whose names you put crosses.

(3) Or you may place a cross in the square opposite the name of each candidate for whom you desire to vote without placing any cross in any circle.

(4) Don't sign your name to the ballot or put any identification mark on it.

(5) Don't erase any mark you make on your ballot. If you spoil your ballot, give it back to the election judges and they will give you another. If you spoil that, they will give you a third one.

OBITUARY OF WM. SMITH

Wm Smith, son of Joesph and Elizabeth Smith was born Jan. 15. 1858, at Lockport, Illinois.

He spent his boyhood days with his parents on a farm at Green Garden, Illinois. and there he grew to manhood He was skilled in handling tools and became a proficient carpenter, at which trade he worked for several years at Joliet, Illinois.

He was married to Emma Ross on Aug. 22. 1883 and to this union two daughters were born. In March 1894, they moved to Klemme, Ia. and settled on a farm southeast of town. They endured some of the hardships of pioneer life, but the happy little family often recalled those days with pleasure. Mr. Smith often remarked that if there was a part of his life he would like to live over it would be those days.

Soon after coming to Iowa the Methodist church was founded here and they took an active part in making it possible and were among the first members. Mr Smith was a regular attendant at church services until a few years ago when he was unable to go but enjoyed listening to services over the radio

They moved from the farm to town about 13 years ago and have resided here since then. On August 22, 1933 they would have celebrated their golden wedding and were making plans for it.

After a few days of serious illness he passed away Tuesday morning October 25. He leaves to mourn his departure: his wife and two daughters, Mrs. Bert Mathews of Clear Lake, Iowa, and Mrs. John N Day of Klemme, one grandson Dorance Smith Day of Klemme; one sister and four brothers residing at Yakima, Wash.,: a brother at Joliet. Ill., and a brother at Pasadena. California; and a host of friends, who extend their sincere sympathy to the bereaved family.

EDITOR AND FAMILY ENJOY ROASTED MOOSE MEAT DINNER

Editor Jorgenson and family, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. J. Jorgenson of Garner. drove to Mason City Sunday and were dinner guests at the Lyle Liebendorfer home. We were given a rare treat in that we enjoyed a meal which is rare in Iowa: roasted Moose meat. The moose was shot in Canada by a friend of Mr. Liebendorfer's who gave him a large piece to roast. The moose weighed some over 700 pound on the hoof. The man who shot the moose also shot a deer and the animals had to be packed ten miles back to the camp from where they were shot.

Those who have never had the opportunity to eat moose meat we might say that it is darker than beef but of a finer texture. It might be classed as a meat of a texture and flavor between good beef and venison.

"Happy" Johnson, who raises call ducks as a hobby and also as a means of having the next thing to wild duck for dinner occasionally, reports an item for our odd oddities. The other day "Happy" dressed one of his fine ducks and discovered that the bird was a freak. It had one foot webbed in the manner of all good and regular ducks. but the other foot was not webbed. It had more of the appearance of the foot of a mud hen as the toes had but a small projection of web. Maybe the bird is a cross between a mud-hen and a mallard, who can tell? We are also of the opinion that the duck would swim in a circle. "Happy" suggested, however, that the duck paddled twice as fast with the "mud-hen" foot as he did with the regular duck foot. Maybe so.

Statement To The Public By

Frank J. Schoun

Republican candidate for Supervisor

I was opposed by Republican candidates for nomination at the June Primary. In that campaign, I stood on the record as made from the time of my appointment as Supervisor on February 2, 1931. The campaign conducted by my Republican opponent was fair and I in turn carried on a clean campaign.

In a recent statement to the press of Hancock County, my democratic opponent. Mr. Barker, sets forth his platform and in fairness to myself and other members of the Board, I believe this statement requires an answer and that the people are entitled toh an answer and it is solely because the people are entitled to an answer that this statement is made. I. therefore, reply to the statement in the order in which the points appeared in the public statement of my opponent.

(1.) I agree with my opponent that he has conducted his own business of farming in as satisfactory a manner as could be possible in the past several years, So have I. So have innumerable farmers of Hancock county, who are not candidates for office.

(2.) The Board has reduced salaries of appointive officers and employees, from ten to fifteen percent. It must be kept in mind that the county offices and records contain complete records of all the proceedings and of the most important and vital matters to every citizen of Hancock county. The people are entitled to have those records kept and maintained in the most efficient manner consistent with public welfare. I do not regard it as consistent with public welfare that inefficient help be employed or that absolutely necessary employees be dismissed from service. The cost to the tax payer would be greatly increased by such service.

(3.) Undoubtedly, he does not know that there has been a great reduction of the road building program. All optional levy 1933 were eliminated. Most of the mandatory levies were eliminated and the levy for 1933 for road purposes was fixed by the Board at the time of the budget hearing at 7½ mills. No levy whatever was made for construction work for 1933. A saving of $74.000.00 in 1933 taxes was effected by the present Board in eliminating levies or road construction work. The Board did considerable new construction work n 1932, but there was a large balance of $68.000.00 carred over from previous years in the Road Fund which could be used for no other purpose.

(4.) In reference to maintenance by horse drawn machinery, I now have more than twenty horse drawn machinery maintainers in my district.

(5.) The records will show that since I went on the Board on Feb. 2. 1931, no contracts for road or drainage improvements have been let, except by competetive bids after due advertisement for bids was published, except, of course. as to minor repairs which were important and necessary to be made at once.

(6.) In reference to the per diem and mileage, my opponent has compared mileage and per diem of the Board members of Hancock county with that of Winnebago county. In this respect, it must be kept in mind that Hancock county has four more townships than Winnebago county and has a population of about 1500 more than Winnebago County. On January, 1. 1932, Hancock county had 131½ miles of graveled Trunk roads to Winnebago county's 83½ miles. Hancock county had 240 miles of gravelled local county roads to Winnebago county's 92 miles. Hancock conuty has 135 drainage districts. Winnebago county does not have that many. The mileage incurred in looking after these gravelled roads and drainage districts is very small as compared wth the cost of repair if they were permitted to go uninspected. Further, on January 1, 1932, Winnebago county had outstanding road bonds for secondary road work of $150,700.00. Hancock county had NONE and in the budget hearing of Winnebago county. the mandatory levies which were eliminated by Hancock county were levied for 1933 by Winnebago county.

It has been said that I served only a part of 1931. I served eleven months of that year. It might be interesting to note that the average bonded indebtedness of all the counties in Iowa for roads and bridges on primary roads is $147,967.00 over the entire state, and that Hancock county has NONE. Comparison with our sister counties of Winnebago, Cerro Gordo and Wright would disclose that the levies made by the present Board of Hancock county for 1933 are materially less than those counties. went into effect, each township in the county had a Road Superintendent and each township had three Township Trustees whose duty it was to inspect, build and supervise township roads The Bergman law placed all of this with the Boards of Supervisors, thus eliminating in Hancock County, sixteen township road Superintendents and placing upon the Board of Supervisors the duty to inspect. supervise and build the roads which had previously been under the jurisdiction of these sixteen township road superintendents and the Township Trustees of each township, or forty-eight in number. Thus the duty, in so far as road problems are concerned, of sixty four officers or employees now is handled by the three members of the Board of Supervisors.

In some counties the Board has employed an overseer of the poor at a large salary and mileage. In this county, the Board has considered it more economical for each member to attend to this in his particular district.

In closing, let me suggest that there is scarcely a day, including Sundays and holidays, that I do not receive letters of telephone calls from some taxpayer in the county, calling attention to necessary drainage matter, road repairs, bridges or culverts or something of that nature. I regard it as my duty when such things are reported to investigate and see that immediate attention is given to it and when report is made to me of some child or family in urgent need of food. clothing or medical attention, I regard it as my duty to nvestigate before incurring the expense, and if elected. I shall follow the same course.

I nave attempted. during my tenure of office, to render to the people, efficient, economical service and I know that the records will disclose that I have. It must be kept in mind that to manage the affairs of the county and to oversee the drainage districts, the road work, etc. that some one must be on the job. It is not practicable to employ men for any purpose without some supervision.

I do not intend to promise that if I am elected, I will cease this vigilance. Should I do so, I would be false to myself and false to the welfare of the County and the tax payer would pay for it in the long run by large expenditures for repair work which could be easily avoided by plugging up the holes when they first appear. This is false economy and should my opponent be successful and neglect to do these things which his statement implies. the taxpayer will pay thousands of dollars in excess of any amount saved on mileage for reconstruction.. work which could have been avoided.

Respectfully submitted,

Frank J. Schoun

Principles

Should Be Greater than Political Parties

At the general election each voter receives a blanket ballot and may vote for whichever candidate he chooses. regardless of party. Therefore, the candidate elected is the choice of the people and his sole aim during tenure of office should be to advance and protect the interest of those whom he represents. I do not believe in creating more government bureaus and offices to increase the tax burden merely to strengthen a political machine. In my opinion this is not the proper conduct for a conscientious representative

My platform will be founded on common sense, careful consideration of the issues as they present themselves and conscientious labor for the welfare of my constituents.

And I pledge myself to leave no stone unturned for real and lasting tax reduction.

In closing I wish to express my sincere thanks for the courtesies, encouragement and kindness accorded me in this campaign, and, regardless of the outcome on November 8, I shall only cherish the kindest memories for the people of Hancock County.

"WILL SAVE YOU MONEY"

NOUNCEMENT OF
E. KLIPPING

e June Primary campaign, by statement in the by letter, I stated my position on the County af-
I was chosen as the nominee of the Republican Supervisor.

in the last few weeks, I have been advised of mparing the per diem and mileage received by me of Suprvisor Severson of Winnebago County. Any parison is unfair. Hancock County has four more than Winnebago County, and more active drainicts. Anyone at all familiar with the affairs of the nows that the county roads and drainage districts much more attention, if the same are to receive ttention, than any other of the county's affairs.
rson of Winnebago County has three townships and of Forest City is included in his district, which cessarily reduce his mileage, as a Supervisor would hing to do with roads in the city. I have five and townships in my district. The Winnebago Superferred to has 152 miles of local county road and es of Trunk road. In 1932, there was graded in his 8 miles and 3 miles gravelled. The total number of ded in the entire county of Winnebago in 1932 was the total amount graveled was 27 miles in that As against that, I have 308 miles of local county miles of Trunk road and in my district, there was in 1932, 33 miles, 30 miles were gravelled and 10 re re-surfaced. It will thus be seen that there were miles graded in my district alone than was graded tire county of Winnebago in 1932. There are 131½ gravelled county Trunk roads in Hancock County st 83½ miles in Winnebago County, and 240 miles county roads that are gravelled in Hancock County st 92 in Winnebago County. The bonded indebted-secondary road work in Hancock Couty is NONE,
Winnebago County, $150,700.00.

m the foregoing it must be self-evident that a comwith the mileage and per diem of any Supervisor in go County is unfair. It has been my policy and the the Board of Supervisors of this county to give to its drainage districts and roads. I do not believe is economy to spend hundreds of thousands of dol-on drainage improvements and a net work of roads we enjoy in this county, and then after the work is ed to neglect thorough inspection of the work, not it progresses but at intervals after its completion purpose of detecting the necessity of repairs which fixed and taken care of at small expense if taken in that policy is wrong, then I admit that I have not the duties of my office as I should have. I have n the conduct of my farm, considered it to be wise to purchase an expensive article of machinery and l to keep it in repair, nor have I considered it econ-my farming operations, to fail to repair a building n tile, when failure to repair might endanger the ile line or the building structure, and the only way know of keeping roads in drainage districts in repair personal inspection of these improvements. I know e saving to the tax-payers of the county in keeping mprovements in a good state of repair and before amage was done, by close inspection, has saved them housands of dollars in excess of the salaries and of all of the county officials combined.

know that I have made mistakes, but I also know that attended to the duties of my office with honesty instaking care. There may be some who could have better, but there are none who can or would try than I have, to render faithful service.

ncock County has, by reduction of levies for road s alone, reduced the 1933 levies by $74,000, which than any of our neighboring counties. It occurs to if a comparison is to be made with other counties, omparison should be made of the entire expenditures counties and of the levies made. The opposition onsiderable capital out of the per diem and mileage by the Board of Supervisors of this county, howe reduction in taxes for 1933 of Hancock County are xcess of our sister counties. Is it not, therefore, fair ese matters should all be taken into consideration? I n my district, 25 horse drawn maintainers and have to employ unemployed people, in so far as possible.
elected, I shall strive for further economy and res and shall follow the same policy in the future as in
, with reference to devoting my best energies to the of the county as a whole. I most cordially invite who is desirous of knowing the facts relating to k County, to the records on file in the Auditor's Of-Garner, and to take those records as to expenditures nduct of the county's affairs and as to tax levies and e them with any county in the state having the same of miles of improved roads and the same number e drainage districts, and I suggest that the result would be more favorable to the present Board than f statement herein contained would indicate.

CRISIS IN DEPRESSION MET HOOVER AT CAMP

Day and Night Session by President on Long Distance Telephone Prevented Collapse at Crucial Moment.

An incident dramatically illustrating President Hoover's courage in emergencies and his ability to accomplish results against seemingly hopeless odds is recounted by E. A. Van Valkenburg, former publisher of the Philadelphia North American

In a letter to his son-in-law, Mr C. E. Bennett, of Wellsboro, Pennsylvania, Mr Van Valkenburg recently set down of his own knowledge the details of one battle as typifying the struggle which the President, almost unknown to the country at large, was waging to save our whole national structure. He feels it may now be told—and should be told—since the danger that then threatened is definitely past

"One of the primary difficulties," he wrote, "is that Hoover has been dealing with a situation where he dared not even describe the difficulties lest he precipitate worse difficulties. When the whole economic fabric of the world was tottering, when there was just one possibility of saving the day and the United States, to have gone out and described the situation would have precipitated complete collapse. He has had to remain inarticulate. The public has therefore been unable to appreciate what has taken place, and yet he has won one of the most gigantic victories ever fought in the history of the United States.

Emergency Call at Rapidan.

"At eight o'clock on a Saturday night at the worst of the depression, the President was called by phone at his Rapidan camp. The head of the largest Chicago bank told him that not a city bank would dare open its doors the following Monday unless given financial help.

"Had the Chicago banks failed at that critical time, it would have been only a question of days before the other banks of the country would have gone down like a row of falling bricks. Efforts of Chicago bankers to obtain necessary help from banking circles in other cities had failed. Eighty million dollars was the amount needed. Only the Hoover relief measures were available.

"The President, undaunted, received the startling news, requested that the representatives of the Chicago banks be immediately called together and await word from him. Then obtaining a wire to Washington, he asked that members of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation be summoned. Next, a wire was opened to New York and representative bankers and members of the Federal Reserve Board were hurriedly called into conference.

"With an open circuit from Chicago to New York passing through Washington and the Rapidan, the President sat at the telephone throughout the night directing the mobilization of banking credit and currency sufficient to avert the impending catastrophe. At eight o'clock the following night he hung up the phone, knowing the situation had been saved.

Crisis Successfully Met.

"Thirty million dollars of currency was delivered to the tottering bank before opening hour Monday morning. Fifty million dollars more soon followed. The greatest crisis of the depression had been successfully met. The recognized leaders of finance did not initiate and direct this stupendous achievement. In its entirety it was the accomplishment of a weary man who had gone to a mountain retreat for a brief, uninterrupted rest."

This, however, was but one battle of a warfare which Hoover waged upon a hundred fronts, Van Valkenburg writes. "During all this cataclysmic period," he says, "only one man in Washington kept his head and retained his nerve. During this perilous period I frequently saw the President in action and thus learned how completely he grasped a situation so baffling to others. I watched him move unhesitatingly, sometimes with caution and at other times with swiftness and vigor.

Moratorium First Move.

"The historian likely will fix the German moratorium as the first decisive move to check the world depression. From that day the President regarded the preservation of our national credit structure as the supreme need. In no other way could our economic system have been safeguarded and unemployment ultimately relieved.

"With all Washington bewildered, one intrepid soul remained undaunted. From one source only came any comprehensive plan for relief.

Supreme Leadership.

"The originality and resourcefulness which conceived and formulated the vast program of constructive measures which has saved our national credit structure and arrested the depression constitutes genius of the higher order. To obtain the enactment of these intricate, interlocking laws, carrying the largest appropriation ever known in peace time, through a hostile and partisan Congress, called for supreme leadership.

"But transcending all was the unfaltering, heroic courage displayed by this silent worker determined to forestall and prevent national economic ruin. Only boundless courage of heroic quality could have sustained this patient, tireless man in carrying on with such unfaltering persistence. History will not fail to accord him full credit."

Pointed Comment by Calvin Coolidge

Since the main causes of our difficulties lay in a failure of credit, the first object should be to restore credit. That is the policy which President Hoover has constantly advocated.

Casting a ballot to determine who shall be President of the United States ought to take on a judicial function. The ability, experience and character of the candidate, the policies with which he has identified himself in the past and those which he proposes for the future, and the standing of his associates and advisers ought all to be carefully considered.

Things are much worse in other parts of the world. They could be a great deal worse here than they are and they would have been much worse if it had not been for the vision, the courage and the leadership of President Hoover.

We have advocated strengthening the position of the employer in order that he might pay better wages to his employees, enlarge the consumptive capacity of the people and increase the market for the farm and factory.

If initiating proposals and securing their adoption constitutes leadership, President Hoover is a leader. If saving the country from one impending disaster after another provides any basis for gratitude, President Hoover is entitled to gratitude. . . . The more this campaign has progressed the more I am convinced that the public welfare requires that he should be re-elected.

No constructive program for the revival of industry and for commercial and financial relief was presented by the Democratic party in the last session of Congress.

It is very easy to criticize after the event. Constructive leadership is not so easy. . . . When it is constantly charged that President Hoover lacks leadership I hope I may be pardoned for reference to what appears to be offered in its place.

At the present time the country knows that its worst troubles are probably past and economic recovery is beginning.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Jorgenson, of Garner visited at the home of the Editor last Thursday.

THE CHRISTIAN AND WORLD PEACE

Psalm. 22:27, 28; Psalm 68:1-7; Psalm 72:8-19; Isaiah 2:1-4; Matthew 28:16-20; Ephesians 2:13-19.

GOLDEN TEXT—Blessed are the peacemakers: for they shall be called the children of God. Matthew 5:9.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Peace and Good Will Among Men.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Our Part in Making World Peace.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Why Work for World Peace.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Christian Duty to Promote World Peace.

The Scripture selections for today's lesson are vital, but in the settings given by the lesson committee will be decidedly misleading. World peace can only come through the appearing of the Prince of Peace, and the establishing of His Messianic kingdom. Clearness here is imperative.

I. The Lord, the Ruler of the Nations (Ps. 22:27, 28).

The present unhappy conditions in the world are a result of the failure of the nations to recognize Jesus Christ. As long as the peoples of the earth refuse allegiance to Jesus Christ and are swayed by the gods of their own creation and lust, there will be war and bloodshed.

II. How Gladness Is to Come to the Nations (Ps. 66:1-7).

This is to be realized by the assertion of divine power. When God arises

1. The enemies will be scattered (vv. 1, 2). They shall be put to flight before the Lord God Omnipotent. Two figures are used: Smoke dispelled by the blast, and wax melted by the heat. The wicked shall perish before the whirlwind and fire of divine power.

2. Happiness will prevail among the righteous (vv. 3-6). The rule of the Lord will bring rejoicing on the part of the people of God.

III. The Character of Christ's Reign (Ps. 72:1-19).

This Psalm describes the glorious reign of Christ upon the earth. It is that reign for which we pray when we say "Thy kingdom come."

1. It will be a reign of righteousness (vv. 1-4). Justice and equity shall be meted out to all.

2. It will be an unending reign (vv. 5-7).

3. It will be a universal kingdom (vv. 8-11). All kings shall fall down before him, and all nations shall serve him.

4. It will be a beneficent reign (vv. 12-14). Christ, the King, will have compassion upon the weak who are unable to help themselves.

5. It will be a prosperous kingdom (vv. 15-17). Full blessing shall then come to the earth. There will be no depression at that time.

IV. Israel's Spiritual and National Position (Isa. 2:1-4).

This scripture pictures the place of influence which shall be exercised by Israel in this time.

1. When shall it be? (v. 2). "In the last days." By last days is usually meant in Scripture, the times of the Messiah, for this is the primary subject of all prophecy.

2. What shall it be? (v. 2). The restoration of the kingdom of Judah to the place of pre-eminence among the nations of the world. This vision of Zion's glory refers to the millennium age, at which time other nations of the world will learn of the truth of God through the chosen nation.

3. The result (vv. 2-4). The return of God's favor to this chosen people shall be "life from the dead" to the nations of the earth (Rom. 11:15).

a. Nations shall flow unto it (v. 2). This pictures the masses of the people moving toward Jerusalem.

b. Nations shall encourage each other (v. 3). Jealousies will be forgotten and each will move to Jerusalem to be taught of God.

c. Peace in the earth (v. 4). When Israel shall be in her God-appointed place with Jesus Christ as King, wars will be over.

V. The King's Great Commission (Matt. 28:18-20).

1. The royal authority (v. 18).

By virtue of his divine authority he issues this commandment to the disciples and declares that all power in heaven and earth has been given unto him.

2. The commission itself (vv. 19, 20).

a. To teach all nations.

b. To baptize them in the name of the Triune God.

c. To teach them to observe all of Christ's commandments (v. 20).

Testimonials of Recent Accomplishments of Peck Hanson, Sheriff

BY APPLYING TACTFUL METHODS, BORN ONLY OF EXPERIENCE IN HANDLING CRIMINALS, PECK HANSON, AS SHERIFF, HAS SECURED CONFESSIONS AND CONVICTIONS OF LAW VIOLATORS WITHOUT COST, WHEREAS A LESS EXPERIENCED OFFICIAL WOULD HAVE SPENT THOUSANDS OF DOLLARS OF THE TAXPAYERS MONEY TO SECURE THE SAME RESULTS

To Whom It May Concern:

I have lived in Hancock county for 40 years. am the owner of three hundred twenty acres of land located in Madison township, Hancock County, Iowa, being a taxpayer I am interested in the election of the county officers in this county.

I have been acquainted with Peck Hanson for twenty years and have contacted him as a public official and especially a sheriff and take pleasure in recommending him as a real sheriff. I know that he is always ready and willing to do his duty as a public official and also know that he saved Hancock county several thousand dollars in just one case, that he handled in Madison township, as well as doing a real service to the community. I say vote for him and be assured of real service as this is no time to change a man like Peck.

Respectfully,
J. J. LOWE

I am pleased to state that Sheriff Peck Hanson did wonderful service for Twin Lake Township in recovering money that was being held by a concern or a party rperesenting a concern was being held by a concern or a party representing a company dealing in school supplies. I believe that experience is necessary in order to render the service that is demanded by the public at this time.

Respectfully,
A. G. RUKA, Pres.
EARL RUKA, Sec'y

Our creamery was entered on a Sunday night. Peck Hanson was notified of the theft of cheese and butter and on Tuesday morning he placed the party who had committed the crime under arrest. got a plea of guilty from him and now he is serving at Anamosa, Iowa.

Respectfully,
PETER JOSTEN, Sec'y

This is to certify that on the 9th day of May, 1931. there was stolen from my pasture truck load of cattle. The cattle were taken from the pasture on Thursday or Friday night and Peck Hanson was notified of the theft of the cattle on Saturday noon and in about a week Peck Hanson arrested one Geo. H. Claussen of Renwick, Iowa, who confessed to the stealing of the cattle and is now serving a sentence at the Fort Madison penitentiary and in addition to locating and getting a confession from the guilty party, Peck Hanson was also the means of collectng from the Iowa Packing company of Des Moines, Iowa. the amount paid for the cattle after they had been slaughtered. I must say that Peck Hanson was on the job from the minute I reported it to him until the guilty one had been placed behind the bars and that no one could have given any better service and such service is just what is demanded at this time.

Respectfully,
HARRY C. RUKA

WORDS AND DEEDS

ROOSEVELT'S Words	HOOVER'S Deeds

The Agricultural Tariff.

The claim that the Republican tariff is a benefit to the farmer is a cynical and pitiless fraud.

Two million cattle in the northern states of Mexico are seeking a market. The price is about $2.50 per 100 pounds on the south bank of the Rio Grande. It is $4.50 on the north bank. Only the tariff wall stands between.

Farm Mortgages.

It is my purpose, if elected, to formulate definite projects to relieve this distress. Specifically I am prepared to insist that federal credit be extended to banks, insurance or loan companies or other corporations or individuals holding farm mortgages.

Aid has already been provided to the whole mortgage situation by loans from the Reconstruction corporation to banks, mortgage companies and insurance companies to enable them to show consideration to their farm borrowers. As a result of these actions, hundreds of thousands of foreclosures have been prevented.

Foreign Trade.

I advocate a policy based in large part upon the simple principle of profitable exchange arrived at through negotiated tariffs, with benefit to each nation.

Acting on recommendations by the president, the Reconstruction corporation haa made credits available for the sales of farm products in new markets abroad. This is opening immediate markets for America's farm surplus.

The Bonus and Printing Press Money.

? ? ? (The Democratic candidate has made no statement on this issue, which was approved by the house of representatives, under Democratic leadership, in the last session of congress.)

President Hoover opposed bill, passed by house under Democratic leadership, which would have paid soldiers' bonus with issue of $2,500,000,000 in fiat printing press money. Proposal blocked by Republican senate.

Franklin D. Roosevelt
International Banker

Advertisement published in The Chronicle of October 13, 1922.

As Democratic Presidential Candidate, Franklin D. Roosevelt assails "international bankers, gypping the unsuspecting American public with worthless securities." He promises that, if elected, he will seek legislation to curb such activities

As president of the United European Investors, Ltd., this same Franklin D. Roosevelt in 1922 invited American investors "to participate in the large earnings and dividends of German securities." Through advertisements in leading American cities, United European Investors, Ltd., offered to accept "checks, currency, bonds, credits in Germany" in exchange for its shares.

The New York Times of September 14, 1922, quoted a statement given out by the new corporation of which Mr. Roosevelt was president, as follows:

"It is quite apparent that, in spite of present economic disturbances, Germany is today hard at work and will sooner or later regain her industrial and commercial prosperity. It is, therefore, quite feasible to take advantage of the cheapness of the mark. . . ."

On December 15, 1922, the Times said: "Announcement was made yesterday by the United European Investors, Ltd., through its president, Franklin D. Roosevelt, that the first 100,000,000 mark investment had been made by the corporation in a widely diversified list of nineteen stocks, all but one of which are listed on the Boerse. . . . Mr. Roosevelt and his associates formed the company in September, taking out a Canadian charter. . . ."

Said by Calvin Coolidge

Working for the general run of people is exactly what we should expect from President Hoover because he knows them by being one of them. . . . He was not born to the enjoyment of generations of inherited wealth . . . educated by private tutors. . . . He was never carried into political office by the way of family influence.

I would hav you consider this message a personal call from me, and if you can conscientiously do s ask that you place a cross (X) in the square opposite my name on election day. Suc action on your part will place me under lasting obligation to you.

W. D. DALY

PECK HANSON

INDEPENDENT CANDIDATE FOR

Sheriff of Hancock County

Respectfully solicits your support at the general election, to be held Tuesday November 8.

I believe that my past record as sheriff of Hancock County is outstanding in many respects, and I trust that you will not consider me too egotistical as I venture to place before you some facts pertaining to my tenure of office.

During the year 1928, I was sheriff of Hancock county. At the primary election of that year t voters of the county saw fit to name another in my place. My term expired January 1, 1929 and retired. Here are some facts born out of the records at the court house. They should be of intere to the taxpayers of Hancock county:

During the year 1928, there was collected in fines, $2,898.75. The expense of the office that year was $2,783.88, leaving a balance of $114.87 over and above salary and expense.

During the year 1929, a period in which I was not in office, the expense of the sheriff's office amounted to $3,326.57. Fines collected totaled $1,200, leaving a deficit of $2,126.57 for the year 1929 for the taxpayers of Hancock county to assume.

On the 9th day of May. 1931, Harry Ruka of Twin Lake township, had a truckload of cattle stol from his pasture. In less than one week after being notified, as sheriff I apprehended the pers who stole the cattle, and secured a confession from him. thru my efforts. pay for the cattle w also secured for Mr. Ruka.

As sheriff I made a duplicate check collection for Twin Lake township after legal counsel insist that it could not be done.

Secured a confession and plea of "guilty" to a charge of "arson" from Gus Schram. Schram is n serving a 20-year sentence at Fort Madison. Out of the "arson" confession developed a charge first degree murder, and Schram is now under indictment on that charge.

Apprehended the party who entered the Klemme Creamery one Sunday night and stole butter a cheese. Two days later the offender was brought into court and upin admission of guilt was tak to Anamosa reformatory.

(Detailed personal statements from persons directly interested in above offenses of the law, are published elsewhere in this issue.)

There has been but one automobile stolen within Hancock county while I have been serving as sheriff, that has not been found and returned to the owner

Confession of offenses to the law has saved Hancock county taxpayers thousands of dollars dur my tenure of office. Long drawn-out court proceedings involving great cost have therby been elim ated.

I have at all times tried to do my duty as an official; have tried to be a friend to humanity, giv particular attention to the needs of worthy poor and afflicted.

If elected, the same careful attention will be given public affairs that they have received in the past.

Respectfully yours,

PECK HANSON

Statement To The Public

As a candidate for the office of Supervisor, I deem it only fair to the voters of Hancock county to make a statment as to who I am and what I stand or.

I reside in Britt Twp. about two and one half miles west of the center of the county, where I own and operate a 160 acre farm, having lived on this farm during the past 18 years.

I will, if elected, devote my best efforts to conducting the business of the county in the same manuer that I conduct my own business and as a means of relieving the overburdened tax payer I shall stand for:

Reduction of county taxes by reducing the number of appointive officers and employees.

Reduction of road building program for the present and until the prices of farm products exceed cost of production.

Doing road maintainance by horse drawn machinery in place of motor propelled machinery in so far as practible, especially as to dirt roads.

A strct observance of the law relating to employment of relatives.

A strict oversight in letting of contracts for road and draniage improvements to the end that real competetive bids are received and that the work is let at the lowest possible price consistent with good work.

I believe the office of Supervisor should be administered in an economical manner. that per diem and mileage should be kept down to only as much as is reasonably necessary to transact the business of the county.

I do not believe that the office requires the attendance of the supervisors, either at the Court House or on committee work. anywhere near every working day of the year and I believe the mileage of the members need not be anywhere near as much as is shown by the last financial report of Hancock county, from which I quote the following figures and by way of comparison show the expenses of the board members of Winnebago county for a like period. However. to be fair I wish to call attention to the fact that Winnebago county is only three-fourths as large area as Hancock county; the population being:

Hancock County	14,692
Winnebago County	13,143

The salaries and mileage of the Board of Supervisors of Hancock county for 1931 amounted to $8,555.85, while the salaries and mileage for the Board of Supervisors of Winnebago county for 1931 amounted to $2,624.91. The difference in the per diem and mileage of the two counties is $5,830.94

I am sure the expenses incurred by our board for per diem and mileage could be reduced by one half, without in any way impairing efficiency. I also feel that the policy of reducing overhead expenses which is being adopted by all private business should be adopted in county business and am sure that this can be done without detriment to the affairs of the county.

Sincerely yours,

A. L. Barker

Lots of folks around KLEMME are wasting dimes to save pennies

Getting along without a telephone saves a few cents a day in telephone rent, but it usually wastes more than that in extra travel, in time, in trouble, in annoyance of neighbors.

A telephone in your name is not an expense; it's a means of saving other expense.

If the actual money value of every telephone call were placed in a separate purse as the calls are made, the purse would hold enough every month to pay the telephone bill and leave a tidy sum over

It's not a question of "can I afford a telephone?" The question is "can I afford to do things the old way which a telephone will do faster and better and cheaper?"

24 hour service — as many calls as you like — others calling you — instant call for help in emergencies — your name in the phone book — all for the price of a cold drink or a smoke, a few cents a day. It's a bargain!

Read the offer at the top of this ad, and place your order for telephone service next week. Any employee will gladly take your order.

MUSKRAT SEASON NOT TO BE OPENED

The Iowa Fsh and Game Commission has found it advisable to close the muskrat season for the coming year as a result of a statewide study of the situation that now exists. Due to the drought of the pasa few years the muskrats concentrated in the larger streams and lakes where they were trapped by the thousands and sold on a very low market. At the present time the whole state shows very few or practically no rats in waters where they were abundant. This year is a critical year for the little seed stock that is left. To save the fur industry on muskrat from complete extermination in ths state. it was deemed advsable to protect the present seed stock that Iowa has The new ruling made at a recent meeting of the Fish and Game Commission covers both the northern and southern zones of Iowa and prohibits the taking, trapping or killing of muskrats in or on any of the lands or waters of the state The season was announced as open in the list of open season dates published early in the fall, but the Commission has since found it best to close it after the survey of the state was made.

Democrats Sweep Country In State And National Elections

4-H CLUBS ARE STAGING MEMBERSHIP DRIVE

Every member sign up a member is the slogan of the state-wide membership drive in which Hancock members, former members and leaders are takng part.

On November 30th when the weary feet of club members and leaders cease their search for new members is is expected that Hancock county will have one of the largest enrollments in the history of its club work. S. J. Oberhauser said today. Membership in 4-H club work in the county in the last year totaled 250 boys and girls. The goal for this year is 350. The state enrollment for last year was 27,034. November has been adopted as the annual period of enrollment for 4-H club work all over Iowa. Having this definite time each year wll result in securing members of all projects at one time thus eliminating extra work during "rush seasons" of the year. Groups can be organized immediately after Dec. 1st giving the club the full year to function A special effort is being made to reach boys and grls who have not been enrolled in 4-H club work before. This year the boys and girls will be offered the following clubs: baby beef, sheep, dairy calf, pig. colt and poultry. The girls clubs in the county will have First Year Clothing.

The purpose o 4-H club work has indicated by its name that it is to train and develop the head, heart, hand and health. Music appreciation health contest, nature study and various other activities play an important part n the club program along with the agricultural and home economics work.

Don't forget everyone interested in club work for 1933, be sure to see your local leader or township chairman or county agent right away.

Now comes Emil Blumer of Liberty Township with a duck story that knocks all others into a cocked hat. Emil read an account of Happy Johnson's duck which had but one foot webbed. and which we said probably swam in a circle, or else had to paddle one foot faster than the other. Emil has a white Peking duck which has webs on neither foot. In other words, it it probably a duck with chicken feet. As to swimming, Emil says the duck can keep up with the rest of them.

When it comes to catching mice we believe the experience as told by Len Sampson has them all beat. Mr. Sampson saw a mouse in his basement the other day and so set set out to trap the little animal. He carefully baited a trap and waited results. Returning in a few minutes he had Mr. Mouse. He reset the trap, and in a few minutes caught two at once in the same trap. Again he rebaited the trap and set it. In a few minutes he hear it snap and this time he had three mice in the trap. That luck was too good to last but again he set the trap and this time again caught two at once. The trap was set once more but this time only one mouse was caught. The peculiar thing is that the mice were caught in the following order: 1-2-3-2-1.

PROGRAM REPORT OF THE METHODIST CONFERENCE

The program of the Methodist conference which was held at Wesley. Wednesday. Nov. 2, was opened by the new District Superintendent, W. G. Muhleman. His theme was the Minister and his Task. He gave a splendid talk, inspiring and full of helpful suggestions. Mr. Muhleman is a man with lots of personality and is a good organizer and I believe will be a fine superintendent. Following this was a discussion of the District goals, disciplinary business and formulation of plans for the coming year. At noon the Wesley ladies served a fine dinner for 35 cents per plate. There were one hundred and seven for dinner.

The afternoon session opened with devotions led by Rev. C. H. Seward. He said there are two great things in the world, Divine Personality and Human Personality. This was followed by a couple of songs and prayer by Rev. Ortmeyer. From the conference Institutions the following gave talks:

(1) Morningside College—Dr. R. E. O'Brian. He told us about the college and conditions and many interesting things. He says the type of young people that the different churches send to the college is fine. There is a good spirit in the institution. He told us about the dormitories and the conditions there. He says it is your college and asked that we remember them in our donations. He asked us all to be kind to Young People.

(2) Wesley Foundation—Dr. J. S. Dancy. This Wesley foundation includes the college at Ames, the state university at Iowa City and the state teachers college at Cedar Falls The Methodist churches are asked to continue the six percent per member to be given as donations to these colleges He says they need it and need it badly. He told us that out of the 3300 students at Ames 800 are Methodist.

(3) Board of Education—A representative from Chicago was unable to be present.

(4) Methodist Hospital—Dr. G. T. Notson. He represented the hospital at Sioux City He told us that they had just 45 nurses now. He says 60% of the average of patients is charity. They have been in operation twelve years. Three nurses volunteered for foreign fields. The total paid in last year for the White Cross donations was $4002.02 and the goal was to have been $6000. Last year they spent $16.000 in caring for patients. He asked for the White Cross donation to be taken the 21 or 28 of November.

Rev Eggleston of Britt told us about the district contest for music. He says there will not be any judges this year. The date set for the contest is Sunday March 5th. and the place is Algona.

Orchestra numbers for class A will be from the Symphonic Series.

The afternoon session came to a close with a short round table discussion led by Bishop F. D. Leete. The topic was: How can we improve the Spiritual Condition of our Church?

First, "What is the Condition of our Church?" It is an institution with burdens. He told us the church was the instigator of all hospitals, all schools, all fraternities. He said the Bible was finished two thousand years ago. but the church is unfinished work. Then he asked each preacher to add one idea on the question: How Can We Improve Our Spiritual Life?

1. Live a Spiritual Life.
2. Home Prayer. leadership by the pastor.
3. Learn to Love our People.
4. Participation of People.
5. Bible Teachng.
6. Spiritual Vitality.
7. Prayer Life (Few people agreed will get results)
8. Hymns (Select appropriate).
9. Put church work first.
10. Not forget the Young People.

Bishop Leete said there is a much stronger appeal for religion today—a large chance to work for God

A good supper was served by the Aid for twenty-five cents in the basement.

Evening service started with devotions led by Rev. H. O. Ward. His theme was Spiritual Well Diggers. and he gave a fine discussion of it

The address of the evening was given by the Bishop. He read from the fourth chapter of St. Mathew His address was as follows:

1. Every person ought to be a Christian.
2. Every Christian ought to be a worker.
3. Every worker ought to be a personal worker.

He told us all to remember that all of Gods laws are universal laws. They apply to us all alike. Laws of gravitation, of chemistry, and many others, so it is true of spiritual law. The way of salvation is not by passing tests by University professors It is the hardest thing in the world to become a real Christian—not because of what we have to learn, but of what we have to give up of our own free will. Human Nature is to disobey, be selfish and want everything. The chief trouble with the world is selfishness. That is the cause of depression. But it is an easy thing to be a Christian if we lay aside our stubborness and many other things. which cause us to lose the finest things in life, the greatest inspirations and the happiest life comes to us when we live a real Christian life. Then he told us the happiest people in the world are the workers and there are so many good things to do. Christianity does not teach us to work to save our souls but because they have gratitude to God. Be cheerful, people are distressed by their afflictations. Do our very best in whatever task we do. Be a personal worker, do not keep within ourselves. Value but pass it on. Use your influence in your own community. Get people to serve God and Honor him. A wonderful chance for personal workers.

Then the Rust College Singers from Holly Springs, Mississippi gave a splendid musical program. They are to be in Klemme the afternoon of Sunday, Dec. 4th. They will be at Renwick in the morning here in the afternoon and at Garner in the evening.

Rev. Fall gave a report on the religious committee's work and outline of courses of study this winter. There is a coaching conference this week Thursday and Friday at Humboldt.

The following courses will be given:

1. Principles of teaching.
2. Message and program of religious education.
3. Kindergarten material and methods.
4. Supervision in religious education.
5. problems of social leadership.

CARRYING FIREARMS IN MOTOR VEHICLES

Secton 1772 of the Iowa game laws reads. No person shall carry a gun or any firearms except a pistol or a revolver, in or on a motor vehicle unless the same be Unloaded In Both Barrels And Magazine, And Taken Down Or Contained In A Case.

Such a law was meant to serve more than one purpose. Giving the game a sporting chance was the first intent of the law and aiding in the conservaton of game was a second. But beyond that was the thought of the safety of the hunter. It is extremely dangerous to carry a loaded gun in an automobile and for this reason alone a hunter should obey the law. Importance of observing such a law is stressed by the Fish and Game Commission and as a result a number have been arrested and fined since the opening of the hunting season on October 1st for the violation of Section No. 1772.

A Steady Income

How much better to have a steady income that weather can't stop nor poor crops control than to rely on grain farming and be at the mercy of the elements and market conditions.

With a good dairy herd you are always assured of a fair return and profits when other farm products fail. Now is a good time to get into dairyng. Just the assurance and self-confidence that a dairy herd inspires in the heart of the farmer more than offsets for the time spent in caring for your herd.

Ask the farmer who has been dairying for years, and he will tell you it pays. He will also tell you that this Creamery is at all times working for the good of the farmer-dairyman. ....

SAVE YOUR SHINS

Are you one of the thousands who bark their shins and crack their heads in dim basements and on dark stairs? A large percentage of household accidents are the result of poor lighting. For convenience and safety fill up those empty sockets and replace those dim, useless lamps. A few 60-watt lamps installed in the dark places in your home will provide the cheapest accident insurance you can buy. Today's prices are amazingly low, in fact as many as eleven lamps can be purchased for $1.00 and they can be charged on next month's merchandise bill. Any employee will be glad to take your order for lamps—and deliver them promptly to your door.

Our tests will come Monday and Tuesday of next week, so we won't have to spend Thanksgiving worrying about them. We will have that to be thankful for, at least.

Dental hygiene cards are being issued again this year. Each student is urged to go to a dentist for examination If the dentist finds the teeth in good condition, he signs the card. If there should be work done on the teeth he does not sign the card until the work has been completed. A little work done on the teeth when they first begin to give trouble will often save a great deal of later trouble and expense. While this is not compulsory we hope the parents will try and see that it is done.

Grade 1 and 2

Friday, we talked about Armistice Day and why it is important to us.

The second grade dramatized the "Three Pigs" The first graders were company.

In Health class we learned about how our eyes are made, how they work, and how we should take care of them.

Betty Jean brought some Narcissus bulbs to school. We will have fun watching them grow.

Harlan, Betty Jean, and Billy received blue stars for perfect spelling papers Friday.

The second graders have been studying about the Pilgrims and the first Thanksgiving.

Grades 3 and 4

The 3rd grade reading class will finish the Winston reader tomorrow and after that the class will be divided for the purpose of obtaining better results in the rate of reading and comprehension.

The 4h grade reading class have finished their Winston Reader and are now using a supplementary text called, Studies in Reading.

The 3rd and 4th graders have maintained and excellent standard in spelling for the month of October. There were 12 who had 100% for the month and 3 above 90.

Mrs. P. W. Johnson was a visitor in our room last week.

This is National Book Week. We are studying all about good books.

Grades 5 and 6

Cecil Leitzinger was absent from grade five Monday.

Elnor Schuldt was absent from grade five Wednesday.

Grade five has completed their work of South America. Thursday and Friday they made a products map.

Grade six in geography has been studying coal. We have some samples of anthracite and bituminous coal in our room We also have some peat As soon as it becomes thoroughly dry we are going to burn it.

AGRICULTURE CREDIT COUNCIL SEEKS TO AID FARMER

Plans for the actual operation of the Hancock County Agricultural Credit Council were rounded into shape this week when definite plans of operation and prepared forms and other material were completed. Following are the members chosen to act on the Credit Council:

John Hammill, chaiman, Britt
I. C. Hastings, Garner.
Penn Eckels, Britt
J. N. Sprole, Garner
Orville Johnston, Garner.
Mat Love, Garner.
Chas Grau, Garner.
John Chambers, Corwith.
V. A. Cook, Goodell.
Rush Gabrielson, Crystal Lake.

This group wil meet at designated periods and will work with the State Council in the work they are endeavoring to do in assisting the debtors and creditors to get together on the farm mortgage problem.

The State Council is composed of Charles E. Hearst, L. A. Andrews, R. K. Bliss, E. W. Clark, J. N. Darling, B F. Kauffaum, H. S. Uollen and George Schlenter.

Farmers who desire services of the Council are asked to make appointment at the local Farm Bureau office.

Under these trying times where the returns for products of the farm cannot meet the fixed costs of farm operation no creditor should be unwilling to cooperate wholeheartedly in an effort to work out plans to meet the present situation.

The purpose of the State and County Council is to afford some means to help the farmer who finds himself facing foreclosure. Through this plan he can appeal to this group of men and lay his troubles before them with the hope that with their assistance and counsel, ways and means can be devised to help him meet the situation and continue his farming operations.

While these councils are clothed with no authority to alter contracts it is a well known fact that where such groups are set up and give their time and efforts to such a cooperative movement much help can be given. Plans can be made that will in a large measure make foreclosures unnecessary where the mortgagor invicates a determination to do all he can to meet his obligations.

It is suggested that the County Farm Bureau Office be the clearing house for requests by the debtors for hearings before this County Council.

If you need any further information in regard to this we will be glad to give it if possible. We believe that through the plan as set up many farm homes can be retained for those who have given years of time and effort in trying to build a place which they and their families can call home.

GEORGE GRIGGS AND SON ON MONTH'S HUNTING TRIP

George Griggs and son, Audrey, returned Saturday from a jaunt of 1,800 miles which took them on a hunting trip through South Dakota and Nebraska. They had a fine little cabin built on a trailer and they enjoyed all the comforts of home on the trip and did not suffer any during the sudden cold snap.

Most of their hunting was done in western Nebraska along the Platte river and around lakes. They had good shooting and had plenty of wild ducks all the time they were away. At one place in Nebraska they camped at the home of a friend, who happened to be the champion shot in Nebraska. This gentleman is an expert with either rifle or shotgun and holds many records.

Mr. Griggs and son had a fine time and enjoyed every minute of their trip. The trip back home was not so pleasant, however, as they encountered a lot of snow along the Lincoln highway where snow plows were working continually and the storm slowed up traffic. They start for home Tuesday but did not arrive until Saturday, because of the snow.

Mr. Griggs reports much colder weather in Nebraska as both the Platte and Misouri rivers were frozen over—rather unusual for so early in the winter.

They received many nice compliments on the good chicken supper that was served for twenty-five cents. They served almost 140 people

FISHAND GAME COMMISSION RECONSIDERS MUSKRAT SEASON

At a meeting of the Fish and Game Commission held November 2nd at Des Moines, the closed season on muskrats was given further consideration. In view of the present economic conditions it was deemed advisable to modify the previous action taken and to close the season ONLY ON THE MEANDERED LAKES AND STREAMS of the state and to shorten the season on all other lands and waters to 30 days. The open season for the Northern zone is from November 10th 1932 to December 10, 1932. In the Southern zone the open season will be from November 20th, 1932 to December 20th, 1932.

A list of meandered lakes and streams can be had by writing to the Fish and Game department at Des Moines.

By this action of the Commission it was felt that it will still protect a seed stock of muskrats that the state now has, but which has been determined as low by the Commission after a survey of the state was made. It will also give many the opportunity to trap, who depend on this means for their livelihood.

TEMPERATURE WAS 90 BELOW ZERO IN IOWA

It Was That Cold Here In The Month Of August

About ten miles above the corn fields of southwest Iowa on the afternoon of August 10, 1932, a superartic temperature of 90 degrees below zero was recorded by automatic recording instruments sent up with a balloon from the Municipal Airport at Omaha, Nebraska, according to Charles D. Reed, Director of the Weather and Crop Bureau of the Iowa Department of Agriculture.

These instruments were found by H. L. Chaney near Clearfield Iowa, on November 5, three months after the little baskets of instruments were let down by a red silk parachute. The record which was in perfect condition, notwithstanding its three months exposure to the elements, showed that at an altitude of 53,000 feet the temperature was 90 below zero while at the same time in the corn fields near where the instruments landed the temperature was 93 above zero, according to official records made by Mr J. L. Hurley, cooperative observer of the weather bureau at Lenox, Iowa. This great range of temperature amounting to 183 degrees in 53,000 feet is very unusual. This set of instruments was the first sent up in a series of eighteen extending from August 10 to October 27 and strangly enough it brought back the lowest temperature of record. After reaching this extreme temperature the ballon continued to ascend till it reached a height of nearly 11 miles where as usual the temperature was not quite so low, being only a paltry 81 degrees below zero.

So far, thirteen sets of instruments have been recovered which is a remarkably good showing and is due to the fine cooperation of the newspapers and radio broadcasting stations which have kept the people on the lookout for these valuable instruments and the reward of $5.00 that is given for the recovery of each set. Before the corn husking season is over it is expected that practically all of the instruments will be recovered. Other sets will be sent up at intervals of about two weeks until next August. The next ones to go up will be one November 23rd-24th. The high record of returns is probably due to the fine combing of the corn fields at ths season of the year. After the corn is out. it is probable that the percentage of returns will not be so great. All instruments found at any time should be returned to Mr. V. E. Jakl, Municipal Airport Weather Bureau Station, Omaha, Nebraska.

Song of Thanksgiving For Pioneers

By William Watkins Reid

Great Guiding Spirit of an ageless world,
Purpose divine, unfolding to mankind
Thy wondrous works; accept today our thanks
For thy first whisper to the dawning mind,
For him who heavenward gazed beyond the clod,
Who first in awe uplifted hands to God.

For unknown pioneers of art and craft,
Entrusted with thy revelations old,
We give our thanks; for him who captured fire
To brighten night, make glow his cavern cold,
Whose first rude fireplace founded household arts
Now grown to happy towns and busy marts.

Thou God who writest on heaven's arch,
We thank thee for thine artist gift to him
Who on cave wall first scrawled some crude design
On brother mind to mark an image dim;
Who made us heirs of good from saint and sage,
Recorded song of every golden age.

Thou Master Gardener. Husbandman divine,
For him who first loved soil. discerned its ways,
We proffer thanks: thou gavest him wild seed,
Warm earth, and faith to plant on springtime days;
His sons who clothe the plains with grain and tree
Thine ancient gifts, renew their praise to thee.

For modern men who break uncharted paths,
Who glimpse our destiny as sons of God,
We thank thee, Lord: for Christ, thy love's design,
And martyr pioneers his Way who trod;
For craftsman, lyrist, priest, prophetic youth,
For all who bend to hear thy whispered truth.

26TH CHRISTMAS SEAL SALE WILL BEGIN SOON

Fifty million penny Christmas seals distributed by the Iowa Tuberculosis Association will be offered for by local health associations during the twenty-sixth annual Christmas seal sale which extends from Thanksgiving to Christmas.

Christmas seal chairmen throughout the state will make a special effort to increase the seal sale this year because contagious diseases go on in spite of depression and from the past we are led to believe that ill health increases with poverty.

The proceeds of the seal sale will be used by local associations in the aid of familes affected by sickness, in child health work, nutrition, furnishing of milk, school health inspecton, dental inspection, public health nursing, fresh air camps, clinics, health education, school health supplies such as first aid kits. thermometers, etc. The state association uses its share of the funds in educational work for the preventation of tuberculosis, heart disease and other major causes of illness, for the promotion of health legislation, for stimulation of local health work, for health education projects and for the publication and distribution of literature and other publicity materials. This year it seems more urgent than ever before.

RIFLE CLUB STARTED PISTOL TARGET WORK

During the cold weather the cold weather the Klemme Rifle Club will meet but one night a week on Monday at the indoor range.

Monday night the first session of pistol shooting was taken up with a variety of pistols ranging from .22 cal. to the big Colt .45. Some rifle work was done on standing shots.

All members of the club come out next Monday night for another round of pistol shooting. If you haven't a pistol, bring your own ammunition.

An effort is being made to get some valuable information and perhaps a personal visit from one of the best pistol experts in the United States.

Although the men were lacking in pisol practice. some fine shots were scored at the range Monday night.

Lesson for November 27

STEWARDSHIP OF LIFE

Mark 1:16-20; Acts 26:12-19; I Corinthians 9:16-27.

GOLDEN TEXT—And this they did, not as we hoped, but first gave their own selves to the Lord, and unto us by the will of God. II Corinthians 8.5.

PRIMARY TOPIC—God Choosing a Worker.

JUNIOR TOPIC — Following the Leader.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Serving God Where We Are.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Living as God's Stewards.

By stewardship of life is meant the recognition of the fact that our personal being, including all of our powers, faculties and possessions—all that we have and are—belongs to God.

I. Four Fishermen Called to Stewardship (Mark 1:16-20).

1. Who they were (vv. 16, 19). Simon and Andrew, John and James; two pairs of brothers. It is usually wise to engage in the Lord's service in groups. This is not only desirable for effective testimony, but for needed fellowship on the part of the workers, and protection of the witnesses.

2. From what they were called (vv. 16, 20). These men were fishermen.

3. To what they were called (v. 17). They were to become fishers of men. The qualities which made them good fishermen were patience, courage to face the storm at night, and perseverance which led them to toil all night though no fish were caught. These qualities would make them good fishers of men.

4. The cost of obedience to Christ's call (vv. 18, 20). Obedience to Christ's call meant sacrifice and painful separation. It was to give up all business interest and leave their father.

5. Their reward (v. 17). Their names have become immortalized. Christ promised one hundred fold in this life and eternal life in the world to come.

II. Paul's Call to Stewardship (Acts 26:12-19).

1. His manner of life (vv. 1-12). In his defense before Agrippa he showed that he had been in the strictest accord with the most rigid sect of the Jews. He possessed the same hope of a coming Deliverer and reminded them of the fact that formerly he was most bitterly opposed to Christ.

2. His supernatural conversion (vv. 13-15). He declared that Christ had appeared and revealed himself to him on the way to Damascus.

3. Commissioned by Christ (vv. 16-18). He was sent to the Gentiles.

a. To open their eyes, which had been so awfully blinded.

b. To turn them from darkness to light.

c. To turn them from the power of Satan unto God.

d. That they might receive forgiveness of sins.

e. That they might obtain an inheritance among the saints.

4. His consecration (vv. 19-23). As soon as he received his commission, he rendered instant obedience.

RINGNECK PHEASANT NOW FAMOUS IOWA BIRD

Iowa Game Department Gives Interesting History

The Ring-necked pheasant is sometimes called the English pheasant, Mongolian Pheasant and Chinese pheasant. In Iowa it is better known as the Ring-necked pheasant. The original home of all pheasants is Asia from the Black Sea on the west to Japan on the east and from Lake Balkash and northeastern Manchuria on the north to southern India and the wester Islands of the East Indies on the south. There are some sixty species and several subspecies of pheasants scattered thru out the world. The Ring-necked pheasant seems to have been a composite of about four of these species. Pheasants were introduced into the United States as early as the late eighteenth century. These plantings, however, were not succesful, perhaps for the reason that these birds were not as hardy as our present day Ring-necked pheasant. These plantings were made in New Jersey by Richard Bache, a son-in-law of Benjamin Franklin. After the middle of the nineteenth centry rearing of the Ringecked Pheasant became general in the eastern states and they have been introduced into every state in the union and most of the southern provinces of Canada.

In Iowa they have established themselves in the northwestern part of the state. Great numbers have been planted in the southern part of the state but for some unknown reason have not maintained themselves to any great degree. The answer to this question is now being sought by the Iowa Fish and Game Commission and plantings have ceased for two years so that it can be studied. In this time it is hoped that the plantings that have been made will give the future program of the state in increasing the number of game birds, the correct answer, that the Commission can be guided in its program.

The food of pheasants is like that of domesticated fowl. They eat everything digestible. The are ground feeders, but in the winter time when the snow covers their food they will resort to berries and small fruits left hanging on the branches of small bushes and vines. Grain is one of the important parts of their diet and also includes all forms of weed seeds. Animal food consists chiefly of insects and worms. Pheasants are rapidly becoming known as valuable birds to have on a farm, according to the reports coming to the Fish and Game Department often clearing a field of cut-worms and armyworms and reducing noxious weed growth by their diet including weed seeds. Pheasants are often charged with damage to crops but the great amount of good that they do will no doubt outweigh the damage. In consideration of the good that they do and the sport that they furnish during the hunting season, they should be given attention in the winter time when the snow has covered, their food. In other seasons of the year pheasants should have the protection of every landowner and sportsman.

There are very few Iowans who have never seen the pheasant and as it is the largest of our upland game birds it is not hard to identify when seen in the fields. The beautiful coloration of the male bird makes it distinctive from all other game birds in Iowa. Hunting the pheasant is one of Iowa's best sports today and while it is thought by some that they are easy to find and make an easy target, their flight is fast and it is surprising how many birds are missed by the shot when fired at.

A MESSAGE TO "DADDIES"

The next time you lace up the boots and oil up the gun for a trip afield in quest of game, don't forget the boy. Take him along and if you do not have one of your own, take someone else's boy. Boys will be boys and if treated as such, they will grow up to be men of whom their parents will be proud. The boy who has a sportsman father is indeed very fortunate. A father who will take his boy to learn of the great outdoors is giving that boy one of the greatest teachings that the world holds for him. Naure and nature's surroundings will do more to build the character of any boy than could ever be taught in schools or even the home.

Let him get the thrill of bagging his first bird or rabbit; you can pleasantly recall your first hunting thrill and what a fond memory it is for you. Give the boy the same chance. Let him sit beside you by the campfire and get the whiff of the bacon frying out there in the open. Tell him your fishing and hunting yarns and above all let him get his lungs full of that fresh, snappy. Winter air Teach him how to hold the gun when shooting, how to be careful with the gun. where the most likely place for rabbits may be, and above all, teach him principles of sportsmanship, which is one of the most important debts of every sportsman to the well-being and future of our game. If you as a father will give this chance to your boy, you will find that he has never been as close to you before and that he possesses "stuff" that you never knew he had. Every boy has a natural yearning for the out-of-doors it's born in him and he should not be deprived of the opportunities to which he is entitled. Your boy will be the best pal you ever had, if you will let him.

DISTRIBUTION OF TAX— A SCHOOL PROBLEM

A vital problem, from the standpoint of future school policies, is the question of raising sufficient money to provide suitable educational facilities for rural boys and girls, without discouraging farm ownership through high taxes, declared M. G. Thornburg, secretary of agriculture. before the annual teachers convention at Des Moines.

He was inclined to think that we will sometime recognize, even more than we do today, that education is a repsonsibility of the state and nation as well as of the local district and county Some of the revenue for rural schools should come from state or federal taxes that are not levied on property .

The hope for the future lies with our boys and girls. This means that they will need true appreciation of rural opportunities and problems. a training that will insure the use of best methods. a spirit of cooperation that will aid in the building of suitable marketing organizations. and a leadership that will build for a standard of living that will insure a desire for farm life.

III. Paul Impressing Stewardship Upon the Corinthians (1 Cor. 9:16-27). The Corinthians were an intemperate and dissolute people. The surest and most effective way to combat vice is to inculcate virtue.

1. Paul's own life and example (vv. 19-23). Though free from all men he made himself servant unto all. He most rigorously limited himself in order to gain others for Christ.

2. The Isthmian Games (vv. 24-27). Paul uses these popular games to illustrate the need of self-control. He showed that man was redeemed for a purpose. Those who would apprehend that purpose must possess a definite motive. He shows:

a. Life is a race (vv. 24-25). In order to win a prize there must be self-denial, and definite self-exertion. The Christian obtains life by contact with Jesus Christ through faith (John 3:16; John 3:35; John 5:24). This life must be possessed before he can begin the race. While he gets salvation, (life) at the beginning, God places before him definite rewards as incentives for exertion. The Christian believes for salvation but works for rewards. As the racer in these games abstains from everything that might hinder him, so the Christian will make any sacrifice in order to win. If the heathen would practice such self-denial for a garland of laurel, certainly the Christian should turn from all bodily indulgences to obtain the crown of righteousness which fadeth not away.

b. The Christian's life is a fight (vv. 26-27). His efforts are not merely beatings of the air. He has a real antagonist. In order to win success, his body must be kept in subjection. The believer has a severe struggle with his carnal nature.

The Natural Thing

We should seek to make our lives straight, and true, and healthful, and beautiful, because that is what they were meant to be; just as a tree grows upright, and broad, and leafy, because it is the natural thing for it to do.

Light to Our Path

"The word of God is not only a lamp to our feet and a light to our path, but exhorts us to courage and victory."

BUILD A SHELTER FEEDING STATION

Your Feathered Friends Need Protection And Food

There is scarcely a sportsman or lover of the out doors who does not know where there is a covey of quail. pheasants or Hungarian Partridge. In his trips through the fields or country he has sighted many of these birds. Stop and think what it is that these birds can eat when the ground is covered with snow. The purpose of winter feeding stations is to supplement the variable and often uncertain supply of farm crops and native foods by putting out dependable supplies of grain.

The building of a shelter is so simple and the cost being nothing, it should give everyone the urge to get out in the open and build and maintain at least one shelter. For the most part one can get the grain donated and should one need to buy it all the cost would be very little. One bushel of grain will, if properly placed and regularly distributed, supply one feeding station thru the winter Elevator screenings and other waste grain can be purchased at a very small cost.

Smaller grains are perhaps the best for quail, but whole corn will do. Wherever house sparrows are numerous whole corn should be used, for a large flock of sparrows will consume a large amount of the small grain. In actual practice whatever is cheapest and easiest to get should be used. When placing the food in the feeding station do not forget to supply grit as this is essential for the proper digestion of the food placed out for the birds.

Unless countless thousands of sportsmen and farmers consider game birds as an auxiliary crop, we will never have upland game bird hunting in this state and the winter feeding of these game birds is one way of caring for the auxiliary crop. Is it not poor judgment to protect and care for the birds all summer to let them die of starvation in the winter?

W. F. M. S. TO MEET

The W. F. M. S. will hold their regular meeting at the home of Mrs. R. W. Elder, next Thursday, December 1st.

COOKED FOOD BEST FOR DOGS, TESTS PROVE

Raw meat, sometimes advocated for dogs simply because it was their "natural" food in the wild state, has no greater food value and is much harder to digest than meat which is lightly cooked, according to Dr, W. M. Clifford, famous British nutritionist.

In an exhaustive series of tests, Dr. Clifford proved that cooking to the level of a "rare" roast destroys the anti-enzymic compounds in the meat, while no food value is lost because the hardening effect of heat on proteins has hardly come into play.

The experiments have aroused wide attention, the Journal of the American Medical Association declaring that "now the raw meat propaganda is meeting with experimental rebuff."

"This, coming from an authentic source, ought to impress veterinarians who think raw meat is the perfect food for the dog," comments the North American Veterinarian. "There is too much difference of opinion regarding the feeding of dogs, and some of the opinions entertained are not founded on fact."

"All dog-lovers will welcome this new light science has shed on a mistaken belief," declared L. J. Brosemer, director of the Chappel Kennel Foundation, Rockford, Illinois. "It seems to prove beyond question that raw meat is not the best steady diet either for dogs or humans."

Changes in food during digestion are caused by mysterious organic compounds called enzymes, which break down the compounds in food, the Chappel Foundation explains. The turning of starches into sugar is a typical example of enzymic action.

Raw meat, Dr. Clifford found, contains "anti-enzymes" which directly oppose the digestive process. Heat destroys these properties, so even over-cooked meat is more rapidly digested than raw meat.

The sanitary value of cooking meat has long been recognized. All agree that it is one of the greatest safeguards against entry of germs and parasites through the mouth. Tapeworm in dogs is almost always contracted from raw meat.

"It has been said that because the dog originally was a wild animal, raw meat is his natural diet," says the Chappel Kennel Foundation. "But the dog was domesticated centuries ago, at a time when man himself probably lived chiefly on raw flesh torn from the bones of freshly killed animals.

"Science is constantly finding new ways in which the dog's constitution resembles our own. For them, as for us, the ordinary foods are one-sided in composition. One has too much of certain essential food elements, and not enough of others. So to get a 'square' meal we have to eat several different articles.

"Most people who take an interest in their dog's welfare now buy correctly balanced kennel foods, mixed and canned under government supervision. This is, of course, the safest way, and it is the only way the average person is able to get horse-meat, which is the most perfect meat for dogs.

"One meal of a prepared ration in the evening, plus an occasional fresh-meat biscuit or two during the day, and plenty of fresh water, will meet all the dog's dietary requirements for health, strength and a well-conditioned coat."

CONVALESCENT DOG NEEDS EXTRA CARE

"Yes, the operation was successful, but unfortunately the patient died."

Too often a person on the very threshold of recovery from a dangerous illness will suffer a "relapse" which proves fatal. This is not confined to human beings. It is one of the most frequent—and unnecessary—causes of death among dogs.

The reason is that a dog's inherent grit and fighting spirit may be mistaken for strength, explains the Chappel Kennel Foundation. He is permitted to get out and "tear around," wasting what little energy he has, when he should be still confined to rest and quiet, sunshine and simple feeding.

Much chronic stomach trouble in canines, especially that which follows distemper, is caused by a too hasty return to heavy diet, in the mistaken belief that it will enable the patient to recover his strength quickly.

The old idea of taking away meat in fever cases, because it was "heating to the blood," has been discredited. Meat is a natural part of the dog's diet at all times, and contains nitrogen, without which waste tissues cannot be repaired. Horse-meat, because of its soft, easily digested tissue and high nitrogen content, is generally recommended for convalescent dogs and dogs with skin trouble.

Tests in the Foundation laboratories at Rockford, Illinois, indicate that the same balanced ration of meat, cereals and minerals should be given to the dog in convalescence as in health, but in smaller quantities.

Riddles

Six-year-old Billy was giving riddles with his grandmother. Billy gave "h" and his grandmother guessed "house."

When it was Billy's turn again, he gave "h" another time. His grandmother guessed "house" again, but told Billy not to give the same riddle twice.

"Well," said Billy, "I didn't give the same riddle twice. The first one was our house and the last one the house next door."

COMMON COLDS

More time is lost from employment and from school on account of colds than from any other cause. Probably 98% of all colds are caused by specific germs. Most of us harbor the causative agents of colds in our upper respiratory tract at all times. They multiply very rapidly and produce colds when the vital resistance of the body, and especially the membranes of the upper respiratory tract, is lowered. Therefore. to prevent colds we should:

1. Adopt clean, healthy habits of living.
2. Maintain abundance of fresh air at all times.
3. Avoid overeating.
4. Exercise daily in the open
5. Avoid excessive fatigue.
6. Bathe frequently.
7. Avoid exposure.
8. Sleep regularly and enough
9. Drink at least four glasses milk or water daily.

Certain protective measures taken if affected by colds to protect others and for your own personal benefit as well:

1. Stay at home, remain in bed and maintain efficient liquid di
2. Protect others from nose mouth sprays by covering cou and sneezes.
3. Avoid overheated and poventilated rooms.
4. If your cold produces fever if your cold remains severe, your doctor.

FUNERAL SERVICE TODAY FOR GRANDMA SCHULDT

Mrs. Joachim Schuldt Resided Here For Half Century

Minnie Maria Schuldt was born Oct. 29th, 1842 in Wittenberg Mecklenberg Schwerin Germany. She was the only child born to her parents. Fred Waldeman and Catheine (nee) Wilke.

Her father was a teamster in the City and provided well for his family.

Her mother died when Minnie Maria was eleven years of age, after which she was taken into the home of an aunt. She had excellent school advantages in the city of Wittenberg and she completed twelve grade of school work as offered there and also took up special instruction in nursing and dressmaking.

At the age of 21 in the year 1863 Minnie Maria Waldemann was married to Joachim Schuldt. In 1873, the deceased, together with her husband and three children migrted to America.

For two years they farmed at Colesburg, Iowa. For five years they lived on the site where the Lloyd Ulrich residence now stands in Liberty Township. When they arrived on this farm, there were no buildings, no water, and no trees the tall cottonwood trees on the Ulrich farm today being planted by these pioneers. The first years Mr. and Mrs. Schuldt could not buy coal and were forced to burn, willow roots, twisted hay and corn.

Later they resided for five years on the farm now occupied by Mrs. Dick Swalve. after which they purchased a raw prairie farm without any improvements and which is the well improved farm where the family live today. On this farm Mrs Joachim Schuldt has lived nearly half a century.

In Germany, both Mr. and Mrs. Schuldt were confirmed and became members in the Luthern church. In America they became charter members of the Ell Twp. Reformed church and have continued their membership in this church thruout these many years.

In 1874, when Mrs. Schuldt first moved to Hancock county, there was no town of Klemme. There were very few, if any, doctors and because of her training in nursing. she was much in demand when sickness came to the pioeer homes of her neighbors near and far. Many a life was saved by the practical skill and natural ability of this good woman.

Mrs. Schuldt was strong and healthy thruout her life. Sunday night, Nov. 27th she closed her eyes in the sleep from which she did not awaken. She had attained the age of 90 years and 29 days.

She leaves of her immediate family: three sons, August, Herman and Joseph, all of Klemme; six daughters, Mrs. L. R. J. Brouwer, Taylor Falls. Minn., Mrs. L. E. Thompson, Minneapolis, Minn., Mrs Joe Brouwer, Ventura, Ia., Mrs. Will Nolan, Masonville, Iowa, and Mrs. Wm. H. Greiman and Miss Frieda Schuldt of Klemme; 30 grandchildren and 23 great grandchildren; Her husband and six children having preceeded her in death.

Funeral services were held this afternoon, Wednesday, November 30th, in the Klemme Reformed Church, with the Rev. C. A. Schmidt in charge. Interment will be made in the Klemme cemetery.

The following neighbors acted as pall bearers: O. W. Lemke, Herman Stromer, W G. Lenz, Herman Ax, Herman Priebe and H. J. Stromer.

IOWA'S CONSERVATION PLAN

The Iowa Conservation Plan, as explained by Jacobs L. Crane, Jr. in a paper prepared for presentation at the American Game Cofnerence in New York City. November 28, 29 and 30, covers nine phases of the conservation field. These divisions are: soil erosion control, restoration of surface waters, conservation of woodlands, restoration and preservation of non-shootable species of wild life. development for shootable game, improvement of fishing, state parks and scenic preserves, historic and scientific preserves and scenic highways

Mr. Crane says, "It will be interesting to note that these are not nine separate conservation projects but in reality one, single, nine-sided understanding, with each element closely interlocking with all the others. The control of soil erosion by planting saves the soil tself. furnishes cover for game and wild life, improves the fish value of lakes and streams and enhances the beauty of the landscape. Every woodland saved from cutting, in turn prevents destructive erosion, shelters wild things and helps maintain the beauty of the countrysde. Each restoration of a drained marsh is a new stopping place for ducks, ofers upland game and other wild life values and helps equalize stream flow for more stable fish life. Every state park and each artificial lake for fishing, aside from ts great playground purposes. is a refuge for producing game and sanctuary for protecting wild life. And so on thru the whole list of interrelated factors. When they are worked out together enormous saving is possible as compared with plunging ahead on a few of the elements seperately and individually. When the Iowa Conservation Plan was first initiated its purpose was announced as Economy in the use of available funds. But that was a hypothesis then. Now it is a proven fact. Iowa is in a way of saving itself literally millions of dollars, and of getting what it wants besides. through the Conservation Plan."

In conclusion Mr. Crane stated that although the project hadalready acquired nationwide attention from conservation officials and legislators, there was nothing particularly mysterious nor difficult about it. He said that it amounts to nothing more or less than "Make a Conservation Plan and Save Your Money."

IOWA CHILDREN PROTECT BIRDS

Action of school children, both in rural and urban districts, in construction of feeding stations and shelters or birds, was cited this week by officials of the Iowa Fihs and Game Commission as one of the most encouraging phases in conservation work in the state. That children should be encouraged in such work by their parents and teachers as a means of healthful, outdoor living. was the opinion of the officials. It also was pointed out that such activity is inexpensive to the parents as well as being of value to the state in actual dollars and cents.

This interest in outdoor activities and sports, includng nature study of all kinds, dovetails with the program of "home-made happiness", now being advocated by sociological leaders of the nation. The ease with which children can enter a project of feeding birds in their community should make it extremely attractive for children of all ages. Standing, unhusked corn is an ideal source of winter food for game birds in Iowa and most Iowa children will have little difficulty in providing such a shelter and food supply for birds in their locality. Another simple method is to drive nails through a board in a row upon which ears of corn for the birds can be fastened.

That children of Iowa are becoming interested in preservation of the state's birds and animals is indicative to the Fish and Game Commission that such activity has a natural attraction for young persons. If such work is encouraged it is believed that Iowa soon will be noted as a state in which wild life is valued and given every possible care.

A High School Essay
JUDGING A FARMER
By Bessie Larson

A farmer can be judged on many things. The most important things are his buildings, his fences, machinery, fields, stock, poultry and growing crops.

A good farmer keeps his buildings well kept and neat. He does not have doors which sag windows that are broken or roofs that may fall in any moment. He keeps all his buildings well painted, he also tears down fire traps and buildings which may fall down in a hard wind He replaces his broken doors and windows. He cleans up around his buildings which adds to the appearance of his place.

If you are traveling along and see a man's stock running loose out on the road and all around the place you would say that he was not a good farmer. A good farmer would have good fences, that his stock would not break through. His front yard is neatly fenced in and so are all of his fields. If his fence becomes poor he fixes it. as a poor tumble down fence does not add to the appearance of a man's farm.

A poor farmer leaves his machinery out in all sorts of weather—sunshine, rain, sleet and snow. He never troubles himself to put it into a shed. If it breaks he fastens it together with almost anything. A good farmer sees that all of his machinery is put into a shed until he is ready for it again. He keeps it well greased and oiled. If something goes wrong with his machinery he has it fixed properly. A good farmer takes pride in seeing that his machinery is well kept. When the poor farmer leaves machinery out he is really losing himself money because his machinery will wear out much more quickly.

Poor run down fields are signs that the man who owns them is a poor farmer. A good farmer carefully and wisely rotates his crops. His fields are well drained and cultivated. The weeds are eradicated as much as possible. When he buys seed to plant in his fields he buys it from a reliable firm. His seed corn is very carefully selected and stored in a proper place.

A good farmer is proud of his well kept stock . He feeds them well and puts them under shelter when the weather is bad.

His poultry is also well fed and cared for. In the winter time he sees that they do not catch cold. When his poultry is suffering from some d sease he treats them for it.

As a whole a good farmer tries to keep up his farm in the best way he knows how so that it will be an enjoyable and pleasant place for he and his family to live

SPARE THE TREE FOR GAME

Trees allowed to remain on the land have direct importance to upbuilding of wild life resources in Iowa. In the program is outlined by the Iowa Fish and Game Commssion, trees are considered as a part for reason that without them there can be little hunting and fishing.

Planting of trees on waste land is recommended by the Fish and Game Commission and various kinds of trees have been listed in publications distributed by it, such as red haw, black locust, osage orange and others. Such trees serve a three fold purpose

Much waste land cannot be used for agricultural purposes, but where erosion occurs trees will help hold the soil and silt and prevent enlargement of such waste. With the holding of soil and silt by tree roots fish in the streams are benefitted. Where trees and brush are planted and allowed to grow without grazing a natural home and protection is furnished for many game birds and animals.

If your land includes possession of trees. consider yourself fortunate for as they stand, so do they serve nature in maintenance of her equilibrium. In addition you are given the rich opportunity of an auxiliary crop on your land by having fish and game.

Lesson for December 4

LIVING WITH PEOPLE OF OTHER RACES

I KINGS 8:41-43; John 4:5-10; Acts 10:30-35.

GOLDEN TEXT—Then Peter opened his mouth, and said, Of a truth I perceive that God is no respector of persons. Acts 10:34.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Telling a Foreigner of Jesus.

JUNIOR TOPIC—The God of All Nations.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Playing Fair with Other Nations.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Following Christ in Dealing with Other Races.

The approach to the heart of this lesson is through the Golden Text. Paul on Mars' Hill declared, "God hath made of one blood all the nations of men for to dwell on all the face of the earth" (Acts 17:26).

I. Solomon' Praying for Foreigners (I Kings 8:41-43).

The church has for its task the preaching of the gospel to lost men of all races. Christ came to seek and to save the lost (Luke 19:10).

II. Christ Dealing With a Foreigner (John 4:4-10).

1. Jesus must needs go through Samaria (vv. 4-5). Because of the growing opposition Jesus was obliged to leave Judea. He must "needs go through Samaria," not because there was not another way to reach Galilee, but in order to find this poor sinful woman and the needy citizens of Sychar.

2. Jesus testified to the woman (vv. 6-19).

a. A favor asked (v. 7). He tactfully made a request which appealed to the woman's sympathy. In introducing the conversation, he referred to that which was uppermost in her mind, water. This was the teacher's point of contact. He soon passed from a reference to earthly water to the water of everlasting life, in himself.

b. Jesus' tender dealing with the woman (vv. 10-15). He first appealed to her curiosity by declaring "if thou knewest the gift of God" (v. 10). He knew the deep unrest of the soul of this sinful woman. He knew that if she really knew him she would believe on him and be saved from her sins. He followed this appeal to her curiosity by a promise which directed her attention to her deepest needs.

c. The woman convicted of her sins (vv. 15-19). Before she could understand what the water of life was she must be convicted of her sin. She did not argue with him, but became a humble inquirer.

III. The Salvation of a Foreigner (Acts 10:30-35).

The Jews hated the Romans because they were under bondage to them. Peter, the head of the Apostolic group, was a Jew of strong prejudice. The time had now come for the removal of the wall of partition between the Jews and the Gentiles. Cornelius, a Roman soldier, was a devout and praying man, though not saved. Two visions were given:

1. To Cornelius (Acts 10:3-8). While engaged in prayer an angel from God instructed him to send to Joppa for Peter who would tell him what to do.

2. To Peter (Acts 10:9-16). Peter saw in a vision a certain vessel containing clean and unclean animals let down from heaven, and heard the command to arise, slay, and eat. This vessel let down from heaven and taken back again indicated that both Jew and Gentile were accepted on high. At the bidding of the Spirit, Peter went with the messenger, and in his sermon to Cornelius he set forth,

a. The basis of salvation—the death of Christ.

b. The scope of salvation—whosoever believeth on him.

c. The method of appropriation of the salvation—faith in Christ.

IV. All Nations Are of One Blood (Acts 17:22-28).

The way to bring peace among the nations is to make God known.

1. Paul's declaratoin concerning God (vv. 24-25).

a. The Creator of the universe.

b. His spirituality and immensity. Being essentially Spirit, heart worship of him is demanded, and being infinite, he cannot be confined to earthly temples.

c. His act of providence. He declared that in him we liye and move and have our being.

2. Paul's declaration concerning man (vv. 26-28).

a. We are the offspring of God (v. 28).

b. Nations have their place by God's purpose.

c. Man should seek God. These truths concerning God and man as declared and received will remove racial and national barriers.

WORDS OF WISDOM

Death means birth into a fuller life.

* * *

The crown of all virtues is love or sympathy.

The best and purest of all joys is natural affection.

The profoundest fact of human life is that, for everyone, the real, the only true life is lived in the realm of the spirit.

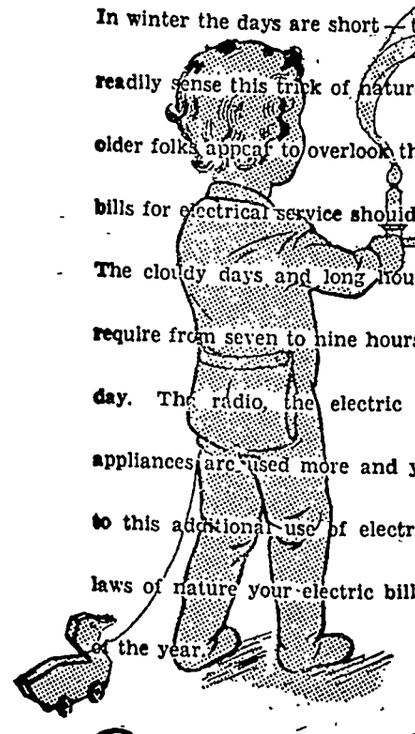
"In winter I get up at night
And dress by yellow candle light.
In summer, quite the other way,
I have to go to bed by day."
—Robert Louis Stevenson



In winter the days are short—the nights long. Children readily sense this trick of nature although sometimes the older folks appear to overlook this fact and ask why their bills for electrical service should be larger in the fall. . . . The cloudy days and long hours of dusk and darkness require from seven to nine hours of electric lighting each day. The radio, the electric heater and other small appliances are used more and your meter must respond to this additional use of electricity. . . Following the laws of nature your electric bills increase at this season of the year.

THAT TAX ON CHECKS

John Smith was very much perplexed.
About the tax on checks.
"They way they trim your bank account,"
He said, "would surely vex.
The thing we need the most of all
And what the country lacks,
Is not so much a tax on checks,
But more a check on tax."

Mr. and Mrs. George Ulrich

MRS. LLOYD ULRICH DIED AT HER HOME SATURDAY A. M.

Graduated From The Klemme High School With Class of 1930

This community was shocked and saddened when it was learned that Mrs. Lloyd Ulrich, young mother, had passed away at her home in Liberty township Saturday morning.

Funeral services were held in the Klemme Methodist Church Monday afternoon. Special music was given by the mixed quartet composed of Mrs. C. A. Arnold, Mrs. Geo. Schoenwetter, Mr. Art Wellemeyer and Mr Echard Zeidler. The funeral sermon was preached by Rev. Ralston, who read the following obituary from the pulpit.

Edna Maxine Nelson was born on November 8th, 1912. on a farm in Hardin County, Iowa. She was the second child in a family of six children born to her parents E. J. Nelson and Martha (nee) Prescott.

She attended the public schools at Randahl and Dayton in Hardin County and finished her High School education in the Klemme Schools, graduating with the class of 1930. The following were her class mates: Elsina Albers; Lela Bachman Welker; Raymond Barz; Lois Church; Jane Dutheridge; Reva Elder; Otho Keraus; Allan Klotzbach; Valeria Koerner; Helen Lemke; Wayne Pavey; Carrie Swalve; Gertie Trampel; Clarice Wellemeyer.

She is the first to be taken from this class of 15 members by death.

As an infant she was baptized in the Hardin Luthern Church near Garden City, Iowa, and was confirmed in the Luthern Church at Badger, Iowa, by Rev. Olson. On moving to Klemme she joined the Methodist Church and has been a faithful member ever since.

On June 17th, 1930, she was united in marriage to Lloyd Ulrich of Liberty township, going into a home where there were three small sons. She took these boys to her heart as her own and for nearly three years, was a good Mother to them and a faithful helpmate to her husband.

On Thanksgiving Day the Lloyd Ulrich home was gladened by the arrival of a baby son. Robert. She would have loved to stay and watch over this little fellow, and the other three sons under her care, and teach them and train them, so that they would be good and useful men when they were grown. But God willed it otherwise, and she passed away early Saturday morning December 3rd, 1932. Having attained the age of 20 years and 25 days.

The passing of this young Mother reminds us, that it matters not so much How Long We Live as How Well We Live.

She leaves of her immediate family, her husband, Lloyd Ulrich; her baby son, Robert; her step-sons Richard. Merlyn and Lowell; her parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Nelson her three brothers, Truman, Willard and Boyd.... her one sister, Mrs. Williams of California. One brother Edison Nelson preceeded her in death.

The following night letter was received from her sister in California:

To the E. J. Nelson Family:

Received sad news. Unable to take Children so far. Am coming in the Spring. Am heart broken. Must be for the best or God would have done otherwise. Bear up Mother and Dad. It is almost too much to carry.

Ruby Williams

Interment was made in the Klemme Cemetery. The following young men acted as pall bearers: Wm. and John Wessels, Lester and Walter Merkel and Kenneth and Lauren Gast.

Santa Claus will come to see a lot of people this year anyway. More than $440,000,000 in Christmas Club checks are being mailed out by 7,000 banks throughout the country to some 10,500,000 people.

CANS'T THOU BEAT IT?

"Consider the editor! A child is born unto the wife of a merchant in town. The physician getteth 10 plunks. The editor writeth a stick and a half and telleth the multitude that the child tippeth the beam at nine pounds. Yea, he lieth even as a centurion. And the proud father giveth him a Cremo.

"Behold. the young one groweth up and graduateth. And the editor putteth in the paper a swell piece. Yea, a peach of a notice He telleth of the wisdom of the young woman and of her exceeding comliness. Like unto the roses of Sharon is she, and her gown is played up to beat the band. and the dressmaker getteth two score and four iron men. And the editor gets a note of thanks from the sweet girl graduate. (Maybe!)

"And the daughter goeth on a journey. And the editor throweth himself on the story of the farewell party. It runneth a column solid. And the fair one remembereth him from afar with a picture postal card that costeth six for a jitney.

"Behold, she returneth and the youth of the town fall down and worship. She picketh one and lo. she picketh a lemon. But the editor calleth him one of our promising young men and getteth away with it. And they send unto the editor a bid to the wedding, and behold the bids are fashioned in a far city. Flowery and long is the wedding notice which the editor printeth. The minister getteth his bit.

"The editor printeth a death notice, two columns of obituary, three lodge notices, a cubit of poetry and a card of thanks. And he forgetteth to read proof on the dead, and the darned thing cometh out 'Gone to Her Last Roasting Place'.

"And all that are akin to the deceased jumpeth on the editor with exceeding great jumps. And they pulleth out their ads and canceleth their subs, and they swing the hammer even unto the third and fourth generations".—Exchange

TREES AND CONSERVATION

How few of us ever realize what an important part of the conservation program of the state of Iowa that the tree plays. It is true that the value of the tree is recognized when a picnic place is being sought also in our parks the tree is the setting around which the park is laid out, but how many of us have ever given thought to the value of the tree to our wild animal and fish life? How many of us have ever thought that without the trees we could not have fish and game?

Trees as an importance to fish life are one of the greatest. Trees hold back the soil that would, without them, go tumbling into the streams and lakes and in time would fill them Nature provided trees for the banks of our streams for another reason. Fish must have shade and when a limb or tree falls into the stream the first thought of man is to remove it. Maybe Nature put that limb or tree in the water for a purpose, to give the small fish a place to hide when a cannabalistic adult fish appears on the scene. Then too, these small fish must eat and to the hard surface of these limbs or trees will cling the insect larvae on which the small fish feed.

Trees play another important part Secretary of Agriculture, Arthur M. Hyde estimates that there are 21 million acres of farm land in the United States gone out of cultivation because of destructive soil erosion The maintenance of tree cover on such land would have prevented such a loss, and all of it very apt to make game cover and a profitable crop. Without trees many of our birds would have no home and the trees in many cases furnish them with their food. With out the trees many of our game animals would have no home and as in the case of the birds the trees furnish many animals with their food. Trees are protection. trees are food, trees are the important part of the program of conservation.

If one has in mind the removal of trees from his land and particularly along any stream bank, considerable thought should be given such action. Wood obtained from these trees will keep many people warm during the winter months, but may cost him the value of his land for agriculture purposes or deprive him of the taste of game or fish which will compare some day to that comfort of being warm.

PLAN TO DISCUSS FARM RELIEF

Economists To Present Facts And Causes on Plight of Farmers

If Iowa people will listen to their radio and read, the agricultal economists of Iowa State College will try to give them a clear picture of all of the facts and underlying causes of the present situation and the serious plight of agriculture and the possibilities of relief from the various proposed measures, including inflation, tariff adjustment, the equalization fee, debenture plan, the domestic allotment plan and possibly other.

Each Tuesday noon at 12:45 a man from the Agricultural Economics Department will discuss one of these subjects over WOI, the college radio station. A companion circular will be published and be off the press on the same date so that any who wish to read a more detailed account may do so.

The first of the radio talks was given last Tuesday noon (Dec. 6) by A. G. Black, head of the department. He discussed the seriousness of the present problem confronting Iowa agriculture. An 8-page circular has been printed and will be mailed to any who request it giving the facts which Dr. Black presented.

"The State of Iowa this fall is going to harvest the largest crop of corn in her history. There is imminent danger that she will also harvest the biggest crop of farm mortgage foreclosures, lost equities and ruined farmers the state has ever known," Dr Black declared

The major problems that the present depression has forced upon agriculture, Dr. Black said, can be grouped under three heads: Low prices for agricultural products; high fixed charges on mortgage and other indebtedness in relation to income; and high taxes in relation to income.

While the prices farmers are receiving for their products are exceedingly low—one half to one third of the average between 1922 and 1929—the things that the farmer buys have come down but little in comparison Interest and principal in old debts remain the same. The average farm mortgage still runs at $65 per acre. Taxes average $1.50 an acre—only down a little Freight rates are practically unchanged — slightly lower in some cases. higher in others. The index of machinery prices stands at 154 (the 1910 to 1914 average 100).

"The average man hears of 10 cent corn and $3 hogs, but he does not grasp the significance of these prices; he does not realize the meaning of the events of the past year for agriculture nor does he realize what is going to happen to agriculture during the next 12 months if some program of aotion is not put into effect," Dr. Black asserted.

Character Revealed in Great Men's Portraits

Those interested in character reading from faces know that the qualities indicated by one feature may totally contradict those shown by another. The following story illustrates this.

The famous artist, John Sargent, painted Joseph Pulitzer. All went well till the fourth sitting. Pulitzer had been calm and amiable till then, but unfortunately his temper was greatly ruffled by the sudden appearance in the studio of a man whom he detested.

"A look of fury and impatience entirely changed the face of the subject, and Sargent contemplated the scene with keen interest, while making a dab or two upon the canvas." The result of that unlucky contretemps was registered in the completed portrait. The dual nature of the sitter was clearly indicated. "Hide with a sheet of paper one half of the face and you have a benevolent, middle-aged gentleman. Observe now the other half, and you have the malevolent, sinister, and cruel expression of a Mephisto." If we apply that test to some present-day portraits we might be disagreeably startled by the result!

"Herd Habit" Strong in Minds of All Russians

The Russian's proneness to regimentation is a mental habit, arising from centuries of living less in a society than in a cultural herd; it is undoubtedly one cause for his emotional acceptance of the Soviet regime.

I saw a pretty symbol of this trait, one evening at the opera in Moscow, says Waldo Frank, writing in the New Republic. During the entr' acte, the audience (workers, students, petty officials) went into the foyer. Quite unconsciously, they fell into line and began to circle round and round the large hall in order!

Because of these inherent Russian traits, the intellectuals and the intellectual arts of the U. S. S. R. are in a peculiarly dangerous position under a proletarian dictatorship which encourages (and makes effective) the habits of the masses.

Really Had Told Truth

A Chinese gardener sold a horse to a farmer, and during the transaction he repeatedly said: "Horsee no look well, but plenty pull."

It was subsequently discovered that the animal was blind, and, incensed at being taken in by a Chinese, the purchaser took John to court.

"Did you know the horse was blind?" asked the magistrate.

"Oh, yeh, I knew long tam," John replied.

"Then why didn't you tell him so?" the magistrate demanded.

"I tell him all," said the Chinese. "I tell him plenty tam horsee no look well."

That being admitted, the case was dismissed.

Sunny Dispositions

A sunshiny disposition is a gift from God. There are many whose minds are filled with gloomy thoughts, and who look on the dark side of everything. Such people cannot radiate sunshine until they fill their minds with the brighter, happier thoughts. This is not an easy matter, for when gloomy thoughts receive encouragement to remain, it is hard to displace them with more cheerful ones. If we go persistently to work to cultivate a sunshiny disposition, our efforts will at length be rewarded, and we shall be the possessors of a brightness and cheerliness scarcely distinguishable from that bestowed as a natural gift. —A. L. Griggs.

Red Indian Whalers

The first American whalemen were the Indians of the southern coast of New England, the same region which during the middle of the last century became the great center of the world's whaling industry.

Long before the coming of the whites the redmen gave chase in their fleet canoes to the huge oil-bearing mammals. Their captures were comparatively few, however, owing to their crude implements. Whale meat and blubber were highly esteemed delicacies among the Indians.—Gas Logic.

Future Domestic Fowls

How long will it be, one wonders, before our domestic fowls will come to depend upon man's incubating systems, and conclude their parental duties with the laying of their eggs as do the ostriches? Darwin taught us how imitative birds and beasts are, and how quick to learn and progress along paths of improvement. Ostriches do not hatch their eggs, nor tend their chicks after they leave their shells, because it is unnecessary for them so to do. Will men teach their fowls to follow their example?

"Jenny Lind" Beds

The singer, Jenny Lind, was so popular around the middle of the Nineteenth century that our forefathers made particular beds which they called by her name.

They were all meant in good will, but at that some of them were anything but flattering. There were different variations in certain localities. A common type was the one with spool turnings and the head and footboards alike. The ugliest were stained a none too pleasing brown shade.

Ostrich Not Set Down "Unclean" in Holy Writ

It has been thought by many commentators that the ostrich was reckoned amongst unclean animals, and that the writer of Leviticus 11:16, meant that bird by the word which is set down as owl in our ordinarily used version of the Bible. But it can hardly be considered wise to hold that Moses, the reputed original writer of Leviticus, was so completely ignorant of the natural history of the wilderness that he was misled into confusing the name of an owl for that of the ostrich! Nor were copyists very likely to make such a blunder. Owls do live in desert places, and as experience in the Great American desert of the United States shows, exist in conjunction with serpents upon which they feed.

If unclean at all it would only be on account of its omniverous habits which lead it to swallow almost anything it can obtain. But most likely the ostrich was left out of consideration altogether in the compilation of the clean and unclean lists, as being unlikely ever to be met with in the Land of Promise.

Although the fact is not mentioned in Holy Writ, it is true that ostriches' eggs have always been used for food by travelers, and there is no authentic old tradition which exempted Jews from such custom.—Exchange.

Distinctive Titles of Which Cities Are Proud

Pavia, Italy, is called the City of a Hundred Towers, and the name is self-explanatory as is many others. Philadelphia is the City of Brotherly Love; Brooklyn, the City of Churches; New Haven, Conn., the City of Elms. Cairo, Egypt, is the City of Victory, and Limerick, Ireland, the City of the Violated Treaty, so-called because of the frequent infringements of the "Pacification of Limerick" treaty concluded in that city back in 1691.

Medina, Arabia, the city to which Mohammed fled from Mecca in 622, is often spoken of as the City of the Prophet; Calcutta, India, as the City of Palaces.

Back again in the United States, Raleigh, N. C., is referred to as the City of Oaks, and Detroit, the City of Straits, so named from its geographical situation. There are many others, too numerous to mention here, but one more, the National Capital, Washington, is the City of Magnificent Distances on account of its wide avenues and fine vistas.

Fishes Do Not Drink

When you say a man "drinks like a fish," you really imply that he does not drink. For fishes swallow no water for refreshment. When you see a fish opening and closing its mouth it is merely breathing. Water is taken in, but it does not pass down the throat to the body. While the fish breathes, its gullet is tightly constricted at the back by means of muscles encircling the throat, and the water flows away over the gills. While water does not pass the closed gullet, solid food can force an entrance. When it presses against the back of the gullet, the muscles relax enough to allow it to force a way down into the stomach. Fishes require fresh air as much as humans do.

Twain's Famous Advice

Then there is Mark Twain's advice to young authors. You remember he said:

"Yes, Agassiz does recommend authors to eat fish, because the phosphorous in it makes brains. So far you are correct. But I cannot help you to a decision about the amount you need to eat—at least, not with certainty. If the specimen composition you send is about your fair usual average, I should judge that perhaps a couple of whales would be all you would want for the present. Not the largest kind, but simply good, middling-sized whales."—W. Orton Tewson, in the Detroit News.

Famous Literary Group

The name "Hartford Wits" was given by the cultivated circles of the United States to a group of Connecticut professional men and literary aspirants, who lived in Hartford or met there for converse and collaboration from shortly after the Revolution till toward 1800. The exact composition of the group is not uniformly agreed upon, but the unquestioned members were Richard Alsop, Joel Barlow, Theodore Dwight, Lemuel Hopkins and David Humphreys. Benjamin Trumbull, the historian, is sometimes added.

Famous Errors in Bibles

The "Discharge Bible," printed in 1806, received its name from a typographical error whereby the phrase "I charge thee before God" was rendered "I discharge thee before God," says an article in the Syracuse Post-Standard. The "Wife-Hater Bible" spelled "life" with a "w" in the book of Luke, with the following result: "If any man come to me, and hate not his father . . . yea, and his own wife also, he cannot be my disciple."

Make Wise Use of Time

Time is something granted each of us in equal quantities—so many hours a day, so many days a week. It is the use we make of it that spells the difference between success and failure. Time is vastly more important than money, so the wise man never wastes it.—Grit.

Lesson for December 11

THE CHRISTIAN USE OF LEISURE

Nehemiah 8:9-18; Zechariah 8:4-5; Matthew 11:16-19; Mark 6:30-32; I Corinthians 10: 23-33.

GOLDEN TEXT—Whether therefore ye eat, or drink, or whatsoever ye do, do all to the glory of God. I Cor. 10:31.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus Watching Children Play.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Pleasing God in Our Games.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—The Best Way to Rest and Play.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Christian's Rest and Recreation.

The topic of today's lesson is rather a strange one to attempt to set to the texts selected by the lesson committee. By leisure is meant freedom from one's regular occupation. The instructed Christian gladly uses his leisure in the worship and service of God.

I. Hearing the Word of God Read (Neh. 8:9-18).

The people turned aside from their common interests and demanded from Ezra, the scribe, the reading of God's word. The Mosaic economy provided regular periods for cessation from secular activities, such as the Sabbath, the Sabbatic Year and the Year of Jubilee, so as to afford recreation and spiritual refreshment to the people. In the case of these Jews, this period of reading of the Word of God meant not only physical refreshment, but spiritual revival.

1. Conviction of sin (v. 9). "The word of God is quick and powerful" (Heb. 4:12). It brings conviction of sin (Acts 2:37).

2. Weeping turned into joy (vv. (10-12). Forgiveness follows perception and confession of sin. When the sinner is forgiven, God would have him enter into joy. Continued mourning would not atone for sins that are past. "The joy of the Lord is your strength."

3. Blessing to be shared with others (vv. 10-12). True joy manifests itself in giving to others. Pure religion goes out to minister to the poor (James 1:27).

4. Obedience of the people. From the reading of the Scriptures they found the Feast of Tabernacles had long been neglected. They kept the feast in a way that had not been known since the days of Joshua (v. 17).

II. Children Playing (Zech. 8:4-5).

Playing is natural to children. Zechariah pictures a time when the streets of Jerusalem shall be safe for the play of children. This will be realized when Jesus Christ reigns as king.

III. The Need of a Vacation (Mark 6:30-32).

The tragic death of John the Baptist had taken place, and the disciples had just returned from a strenuous missionary tour. Christ perceived their need and invited them to come apart with him for a time of rest. It is a grave mistake to assume, because we are engaged in the Lord's work and the need is so urgent, that a vacation can be dispensed with. Such periods are needed in order that we may work again.

This retreat, called by Christ, was for the purpose of hearing a report of their work, to take counsel about the work, and to be refreshed by prayer.

IV. Do All Things for the Glory of God (I Cor. 10:23-33).

The occasion for this teaching was the uncertainty as to the right attitude toward things sacrificed unto idols. In mingling with society many perplexing questions arise such as, amusements, way of spending Sunday, way of spending a vacation, enjoyment of luxuries, etc. This portion of God's Word contains principles adequate for guidance in all of these matters.

1. "All things are lawful for me" (v. 23). This declaration is limited, of course, by things which are right in themselves. It is not true that a Christian is free to do things which are wrong in themselves. He can only indulge in lawful things as they are expedient and unto edification.

2. "Let no man seek his own" (v. 24). The Christian's law of life is unselfishness. The one dominated by love considers the other's interest rather than his own.

3. "Do all to the glory of God" (v. 31). This is the grand and supreme life of the Christian. In all our concerns we should have God's glory before us constantly. How could one ask God's blessing upon the intoxicating cup, dancing, gambling, theater going, Sunday desecration, etc.?

4. "Give no occasion for anyone to stumble" (v. 32). We should so live that no one can ever say that we have been the occasion for their downfall.

5. Follow the example of Jesus Christ (I Cor. 11:1). Christ gave up all for the sake of others.

He Is With Us

Wheresoever we be, whatsoever we are doing, in all our work, in our busy daily life, in all schemes and undertakings, in public trusts, and in private retreats, he is with us, and all we do is spread before him. Do it, then, as to the Lord.

Contrast

In the scientific and natural world, men obey no further than they understand; in the spiritual world they understand no further than they obey.

CUT HOG CARCASS PROPERLY

First Step Is To Split Down Middle Of Backbone

Farmers who butcher meat at home can have the best quality pork available if they cut up the carcass properly.

Pork chops and tenderloin cuts of the pork carcass too often are lost with the backbone if the hog.

The first step is to split the carcass down the center the backbone while it is still warm and on the gambrel. After the hog is killed remove the end of the head at the first joint and cut the cheek or jowl off, trimming to make a bacon square. Then cut the shoulder across the third rib and remove the neckbone.

The ham is removed by cutting half way between the pelvic bone and the rise in the backbone. The cut is made at right angles to the shank. After the ham and shoulders have been removed, the middle is separated into the back and belly by cutting from the lower edge of the dittle tenderloin muscle where the ham is cut off, to the lower edge of the backbone on the shoulder end. The fat is then trimmed off the back, leaving the pork loin. Spareribs are removed from the belly and the bacon piece squared up ready for curing.

A printed pamphlet, "Home Butchering," which gives detailed instructions for cutting, curing and canning pork on the farm, may be secured from the county agent or the Extension Service at Iowa State College.

SUBSTANCE or Shadow

Aesop tells how a dog crossing a bridge over a stream with a piece of meat in his mouth, saw his own shadow in the water and took it for another dog with a piece of meat twice the size of his own.

In his desire for the larger piece of meat he lost the substance by attempting to seize— a shadow.

The Light, Power and Gas industry as it is today, is the substance held by the people of the communities that it serves. The shadows are age - old theories of socialism that have never successfully taken the place of individual initiative.

Shamrocks Lose Two Games To Undefeated Corwith Team

KLUCKHOHN AND BROWN STAR FOR LOCAL TEAM

Goodell Five Plays Here Fridey; Goodell Five Plays Here Friday;

The local basketball cagers lost their second game in four starts to the undefeated Corwith team on the Corwith floor, 32 to 16. The loss of Day at guard seemed to be the greatest weakness of the local club. Time after time the fast Corwith team came down the floor to break away from the guards for an easy set up shot.

Although defeated by a more experienced aggregation the local team showed a marked improvement over the earlier games played.

Clarence Kluckhohn and Percy Brown played an outstanding game for the green and white while Wilkite looked best for Corwith.

Lesson for December 18

REVIEW: CHRISTIAN STANDARDS OF LIFE

GOLDEN TEXT—And he said to them all, If any man will come after me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross daily, and follow me —Luke 9:23.

PRIMARY TOPIC—A Holiday with Jesus.

JUNIOR TOPIC—How God Orders Us to Live.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Following Christ in Everything.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Ideals of the True Christian.

The best method of review for young people and adults will be to discover the principal teaching of each lesson. This teaching may be set forth as a kind of a motto for the life. A good plan will be to make assignments to the members of the class a week in advance. The passages of Scripture are so diversified that a great variety of opinions will doubtless be obtained. The following suggestions are offered:

Lesson for October 2.

The Christian's growth is by means of his devotional life. His understanding and heart-life should be symmetrically developed. Bible study and prayer go hand in hand. The neglect of either means stunted growth.

Lesson for October 9.

The look into the Bethany home is not to see how Jesus behaved therein, but to see the behavior of the members of that home. The most important lesson is that we should sit at Jesus' feet in the days when all is well, that in the time of sickness and death we, like Mary, may know how to act. We should choose that good part which cannot be taken away.

Lesson for October 16.

The child of today will be the homemaker of tomorrow. It is most important that children be trained for God by instruction in God's Word.

Lesson for October 23.

The divine unit of society is the home. The welfare of its members depends upon their being united to serve the Lord. This union includes the father, the mother, and the children.

Lesson for October 30.

The believer is a citizen as well as a Christian. The instructed Christian will be loyal to the state as well as to the church.

Lesson for November 6.

World peace will come, not through conferences, leagues, and understandings, but through the appearing of the Prince of Peace and the establishment of the Messianic Kingdom. Only then will the "Will of God be done on earth as it is in heaven."

Lesson for November 13.

The all-important thing in life is not making a living but a life. Man's thought and effort should be to shape his life for the life which is to come and not to accumulate the things of the earth which must be left behind at death.

Lesson for November 20.

Wealth is from God. The natural resources from which wealth is gained were prepared by God. Even the ability to seize them and transform them into useful commodities is from God. Every believer should regularly and systematically give of his possessions to God.

Lesson for November 27.

Stewardship of life means the recognition that our very being with all its faculties and powers is a gift of God and that our powers were given for a definite purpose and that God will hold us responsible for their use.

Lesson for December 4.

In order to live in peace with members of other races, one must realize that God has made of one blood all the nations of the earth. In this light, racial supremacy will vanish.

Lesson for December 11.

The Christian's leisure time should be given to hearing the Word of God and to doing good in Christ's name.

FARM BUREAU MEETING ON WEDNESDAY, DEC. 21ST

BEWARE OF CARBON MONOXIDE

Winter is here now and those who go out in the morning to start the old family bus will be inclined to leave the garage doors closed until it has been warmed-up. That is a bad practice which may prove fatal at any time. Carbon monoxide gas generated from gasoline is odorless, colorless and tasteless, and may asphyxiate a person before he realizes the danger. It can act in a minute.

Don't work on a running motor behind closed doors. Plenty of fresh air coming in wide-open doors drives out the gas. And don't sit or ride in your closed car with the windows all tightly closed. Sitting still with the engine idling may generate a lot of carbon monoxide which may get into the closed car. If you are fortunate enough to escape asphyxiation you may get enough of this poinsonous gas to cause a terrible cold.

Dairymen Will Meet Here For General Discussion Of Problems

ROBERT E. ULRICH, INFANT DIED SUNDAY

Little Robert Edison Ulrich, son of Lloyd Ulrich and Edna (nee) Nelson was born on Thanksgiving day in Liberty Township.

On account of the sickness of his Mother he was taken to the Harry Gram home in Klemme. where Mrs. Gram and Mrs. George Buseman gave him their first attention. He was a nice looking child and seemed quiet and contented until some four days ago, when he became suddenly very sick, and the end came Sunday afternoon, Dec. 11th, 1932.

He had attained the age of only 17 days.

He was buried beside his Mother, whose funeral services were held Monday, Dec. 5th, just a week ago Monday.

He leaves of his immediate family his father, Lloyd Ulrich; his stepbrothers, Rchard, Merlyn & Lowell; his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Nelson and Mr. and Mrs. George Ulrich.

"I think when I read that sweet story of old,
When Jesus was here among men,
How he called little children as lambs to his fold,
I should like to have been with him then."

WEATHER BUREAU USES NEW APPARATUS

In the artic wilderness of northern Alaska, there is little opportunity to retrieve sets of recording instruments sent up by ballons and let down by parachutes so the Weather Bureau s making use of an apparatus known as the radio metorograph weighing slightly more than three pounds which automatically sends back to earth continuous radio signals showing the temperature and barometric pressure as the instruments go up and come down. These signals are received at the receiving station on the ground where the record is transalated into terms intelligbile to the average citizen.

These records are being obtained at the Coppermine station once a month. This station is important because it is in the path of winds from the arctic region which influence the climate of North America. Similar efforts are being made by other nations which will undoubtedly produce results valuable in weather forecasting in Iowa. according to Charles D. Reed, Director of the Weather an dCrop Bureau of the Iowa Department of Agriculture.

LUMBER FROM CORNSTALKS

Scientists at Iowa State College have perfected a process for making synthetic lumber from cornstalks. They declare every kind of lumber can be manuactured from this farm waste in sizes that even trees cannot furnish.

The making of the "wood" from cor stalks is not a recent discovery. Dr. O. R. Sweeney, of the Tall Corn State institution has been working on the problem of utilizing the state's large farm waste or some time. He has succeeded in producing "lumber", not only from corn stalks, but oat hulls, sugar cane, straw and weeds as well.

To make his synthetic "wood" Dr. Sweeney cooks cornstalks unde pressure in steam until they are boiled up into fibers not more than two to three-hundredths of an inch long. This pulpy, pasty mass is then allowed to harden in forms. The more cooking the harder the resulting "lumber" will be.

BUY CHRISTMAS SEALS NOW

These seals, costing but one cent each, make it possible to put forth an organized effort against tuberculosis as well as to assist in many other public health endeavors. Many of us complain of the depression but our lot cannot compare with those who are stricken with the dread disease "tuberculosis". Our pennies expended for the purchase of Christmas seals may make the sun shine more brightly for some one else.

Tuberculosis has been amazingly reduced but we must not relax vigilance—there may be an increase later. While the public health seems to be but little affected by preent conditions, the effect of the times will not appear for some months or years.

In these times of economic stress when the seeds of this insidious disease "tuberculosis" are beng sown in the bodies of the undernourished the preventative as well as the educational work of the Tuberculosis Association is more necessary than before. Tuberculosis is curable when discovered in its early stages and carefully and properly treated, so let us all join in the purchase of Christmas Seals.

Wife—Hubby, darling, could you let me have a little money for shopping? Things are so cheap now, you know.

Hubby—Why, yes. of course, Would you rather have an old five or a new one?

Wife—A new one, of course.

Hubby—That's good. Here's the new "one". I'm four dollars to the good.

"Do you know," said the little man, "that your great big hulking brute of a bulldog killed my wife's dear little pet poodle?"

"And what about it?" asked the big man, defiantly.

"Well," said the little man, looking around to see that nobody was spying, "would you be offended if I presented your dog with a new collar?"

A wholesale dealer had a lot of trouble getting one of his retail customers to pay his bills. Finally he lost patience and wrote him a letter threatening to turn his account over for collection. The customer was terribly mad, and showed it. He wrote the wholesaler:

"What d you mean by sending me such an insulting letter? Every month I place my bills in a basket andthen I blindfold my stenographer and hav eher pick out as many bills as we can pay. It just happens that you are unlucky. If you don't like my way of doing business I won't even put your bill in the basket."

His Dying Eyes

"His orderly found him alone and dying. The officer asked the soldier if he thought he could say a prayer. "That isn't in my line, sir," said the man; and then, with a sudden thought, he said, "But I have got a little cross my mother gave me; will that help you, sir?" The officer took the cross, and lifting it before him, murmured, "Hold Thou thy cross before my dying eyes," and died."

NATION'S LAW MAKERS SEEN AS HARD WORKERS

Banker Tells of Labor Put in by Members of Congress on Mass of Technical Measures

OUTLINING legislative procedure, Robert V Fleming, President Riggs National Bank, Washington D. C., gave the recent convention of the American Bankers Association a description of the difficulties and problems confronting the law-makers Mr. Fleming said in part:

"The most important part of organization of the two branches of congress is election of standing committees There are 34 standing committees in the Senate and 46 in the House. These are the workshops of Congress and the real work of lawmaking is done in Committee Rooms.

"The task of legislating for 124,000,000 people is a tremendous one. Of recent years approximately 20,000 bills are introduced annually in the two Houses. Only a small percentage become law, but they must be weighed in committee, accepted or rejected, perhaps amended, reported out, and then considered on the floor.

"Lawmaking involves about 99% of hard and unspectacular work and about 1% of oratory. Few tasks appear so easy and are so difficult as enactment of sound and satisfactory legislation. Few individuals in any line of activity work harder or longer hours than the chairmen of the important committees during a session. I have great sympathy for the members of Congress whose constituents expect undivided attention to every piece of legislation in which they may be interested. From my personal observation they earnestly and conscientiously endeavor to do all that is humanly possible.

Public Hearings

"When a bill is introduced, referred to committee and printed, the next step, if it is a measure of considerable importance, is to conduct a public hearing. The committee makes an effort to listen to anyone who cares to be heard either for or against a measure, although witnesses are frequently limited as to time. Members of the Cabinet and other officials of the administrative departments of the Government usually testify on measures in which they are interested and furnish the committee information in executive session or otherwise. In this way the Administration takes a prominent part in shaping legislation.

"Due to pressure of work and the fact that it is impossible for members of Congress to be technical experts on every subject of legislation, the committees are inclined to give consideration to the merits of arguments presented in testimony and the recommendations of the Cabinet and other officials It is therefore highly desirable, both from the standpoint of Congress as well as those affected by proposed legislation, that the latter have an opportunity to discuss frankly the effects of such legislation.

"We sometimes complain about the technicalities of legislation, but when we observe organized minorities endeavoring to force class legislation through one House it is a comfort to know such measures may be caught in the meshes of technical procedure in the other and there suffer what is termed automatic asphyxiation."

A Country Editor Looks at Banking

THE editor of the Norwalk, Ohio, Herald takes a somewhat different view of the banking situation from a good many people. His idea is as follows:

"With rents falling and unpaid, real estate does not present a happy picture. Nor does the owner of carefully selected bonds feel any happier with a bunch of them going wrong. A lot of folks very carefully invested in preferred and common stocks in the finest companies in the world and have seen them fall to perhaps a tenth of what they paid for them, and no dividends at all. Some folks kept their money in savings accounts in banks, and some banks have closed and left them high and dry. But the situation is worth looking at very carefully.

"On government authority, most banks that closed were really solvent but for frozen assets and popular timidity. Gradually the closed banks are coming out from under and depositors in even bad cases will get at least 50 per cent of their savings. That's tough, of course; nobody likes to lose half of what they had scrimped and sacrificed and saved. But when you hoard and stick the roll of bills in a coffee pot or under a mattress, some plug-ugly comes along and burns your feet till you tell him to take it and welcome.

"And what about the great majority of banks that weathered the storm, met all comers and are doing business as usual, carefully and conservatively, but safely? What about the savings in those banks? They are a full 100 per cent today—and they are the only thing we know of at 100 per cent anywhere. After all is said and done, a good, well managed bank is still the best place in all the world for money or savings. Right now in Ohio the banks pay the taxes on all savings and pay their depositors net interest on their savings. We can't think, just now, of many other investments that are a tenth as safe as a savings account in a solid bank Why, even a savings account in a closed bank is actually worth more today than most stocks."

Peculiar Formation of Tasmanian Apple Tree

Tasmania, Australia, is known the veteran traveler as apple land, though were the American asked to identify the fruit by the manner which it grows he would find it difficult.

The trees are not more than six feet high. They are trimmed every year and only the stump is permitted to remain. Sprouts grow from the stump and the apples do not hang from the limbs as here. The blossom bloom from the body of the limb and is covered with apples, once fittingly described thus: "Apples grow from the limb as freckles on an arm."

Apple growing is a considerable industry in Tasmania, upward of 3,000,000 bushels a year being shipped. The earth is especially suitable for the growth of the fruit, which thrives as no other would there. Large orchards dot the sides of the rocky hills.

The trees grow bushy and as many as twenty bushels of apples often can be picked from one. Fruit growers with ten acres of apple land in southern Tasmania earn a comfortable yearly income.

Old Roman Water-Organ Unearthed in Budapest

The present city of Budapest stands on the exact site of the old Roman city Acquincum. In recent excavations in the northern part of Buda many interesting remains of this old city have been brought to the surface.

According to descriptions from the old Roman authors the water-organ was the largest of Roman musical instruments. It was known only from the literature of this period as up to the present day not one had actually been found. Recent excavations have been most successful in producing a very fine example of the water-organ.

It is hoped that with the help of the notes from Heron and Vitruvius the reconstruction of this ancient instrument can be carried out successfully.

This water-organ has proved to be the property of a college and probably was built in 228 A. D. The names of Modestus and Probus are inscribed on a bronze plate as of those exercising power that year.

Poison Danced Away

The tarantula, commonly associated with stalks of bananas, is in reality any large running spider of the warm countries. The true tarantula is a native of southern Europe, principally in Italy. Because of its prevalence in Taranto, Italy, its name became associated with the city.

The tarantula does not build a web, but lives rather in a nest of holes or under rocks, nests which it lines with a silklike material.

It lies in wait for its prey, and as an unsuspecting bit of animated food goes by, the spider rushes out and seizes it.

It was believed at one time that its bite would bring on a certain type of epilepsy unless the victim of the bite danced to a particular type of music until exhaustion.

Oil-Burning Development

Oil has been used for fuel and for heating from a very early period, but the mechanical development of the oil burner dates from the middle of the Nineteenth century; its widespread use in the United States from about the year 1922. Public interest was attracted to the possibility of oil burning with a very considerable increase in the oil production of California and Texas about 1900. Small burners were soon produced and larger ones for power and heat. The first attempts at commercial oil burning were crude. They were followed by natural-draught vaporizing burners, and a later development was the mechanical-draught automatic burner, the foundation of the modern domestic oil-heating industry.

Proposed New Language

Anglic is an international language proposed by Prof. R. E. Zachrisson in 1930. It is based on an analysis of all English words in general use, without adding new letters to the alphabet, at the same time keeping the continuity with the conventional English orthography. It embraces the most common of the existing spelling variants, introducing at the same time a few new digraphs—uu, dh, zh—which have to do the duty of new letters. Anglic has 50 letters or letter combinations to represent the 40-odd sounds that occur in English words in current use.

German Dialects

In Germany there is no standard of pronunciation that is acknowledged and absolutely followed by the mass of intelligent people. The so-called standard of some people is the pronunciation of the stage, which, again is divided into the pronunciation of tragedy and comedy. In the latter, of course, is heard the more natural pronunciation of everyday life. The sectional differences are very marked, but in general there is a North German and a South German pronunciation.

THE TAX MENACE A GROWING CRISIS

By CHARLES H. SISSON
President American Bankers Association

NO danger, economic or social, more seriously menaces our life, happiness and prosperity than the rising tide of taxes which threaten to engulf us. This is not simply a problem of the depression. It has been developing for many years, growing more serious all the time. The depression merely brought it to a climax. Unless drastic steps are taken to reverse this trend the problem will not end with the depression. It will continue to weigh down and retard progress for an indefinite period.

F. H. SISSON

In city, county, state and nation the orgy of spending has run on. It is estimated that in the United States the total cost of all government is nearly five times what it was before the World War. Many localities have been brought to the verge of bankruptcy by their expenditures, while many have saddled their citizens with a debt burden that will darken their lives and hamper their progress for years to come.

The total cost of Federal, state and local government in the United States is estimated at forty-six million dollars a day. Based on national income in 1930, this represents about one-fifth the total income of our people, or about $110 for every individual in the nation. Total taxes in 1931 are estimated to have taken more than 22 percent of the national income. It is occasion for serious thought on the part of everyone when one day's income out of every four or five must be contributed to the maintenance of governmnt machinery.

Reductions Possible

United States Government expenditures were reduced one hundred and forty million dollars during the first quarter of the current fiscal year. The recent action of bankers in calling a halt to unnecessary expenditures of New York City as prerequisite to loans will reduce the cost of government in the country's metropolis, which is second in its expenditures to only the Federal Government. No state in the Union, in fact, no other government on this hemisphere, spends half as much as this one city. These savings in Federal and municipal costs are only the beginning of a movement needed throughout the country, if we are to be led out of depression into prosperity.

Unless the people can be made to realize that money for governmental expenditure can come only from their own pockets as taxpayers, casting depressing effects on both individual effort and general business, there is an imminent threat that we may be forced to meet economic difficulties similar to those that have so seriously handicapped other countries. The question is not primarily one of merely paring government salaries or shaving budgets, but rather of curtailing government activities for which we cannot afford to pay.

The idea that money for these mounting extravagances can be raised by following the slogan "Soak the Rich" is utterly fallacious, for such a policy will simply exterminate "the rich" and eliminate sources of revenue. It is also important to realize that corporate business in this country is in no position to withstand the effects of indefinite advances in tax rates. Current earning reports reveal that fact beyond shadow of doubt. The tax base must be broadened, and it therefore seems likely that Congress will be called upon to reconsider the sales tax, at least as a temporary measure to help meet a critical condition in the nation's finance.

Deposit 'Guarantee' Fails of Purpose

LOS ANGELES.—While the idea of the guarantee of bank deposits by some legally enforced plan seems to appeal to many people who give it casual thought, the fact is that it has not only failed in every instance in the eight states where the experiment was tried, but actually produced unsound banking and increased the number of failures, it was declared by the recent convention of the American Bankers Association held here.

"Guaranty of bank deposits carries an idea that naturally appeals to people in general on casual consideration," the declaration said. "However, in principle it is unsound and in practice it is unworkable. It has been tried in eight States and it has not only failed in every case, but it has resulted in increasing the number of bank failures. Taxing properly managed banks to make up losses of failed banks is not only unfair and unreasonable, but it weakens the whole banking structure. Again, guaranty of deposits places the incompetent and reckless banker on an equal footing with the able and conservative banker, which encourages bad banking at the expense of sound banking. We are therefore opposed to the passage of any law carrying a guaranty of bank deposits and believe that it is against the interest of the people of the United States to develop any such system."

"Why is it that you never see that boy Alfred with the same girl twice running?"

"Well, the minister preached a sermon once which made a great impression on him. It was on the text "Love One Another"—but Alfred thought it was "Love one and then another."

Light is your protection

When you leave your house dark in the evening you are advertising your absence from home. You are inviting the sneak thief and the night prowler to come in. The thief naturally selects the darkened house for his operations. He instinctively shuns the lighted house for light betrays his presence.

One or two lights left burning while you go to the movies or spend an evening out with your friends will give real burglar protection. A 60-watt lamp burning for one evening will cost less than 2 cents. That is pretty cheap burglar insurance, isn't it?

This is typical of the many advantages of electricity that can be enjoyed at a very low cost.

Shamrocks Lose To Goodell In Double Overtime Period

LARGE CROWD WITNESSED LAST GAME ON LOCAL FLOOR

Reserves and Eighth Graders Win By Large Scores

A large crowd was present at the local gymnasium Friday evening and unexpectedly witnessed one of the most suprising upsets of the season when the Goodell High school cagers defeated the local Shamrocks 18-16. With the score tied 3 in the local's favor at the half, the Goodell aggregation, which had not been conceded the slightest chance to win, came back to force the game into an overtime period, tying the score 14-all at the end of the second half. W. Boller scored for Goodell soon after the extra period had started and Brown, of Klemme, soon came back with one to tie the score, making it necessary for a second overtime session to be played. Gordon of Goodell slipped in the winning basket with a setup shot near the close of the game, putting his team in the lead 18-16.

GOD'S GIFT TO MAN
(Christmas Lesson)

Luke 2:1-20.

GOLDEN TEXT—For God so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life.—John 3:16

PRIMARY TOPIC—God's Best Gift to the World.

JUNIOR TOPIC—God's Greatest Gift.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—What Christmas Means to Me.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Jesus the Source of Peace and Good Will.

I. The Birth of Jesus (vv. 1-7).

1. His birth foretold.

a. Predicted by Micah (Micah 5:2).

The prophet Micah foretold the birth of the Messiah some seven hundred years before. There seemed little likelihood that this prophecy would be fulfilled even shortly before it took place. Jesus' mother was miles away in Nazareth in Galilee. God moved upon the Roman emperor to enforce the decree of taxation which brought Mary to Bethlehem at the proper time.

b. His birth predicted by Gabriel (Luke 1:26-38). Gabriel, the archangel, was sent by God to the little town of Nazareth to Mary, a Jewish maidan, who was betrothed to a carpenter by the name of Joseph, solemnly announced to her that she should give birth to the Messiah and that this Son should not be Joseph's but the child of the Holy Ghost (Matt. 1:18-21). This was in fulfillment of Isaiah 7:14. Though at first perplexed, Mary accepted the announcement with remarkable courage and devotion. To be told that she was to be a mother was nothing startling, for this was a normal desire of every married Jewish woman. However, under the circumstances she accepted motherhood at a tremendous cost. She was conscious of her virgin purity. She knew that to become a mother under such circumstances would expose her to unutterable suspicion and shame. Later the angel of the Lord appeared to Joseph also making to him the same announcement and added that the child should be called Jesus (Matt. 1:21). The virgin birth was contrary to Jewish thought and expectation; therefore, it could not have been invented by them.

2. The prediction fulfilled (vv 1-7). Christ's birth took place at a most opportune time. It occurred when all systems of religious worship were tottering upon their foundations. The whole world being under the power of Rome made it possible for Christ's ministers to go from city to city and from country to country unmolested.

II. Jesus' Birth Announced to the Shepherds (vv. 8-14).

This was the first Christmas service.

1. To whom the announcement was made (v. 8). His birth was announced to the shepherds who were keeping watch over their flocks by night. Their humble state in life and their being busy with common duties did not prevent them from hearing this glorious message from God. Moses, Gideon, Amos, and Elisha were all called of God from the activities of life.

2. By whom the announcement was made (v. 9). The first gospel sermon was preached by an angel of the Lord. We thus see these holy beings interested in men, and having part in the announcement of God's plan for their salvation.

3. The nature of the message (vv. 10-14). It was "good tidings of great joy." The darkness of heathendom which had so long covered the earth was beginning to vanish. The casting out of Satan, the prince of this world, was about to take place. Liberty was soon to be proclaimed to those in bondage. The way of salvation was to be offered to all. No longer was the knowledge of God to be confined to the Jews, but offered to the whole world. So glorious was this news that a multitude of the heavenly host accompanied it with songs of praise.

III. The Shepherds Investigating (vv. 15, 16).

They did not stop to argue or raise questions, though these things were, no doubt, strange to them. They went immediately to Bethlehem where they found everything as reported. Here they had the privilege of first gazing upon the wondrous Savior, the very Lord of glory. They returned with gratitude in their hearts, praising God for all these wonderful things which he had revealed into them.

IV. The Shepherds Witnessing (vv. 17-20).

When they beheld the Lord of glory they could not remain silent; therefore, they went back praising God. Those who receive this gospel into their hearts must tell it out to others.

High School Students Enter Fifth Iowa Academic Contest

GLEE CLUB STARTS WORK ON CONTEST MUSIC

Hgh School Will Play Hayfield Here Thursday Evening

Klemme High School will enter the fifth annual Iowa Academic contest in the spring. Subject matter circulars have been received for the subjects tested. They have as their principal purpose equalization of opportunity. By indicating to all participants in advance the general scope and nature of the Every-pupil test, they remove the surprise element and insure a more nearly equal opportunity for each pupil to demonstrate his own ability. The tests are concerned primarily with the ends of instruction, and as little as possible with the means used to attain the ends. They are very useful to compare student's the teacher's and the school's work.

The girls glee club have been working on the Contest Music. The required numbers are: "Now Thank We All Our God" and "Turn Ye Unto Me". They also have been working on the operetta, "Miss Caruthers Return", a musical comedy in two acts.

Who Is Going To Win?

Klemme plays Hayfield on Klemme's floor Thursday. Dec. 22, 1932. The game is on Thursday instead of Friday because Hayfield has a Community affair Friday evening. PROHIBITION HELPS DAIRYMAN

Repeal Would Reduce Consumption of Milk, Mortenson Believes

Consumption of dairy products—particularly market milk and ice cream—will decrease if the eighteenth amendment is repealed, Prof M. Mortenson, head of the Dairy Industry Department at Iowa State College, believes.

"Since prohibition in the United States there has been an increase in the use of milk for drinking in restaurants of between 25 and 50 per cent." Professor Mortenson said. In Eurone they laugh at you if you order milk in a restaurant. I believe there will be a decrease in the use of milk in eating places if prohibition is repealed."

There was a remarkable increase in the consumption of ice cream in this country following prohibition. Part of this increase was due to an intensive advertising campaign. so no accurate figures are available. but it is believed a large part of the increase was due to the fact that people spent money for ice cream for refreshment instead of beer.

The use of buttermilk and sour milk drinks increased more than that after 1919. Professor Mortenson thinks this may have been due in part to the fact that beer drinkers wanted something with more of a "tang" than sweet milk.

Since the United States doesn't export dairy products profitably. the domestic production is regulated mostly by domestic demand. Professor Mortenson says he anticpates a falling off in milk consumption if the eighteenth ammendment is repealed.

KLEMME M. E. CHURCH
Klemme, Iowa

We are glad to give you Christmas Greetings this Holy Season. It is a time that calls us from thinking of Ourselves to think of Others, and especially to think of the Savior, Christ, and God's love. which has made this Christmas Season possible

This wonderful story of God's love to us has come down through the years and each Christmas we commemorate our Savior's birth. At that time in Bethlehem the Wise Men brought their gifts and the Sheperds brought their tribute of adoration.

May the Holy Spirit help you as you read these words of greeting to bring to the Savior a gift of undying Love, Loyalty and Gratitude, and that the Light of the World that came to Bethlehem will be the Guiding Light and Glory of your life.

Sincerely wishing that this may be a very precious Christmas Season to you, Sincerely,

Mr. and Mrs. J. L Ralston and Lowell, Margaret and Paul

"Tools" Washington Used in His Surveying Work

The George Washington bicentennial commission is authority for the statement that the essential instruments used in surveying during Washington's period of activity were the chain and an instrument for measuring angles. For the first, Washington used what is called the Gunter chain. The instruments for measuring angles then in use were the plane table, circumferentor and theodolite. The first was of restricted use, being confined to small inclosures, and it is not likely that Washington used it to any extent, if at all. The theodolite then, as now, was elaborate and costly, and it is doubtful whether Washington ever had one, although it would probably be necessary to go through his invoices carefully in order to determine the matter finally. It is known, however, that he did have a circumferentor, so that it is safe to consider that this was his chief, if not his only, instrument. He may have had a protractor and, of course, he possessed other necessary instruments for plotting, including compasses, scales, etc., but these were for outdoor instruments. His tripod is still at Mount Vernon.

Battles Really Series of Personal Combats

It was in the Twelfth century that the Japanese, who until that time were fighters only for defensive purposes, came under the sway of the military organizations. Feudal chiefs gathered bands around them to protect their fiefs—and help them collect taxes from their subjects. An early Japanese battle resembled a gigantic fencing match. It was opened with a human sacrifice, usually a prisoner or a condemned criminal. Nobody advanced until notice of attack was given with a singing arrow.

These early warriors had an ultra-courteous way about them, says the Milwaukee Journal. Each marched out, singled out a foe and addressed him personally, proclaiming his name and titles and often adding his father's records.

Then the two went to it—like hundreds of others were doing around them.—Detroit News.

When Georgia Had Navy

Georgia had a navy of her own a year before the adoption of the Confederate constitution. Although of doubtful constitutional status, in 1861 it often was referred to as the Georgia fleet or the Georgia navy and sometimes as the Mosquito fleet. Originally it was composed of an old river steamer and two or three small tug boats on which were mounted cannon. Later it boasted four small gunboats; the Savannah, the Resolute, Sampson and the Lady Davis. In the Civil war the Georgia navy participated in engagements around Port Royal, S. C., and at points along the coast of Georgia and Florida. Savannah seems to have been its base. To prevent capture when Savannah fell to General Sherman, the Georgia navy was sunk by its commander, Commodore Tattnall.—Detroit News.

Historic Matches

Doctor Sangrain, a French physician, who had settled in the Spanish garrison at St. Louis in 1800, made the matches that Lewis and Clark carried on their expedition to the West. In "The Conquest" it is stated that "he made matches for Lewis and Clark that were struck on the Columbia a generation before Boston or London made use of the secret. With intense interest Captain Lewis stood by while the chemist-physician dipped sulphur-tipped splints of wood into phosphorus, and lo! his little matches glowed like Lucifer's own. 'You can make the sticks yourself,' he said. 'I will seal the phosphorus in these small tin boxes for safety.'"

Cost of Civil War

In the Civil war, according to Elson, "the expense to the government reached an average of nearly $3,000,000 a day, and there was a public debt in August, 1865, of $2,845,000,000. These figures take no account of the separate expenditures of the state and cities, amounting to nearly $500,000,000, nor of the expense to the South, nor of the incalculable destruction of property. To all this must be added the interest on the public debt and the pensions paid to the soldiers, to the widows, and the orphans. The total cost of the war no doubt exceeded $10,000,000,000."

Personal Service

Many young people are stingy in the giving of personal service, either to the society or to the church. They are willing, perhaps, to do the easy and pleasant things but reluctant to undertake tasks that require time and thought and effort. What Sunday school is not in need of young men for teachers of the boys' classes? To teach such a class demands study and interest in the boys and work in their behalf.

Double Funeral Held At Local M. E. Church Christmas Day

AGED KLEMME RESIDENTS PASSED AWAY THURSDAY

1000 Attended Funeral of Tom Nelson and Mrs. Hans Hanson

Rev. J. L. Ralston was in charge of the services and his text was 'If a man die, shall he live again?"—Job 14:14.

Music was furnished by Miss Glenna Gruetzmacher, Mrs. C. A. Arnold, Thelma Kluckhohn, Clarice Wellemeyer, R. C. Ludeke, Floyd Ax, Emil Patet and E. A. Zeidler with Mrs. R. A. Jorgenson at the piano. Selections were "Beautiful Valley of Eden", "He Lifted Me" and "Does Jesus Care?"

The arrangement of the many beautiful floral offering was in charge of Mr. W. C. Keraus.

It is estimated that 605 people viewed the remains and that nearly 1000 attended the services.

Interment was made in the Klemme cemetery. The two graves were only twelve feet apart and the caskets were lowered simultaneously the committal service being used for both.

This is the first double funeral of adults since 1917, 15 years ago when three were buried at one time Hans C. Nissen. his wife, Stella, and his daughter, Alice, who were victims of a crossing accident, at Milford, Iowa.

Thomas Christian Nelson

Tom Nelson was born in Denmark. June 15th, 1885. His parents died when he was three years of age and his early training. therefore, was in the hands of strangers; but education being compulsory, he completed the full course in the common schools of Denmark.

He was confirmed in the Lutheran church and he remained a member of this church until his death

At the age of 21, Mr. Nelson migrated to America. He worked on a farm at Brownsville, Minnesota, for one year, then he moved to Britt Iowa, where he lived for nine years working on the railroad section for 90c a day.

It was at Britt that Tom Nelson founded a home of his own, when he remarried Anna Maggie Nelson, a widow with four sons and one daughter This one daughter was Mrs. Hans Hanson, who passed away at the same day as Mr. Nelson. To this union were born two sons: Thomas C. Nelson, Jr., and H. Andrew Nelson.

Leaving Britt the family went into the business of farming which they followed successfully for some 30 years.

They farmed first in Liberty Township on the place where Rhine Schlawin now lives. then in Ell Township on part of the farm now owned by Dr. Zinn, and later in Avery township on a farm of their own.

In 1907 Mr. and Mrs. Tom Nelson retired and moved to Klemme. In 1919 Mrs. Nelson passed away and for the past thirteen years Tom Nelson has lived alone.

He was a strong man physically; gifted with a sunny disposition and a constant smile, he made many friends in this community among both adults and children. He took a keen interest in his grandchildren.

Tom Nelson was regular in his attendance at Church; every Sabbath morning he was in his place.

The story of his sudden passing is briefly told. He spent Thursday with friends and relatives in Forest City, Iowa and toward evening he started for home on the bus, which travels on the pavement a half mile west of Klemme.

While walking this last half mile amid considerable auto traffic, and being more, or less blinded by the lights, he was accidently struck by a car and death was instantaneous. He had attained the age of 77 years 5 months and 7 days.

He leaves to mourn his passing: two sons, Thomas C. Nelson, Jr, of Klemme and H. Andrew Nelson of Clear Lake, Iowa.; four step sons, Ralph and Nels Nelson of Forest City. Ia., Jay Nelson of Yankton, S. Dakota Fred Nelson of Rockwell, Ia.; Grandchildren, Verner Nelson Klemme, Harvey Nelson, Klemme, Alma Nelson of Clear Lake, Iowa; great grandchildren, Arabelle and Ardine Nelson of Klemme.

Pall bearers were Mart Bachman, Leon Sherwood, Frank Gruetzmacher, Herb Bailey, John Day. Ed Jacobs.

Mrs. Hans Hanson

Bessie Nelson was born February 13, 1872 at Clear Lake. Iowa. She was the first of five children born to her parents Jacob Nelson and Anna Maggie (nee) Hanson.

Her father died when she was young and at the age of three her grandparents Hanson took over her training. She lived with them and attended the rural schools east of Garner until she was 13 years old. For the next six years she worked out in Garner doing housework.

Her first position was in the home of the Presbyterian minister and a year later she became a member of the Presbyterian Church at Garner, Iowa, where she still holds her membership. During late years she attended the M. E. Church at Klemme and was a member of the Loyal Workers Sunday Scool Class here.

At the age of nineteen, Bessie Nelson was married to Hans Hanson this union being blesed with two daughters.

Mr. and Mrs. Hanson were farmers. They lived for 9 years east of Klemme on the farm now occupied by Clarence Newberger. Twenty-seven years ago they purchased a farm northeast of Klemme, where they lived for 14 years.

Then they retired from active farming and moved to Klemme, where they have now lived for 13 years.

One of the outstanding characteristics of this good woman was that she was such a "cheerful giver". In her youth she gave freely of time to the raising of chickens and the milking of cows so that her family might gain financial independence. She was also most generous in her gift of love to her children and grandchildren. No sacrifice was too great and no labor too long when it concerned her loved ones. She gave herself completely for their welfare.

She was unselfish in her dealings with neighbors and friends, always showed a willngness to meet the neighbors more than half way in every transaction.

Her face was bright and sunny and her manner happy because she loved her work and her thoughts were always for those she loved.

Mrs. Hans Hanson had been in poor health for several weeks and on Thursday, December 22nd. underwent an operation at the Mercy hospital for the removal of one kidney; she died the same day, having reached the age of 60 years, 10 months and 9 days.

She leaves to mourn her loss her husband, Hans Hanson; her children. Maggie, Mrs. William Alexander of Minneapolis and Lillie, Mrs. Leo Ell of Mason City.; her grandchildren: Ruby Miller of Klemme, Ia., Mrs. Carl Whitsel of Mason City Violet Ell, Harry Ell, and Wava Ell all of Mason City, Ia.; her brothers, Ralph and Nels Nelson of Forest City, Ia., Jay Nelson of Yankton, S. Dak., Fred Nelson. Rockwell, Ia., Thomas C. Nelson, Klemme, Iowa, and H. Andrew Nelson of Clear Lake, Iowa.

Her pallbearers were G. Goll, G. Gobeli, Erick Josten, Frank Ward, Fred Barz and Herman Thieman.

THOMAS NELSON, VICTIM, WAS BLINDED BY CARS' LIGHTS

Driver Held Blameless; Stepdaughter's Body Taken To Town

Thomas Nelson, Sr., 77. was killed Thursday night when he was struck by a car near here as he was walking on the road. Hancock county officers investigated and held that the driver of the car. Leo Brown, of Klemme, was blameless.

About the same time that Mr. Nelson died the body of his stepdaughter, Mrs. Hans Hanson, who died in a Mason City hospital, was brought here.

Blinded by Lights

The accident happened about 8 o'clock a quarter of a mile west of Klemme. Mr. Nelson had been to Forest City on business and had returned on the bus. After stepping out at the corner, he had gone abut 15 rods on the gravel road when two cars approached going in opposite directions. In the first car was Mr. Brown. F. A. Lemke of Meservey arrived on the scene of the accident shortly after it occured and immediately drove into Klemme and called a local physician.

It was believed by officers that Mr. Nelson was blinded by lights of the cars and stepped in front of the oncoming Brown car. His leg was broken and his head badly mutilated. Identification was possible only by his clothing and articles in his pocket.

Night Was Foggy

Coroner Frank W. Zeiger and Sheriff E. P. Hanson of Garner investigated. It was foggy that night and it was thought this might have been a contributing cause of the accident.

Mrs. Hanson died at a Mason City hospital, where she had been taken Monday for treatment of kidney disease. She submitted to an operation. She and her husband resided in Klemme.

Mr. Nelson lived alone. He was born in Denmark and came to this country 57 years ago. For the past 55 years he has been a resident of Klemme and vicinity. He was twice married and both of his wives preceded him in death, his last wife dying in 1920.

Lesson for January 1

JOHN PREPARES THE WAY FOR JESUS

Mark 1:1-11.

GOLDEN TEXT—Prepare ye the way of the Lord, make his paths straight. Mark 1:3.

PRIMARY TOPIC—A Faithful Messenger.

JUNIOR TOPIC—The King's Messenger.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Heralds of the King.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Preparing the Way for the Christ.

Since the lessons for the first six months of 1933 are mainly taken from the Gospel according to Mark, it is necessary to grasp the central purpose of this Gospel. In the Old Testament is set forth an august portrait of the Messiah. He is the Branch, the King (Jer. 23:5); the Branch, the Servant (Zech. 3:8); the Branch, the Man (Zech. 6:12); the Branch of the Lord (Isa. 4:2).

The fourfold account contained in the Gospels, placed alongside the Old Testament predictions, fits exactly. Matthew presents him as the King; Mark, the Servant of the Lord; Luke as the Kinsman-Redeemer, and John as the Son of God. The central theme of Mark is the gospel of Jesus Christ, the Son of God (1:1). The key verse is Mark 10:45, "The Son of man came not to be ministered unto, but to minister, and to give his life a ransom for many." The key words are "straightway," "forthwith," "immediately." The picture of the divine Servant energetically doing the Father's work is most beautiful, for the girded one is as beautiful as the arrayed one.

I. Who Is This Servant (v. 1)?

This servant who so fully and energetically executed the divine will is the very Son of God.

II. The Forerunner of the Divine Servant (vv. 2-8).

1. Who he was (vv. 2, 3). He was John the Baptist who was prophesied of more than five hundred years before (Isa. 40:3).

2. His mission (v. 2). It was to prepare the way for Christ's coming. He represented himself as but a voice of one crying in the wilderness. He was therefore God's voice proclaiming the divine will and purpose. He was content to be but a voice.

3. His message (vv. 3-8).

a. Prepare ye the way of the Lord (v. 3). It was customary for servants to go before distinguished personages and prepare the way over which they were to travel. In this preparation there was to be a removal of stones, the leveling of the surface, etc. John's message meant therefore that the people should remove from their hearts everything which hindered the incoming of the Lord. He called upon them to humble themselves, to bring down the high places of pride and straighten out the crooked places and confess their sins.

b. The baptism of repentance (v. 4). In preparation for the coming of Christ, people were to repent of their sins. Those who repented were to be baptized. Baptism was to be administered to those who repented as an expression of penitence which led to forgiveness of sin.

c. The coming of the Messiah (vv. 7, 8). The coming one was to be much greater than himself, so great that John was unworthy to loose the latchet of his shoes. The superior dignity of Christ was not only in his person but in the work he was to perform. John merely baptized with water but Jesus with the Holy Ghost.

4. His success (v. 5). People from all over Judea and Jerusalem went out and were baptized. John's dress and demeanor were in keeping with his stern mission. He was clothed with camel's hair and had on a girdle of skin. Locusts and wild honey constituted his food. His food and dress indicated that he had withdrawn from the world as a protest against its follies and sins.

III. The Divine Servant Baptized (vv. 9-11).

Jesus was not baptized because he sinned and therefore needed repentance, but because he had taken the sinner's place and was about to accomplish his work which would constitute the basis of all righteousness. He was now dedicating himself to the task of bringing in righteousness through his sacrificed death. Observe in connection with his baptism:

1. The opened heavens (v. 10). This indicated his connection with heaven.

2. The descent of the Spirit upon him (v. 10). This was the divine seal to his work.

3. The voice of approval from heaven (v. 11). This made clear to John the fact that Jesus was the Messiah.

Be Busy

When you are very busy, your beliefs like your clothes will wear out rapidly, and you will provide yourself with new ones. But keep very busy. . . . Religion is not what men believe. . . . Religion is what men do with their beliefs.

A Divine Man

God will not have his work made manifest by cowards. It needs a divine man to exhibit anything divine.—Emerson.
